OWNER OF AIR-CRASH REVOLVER IDENTIFIED

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Reliable sources said Saturday that Frank Gonzalez, 27, Olympic yachtsman competitor for the Philippines in the 1960 Olympics, owned the gun which triggered the Pacific Air Lines crash Thursday. He was among the 44 persons killed. Gonzalez reportedly bought the revolver the day before he left for Reno.

The Civil Aeronautics Board made public the tape recording of the last message radioed from the plane in which a voice, presumably that of the pilot, said: "I've been shot! I've been shot! Oh, my God! Help!"

A reliable source told the Associated Press in San Francisco that Gonzalez gambled and lost at Reno and carried $100,000 air-trip life insurance made out to his wife of two years. A brother, James, said Frank Gonzalez had become estranged from his wife two months ago.

FRANK GONZALEZ

The New York Herald Tribune and the Los Angeles Times both published reports that Gonzalez had been identified as the owner of the .357 Smith and Wesson magnum revolver found in the plane wreckage. All six cartridges were spent. They had been fired recently.

FBI national headquarters in Washington would neither confirm nor deny the report that Gonzalez had been established as owner of the weapon.

But sources previously had said a male passenger was the gunman, that he carried heavy air-trip insurance, and that apparently he had shot at least one member of the crew.

Lee Martin, in charge of the CAB investigation to determine the cause of the crash, said "we have found no evidence" that either the pilot or copilot was shot by a passenger. He added, however, that any criminal investigation was in the hands of the FBI.

Gonzalez's brother said Frank had a penchant for gambling and had gone to Reno several times previously, always without any word of it to his family, but his previous trips were by car.

"I never knew what he was doing," the brother said, adding that Frank kept to himself.

He said Frank became separated recently from his wife, legal secretary with the U.S. government. They have a small son.

Frank Gonzalez settled on San Francisco as his adopted home while on his way back to the Philippines after taking part in the yachting Olympics at Naples four years ago.

FBI agents were reported to be interrogating Gonzalez's relatives, including his brother, mother and father. But district headquarters in San Francisco kept its around-the-clock operations a secret. A spokesman said there would be no talking while the solution remained incomplete.

Saturday's playback of the tape-recorded last message from the Reno-to-San Francisco plane did not pin down whose voice cried out "I've been shot!" It was believed to have been that of the pilot, Ernest A. Clark, 53, of San Carlos.

Shortly before 7 a.m. Thursday, Oakland control tower advised the incoming

Home-Contract Dispute Flares in Beach City

More than 1,000 homeowners in Huntington Beach and Ventura County have threatened court action against a Los Angeles developer on charges that sales contracts were grossly unfair to buyers.

The controversy came to a head late last week when a standing-room-only crowd of more than 150 homeowners met in Huntington Beach to protest the contracts.

Interested spectators at the meeting in Circleview Elementary School were County Supervisor David Baker and representatives of. Congressman Richard T. Hanna, D-Anaheim, and Assemblyman James E. Whetmore. All pledged to aid the homeowners.

Baker told the audience that he would have county counsel study the land sales contracts. The others suggested possibile legislation to tighten home purchase contracts.

Tempers flared when S. Allen, attorney for the land developer, A. L. Gindling, told the crowd:

Johnson Sees Yule Session if Solons Balk

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — President Johnson served warning Saturday night that he may keep Congress in session until Christmas if it fails to enact his top-priority legislation by the end of August.

In remarks prepared for a Democratic fund-raising dinner here at the convention hall where he is expected to be nominated in August, Johnson asked his partisan audience to muster support for eight of his pending programs.

Civil rights and the war against poverty headed the list, followed by medical care for the aged, aid to the distressed Appalachian region, and bills affecting housing, immigration, extended minimum-wage coverage and aid to education.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — President Johnson startled 3,000 guests at a fund-raising dinner here Saturday night at the site of the 1964 Democratic Convention when he said:

"There will be chosen in this hall a leader of this nation for 1965 and I am sad to say it will not be me."

The President paused for a full five seconds and added: "It will be Miss America."

"I want you to call upon your neighbors — of every race, creed and color—and get their support for these programs," Johnson told the New Jersey Democrats. "And I want you to call upon your congressman and get him behind these programs. Because if we don't pass them between now and convention—we'll be working on them between convention and Christmas."

The President thus hardened a warning he first issued at a news conference last Wednesday.

Johnson's Atlantic City appearance followed a visit to New York where he addressed the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union at the World's Fair, held a news conference, helped open the Venezuelan pavilion, and participated in dedication of Nassau County's John F. Kennedy Cultural Center at the old site of Mitchell Air Force Base, on Long Island.

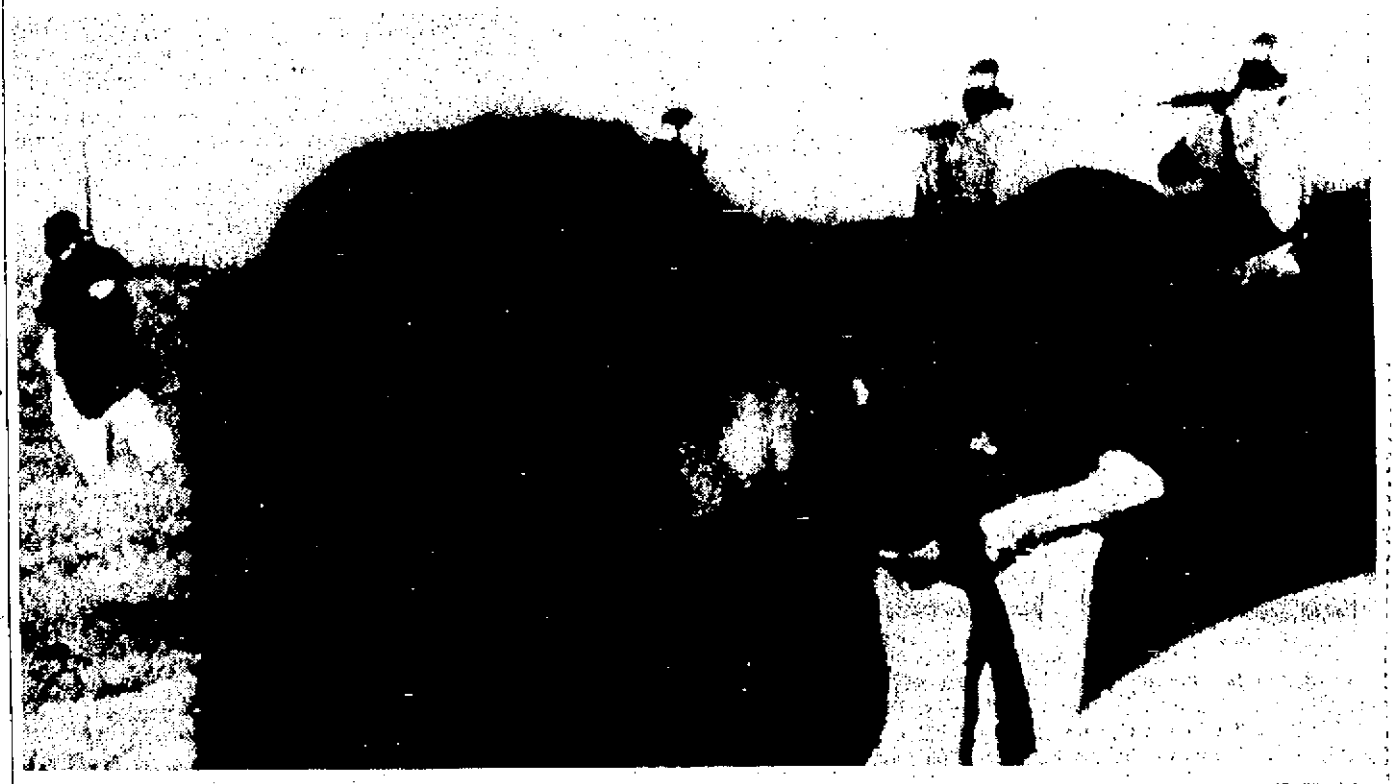

The President said at the Atlantic City scene of his party's Aug. 24 convention that he doesn't want to be partisan, because he is President of all the people, including Republicans. Then he jokingly added:

"I haven't had much political experience . . . therefore I just want to say that I hope that whatever candidate of whatever party is chosen in this hall will be successful in November."

CITY SERVICE ASKED

Junior Chamber Urges Birth Curbs

By GEORGE WEEKS

The Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, venturing into a warmly controversial field, has endorsed increased birth-control measures at local, state and national levels.

One proposal expected to generate immediate dispute is a recommendation that the City Council direct the Municipal Health Department to "organize a birth-control type service available to the citizens of Long Beach and publicize its availability to all of the public service agencies and groups of the city."

The Health Department thus far has shunned taking the initiative in birth-control programs.

Also on the controversial side was a Jaycee suggestion that adult-level schools supply birth-control information by way of courses.

William Hodge, Junior Chamber president, made known the organization's proposals in letters to the City Council, state and federal legislators from this area and members of civic, church and school organizations.

The Jaycee letter was approved by the board of

Air Force Stunt Team Pilot Killed

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — A member of the Air Force Thunderbird precision flying team, Capt. Eugene J. Devlin, 31, was killed Saturday in the explosion of his F105 jet as his group screamed over the base in a speedy fly-by before landing.

Devlin was flying left wing position in a group of three which flew the length of a runway at about 500 feet altitude. The lead plane peeled off to the left and climbed. Devlin started to follow, and his plane exploded as it started the climb in front of the base operations tower.

Wreckage of the one-place, single-engine jet was scattered over a wide area including the flight line, the area in front of the operations tower.

Gun-Toting, Insured Cabbie Seized Boarding Airliner

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A cab driver was arrested at San Francisco International Airport Saturday, minutes before he was to have taken off aboard a Dallas-bound airliner with a $45,000 insurance policy and an automatic pistol in his pocket.

He was identified as L. J. Anderson, 29, a native of Dallas who has been driving a cab here since 1960.

The incident bore similarities to circumstances of the spectacular mystery crash Thursday in which 44 were killed a few miles east of here near Danville. Amid the wreckage was a revolver belonging to a passenger and it had been established that one or both of the pilots was shot seconds before the crash.

The passenger to whom the weapon belonged was heavily insured.

In Saturday's incident, police said Anderson was observed switching a 25-caliber automatic pistol from one pocket to another as he waited in line with passengers about to board the American Airlines flight.

The move was witnessed by an airline employe. He notified police who took Anderson into custody, disarmed him and emptied the weapon of a full clip of cartridges.

Anderson had purchased a $45,000 insurance policy in the airline terminal minutes earlier.

He was booked on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and on a federal charge of attempting to board an airliner carrying a firearm.

Hours later, he was released on $550 bail.

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A 102-year-old grandmother enjoyed "one of the main delights of life" Saturday—an airline flight.

Man, 98, Up One Day After Surgey

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A 98-year-old former steelworker is making an excellent recovery from a hernia operation, the Lake County Medical Society reported Saturday.

The report said the man, father of 12, is a welfare recipient and the local welfare office verified his age. The surgeon said the man looks to be in his 60s and was out of bed the day after surgery.

Children Survive Disaster

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An Argentine air force courier plane, wheels down, the pilot groping for a landing in dense fog, crashed into a high coastal sand dune, killing 46 of 49 persons aboard Friday night. The plane burned on impact.

The only survivors were an 8-year-old girl, Graciela Martha Castaldi, a 13-year-old boy, Jorge Enriquez and a noncommissioned member of a crew of seven, Oscar Abumada. The children, also Argentines, were in critical condition at Lima's naval hospital.

The seared wreckage was spotted by Peruvian naval helicopters Saturday.

Doctors at the scene, 18 miles north of Lima, said only four of the bodies found could be identified.

The plane, a DC4, was trying to land at Lima's International Airport after a flight from Buenos Aires.

Yank POWs of Viet Cong Tell What It's Like

(Editor's Note — Wilfred Burchett, Australian-born newspaperman who has been Communist-oriented, has returned to Moscow after spending five months in South Viet Nam with the Viet Cong forces.

In the jungle he met four American prisoners-of-war. In the following story, written for the Associated Press, he describes their life.

Burchett, formerly a reporter for British newspapers, now lives in Moscow and writes regularly for Communist papers and some Western papers and magazines. During the Korean War, he covered the Communist side and was reported in 1953 to have helped write germ warfare "confessions" for American prisoners-of-war. He also has been seen on the Communist side in Laos.)

By W. BURCHETT

MOSCOW (AP)—In a remote corner of South Viet Nam, in a patch of jungle so dense that at midday only tiny patches of sky shine through like stars in the gloom, four American sergeants are living in individual, tiny bamboo huts, each encircled with a high palisade, each with an air-raid shelter.

They are the first inhabitants of a newly established prisoner-of-war camp, the first to be set up by those the West calls "Viet Cong" and who call themselves the "Giai Phong Quan" or liberation army, the military arm of the National Front of Liberation. Other American prisoners are plodding along jungle trails or moving by night in sampans in the general direction of this camp, now that an organization has finally been set up to deal with POWS. The four Americans are:

Staff Sgt. Kenneth Roraback of Fayetteville, N. C.; Spec. 5 Claude D. McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Sgt. 1.C. Issac Camacho of El Paso, Tex., and Sgt. George E. Smith, whose mother lives in Chester, W. Va.

They were captured together when the special forces training camp to which they were attached as advisers was overrun on the night of Nov. 23-24, 1963. They have reason to consider themselves, as they themselves expressed it, "out of luck."

If the raid had taken place 10 days later, they would have been on their way home, as their six-month tour of duty was to be cut short to get them home for Christmas. McClure, a Negro, considers himself doubly unlucky because he married only a few days before leaving the United States on July 10 to go to South Viet Nam, and was count-

L.A.C. Says:

The Lodge Mystery

According to the public opinion polls, Henry Cabot Lodge is the leading candidate among Republicans. Before the New Hampshire primary election he was far down the line of preferred candidates. The polls indicate he will win the May 15 Oregon primary where all the leading candidates will be on the ballot. Very few of the Republican county chairmen around the country favor him. But, still he is the leader among the rank and file voters expressing an opinion.

It is an unusual situation that puzzles the GOP leaders. They doubt he can be nominated because his standing among party leaders is not high. He is looked upon as having refused to carry on a strong campaign as vice presidential candidate in 1960. It is believed the slim margin by which Nixon and Lodge were defeated could have been reversed had Lodge done his part.

Most political observers view his present strength as being a reaction among Republicans to the Goldwater and Rockefeller campaigns. These candidates have left confusion over some vital issues. The attacks by Rockefeller on Goldwater have caused bitterness—as have the ultra-right wing supporters of Goldwater created bitterness. Out of this split it is believed the people have turned to Lodge because they know little about him.

It has been 12 years since Lodge served in the Senate—so he has no recent voting record to be attacked or praised. During his eight years as our leader in the United Nations he conducted himself in a way that brought approval from most of the people. But it is pointed out by some that in that post he was following the policies set out by President Eisenhower. Lodge was an effective spokesman—but he was not the policymaker. Few people have any idea of what Lodge stands for as concerns Cuba, labor-management issues, foreign aid, government spending, social security or many other vital issues on which a campaign must be waged. His attitude concerning such issues is more obscure than that of any other well-known candidate.

He landed in Viet Nam at the time of the execution of the Ngo administration. His administration there has been during the period of some of our greatest loss of American men. What is to be done there is still unknown to the American people. But if Lodge should return to carry on a campaign he would be faced with disclosing many things that are now obscure.

His has been a long and honorable record in public life. But it has not involved him in some of the most vital and controversial issues of the day. It is probable he will win the Oregon primary. That may cause him to return to fight for the convention nomination in July. He should do so—in my opinion—because the people have a right to know where he stands on these vital issues. Otherwise, he is supported because of what is not known about him—rather than what he should tell the people about his views. If these views are clear and agreeable to the people, he could be an effective candidate for the Republican party. But the mystery must be ended for that to be true.

Meantime on June 2, California Republicans will choose delegates to the national convention. They will be for either Rockefeller or Goldwater. No write-in names will be possible. Voters should make their decision based on the long and honorable records of these two men. Either man is deserving of the respect of all Republicans. Both are fundamentally conservative with their records well known. But of greatest importance Republicans should cast a record number of votes to demonstrate the party's strength in this key state.—L.A.C.

GOP Bogged in Plethora of Hopefuls

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief I, P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Republican National Convention opens just nine weeks from Monday and its outlines are not much clearer today than they were several months ago.

No outstanding popular favorite has yet come to view. Henry Cabot Lodge appears to have some strong support among the rank-and-file Republican delegates to vote for him at the convention.

* * * *

THE AVERAGE delegate isn't the type to cozy to Lodge and anyway he has several objections to the tall, handsome Bostonian. He thinks he didn't work hard enough in his race for the vice presidency in 1960. He is skeptical about choosing as a standard-bearer a man so intimately associated with the unpopular war in South Viet Nam, and he never really liked Lodge in the first place.

Rightly or wrongly, Lodge has a reputation among professional politicians of being arrogant, unfriendly and hard to get at. They point out that he lost his senatorship in Massachusetts in a year when the Republican national ticket scored a smashing triumph. He lost to John F. Kennedy, a not-inconsiderable vote-getter in Massachusetts himself, but a loss, no matter to whom, never helps a man whose eyes are on the presidency.

* * * *

CONVENTION delegates will remember that Lodge lost in 1960 and will contend that his statement about placing a Negro in the cabinet caused the ticket considerable embarrassment and to do some fancy back-tracking.

How long Lodge can maintain his twin positions of ambassador and announced candidate for nomination is a nice political question. Sooner or later he will have to abandon one or the other. The general guess here in Washington is that he will make that decision as late as possible; thus protecting himself as long as he can from the slings and arrows of outrageous political fortune.

* * * *

EMERGENCE of Lodge since the New Hampshire primary in March as a major candidate has served merely to muddy the Republican waters, which were muddy enough to start with. The trouble with the GOP is that it has more candidates than it knows what to do with, but only one of them manages to convey a strong enthusiasm for himself to those who will do the convention selecting. That man is, of course, Barry Goldwater, whose adherents are hero-worshipers. They believe in their man, a characteristic which is not overwhelmingly noticable among the adherents of other candidates.

In politics, nine weeks can be both a long time and a short time. If nothing much does happen before the opening gavel of the Republican convention in San Francisco that meeting will start more shapeless and less discernible in result than any convention of recent memory.

Humphrey Sees LBJ by Landslide, Midwest as Crucial Battleground

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Saturday night predicted a landslide victory for President Johnson this fall and singled out the Midwest as the major battleground for control of Congress.

The Senate majority whip spoke at the Democrats' Jackson-Jefferson Day $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner climaxing a two-day Midwest Democratic Conference.

* * * *

SECRETARY of Agriculture Orville Freeman and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz addressed enthusiastic audiences as more than 2,000 party faithful from 14 states, including several governors and congressmen, attended the sessions.

The conference was called to lay groundwork for Midwestern recommendations for party policy to be incorporated in the 1964 Democratic platform.

A resolution unanimously adopted on the opening day of the conference Friday endorsed Johnson as the Democratic presidential nominee and recommended that he be given a free hand in selecting his vice presidential running mate.

Humphrey said Johnson's popularity would have a strong effect on the entire Democratic ticket this fall and give the party an even greater control of the House and Senate.

He predicted Johnson would carry more Midwestern states that President Harry S Truman did in 1948 when he took eight of the 14 states in the Midwest conference.

Noting that the 14 states in the conference now have 80 Republicans and 56 Democrats in the House, Humphrey said the main battle for congressional seats will be fought in the Midwest this fall.

"THERE is an opportunity here to make important Democratic gains and give President Johnson the votes he needs in Congress to give a 'better deal' to the American people," the Minnesota senator said.

Warren Quiz Hears Report of Rifleman

DALLAS (UPI)—A witness has told the Warren Commission that he saw a man with a rifle in a sixth floor window of the Texas School Book Repository 15 minutes before President Kennedy was assassinated.

The witness said the man was at the southwest corner window of the building.

Lee Harvey Oswald allegedly fired the assassination bullets from the southeast corner window.

David Belin, a Warren Commission employe who has interviewed some of the Dallas witnesses in connection with the assassination, took two commission members to a position Saturday from which the witness could have seen a man in the southwest corner.

Three members of the commission are in Dallas for an on-the-scene investigation.

Secret Service agents reenacted the scene the witness said he saw. An agent with a rifle in the southwest corner of the building was plainly visible to newsmen stationed where the witness said he had been.

Forrest Sorrels, Secret Service agent-in-charge of the Dallas office, confirmed that agents had questioned the witness on Nov. 22.

The witness was described as a 20-year-old part-time college student who had testified before the Warren Commission in March. No name was disclosed.

Agents quoted the witness as saying he could not identify the man with the rifle and did not immediately report what he had seen because he thought the man was a Secret Service agent guarding the presidential motorcade.

LOS ALAMITOS GROUP TO CELEBRATE, THEN DISBAND

Fair Zoning Committee Plans Fete

This is the tale of a guy called Joe and how he and his band of citizens beat City Council in Los Alamitos. Now they'll have a party, then disband.

There is no local precedent for Joe Hyde's feat in guiding the Los Alamitos Citizens Committee for Fair Zoning to three election victories in the past eight months.

One election was a referendum to veto a vote by city council.

Another — the only regular election of the three — was to retain in office the mayor and a councilman who supported the views of the Fair Zoning Committee.

The last, held last week, was to recall three opposing councilmen and put into office members of the committee.

The Fair Zoning Committee raced to the three victories with little money. Today, they still owe an $86 printing bill.

The committee was so broke by the time of the third election it had to distribute 90 percent of its only mailing by hand. It couldn't afford the postage.

The 38-year-old committee chairman, a Los Angeles chemist on his off hours from local politics during the past eight months, estimates the committee spent a total of a little more than $200 for all three campaigns.

Stacked against the citizens' committee, at one time or other during the elections, were a professional public relations firm, a law firm, a wealthy land developer and a majority of the five-man city council.

JOE HYDE
Led Triple Victory

The committee faced charges hurled through sleek, multicolored literature sent to all voters—naturally through the post office.

Joe Hyde admits he admired the artistic work done on their handbills. Committee members walking from door to door last week paused to envy the passing sound trucks used by their opponents.

"Time and effort was all we could afford," said Hyde.

During the campaigns, Hyde was the target of his opponents. He was blasted in unsigned letters to the public and in anonymous phone calls to his home.

Yet, he never ran for office.

"It was a good thing they chose to hit me," he admitted. "In that way, they didn't concentrate on the candidates, the committee was trying to get into office."

Up until last August, Joe Hyde had stayed away from local politics and stayed home with his wife, Mildred, and their daughter, Debbie, 5.

Then one lazy Sunday morning during that month, Joe Hyde read in the Sunday edition of The Independent, Press-Telegram that the Navy was objecting to a proposed apartment development near its jet runway at Los Alamitos Air Station.

The Navy contended that the future residents would agitate to close the station because of jet noise and the crash hazard.

On August 27, Joe Hyde went to a regular meeting of the city council and, after listening to the pros and cons, decided the Navy was right.

Mayor James Bell and Councilman Charles Long also agreed with the Navy. But the other three councilmen—the majority—sided with the developer and the landowner and approved the condominium.

Hyde could see that most of the spectators were with him. During a recess of the meeting, a paper was circulated among the crowd and the vital contact information of names and addresses was recorded on the sheet.

Within four days, Hyde called his first meeting in Los Alamitos Firehouse. Some 50 persons attended and the Citizens Committee for Fair Zoning was born.

The committee never was a formal organization. There never were any elections. At meetings, parliamentary procedures were thrown aside if someone had to get something off his chest. Hyde served without pay as chairman just because "somebody had to." Mrs. Mary Jo Sullivan was secretary.

But work, committee members did. They went out and got 529 signatures on a petition calling for a referendum election on the city council action.

Last Dec. 17, Los Alamitos voters — in the first special election in city history—overwhelmingly went against their city council, '614-155.

But in the aftermath of that victory, "the committee saw that the three-man majority of city council would continue to go against the wishes of the people," Hyde said.

The committee was particularly incensed when one of its supporters, Donald Dodd, was replaced on the city planning commission by action of city council after the referendum.

Members of the Fair Zoning Committee went out and collected more than 447 signatures on a petition for recall of the three councilmen. The committee not only had to pay for legal publication of its recall movement, but also for the publicized answers of its three opponents.

Hyde recalled that "our adversaries were allowed 500 words each in the legal notice to answer our charges and they used almost every bit of it. Two of them wrote 497 words each and the third, 498."

In the meantime, the regular election time came around and Mayor Bell and Councilman Long, who supported the committee, were seeking office again.

Committee members went back to their word-of-mouth campaign and Bell and Long were re-elected by overwhelming majorities.

No sooner were they through with that election than committee members were back on their house-to-house campaign for recall of the three councilmen.

It all ended Tuesday when the councilmen were recalled and three commmittee members were voted into city council.

But it had not all ended for the Fair Zoning Committee.

"We're going to have a party to celebrate first," said Hyde, "then we are going to disband."

STARLIGHT SERENADE

Dates Set for 3 Pop Concerts

Dates for this year's Summer Pop Concerts—Starlight Serenade—to be held in Bixby Park, were announced Saturday.

Programs will be held on three Tuesday nights—June 30, July 28 and Sept. 1.

In addition the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Lauris Jones, will play a fourth concert on Sept. 12 in the Casino at Avalon, Catalina Island. The concert is being underwritten by Phillip Wrigley.

MRS. HERMAN H. Ridder, founder and chairman of the Long Beach Symphony Association's Summer Pop Concerts, announced that artists will be announced at a later date, but that the July 28 program will be "Long Beach Night" featuring Long Beach artists.

"The Navy League Cadet Corps will again help seat the audience which again this year will include groups of blind people whose transportation expenses are provided by the Downtown Lions Club. Escorts for the blind will be provided by the Women's Division of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce," she said.

FEATURE of this year's program will be that the orchestra will be playing out of a new acoustical shell, purchased by the City. The fiber glass shell has been ordered and will be delivered prior to the first concert.

Serving with Mrs. Ridder on the Starlight Serenades Committee are Wally Arntzen, William Boyd, Samuel C. Joan Delays Final Hop

HONOLULU (UPI) — Joan Merriam Smith delayed until today her departure on the final leg of her solo world-circling flight.

Headwinds up to 20 knots were reported between here and Oakland, Calif., where she started her venture in mid-March.

The 2,400-mile overwater hop would take an estimated 15 hours in normal conditions.

Mechanics repaired her plane at Honolulu International Airport after her arrival from Midway Island.

The automatic pilot on her twin-engine Piper Apache had given her trouble.

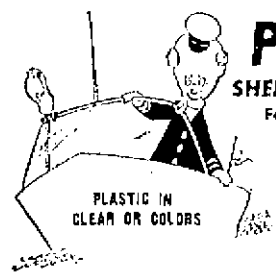

U.S. Plans Nuclear Sub Tripleheader

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy has scheduled a nuclear submarine tripleheader at the Portsmouth, N.H., Naval shipyard Tuesday.

Within a two-hour period, the keel will be laid for the Grayling, a Sturgeon-class nuclear-powered attack submarine; the Polaris missile-firing atomic sub Nathaniel Greene will be launched, and the Polaris sub John Adams will be commissioned.

Most of the classes will be conducted by Cambridge professors, but faculty members from other British universities will participate as well as other authorities on British local government, national politics, education and religion.

Excursions will include one to Statford-on-Avon during the 400th anniversary of the birth of Shakespeare.

Soviets Claim Bonn Making Spy Planes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The official government newspaper Izvestia Saturday night accused West Germany of secretly producing military rockets and planes similar to the American U2 reconnaissance plane.

The newspaper challenged Bonn to refute the charges by agreeing to a Kremlin proposal for international inspection of the West German arms industry.

The government organ repeated allegations made in an official Tass news agency statement March 7 which said Germany was seeking to arm itself with nuclear weapons and planning aggressive action.

Area Dairy Employes to Host Labor Association Convention

The Artesia-Dairy Valley area will become the national convention center this week for the 20,000-member Christian Labor Association, Ben Meninga, secretary-treasurer of Dairy Employes Local No. 17, an affiliate member of the national organization, announced Saturday.

The 70 official delegates from across the nation will start arriving Monday. Chartered bus tours of Southland dairies and other industries, plus a harbor cruise, have been scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday.

Wednesday, the 16-member national board of directors will meet in executive session at Dairy Employes Local No. 17 office, 11644 Artesia Blvd. Workshops for the various committee delegates will be held through Friday at the Artesia Community Center Building.

Dr. Peter Eldersveld, Chicago radio minister, will be principal speaker at dinner meetings at Disneyland Hotel, 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Presiding at major sessions will be Harry Vander Laan, national president, of Grandville, Mich. He will be assisted by Joseph Gritter, national secretary, from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Host will be Dairy Employes Local No. 17 which has about 875 members engaged in work in Southland dairies. Bernie Vanderweide of 6008 Eastbrook Ave., Lakewood, is local president.

The convention will close Friday night with a dinner at Knott's Berry Farm for local officers and the 70 visiting delegates.

Moral, Not Technical, Aid Urged by Pope

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul VI said Saturday underdeveloped countries needed spiritual and moral assistance more urgently than technical assistance.

The Pope spoke to a group of Italian and foreign experts meeting in Rome to discuss means to expand technical assistance to developing countries. They were received by the pontiff in private audiences.

Beauty Shows Are Nice, but Such a Bore

ON THE BEACH . . . Better Than Contests

By WILLIAM JONES

Bathing beauty contests are out of the swim of things as far as the public is concerned.

Experts on such well-stacked matters here say public interest in the leggy exhibitions has plunged as low as the backless swimsuit. Down to the critical point.

The guys, they say, can now plunk down a buck or two and go to a drive-in movie and see things dad never saw when the swim suit set paraded down the ramp to win the Miss Something-or-Other title.

* * * *

WILLIAM C. Boyd—who as a former public relations man for the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce produced contests and was a judge of at least 25—even blames the influence of barmaids in certain beer parlors

"For the price of a beer, you can see more sex there than at a beauty contest," said Boyd with an appreciative nod.

He traces the beer parlor trend to the campaign of a national man's magazine, Playboy, in bringing out the fuller charms of waitresses.

* * * *

BOYD, who now promotes beautiful homes instead of beautiful girls as advertising director of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., is more clinical.

"Interest in beauty contests has declined because you can find beauty and sex (1) in magazines, billboards, newspaper ads, (2) on the streets because women have learned facial makeup and clothes fashion better and, (3) in those beer bars."

Another reason given is the new savvy of the contestants themselves.

* * * *

TO BECOME a successful beauty contest winner requires years of training in poise, personality, make-up, clothing, figure development, speech, talent and charm.

And no one denies that certain natural endowments are the first requirements.

Diane Olson (who had those first requirements: 38-24-36) admitted she had dreamed and planned to win the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest from the time she was 14 years old.

* * * *

MUSIC, dancing and modeling removed her from a normal childhood. Experience came in numerous smaller contests where she was a hit as a "Miss."

The shapely beauty won more than 23 titles —everything from Miss Speedcraft to Miss Softball—before winning the Miss Welcome crown in 1962. She was 18.

But the reign of a queen can be lonely and its glamour deceptive.

* * * *

MOST beauty queens, aside from the major winners of such contests as Miss America and Miss International Beauty, find their sole rewards are the title, merchandise prizes and what the stage announcers refer to as "this gorgeous, gold trophy."

Curvy Donna Lee Kelley, another beauty contest winner here, found she needed to buy five new evening dresses—about $1,000 worth—after gaining one title.

And the girls are at the beck and call and mercy of every Tom, Dick and Zebrawski promoter of the contest.

* * * *

DIANE Olson—constantly smiling because fairy princesses are supposed to do that—found herself called out to more than 60 promotional events during one reign.

Last December, Diane dropped the search for the Miss and added a Mrs. title. She eloped with Orange County contractor, John L. Bruce.

Donna Lee Kelley made more than 150 public appearances during one year and found that most paid nothing.

* * * *

"IF A STORE hired a model for a groundbreaking, they'd have to pay $15 or $20," she said. "But they get Miss So-or-So free."

Diane's mother, Mrs. LaVon Olson, added that a titleholder must have "very understanding parents."

Mom is forced to take a strong hand in schedule-juggling, fitting family activities into the titleholder's busy life.

* * * *

TO HANDLE mail and phone calls, Donna's mother, Mrs. Joseph Kelley, had to work for her daughter as a part-time secretary.

Another drawback has been religion. Many girls have not entered or later have withdrawn from bathing beauty contests when their church has frowned. The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, once labaled such contests as "zoological market exhibits."

In 1959, when 18-year-old Mary Jean Belitz resigned as Miss Omaha because her church objected, her mother could only exclaim:

"I'm just sick. I've trained her so long."

* * * *

BUT DESPITE the diminishing returns, beauty experts insist that some contests or at least some form of them — will remain.

Boyd said waning interest does not affect the International Beauty Congress pageant here because:

"Sponsors were shrewd enough to promote it as an event for international understanding. Beauty is secondary."

* * * *

RECENTLY, the IBC has stressed professional showmanship, with the limelight on lavish production.

Last year, artist Alberto Varga called the pageant "a new departure in beauty contests . . . one that will set the standard for contests of the future."

Said director Wayne Dallard:

"Before long every beauty contest is going to have to adopt our format or go out of business."

East-West Center Financing Advised

WASHINGTON (AP)—An annual federal appropriation of $10.5 million was proposed Saturday for the East-West Center in Hawaii, along with recommendations for a deputy chancellor with central coordinating authority and an 11-member national review board of public leaders.

President Johnson released the 43-page report by Roy E. Larson while visiting in New York. The State Department made it public here.

Larson, chairman of the executive committee of Time, Inc., and vice chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, made the survey at State Department request. He was assisted by James M. Davis, director of the University of Michigan's International Center.

* * * *

THE STUDY was designed to determine whether federal aid should be given the three-year-old center, which is aimed at promoting understanding among peoples of the Pacific area by educating them in Honolulu.

Larson's report, adopted by the advisory commission, said:

"The commission is convinced that the general objectives of the center are sound . . .

"It is also evident that the East-West Center, having demonstrated its ability to do so much in such a short time, has potentials for even greater contributions in the years ahead . . ."

The report said a careful study of criticisms of the center indicated that "the mistakes that had been made were the inevitable early mistakes in developing a new and unique institution, and that these have been, or are in the process of being, corrected."

The report recommended:

—A national advisory board to provide formal representation of the national interest in Center operations, with the 11-member board including the governor of Hawaii, the assistant secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs, a member nominated by the Hawaiian governor, the U.S. commissioner of education, two U.S. senators, two U.S. representatives and three private citizens chosen by the Secretary of State.

—The chancellor of the Center should appoint a deputy chancellor to act as central coordinator of operations, with the chancellor directly under the administrative responsibility of the president of the University of Hawaii.

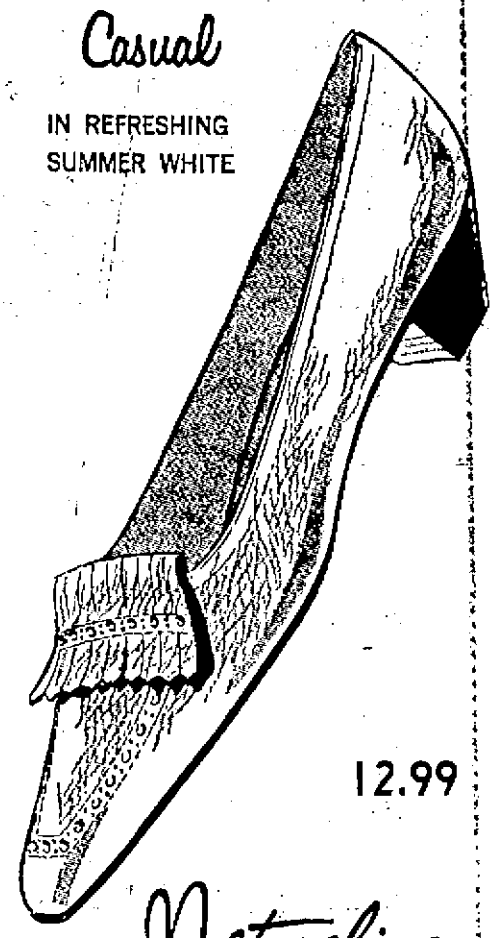

—A three-year budget program to project orderly growth, with a federal contribution climbing to $10.5 million by fiscal 1970 and that this total be the annual commitment of the U.S. government for "the foreseeable future."

Congress appropriated $5.1 million for the institution in fiscal 1964. The report rejected the Center's claim that $12 million was required for 1965, recommending instead a total of $6.3 million.

Maintain Lake Mead's Level, Asks Kuchel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., has asked that water level behind Hoover Dam be maintained despite complaints against the drawing down of the reservoir behind Glen Canyon Dam farther upstream.

Kuchel made the request in a letter to Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall.

* * * *

KUCHEL said any changes in filling criteria for Glen Canyon Dam should be made only after a year's notice to all those affected.

"Californians and all others relying on the river for their electric energy and water needs are entitled to be able to rely on your word," he said. "I hope you will not disappoint them — and me."

Udall is expected to announce a decision Monday on whether the gates of Glen Canyon Dam will be closed to permit filling of Lake Powell.

The drawing down of Lake Powell to maintain the water level in Lake Mead behind Hoover Dam has been severely criticized in the upper Colorado Basin states, especially by Republicans.

Kuchel, assistant Republican Senate leader, is the senior Republican on the Senate Interior Committee which deals with reclamation legislation.

* * * *

THE Californian expressed regret that winter runoffs in the Colorado Basin had not been sufficient to allow impounding of water in Lake Powell "as rapidly as had been hoped." He said, however, that changes in the water level of Lake Mead could cause "grave injury" to Southern California.

Kuchel also said proposals for replacing power supplies at Hoover Dam would not protect agencies using Lake Mead water.

LBJ Warns Congress on 'Must' Bills

publicized drive to keep down the White House electric bill.

"I am proud," Johnson declared, "to be a member of a party that may have turned off the lights in the White House—but has turned on the lights of hope all across this land."

The President said the three and a half years of the Kennedy-Johnson administrations "have been a time of promises that were kept, pledges that were fulfilled, projects that were begun.

"America is on the march," he said. "The last six months have been busy days on that march. We have passed 10 appropriate bills — three of the best education bills ever —the largest tax cut in peacetime history and a farm bill. Through the House we've passed a food-stamp program and the strongest civil-rights bill since the Civil War."

Johnson further credited his administration with having "turned back the spiral of spending—reduced the budget deficit—and helped settle a five-year-old rail strike which threatened to disrupt the economy of the country.

* * * *

"AND IN spare time I've visited 13 states in the last 13 days," Johnson added.

The President said he was "now completing the first peacetime administration in a hundred years without setback or recession.

"We are carrying forward the strongest economic expansion in peacetime American history," he asserted. "There were those in 1960 who said America was tired and worn out, but it couldn't do any better . . . but the record of the past three and a half years has shown the skeptics and the doubters, the weak or will and the faint of heart, that the victories of our future are only limited by the vision of our present."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — President Johnson wasn't committing himself Saturday about running for election, but his wife indicated she expected him to be at the Democratic Party's Atlantic City convention.

She jokingly told a $100-a-plate dinner audience of party faithful that she realized this was the wrong time of the year to visit this summer resort city.

"But, I do hope you will invite me to come back this summer — Maybe I'll even bring my husband with me."

Mrs. Johnson returned to backstopping her traveling President-husband Saturday. She watched the time for him, hurried him out of a World's Fair impromptu press conference and even held his Texas hat while he spoke at one stop.

Boy Cyclist's Leg Fractured in Collision

A 14-year-old Bancroft Junior High School bicyclist suffered two breaks in his left leg and other injuries when he was struck by a car near his home Saturday.

Don W. Legitt, an eighth-grade student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Legitt, of 2342 McNab Ave., was in "good" condition in Community Hospital Saturday night following surgery. Doctors said the boy lost three front teeth, received seven stitches on his face and suffered multiple abrasions.

Police said the boy was riding on the wrong side of Vernon Street near Carfax Avenue, when he swerved into a car driven by Celia H. Huss, 471, of 2460 Gondar Ave.

BILLY NEVILLE, director who plays the professor in "School Days," views with alarm Mrs. Christie Akers' dropped bloomers.

HOSPITALITY NIGHT

1918 Veterans to Kick Up Heels in Whiz-Bang Show

By LEE BROWN

A lot of World War I veterans in Long Beach are out to prove the old saw that, while there may be snow on the roof there still is fire in the furnace.

Barracks 154 of the Veterans of World War I will throw what members hope will be the first annual Hospitality Night Tuesday, in the Veterans Memorial Building.

* * * *

THE 900 men and 205 women members of the Long Beach organization have invited the public as well as WWI vets to attend the 7:30 p.m. show which will combine musical comedy with accordion acts and dancing.

A cast of 25—15 women and 10 men—will perform a satire on the 1914 Broadway show, "School Days," for the finale. The youngest in the cast is 65 years young, the oldest is 80.

Although the show is not likely to put "My Fair Lady" or "Camelot" out of business, it should do well.

Take the "geography class," for instance:

Q. What is an island? A. An island is a lot of dirt that got dumped in the ocean and surrounded.

Q. What is an isthmus? A. It is a long, dirty neck.

Q. What is a mountain? A. A pimple on the face of Mother Earth.

What's more, the play, directed by Billy Neville, who played in "School Days" on Broadway in 1915, has a lot of songs, some of which are real snappers.

"What Do You Make Those Eyes at Me For?" "Lollypop," "As We Go Marching" and "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" are among them.

* * * *

THE SHOW-stopper of the evening, however, may be when Mrs. Christie Akers, who plays a student, looses her bloomers as she rises to leave the classroom.

And these old-timers, who have more bounce than a genuine, imported, India rubber eraser, will be joined by two vaudeville accordion acts and Marion Rankin and her dance group.

It may not replace the talkies, but the show ought to be better than Captain Billy's Whiz-Bang ever was.

Stanford Professor Forecasts Calculus in High School by 1975

By CHARLES SUTTON

A Stanford University professor predicted Saturday that 20 percent of all high school students will be taking courses in advanced mathematics by 1975.

Dr. Patrick Suppes, professor of philosophy and statistics, said automation is forcing such an acceleration of mathematics instruction that "it isn't unreasonable to believe that the top fifth of our high school populations will be studying calculus by the next decade."

* * * *

THE EDUCATOR made his observation in an interview in Lafayette Hotel, where earlier he addressed a western states conference of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Suppes said students are getting more math now than they used to, say, two decades ago, and will get increasingly more as the nation becomes more attuned to computer technology.

In the Palo Alto area, for example, fifth and sixth grade students are being introduced to symbolic logic for the first time, he said. The course, an experimental one at this time, not only makes math more comprehensible to them, he said, but also gives the youngsters a greater appreciation of the English language.

Dr. Clark Lay, who teaches mathematics to elementary and high school teachers at California State College, Fullerton, agreed that the computer age, with its need for symbols, is giving mathematics a new importance today.

Automation, said Lay, is reversing a trend that began with the Model T. "When Henry Ford started paying the unheard-of wage of $5 a day for assembly-line work, Ford said in effect that it didn't pay to be a skilled worker, because an unskilled one made more. As a result, education and intellectualism suffered. Now the opposite is true.

"Automation is displacing the unskilled worker and putting a premium on education again," Lay concluded.

* * * *

ALL THIS may be true, but it isn't helping Pat Nast teach geometry to her class at La Canada High School.

Miss Nast, one of more than 1,000 teachers at the conference, said her students still complain that they can't see why they should take geometry.

Mrs. Nhu Blames U.S. as Saigon Firing Squad Executes Relative

PARIS (AP)—Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu Saturday blamed the death of her executed brother-in-law Ngo Dihn Can on the United States which she called an "enemy camouflaged as allies and friends."

In an 850-word "message to the American people" handed through a crack in the doorway to telephone-summoned newsmen, Mrs. Nhu said Can, executed Saturday in Saigon, "would not allow himself to be second to his brothers in accepting in all serenity the same fate as the Christ to whom the Ngos had dedicated their lives in serving their country according to the high principles of morality He taught."

After a diatribe against the United States and praise for her late brother-in-law, Ngo Ninh Diem, the statement concluded:

"I wish that for the good of your own country you would understand that only repentance and atonement will save it from retribution without redemption."

* * * *

THE VIETNAMESE blindfolded Can with a black silk scarf, strapped him to a post in a Siagon prison football field and blasted him to death with a volley from a 10-man firing squad. The squad used U.S.-made M12 carbines.

American appeals for clemency for the diabetic, 53-year-old younger brother of the late President Diem—the last important member of that mandarin family in Viet Nam—had availed him nothing.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declined comment.

Two hundred persons—officials and newsmen — witnessed execution of the death sentence imposed on Can April 22 by a nine-man revolutionary court that convicted him on charges of murder, extortion and misuse of power as a former overlord of central Viet Nam.

* * * *

CAN'S BODY crumpled and hung limply under the impact of the bullets. Blood spilled across his black coat and white silk pantaloons. The time was 6:22 p.m., an hour and 2 minutes behind the schedule set by Premier Gen. Nguyen Khanh's government.

About five hours earlier the chief of Can's secret police, Phan Quang Dong, was executed by a firing squad in a stadium at Hue, their old stamping ground 400 miles north of Saigon. Dong, 36, had been sentenced March 28 on charges similar to those against Can.

A silent crowd of 8,000 watched at Hue, scene of the first of the riotous Buddhist demonstrations preceding the No. 1 coup that crushed the regime of Dien, a Roman Catholic.

CAN TOO, like other members of the once powerful family, was a Roman Catholic. An official of Saigon's Chi Hoa Prison said Can received last rites in his third-floor cell, where he had a wooden crucifix. Two Roman Catholic priests accompanied him on his procession to death.

The victim of a recent heart attack as well as diabetes, Can was reported to have paled and stiffened in his cell when he was notified he had less than an hour to live. But a military spokesman said he responded, after a few moments to silence:

"I accept that."

Prison guards bore him on a stretcher to the field, then lifted him up and half-carried him across the muddy grass to the execution post. Two priests walked beside him and one, in a white pith helmet and white cloak over his black robes, talked with him as he was strapped to the post and blindfolded.

* * * *

CAN REQUESTED that the blindfold be removed but this was refused, said a spokesman for the ruling military junta, adding:

"Can told the priest, 'I forgive all my enemies.'

"Can asked the priest to pray for his forgiveness. He also asked the Vietnamese people to forget him and not talk about him anymore."

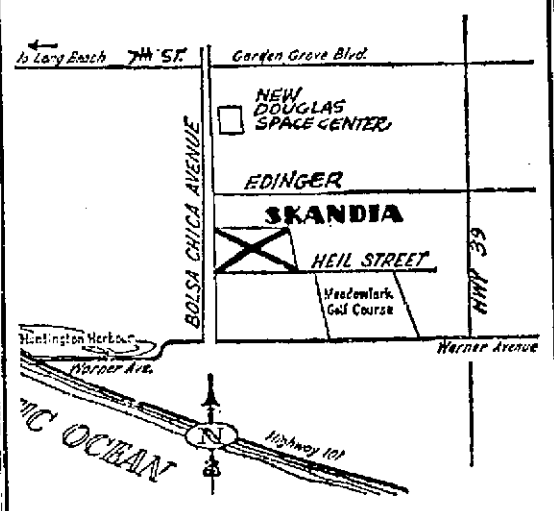

Resting on their arms 30 feet away was the firing squad, 10 Vietnamese military policemen in khaki uniforms and crash helmets of red, white and black.

Can stood immobile, with wind billowing his white pantaloons, as the commander barked out the orders that brought the squad into firing positions, with five men kneeling and five erect. The volley was ragged, but effective.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

At Least 4 Dead as C124 Crashes

HOBART, Okla. (UPI)—A four-engine C124 Globemaster carrying six crew members crashed and burned during a severe thunderstorm Saturday night in an isolated area near the Wichita Mountain Wildlife Refuge in southwest Oklahoma.

The highway patrol said four bodies had been recovered from the wreckage and there appeared to be no survivors.

Ambulances and fire trucks had difficulty in reaching the scene because of rough terrain and muddy roads. The plane, twisted and bent, was still burning an hour after the crash.

The C124 was bound from Clovis Air Force Base, N.M., to Dover, Del.

Restless Korea Gets New Premier

SEOUL, Korea (AP)—President Chung Hee Park reshuffled his cabinet Saturday in a move aimed at quieting unrest in both the ruling Democratic-Republican Party and the political opposition.

IL-KWON

As new anti-government demonstrations flared, Park named Foreign Minister Chung Il-kwon, a four-star army general, as premier to succeed Choi Doo-sun.

Choi declared the move would "pave the way for closer cooperation between the government and the opposition camp." He said the cabinet resigned in order "to provide a turning point for the greater development of the nation."

The new premier went into conference immediately with key political figures.

Fulbright Denies Report on Cyprus

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Saturday denounced as "utterly untrue" Istanbul reports that he had proposed a solution for the Cyprus problem involving the withdrawal of all Turks from the strife-torn island.

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took sharp issue with a news agency report quoting Turkish government sources that he had advanced such a solution to the Cyprus problem.

"I must say that I am mystified by the wire service report alleging that in Ankara I put formal proposals to the Turkish government for a solution of the Cyprus question," a statement issued by Fulbright said.

U.S. Sets Discussions With Romania

WASHINGTON (AP)—Hoping to widen the cracks in the once-solid Soviet bloc, the United States agreed Saturday to hold economic and political discussions with Communist Romania.

Indicating the significance which U.S. strategists attach to the talks starting in Washington May 18, the State Department announced a top negotiator, Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, will head the U.S. delegation.

Leading the Romanian team will be Gheorghe Gaston-Marin, vice chairman of Romania's council of ministers and chairman of its state planning committee.

Cutback in Soviet Forces Expected

LONDON (UPI) — Diplomatic sources Saturday said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is expected to announce a unilateral cutback in Soviet conventional armed forces this year because of heavy financial and economic pressures.

They said, however, Khrushchev probably will try to capitalize on the propaganda value of the move by presenting it as another Soviet tension-easing measure in the cold war thaw.

Khrushchev apparently plans to make the reductions chiefly to reduce the heavy arms bill in time for the new budget by year's end, the sources said.

Twister Damage May Hit $8 Million

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. George Romney said Saturday that damage from Friday's killer tornado which devastated large areas of the Anchor Bay waterfront could run as high as $8 million.

Emerging from a meeting with state and federal officials at disaster headquarters, Romney said that because damage was mainly to homes and private property "there is no basis for declaring the area a national disaster area."

The count of known dead stood at 10 and state police said a second extensive search of the twister rubble which began at dawn Saturday revealed no further casualties.

Sing Sing Escapee Recaptured

WANTAGH, N.Y. (UPI)—Seymour S. Snyder, first convict to escape from Sing Sing Prison in more than 10 years, was captured Saturday night by state police in a shopping center in this Long Island community.

Snyder, a 48-year-old trusty serving two to five years at Sing Sing in Ossining, N.Y., for attempted grand larceny and attecmpted forgery, walked away from a work party outside the prison a week ago.

Rusk Raps Encouragement of Reds

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday launched a diplomatic drive to prevent European "encouragement" of Cuba and Red China and to win support for keeping South Viet Nam out of the Communist orbit.

U.S. Embassy officials said these were the main themes in an intensive round of talks Rusk had with Belgian Foreign Secretary Paul-Henri Spaak and Common Market officials.

The talks were a prelude to the three-day meeting of NATO foreign ministers in The Hague, Netherlands, which opens on Monday.

The officials said Rusk was stressing that the Peking regime now tops the list of war dangers in the U.S. view. He was hoping to persuade America's European allies that Red China is likely to be "encouraged in its militant attitude" by such steps as the French recognition of Communist China last January.

On the issue of European trade with Cuba, Rusk took the line that if Britain had not broken the embargo line by agreeing to sell buses to Cuba, France might not have agreed to sell Cuba locomotives.

American officials said Belgium had turned down Cuban orders which later were picked up by Britain and France.

They said that in the U.S. view the Cuban trade issue was a security problem involving the freedom of Latin-American nations which are targets for Cuban interference and subversion.

From what the officials said, it was clear that at the NATO conference, Rusk hopes to win solidarity among the Allies on these key issues and to "stop the rot" in their attitude towards Cuba and China.

On the question of aid for Viet Nam, the officials pointed out that in his speech to a luncheon meeting of American businessmen in Brussels, the secretary of State inserted the following phrases in his prepared speech:

Since World War II, the American people have suffered 160,000 casualties all over the world in the struggle against communism and as of now we are suffering new casualties every week.

"We hope that the free nations will demonstrate their solidarity by offering South Viet Nam the varieties of help which are needed in many fields."

Air-Tragedy Gun Owner Identified

plane that the reception was garbled.

"Roger, how do you read me now?" the plane pilot replied after apparently making adjustments.

The tower said there was little improvement.

Then at 6:48 a.m. there sounded an anguished cry.

Saturday, newsmen listened to five playbacks of the recording at that point. All agreed a voice was heard saying:

"I've been shot! I've been shot! Oh, my God, help!"

Then the plane vanished off radar scanning screens.

Unable to raise the plane, the Oakland tower appealed to a nearby United Air Lines plane piloted by Capt. Henry L. Bingham.

Bingham looked out and couldn't spot the Fairchild.

"I believe there is something wrong," radioed the tower.

Back came the grim report from Bingham:

"There's a black cloud of smoke coming up through the undercast at 9 o'clock position. Right now it looks like an oil or gasoline fire."

Earlier reports had carried a slightly different version of the wounded pilot's outcry.

The FBI, pushing its search for clues, extended its operative secrecy to others who might be able to say what happened on the ill-fated flight of the two-engined turbo-prop F27 Fairchild.

Gonzalez worked in San Francisco as a warehouseman for a department store.

His estranged wife, Patricia, described him Saturday as a man with "funny habits . . . but nothing really strange."

"He was outgoing, a good mixer who enjoyed being with people," she said.

"But he didn't have any close friends . . .

"I never saw him with a gun of any kind. It's just too preposterous that he could be involved in killing anyone."

The San Francisco Examiner said a check of serial numbers led investigators to a Riverside, Calif., man who bought the gun there, then sold it to Gonzalez on the morning before he took the plane to Reno.

NEWSMAN TALKS WITH YANK P.O.W.S

ing on a reunion with his bride. He was wounded in the left army by mortar fragments during the attack, got first-aid treatment a few hours later and had the fragments removed at an emergency surgical station four days later.

Smith had been wounded in the right leg and Roraback in the shoulder in an engagement in Can Tho Province just three days after arriving in South Viet Nam.

Before a POW camp organization was set up, captured Americans had been released after several weeks, or months, during which they received what their captors term "explanations of Liberation Front policies and the nature of our just struggle."

By the new set up, I judged that in the future, POWS will be held, pending some sort of negotiations, either on a prisoner exchange issue, or to end the war.

* * * *

BUT THE authorities at the tiny camp were unable to enlighten me on this. Their orders, they said, were "to set up a camp, prepare to receive prisoners, prepare to look after them."

I was able to speak to each of the four in turn and later all of them together, during a brief visit to the "camp."

Their own uniforms have been taken away and replaced by black military-type, heavyweight cotton shirts and trousers, two sets for each man and surprisingly well-fitting. They had been allowed to keep their military boots, but when I saw them they were wearing slipper-type sandals.

* * * *

RORABACK, senior of the four with 15 years' service including the Korean War, said his captors had been "very considerate from the moment of capture."

"It was quite a shock to me," he added.

"I had expected to be shot. When this did not happen immediately or during the first day, I thought they must be taking us a bit farther from Saigon before they shot us. But they saw I was rather anxious: they patted my back, stroked my arms and in general made signs that there was nothing to worry about.

* * * *

"AS FOR the food, it is probably as good as they can provide under the circumstances. Of course, it is nothing compared to ours. But I consider the treatment very fair so far."

McClure said:

"They treat us real well—that's the main thing. No rough stuff at all."

Smith commented:

"Treatment has been fair considering guerrillas don't have proper facilities for taking care of POWS. But food is a problem. We can't get used to eating rice three times a day. We get some sardines, an occasional bit of meat, some jungle roots and condensed milk now and again. I suppose they do the best they can under the circumstances."

* * * *

CAMACHO said he had been "treated very well but it is very difficult for them to supply us with the food we are used to."

They got supplies of tobacco and paper for "homemades"; the tobacco supply was ample but "a bit rough," as Camacho expressed it.

The jungle roots referred to by Smith are manioc, the root from which tapioca is made and widely used in Viet Nam when rice gets short.

Meat in the parts where they are held depends on the skill of the hunters and is likely to be anything from monkey or wild cat to wild pig, dog or boa constrictor, all of which, except the latter, I ate during my visit to the guerrilla areas. Each military unit has a hunting and fishing team whose job it is to supplement the staple rice diet.

* * * *

RORABACK said boredom was one of the worst features of POW life. To overcome this, he had—in his imagination—"made six model planes for the kids (he has four), built a barbecue pit, put shelves in the kitchen and built three radios."

He requested me to relay a message to his wife:

"I'm alive. I'm in the jungle. Look after the kids."

PLANE'S LAST CONTACT

'Your Transmitter Is Garbled . . .' and Then Violent Death Struck

OAKLAND (UPI)—Following are excerpts from the transcript of a tape recording of the last radio contact between the ill-fated Pacific Air Lines plane that crashed, killing 44, and the Federal Aviation Agency control tower at Oakland:

Pacific Airlines Flight 773: Oakland Approach Control this is Pacific 773, 5,000.

Oakland Tower: Pacific 773 this is Oakland Approach Control, radar contact 20 miles northeast of Oakland. Maintain 5,000. Your transmitter is garbled . . .

Pacific: Roger, how do you read now?

Tower: It still has the same. Sounds like overmodulation.

Unknown party: (Unintelligible. It was during this portion of the recording that reporters who listened at a news conference Saturday agreed they heard the words "I'm shot, I'm shot, oh, my God, help")

Tower: Say again.

Tower: Pacific 773 Oakland Approach Control.

Tower: Pacific 773 Oakland Approach Control. Radar contact lost. Turn right heading two-seven-zero maintain 5,000.

Tower: United 593 do you still have the Pacific aircraft in sight? Over.

United: No. Where should they be?

Tower: He should be at your two o'clock position four miles westbound.

United: No. That transmission might have been them.

Tower: I believe there is something wrong.

Unknown party: (Unintelligible).

United: There's a black cloud of smoke coming up through the undercast at nine o'clock, three-thirty-four o'clock right now. Looks like oil or gasoline fire.

Tower: Roger United 593. Thank you. Turn right heading two-four-zero for vector to San Francisco. Maintain 6,000.

United: Roger. I think that transmission was them going down.

Hotel Alarmed, Guest Arrested

Five police cars answered an emergency call shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday at the Buffum Hotel, Third Street and Locust Avenue, regarding a man "locked in a room with a gun."

Police subdued Doyle Alan Young, 50, who said he was from South Carolina, and arrested him under a section of the state penal code pertaining to investigation of psychotic behavior.

Home-Pacts Battle On in Beach City

"You should not agitate . . . it is unwise . . . I don't like pressure."

Meeting chairman George Wood, president of the McFadden Home Owners Association, took issue with Allen and said it is a public right to seek equitable home contracts.

Later, Allen interrupted the meeting to charge that Wood was "out of order . . . and trying to get me in a public debate."

Wood said the homeowners—located in the Sunkist Plaza and Springdale tracts in northwestern Huntington Beach—are not allowed trust deeds on their property under the contracts.

* * * *

HE ALSO questioned increased monthly charges to the homeowners despite the allegation that the county tax assessor's office has not yet confirmed the 1964-65 tax rolls.

Similar contracts are under fire by residents in two other Gindling tracts in the Simi Valley and Saticoy area of Ventura County.

Wood said the Venturra County Protective League and Valley Vista Homeowners Association there are uniting with the Huntington Beach group to seek concerted action on the contracts.

Gindling's lawyer told the Huntington Beach meeting that buyers "should consider themselves lucky because the contracts allowed them to move into the homes with hardly nothing down and it's cheaper than rent."

* * * *

MONTHLY payments for the homes, which are near the new Douglas Missile Center, average more than $135 with nothing down. Allen said the interest rate is 6.9 percent.

Refinancing the home contracts, according to Wood, would cost the buyer about $1,100, including a prepayment penalty to the developer.

When Wood asked if the developer would forego the penalty, Allen said, "Maybe in three or four years, but not now. It will cost you $500 each."

* * * *

A COMMITTEE from the Home Owners Association will meet soon with the developer in an attempt to amend the contracts, Wood said.

If that doesn't work out, Wood said the association "will seek legal action or bring public pressure, perhaps through picketing of the tracts."

Earlier, Huntington Beach attorney Jerry Plunkett said such a home contract does not contain "one clause in favor of the buyer."

* * * *

"I'M NOT saying it's illegal," said Plunkett, "but you could say it's strongly slanted in favor of the seller."

RIFLE HOLDS OFF GAWKER

The Bride Wore, uh, Wore, uh-h...

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Sissy Dawson and Charles Morrow, standing nude under a clump of pine trees, were united in marriage Saturday while the bride's mother angrily held off a low-flying airplane with a rifle.

Sixteen-year-old Sissy was dressed in a fingertip-length lace veil and high-heeled shoes, and the bridegroom wore nothing at all.

Seventy-five naked guests watched the two-and-a-half minute ceremony.

Three naked musicians played the wedding march on a guitar, a drum and an accordion. After the ceremonies, they ground out polkas for the guests.

The only clothes in sight within the nudist camp were on the lawyer who performed the ceremony and the little figures atop the wedding cake.

* * * *

THE BLACK-HAIRED bride walked down a 30-foot flagstone path to the grassy spot where the ceremony took place, the white veil flouncing down her slim back. Morrow, a 23-year-old sailor, and eight attendants joined her.

There were three bridesmaids, and Sissy's two younger sisters were flower girls. At the end of the ceremony, Morrow kissed Sissy gently. He shook hands with the guests and several of them planted the traditional kisses on Sissy's cheek.

"I'm ecstatically happy," she cried.

Birth-Control Help Urged Upon Council

directors after lengthy exploration of the subject by the public affairs committee, according to Bruce Monroe, committee chairman.

Among those heard by the committee were three ministers, several case workers and welfare specialists and representatives of groups both for and against birth control, Monroe said.

He emphasized that all the proposed activities are predicated on voluntary rather than compulsory measures.

Besides the Health Department proposal, the Junior Chamber endorsed Assembly Bill 2310, more commonly known as the Bielenson Humane Abortion Act.

The bill provides for the formation of a committee of experts to consider cases for therapeutic abortion when certified by two medical doctors, including a specialist in the fields of psychiatry, obstetrics or internal medicine.

On the national and international levels, the Jaycee letter noted that in certain areas of the world the population explosion "is so vicious as to rival the deadliest disease in its implications," adding:

"We believe that the control of population in those areas is one of the paramount solutions to the problem of poverty."

* * * *

IT SUGGESTED that the United States, when asked by the potential recipient nation, provide financial and educational support to this end.

Although conceding that no population-explosion problem exists in the United States now, the Junior Chamber asserted that many families of marginal income would benefit through planned parenthood. Its letter continued:

"It is our opinion that many children are being deprived of educational and social as well as basic personal needs because the families in which they are being reared are too large for the income derived by the earnings of their parents or through charity from state or local assistance.

"In such cases a definite birth control program should be undertaken. Local private charitable organizations should be urged to sponsor educational programs in the use of birth preventatives, and these birth controls should not only be of the artifical type but also of the rhythm type so that certain religious groups (Roman Catholic and Mormon, for instance) would not be offended.

Nikita Visit Hints New Egypt Loan

Combined Wire Services

CAIRO — A major result of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's current visit to the United Arab Republic is expected to be a Russian pledge of a big loan.

An authoritative Soviet spurce said the loan is expected to be in the neighborhood of $220 million. Details will be worked out by an Egyptian ministerial mission which will go to Moscow later, he said.

The new credit, in the form of equipment and services, will supplement the massive Soviet assistance extended to Egypt in the last nine years —$544.5 million in economic aid, including two loans for the Aswan High Dam, plus arms shipments with a value never officially disclosed but believed to be worth several hundred million dollars.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Nasser Saturday gave Khrushchev a tumultous public welcome, a royal palace to live in and sparkling medals for him and his wife.

From the moment the Soviet leader's gleaming white liner Armenia docked at Alexandria Saturday morning, with screaming Soviet-built jets overhead and whistling tugs alongside, Nasser's regime laid out the red carpet plusher than for any previous visitor.

With equal friendliness, Khrushchev glowingly praised the Egyptian leader, beamed at his side during public appearances and Saturday afternoon paid a private family call at Nasser's residence.

Later, Nasser made an unprecedented gesture, bestowing the Order of Merit on Mrs. Khrushchev.

* * * *

KHRUSHCHEV will share the spotlight with Nasser in mid-May when the U.A.R. leader presses a button to start the diversion of Nile waters south of Aswan signaling completion of the first stage of the High Dam. The Soviet premier is sure to receive a warm tribute from Nasser.

In a well-timed action, Nasser has just removed a major source of friction with the Communist world by releasing all local Communists detained in his crackdown on Red activity in Egypt since he came to power in 1952. Seven to eight hundred Communist detainees, some of whom had been behind bars in remote desert internment camps since 1949, have been released in small groups during the last few months.

The freeing of local Communists, however, does not mean that Nasser intends to tolerate Communism as a doctrine or put an end to the seemingly paradoxical situation in which the U.A.R. leader accepts Soviet aid on one hand and opposes any Communist poaching on the other.

China-Russ Conflict Topic

Young Hoon Kang, retired Korean general, will discuss "The Chinese-Russian Conflict" in a lecture at the California State, Long Beach, Soroptimist House at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

Kang currently is studying in the Research Institute on Communist Strategy and propaganda at USC. His address is sponsored by Phi chapter of Phi Delta Gamma, national scholastic organization for women graduate students.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM, COMFORTABLE, TOO

Los Angeles:—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A feather stitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra® spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer-genius, Olga.

ELECTRONIC EAVESDROPPING

New Perfection in Fine Art of 'Bugging,' 'Anti-Bugging'

By DON MEIKLE

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — "I could plant a microphone in your living room that would pick up everything said anywhere on the first floor of your house."

The words are spoken in a Maryland drawl by an expert in the increasingly popular art of "bugging" — electronic eavesdropping.

The microphone, says Ralph V. Ward, vice president of Mosler Research Products, Inc., one of the leading manufacturers of such devices, could be hidden on the underside of a sofa, beneath a rug ("We have microphones nowadays that allow for a certain amount of muffling"), behind a drawer in a desk or end table ("there's nearly always a space behind drawers — most people don't know that"), in a lamp or a chandelier or behind a Grandma Moses on the wall.

Or there could be just a tiny pinhole in the wallboard.

"You see this hole?" Ward points to a just visible aperture in a piece of wood paneling like that which lines his office. "That's actually bigger than it has to be. But I made it that big for demonstration purposes."

He turns over the wood. Protruding from the rack is a narrow tube placed over the pinehole, and on the end of the tube is a tiny microphone.

* * * *

"THIS MICROPHONE," he says pausing impressively—"this microphone up to this hole could pick up everything I've said in this room clear as a bell."

Ward opens a plain leather carrying case and displays an arsenal of electronic eavesdropping devices.

"I would like to see the use of these things prohibited — except by police departments and other government agencies," he says. "Invasion of privacy is a problem these days."

Until last year, those were the firm's only customers except for foreign governments approved by the State Department. ("We don't want to put our own government in the position of trying to detect our own products," Ward says.)

* * * *

NOW THE company also sells to licensed investigators, but Ward says he would be willing to lose the trade if Congress and state legislatures would restrict the sales.

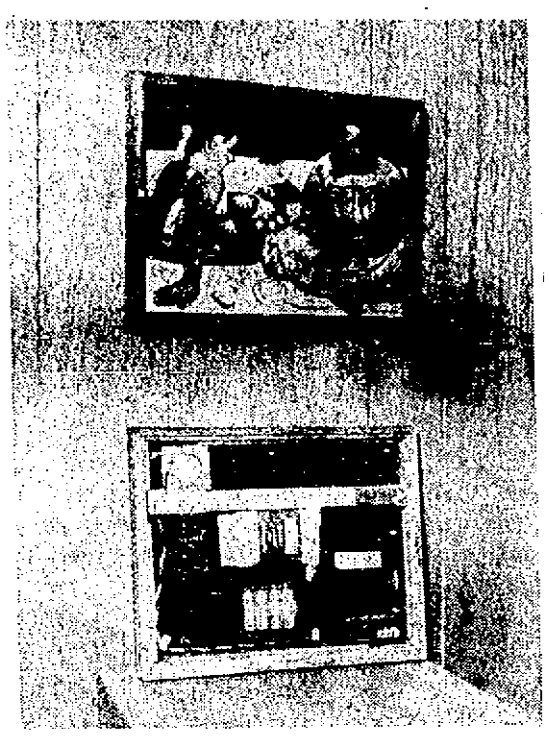

Ward opens another carrying case and shows an array of equipment capable of sniffing out the snooping devices.

"We're selling more and more of these," he says.

Anyone can buy the anti-eavesdropping devices.

Employes are busy working on such things as the model PIC-2 picture frame transmitter.

As the catalogue describes it, the picture frame transmitter "provides a swift and dependable method of concealing a microphone in a room without requiring lengthy preparation." It has no wires or switches. The space between a picture and the backing holds a sensitive microphone and a miniature battery-powered transmitter capable of sending a signal for three blocks.

BACK OF THE picture frame holds microphone (upper left corner), transmitter (lower right corner), batteries (center). It can pick up every word spoken in a room and send a signal three blocks.

Anyone with the right kind of radio and a head set can sit in a hotel room or parked car and hear everything that's said in the room decorated with the picture frame transmitter. If he has a tape recorder, he can make a permanent record.

* * * *

THE CATALOGUE also offers such items as:

The telephone tap in which the telephone itself is used as a microphone and picks up conversations in the room where it sits.

The microphone encased in a small rubber disc that can be slid under doors or through windows or pressed against the walls of telephone booths.

The spike microphone which is driven through to touch the wall of the room you're interested in. It uses the wall as a resonator, translating the vibrations into words.

* * * *

MICROPHONES without transmitters are the hardest to detect, since they send no telltale signals. But they do need wires, usually to some existing wiring like an electrical outlet, a telephone line or an intercom system.

The advantage of transmitters is that they require no wiring.

To find a transmitter, you need a broad band radio capable of picking up signals of unusual frequencies.

Locating a microphone involves, first, a search for telltale wires, and second, a metal detector.

Refinements are being made in surveillance equipment all the time. For instance, Ward says some international spies are using transmitters that can be turned on and off by a radio signal. If the user has reason to believe the bugged room is about to be searched, he can deactivate the transmitter.

* * * *

WARD, WHO is aware of the difficulty of maintaining privacy, says police should be required to obtain a court order before they use eavesdropping devices.

He thinks evidence thus gathered should be admissible in court.

"Everyone is suspicious of the overworked, underpaid police who are trying to protect society from criminals," he says.

"The fuss over surveillance equipment is like the ruckus over the use of radar to catch speeders. People got used to that idea, and you don't hear anything anymore about its being unconstitutional. I think people will also eventually get used to the idea of police using the best, most modern methods of surveillance."

—AP Wirephoto

Killer Retrial for Parole Mention Tuesday

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI)—Because members of a San Diego jury were told a killer eventually might go free if he wasn't sent to the gas chamber, the men on death row may never have to take the long walk there themselves.

On Jan. 7, 1964, the State Supreme Court ordered a penalty retrial for convicted double murderer Joseph Morse at whose trial the prosecutor warned: "If this defendant is sentenced to life imprisonment he may be eligible for parole at the expiration of seven calendar years."

In California the jury not only decides if the accused is guilty of murder but what his sentence will be and the prosecutor's warning was the lever that sprung Morse's cell door.

The State Supreme Court ruling, which is still resounding down the row, said: "California has set up the Adult Authority as an expert way of determining whether a prisoner can be rehabilitated. A jury can only determine whether a killer gets death or life imprisonment."

As a result, some condemned men, at least temporarily, have been taken farther from the Green Chamber in which 194 persons have died. Three months after the Morse decision the court had ordered retrials for seven men and one woman, reducing San Quentin's death row population to 47.

* * * *

MORSE, 19, of San Diego, beat his mother to death with a rock and then fatally bludgeoned his young sister with a baseball bat. His retrial comes up Tuesday.

Legal experts estimate that many of the men on Death Row can demand retrials of their penalty because the jury which convicted them, was told a killer could be out after seven years.

In all the rulings following the decision the court has reaffirmed the guilt but insisted parole was none of the jury's business. On March 31, the court, in one afternoon, ordered a retrial for three persons, including Iva Kroeger, who, along with her husband, killed a man and woman to gain possession of their motel.

* * * *

WHEN informed of the decision Mrs. Kroeger said, "Well, that makes me feel better. I guess there is some justice after all."

Walter Hines, 24, of Los Angeles, who killed a Venice, Calif., liquor store owner in a robbery that netted him one pack of cigarettes, will also have another penalty trial. "Instead of sitting back and crying and losing hope, we've got to find things to look up to—and the courts are one of them," he said to a newsman.

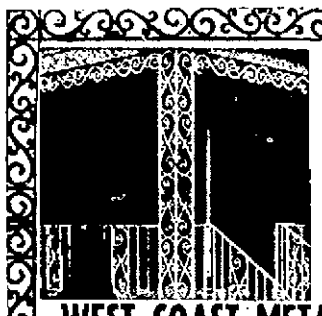

Hines added that he felt the court "didn't go far enough." But two of the justices who sat on the seven-man bench that ordered Hines' retrial thought the court went too far.

* * * *

JUSTICES Marshall McComb and B. Rey Schajer said the mentioning of parole to the panel did not constitute an error sufficient to cause a miscarriage of justice.

McComb said the Morse ruling overruled 22 prior decisions. "The people of the State of California, through the legislative branch of the government, have declined to eliminate the death penalty," he declared.

"Yet it would appear that the will of the people has been overruled by the judiciary," he added.

ANYBODY remember the New York Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor that once operated at 141 W. 4th St.? Maggie Weiss, who has a couple of boys with fast-growing hair, wishes it were still there offering services at the same prices.

In the removal of an old fireplace panel in her home, Mrs. Weiss found a yellowed card advertising the tonsorial spot. The card offered a special on haircuts at 20 cents and ladies' neck trim at 15 cents.

The bit of paper gave no date of publication. But Mrs. Weiss is quite sure it was long ago.

OUR story about Andrew Pearson, the elderly gentleman who was in jail for three days on shoplifting charges and has to get along on $40 a month, created a great sympathetic impact in the community.

These offices have received probably 50 calls and many letters from people commenting on the case. Some were sympathetic, some indignant, and several included offers to help the pensioner who got into trouble when he inadvertently dropped an extra pair of scissors in his coat while making a purchase.

Cases of this kind invariably bring up comparisons of various ways justice is meted out. This is summed up in a little jingle sent along by Lucille Southard:

Andrew Pearson goes to jail.

Finch and Thiele still out on bail.

IN CASE you've forgotten it has been so long it's hard to remember—she's referring to the two Long Beach ex-policemen, years ago convicted of extortion, who are still free on bail while their attorneys carry on a protracted appeal effort.

Whatever the merits of that effort—they lost in all state courts and are seeking aid of the U.S. courts—it can be safely said that nothing has so undermined respect for the law and confidence in the courts here as has the Finch-Thiele case.

THERE'S a Biblical quotation for every occasion and Jerry Hawkins, the insurance man, thinks he has found one that applies to an incident that got a lot of national interest last week.

Proberbs 26:17 (King James version) says:

"He that passes by and mettles with strife belonging not to him is like one who takes a dog by the ears."

THIS dept. doesn't ordinarily offer business plugs, but because of an important community interest, I'm saying something today in behalf of Western Air Lines.

My plug is for just one flight route—between Long Beach and San Francisco.

Whereas someone from this area who wants to take major passenger planes must go to L.A. International Airport, Western has been running a non-stop round-trip flight between here and San Francisco, using the Long Beach airport. The northbound flight leaves at 8:07 a.m., arrives in S.F. at 9:15. Southbound leaves S.F. at 7:40 p.m., arrives here at 8:50.

There is good reason to believe a lot of people who might use this service don't know about it or, simply through habit, keep going to L.A. for comparable service. To keep the good service, it's important that it be used.

Helpful along that line is the fact that Western has just cut the rate, effective June 12, from $17.80 to $14.10 one way.

IT'S MOTHER'S Day. And, contrary to some apparent opinions, that doesn't mean it's the day for her to prove what a good housekeeper and cook she is.

MRS. ELIZABETH HUDSON

"We're proud of the all-out support local schools are giving the city's civic beautification effort. Activities such as these, where children participate and feel personally involved, produce long-lasting attitudes that not only result in cleaner, more beautiful cities, but also produce responsible, more worthwhile citizens."

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

They call themselves "Neatniks" at DeMille Junior High and they're producing a play titled "The Untrashables" . . .

At Birney Elementary School, they're lowering the broom for "The Charge of the Blight Brigade" to make their neighborhood "the most beautiful in the city" . . .

At Willard Elementary School, it's the "litter beatles" who are staging war on litter bugs . . .

And at the other 74 schools in the Long Beach Unified School District, young anti-litter warriors—100,000 strong—are using all manner of tactics to obliterate litter on streets and sidewalks, gutters and vacant lots, school grounds and school buildings.

* * * *

THEIR 100 PERCENT participation is in support of Paint-Up, Clean-Up, Fix-Up Week, which starts today and is sponsored by the civic beautification committee of the women's division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Much of the credit for the all-out support of local schools goes to Mrs. Elizabeth Hudson, president of the Board of Education, and Vera Johnston, assistant supervisor of physical education for the school system. Both are active members of the civic beautification committee.

They have spent untold hours distributing educational and promotional materials, suggesting projects, speaking before groups and recruiting support of the city's 3,000 teachers.

Parent groups are also cooperating.

* * * *

"THERE'S BEEN a spontaneous combustion of enthusiasm among school groups," said Mrs. Hudson, who noted that "local youngsters, more and more, are learning to take pride in their city."

Hundreds of students — at Field, Harte, King, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Bret Harte and many other elementary schools—are policing their own playgrounds to keep them clean and neat.

As part of "Operation: PUT" (Pick Up Trash) at DeMille Junior High, the word "Hungry" has been painted on trash cans.

A big "H" calls attention to trash cans at Hoover Junior High, where a year-round program includes an essay contest, a student government skit and a keep-it-clean competition among students during the school's two lunch periods. Winners will be entertained with a special assembly.

Poster contests are being conducted at Avalon, Barton, Bixby, Burcham, Burnett and many other elementary schools.

At Burroughs, where the slogan is "Make Your Yard Like a Park," sixth graders are planting an Indian Garden.

Primary age "tidy bugs" at Horace Mann have illustrated group stories; litter bags have been constructed at Los Cerritos and Riley Elementary Schools.

* * * *

HIGH SCHOOLS have launched some ambitious projects, too. At Jordan, flowers are being planted in a colorful "J", drab classrooms are in for a face-lifting, ivy is being planted on fences.

At Millikan, students have washed and scoured all outdoor benches and baseball bleachers are in for a paint job.

Students at Wilson are replanting the fish pond, painting trash cans and producing a litterbug skit. Islanders at Avalon High are staging an anti-litter dance.

"If we could stir up as much enthusiasm among adults, we'd have the cleanest city in the U.S.A.," said Mrs. George P. Tauhman Jr., chairman of the city's beautification committee.

AMA President Here Tuesday

Edward R. Annis, M.D., president of the American Medical Association and one of the leading opponents of Medicare, proposed medical care of the aged through Social Security, will speak in Long Beach Tuesday and Wednesday.

DR. E. R. ANNIS
Talks Slated

He will speak at noon Tuesday in the Lafayette Hotel before a joint meeting of the Long Beach Medical Association, Chamber of Commerce and all city Kiwanis clubs.

At 2 p.m. he will attend a reception at California State College's Soroptimist House and then speak at the dedication ceremony for the college's new health service building.

He will be guest and speaker at the 16th annual Chef of the Week banquet at the Edgewater Inn, presented by the Independent, Press-Telegram.

WEDNESDAY, at 7:15 a.m., Dr. Annis will address a breakfast meeting at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach, 2801 Atlantic Ave. His audience for this speech will be interns and residents of Long Beach hospitals, student nurses from Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach, and vocational student nurses from Long Beach City College.

AFR Recruit Meeting at Elks May 19

The Air Force Reserve's 942nd Trooper Carrier Group of the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing, March Air Force Base, will hold a recruiting meeting at 8 p.m., May 19, in the Long Beach Elks Club, 4101 E. Willow St.

Former Armed Forces personnel, both men and women who have not retired from the service, were invited to the meeting. The group said officer and airmen positions in both flying and non-flying jobs are open.

Replacements are needed for retiring World War II veterans and non-prior servicemen completing their obligation. Such reservists, the group said, receive four days pay for each weekend of duty.

ELECTION HANDBOOK POPULAR

There has been brisk response to The Independent, Press-Telegram offer of an authoritative "Presidential Election Handbook". The supply is limited and readers who want the book should act soon.

The book, which covers mechanics of the election as well as issues and candidates for 1964, can be obtained by calling at the newspaper's front desk or by sending a request with 10 cents for mailing.

Instruction Offered in Camp-Out

I. P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Instruction in family camping will be offered in a series of three-week courses which open this week in Long Beach, Downey and Lynwood.

The free classes, presented by the county's Department of Parks and Recreation, will be as follows:

Long Beach — MacArthur Park, 1325 E. Anaheim St., beginning Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Downey — Furman Park, 10419 Rives Ave., starting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Lynwood — Community Services Building, 11331 Ernestine Ave., beginning Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Tal Morash, representing the Camp Bureau of Southern California and the American Camping Association, and David G. Marqua, senior nature recreation specialist for county parks, will conduct the classes.

They will cover camping techniques, equipment, safety, nearby camping spots and ways of getting the most enjoyment out of the outdoors, Marqua said.

Successful Authors to Air Views at Sixth L.B. Writers Conference

By MARK CLUTTER

Successful authors will give their views and opinions to writers and student writers at the sixth annual Long Beach Writers Conference in the Lafayette Hotel Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the general adult division of Long Beach City College, attracts writers from all parts of the Southland. Advance registrations indicate that more than 1,000 will attend.

The conference opens Thursday with a panel on the novel and short story. Speakers will be Richard E. Kim, English teacher at California State College at Long Beach, and author of "The Martyred," and Paul Bailey, author of "For Time and All Eternity." Alice C. Wright, previous conference director, will preside. Beth Norman of Enterprise Publications will be moderator.

* * * *

THE AFTERNOON will be devoted to poetry and lyrics. Speakers will be Elizabeth Bartlett of the University of California at Santa Barbara, and Pegasus Buchanan, author of "Kingsley Alley." William E. Keeley, dean of the liberal arts division of City College, will preside.

The Thursday evening session will be devoted to drama. Pat Brown, director of Magnolia Theater, will preside. W. David Sievers, president of the Council of the Living Theater, will serve as moderator. Speakers will be announced later.

Friday forenoon will be devoted to nonfiction. Malcolm Epley, executive editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram, will preside, and John Robert Clarke, author of "The Importance of Being Imperfect," will be moderator. Speakers will include James R. Phelan, freelance writer; Arnold T. Schwab, author of "James Gibbons Huneker: Critic of the Seven Arts," and Robert L. Webb, author of "Grammar for People Who Wouldn't Have to Worry If They Didn't Have Children."

* * * *

TEDD THOMEY, Independent, Press-Telegram staff writer and author of many novels, nonfiction books and magazine articles, and Maria Metlova, author of "Black Bread and Caviar," will speak at a writers' workshop in the afternoon.

Banquet speakers will be Ruth Waterbury, author of "Elizabeth," a book about Elizabeth Taylor; Beulah Roth, author of "Cosmopolitan Cat," and Philip Dunne, motion picture writer.

Saturday panels will include "Writing for Young People," "Publishers and Agents" and "Television and Motion Pictures."

Conference director is Eva T. Logan.

TEACHING SINCE 18

Schoolmarm Wins Respect as 'No Nonsense' Teacher

By ROBERT WILCOX
L. P-T Education Editor

Mary Marutz set the tenor of her whole teaching career the very first day.

Although she was just 18 and her oldest student was 15, she hesitated only slightly when a pupil called her by her first name. "I put a stop to that right now,' she remembered across 40 years.

Within days the young schoolmarm had won a reputation as a "no nonsense" teacher. When she said quiet she meant to have it.

* * * *

BY THE TIME she left her native Indiana for California three years later to add to her single year of college, she had her discipline down pat.

"It all happens in the first 10 minutes of the first day," she says. "I establish rapport. Then we start to learn."

Actually, she establishes more than that. "Mrs. Marutz is a wonderful teacher," says her Holmes School principal, Laurence Scott. "She's so dedicated that one student behind with an assignment can spoil her whole day." Often he stays after school to complete it with her looking over his shoulder.

North Long Beach was still called "Virginia City" when Mrs. Marutz started instructing sixth graders at the red-brick Addams School in 1927. Next month she is retiring after teaching 2,000 pupils.

* * * *

DURING THE war she had up to 50 students in her class. She helped start Barton School in 1943 and Birney School in 1951. Along the way, she won her bachelor's from San Diego State College. With few exceptions, she always by preference taught the sixth grade—the "jumping off place" for junior high school.

At each school her reputation for brooking "no nonsense" spread fast. Only recently a student was sympathizing with one of her pupils because he "had Mrs. Marutz." She was proud that her pupil replied: "Oh she's not bad at all when you get to know her."

Viet Nam Crisis

A SECOND VISIT to Viet Nam within the span of a few weeks by the American Secretary of Defense, Robert S. McNamara, suggests that the United States government is very deeply concerned about the progress—or the lack of progress—of the war against the Communist guerrillas.

Although the Defense Secretary and the Secretary of State made optimtistic forecasts about the war in Viet Nam at the beginning of the year, the South Viet Nam forces have suffered severe blows in subsequent actions and the initiative is still held by the Communists.

The 131st American has just lost his life in the Vietnamese war, and morale is reported in serious decline. A U.S. Air Force pilot recently wrote:

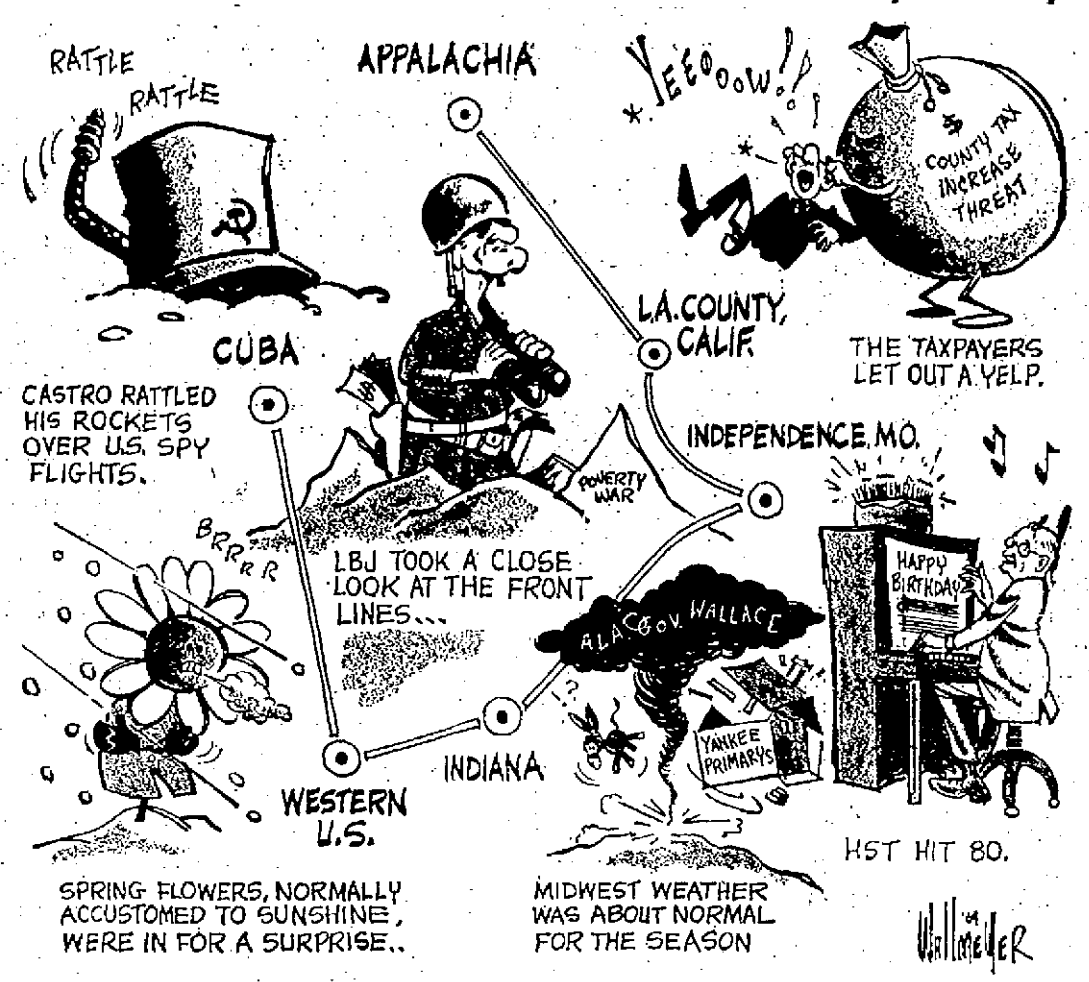

"We are getting beat. We are undermanned and undergunned. The U.S. may say they are in this, but they don't know we need help over here . . . If the U.S. would really put combat people in here we could win and win fast. It seems to be the old story of a half-hearted effort."

Against this background, Secretary McNamara returns for another look at the battleground where the fate of all Southeast Asia may be sealed.

The question he must answer, and soon, is whether to make the commitment of power required to win—or at least maintain a stalemate.

The problem is made none the easier by the fact that an American presidential election is to be held just six months from now, with foreign policy almost certainly a major issue.

'Pals' in Both Parties Show Deadly Love

I, P-T Political Editor

HERE IN THE EYE, the hurricane around us registers as a windy huff and the occasional body zooming past becomes just another Unidentified Flying Object. Actually the UFOs are bloody politicians of both parties. And they're so gashed by their own parties that if anybody wins an election this year it will represent survival over the nastiest of accidents.

HOUSER

Senator Kuchel presided at the latest ribbon cutting, i.e. cutting to ribbons, of Barry Goldwater supporters of the extremist stripe. Kuchel is Nelson Rockefeller's state chief. Barry has called Kuchel a left-wing extremist himself. Bruce Reagan, of the unanimously pro-Goldwater United Republicans of California, calls Kuchel a Socialist. Rocky calls for debates. Barry says OK, but only against Democrats.

Former actor George Murphy and financier Leland Kaiser vie for the GOP nomination for U.S. Senate. Kaiser, asked his differences with Murphy, says, "I don't know where Murphy stands on the issues." He further scoffs at the idea of electing a "song and dance man" to the Senate. Murphy has steered pretty clear of fighting other Republicans but his platform appears to be demolition of the Democrats' platform without a specific substitute.

Senate hopefuls on the Democratic side weave an incredible web. Governor Brown, a Cranston backer, says his "good friend" Pierre Salinger is a political rookie in California. Pierre says the "good governor" doesn't own the party and his friends must be embarrassed at Pat's efforts to become a political dictator.

Cranston says the only boss in California is Jesse Unruh, who is "secretly supporting" Salinger. L.A. Mayor Sam Yorty supports pension advocate George McLain. McLain is a member of Brown's presidential delegation. Mark Morris, Demo Senate candidate and member of Yorty's presidential delegation, got sore over Yorty's McClain endorsement and says he'll seek control of the delegation.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS in weekend convention challenged Salinger to "publicly accept or repudiate" their old foe Unruh. They also hit Salinger's professed liberalism at the same time he picks a crusty old conservative Democrat like State Sen. Hugh Burns as his campaign co-chairman.

Young Republicans, locked in tight for Barry long ago, were invaded in L.A. last week by a group motoring from Long Beach who carried placards for Rockefeller, Nixon, Lodge, Scranton (even a couple for Barry). The "moderates" were repelled by the YRs. Some were cut, scratched and shoved. There was vile profanity, one moderate charged. "Cursing? What cursing?" said a YR, "Yes, I might have called them "yellow bellies' but cursing? Not at all!"

The California Democratic Council, Big Daddy of volunteer political groups, which cordially dislikes Unruh, whom they insist on calling Big Daddy with sinister overtones of bossism, is in the thick of the melee. They endorsed Cranston. They dislike Salinger, Hugh Burns and conservatives.

WELL, NOT EXACTLY. Some good friends in CDC have taken separate paths over CDC courses and endorsements and are (horrors) carping at CDC president Tom Carvey.

It goes on and on like this. The most fitting theme song for this year's political campaign is, "You always hurt the one you love." And the best epitaph for all the losers-to-be: "He was good-friended to death!"

Don't Blame All

WHEN ONE MEMBER of an organization, such as a police force, makes a mistake, every other member suffers.

Horseplay by two police officers resulted in the death of a reporter in the press room of the Long Beach Public Safety Building.

Understandably shocked and angered by the tragic incident, many persons were inclined to accuse every man in a police uniform of being immature and irresponsible.

None, except Bill Hunter's immediate family, have been touched more closely by that sad episode than the people of this newspaper. We deplore and seek correction of every condition which may have contributed to the tragedy, and yet we recognize the injustice of putting the blame on all policemen for what was done by one or two. We urge the public to avoid such rash generalizations.

Meanwhile, the public tendency toward such generalizations puts a special responsibility on individual members of any group. More is at stake than the individual's own reputation. The prestige and good reputation of his fellows is involved in his every act. He is, in a very real sense, his brother's keeper.

Still an Issue

IT HASN'T BEEN on the surface of the news recently, but the question of the future of the nation's Naval shipyards continues to be very much an issue.

No definite decisions have been made to close down shipyards, but the possibility of several closings remains.

Long Beach leaders and groups interested in the local Navy shipyard should realize that the battle is by no means won.

They must continue to emphasize the value of the Naval shipyards to a strong and mobile national defense.

Primaries Reveal Protest Vote

WASHINGTON — In the news reports of Tuesday's primaries as reflected in some of the headlines and dispatches, the least attention apparently was given to the item that really carries the most political significance.

For it doesn't matter very much that Gov. Wallace of Alabama got 32 per cent of the Democratic presidential preference primary vote in Indiana instead of the 35 per cent that somebody else thought he was going to get. Nor is it of political importance that Gov. Wallace got 34 per cent of the Democratic primary vote in Wisconsin and only 32 per cent in Indiana.

LAWRENCE

What stands out as significant in all the political news of last Tuesday's various elections is that the state of Alabama repudiated the Democratic national ticket by an overwhelming majority and turned down electors pledged to vote for President Johnson in the electoral college.

This is reminiscent of what some of the southern states have done in other presidential years. But it is particularly relevant this time because in recent months it has been widely assumed that President Johnson would carry the South next November without any difficulty.

Gov. Wallace is not, of course, a real contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, and about all he can accomplish in primaries —already in Wisconsin and Indiana and on May 19 in Maryland — is to give those who are protesting the "civil rights" bill a chance to record themselves. The fact remains that more than 170,000 people went to the polls in Indiana — a nothern state — and voted for Gov. Wallace of Alabama. It is similarly worth noting that 266,000 voted for Gov. Wallace in the Wisconsin primary.

But what is the true significance even of such numbers? It doesn't mean that the Democratic party in either of those states is necessarily going to be defeated in the autumn electitons, but it does mean that a protest vote exists. Some newspaper reports indicate that the Republicans "crossed over" for the purpose of voting in the Democratic primary in Indiana and registered their opposition. This happened also in the Wisconsin primary recently.

But when voters begin to "cross over," they can do so in the final elections as well as in primaries. The "civil rights" issue may bring about a lot of switching of votes when Republicans vote the Democratic ticket and the Democrats vote the Republican ticket. Based upon their own convictions on this particular issue.

Protest votes in primary elections, moreover, often have very little to do with the individaul whose name is on the ballot. Thus, former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota was pitted against Sen. Goldwater in the Republican presidential primary in Indiana, and he got 29 per cent of the vote. This will be regarded by Stassen's friends and supporters as substantial, although he was the only other Republican on the ballot and, in a sense, mobilized all the anti-Goldwater sentiment.

Yet everybody knows that former Gov. Stassen is not likely to have much of a chance in the Republican nominating convention—any more than Gov. Wallace will be a contender for the Democratic nomination.

So all that the primaries thus far have done is to afford an opportunity for a protest vote to be emphasized. There is no doubt that Sen. Goldwater's large vote in many states and his lead at the present time for the presidential nomination are due almost entirely to disapproval of the Democratic administration on the part of Republican voters who feel very deeply on this subject. In fact, the Goldwater strength may, to a large extent, be attributed to the desire of many Republicans to express unequivocally their opposition to the Kennedy-Johnson administrations.

In the South, the reasons for voting for an unpledged set of electors are not related in any way to ambitions or efforts of any particular Democratic candidate to win the nomination as against Lyndon Johnson. It is taken for granted the President will be the nominee of the Democratic party, and the main purpose of the protest vote is to assemble enough unpledged electors so that, if by any chance the election is a close one, the unpledged electors may hold the balance of power.

* * * *

THE SOUTHERN states were able to make the 1948 election relatively close because, with Strom Thurmond as a candidate of the states rights party, 39 votes were cast for him, and this cut down Mr. Truman's majority in the electoral college. Had there been a small shift of votes in one or two of the populous states in the North, Mr. Truman might have been defeated. Yet if the southern states had voted as they customarily did in previous years, Mr. Truman would never have been in danger of losing the election in 1948.

So since the state of Alabama has voted for unpledged electors in a Democratic primary, there is a possibility that in the final election in November the same thing may happen in other states.

Slum Mansion Always Has Tenant

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—If you lived in a 76-year-old firetrap in a commercial area where the roar of trucks shattered your sleep nightly, you might expect to have a problem unloading it.

But, that isn't the plight of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, present tenants at the 18-room Victorian governor's mansion.

M'Cauley

The two-story mansion, looking ing like something left over from a horror movie, has been slated for the scrap heap for 35 years. But the state never could agree on a new governor's residence plan.

A 1964-ruckus whether the mansion should be rebuilt in the Capitol Building area or in suburban Sacramento is likely once again to postpone a decision on where future California governors are to live.

But other landlords should have the same luck as California in keeping tenants in rundown dwellings.

Gov. Brown, now midway in his second term, shows no signs of wanting to move out. Though, he hopes the state builds a new mansion.

The prospect of living in slum-type mansion offers no deterrent to a growing list of would-be governors. Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson has made it plain he would be willing to make the residential sacrifice if Gov. Brown should step aside to become Vice President or a federal Supreme Court justice.

And there is a long waiting list of tenants who want to live in the governor's mansion if Brown vacates it. In fact, maybe the quarters still are too plush.

Perhaps the state would have to quarter its governors in pup tents to cut down the roster of candidates.

On the Democratic side, the speculation is that the list of future willing tenants probably would include: State Finance Director Hale Champion, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk, Controller Alan Cranston, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, Democratic Floor Leader Jerome Waldie, Assemblyman James Mills of San Diego, Assemblyman Robert Crown of Oakland, Rep. James Roosevelt, etc.

There's no shortage either of possible Republican tenants. Among those mentioned as possibly willing someday to live in poverty in the governor's mansion are these GOP comers: State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty, Joe Shell, ex-Sen. William Knowland, Sen. Thomas Kuchel, Rep. Craig Hosmer, Senate Minority Leader John McCarthy, Assembly GOP Caucus Leader Don Mulford, Assembly Floor Leader Charles Conrad, ex-Gov. Goodwin Knight, ex-Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, etc.

At one time, the state talked of spending $875,000 for a new capitol-area mansion. That would have included facilities for state entertaining and an ornamental swimming pool.

Budget slashers hacked away at that scheme, saying the state dining room was an unnecessary fringe. And the latest-model mansion under consideration involves a stripped-down $650,000 mansion — just the bare essentials for the governor of the nation's largest state.

And though the betting is that the 1964 legislature may not solve the mansion problem, don't fret about it. The state will find a tenant for the present crumbling mansion. It always has.

EDITOR:

I wish to make the Independent, Press-Telegram aware of my cognizance of the high quality of your newspaper. Your editorials are always written in a manner that should produce calm and rational thoughts from the reader. You often take an unpopular viewpoint on a particular subject and attempt to disclose both sides of the situation covered.

In the recent tragic death of a member of your staff you simply reported the facts as they occurred and did not resort to emotional outrage. You could possibly have created a chaotic condition for the Long Beach Police Department and the citizens of Long Beach by letting your personal feelings go unchecked while reporting this tragedy.

Also recently during the Steven Anthony eviction your newspaper was one of the few in this area which reported the facts without biased comments. You attempted to explain the position of the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department—a position that was very unpopular at the time. In my opinion the Independent, Press-Telegram constantly adheres to the highest standards of the newspaper industry.

Police Virtues Not Hard to Find

EDITOR:

When a policeman does something wrong he gets lots of notoriety and condemnation but when one of these men does a good deed he seldom gets any boquets for doing same.

Let us not condemn the whole Police Department for what one man does. I understand the police force was actually sick and felt so bad they felt like going home because of that unfortunate incident that happened the other day in our city. Believe me, they all felt worse than the average person did.

We hear of brutality but we never hear of the many kind acts they do. How many of our officers have been shot up, cut up and even killed in the past year for our protection? Don't we owe them any debt of gratitude? No amount of salary could pay for the risks they take every day of their lives for us.

White House Home Sweet Home to LBJ

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has been quite busy settling the Washington debate as to whether the White House is a museum or a home.

In the old days there was no question about it: The White House was a home. Presidents not only lived in the stately mansion but seemed to enjoy it. Its lower floor was not only open to the public at stated hours and intervals, but on New Year's Day the President stood in the East Room to receive anyone who wanted to come in off the street to shake hands and wish him a happy New Year.

PEARSON

This home-like atmosphere continued pretty much through the Truman Administration, though Franklin Roosevelt did spend quite a few weekends in Hyde Park and also established Shangri-La, renamed Camp David for Ike's grandson, in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland.

Earlier, Herbert Hoover had set a precedent for weekending by establishing a fishing lodge on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

Nevertheless, during all this period the White House continued to be a home. The Hoover grandchildren enjoyed seeing Larry Ritchie, dressed as Santa Claus, come down the chimney of the East Room—though he actually jumped out from behind a screen. And Truman enjoyed his "back porch" on the southern exposure of the White House, which to him made it more home-like.

Came President Eisenhower and the White House ceased to be a home. Ike did not spend a single Christmas in the White House—until has last years in office. He enjoyed long weekends at Gettysburg, at the Augusta National Golf Club in the "cottage" built for him through W. Alton Jones of Cities Service; at the George Humphrey plantation in Georgia; at Palm Springs, and various other recreation spots.

President Kennedy followed somewhat the same pattern, though he favored Palm Beach and Hyannisport, in addition to his own weekend retreat in Virginia and the Presidential retreat at Camp David. Almost never was a weekend spent in the White House. And with Jackie Kennedy concentrating on the historical aspects of the presidential mansion, the traditional home of presidents became more and more a museum.

President Johnson has changed all this. He definitely enjoys living in the White House, likes to take visitors through the upstairs living quarters off limits to everyone except members of the family.

Obviously the new President also enjoys the White House grounds. They are beautiful grounds and cost the taxpayers a modest sum for upkeep. Not since the days of Calvin Coolidge, who loved to stroll over the south grounds of the White Hopse, has a President really relaxed in his own backyard. The Kennedy children and Jackie enjoyed the huge lawn, and Ike did a little putting on the lawn.

But LBJ takes almost every visitor out into the rose garden, tells how Mrs. Paul Mellon contributed the flowering crab apple trees and the spring flowers, goes for a stroll across the grass for exercise.

The truth is that Johnson just likes to be right in the center of Pennsylvania Avenue. It's the busiest avenue in town, but he enjoys being busy on a busy thoroughfare. No one could tempt him up to the lonely heights of Camp David. It's too far, and besides the ex-Senator couldn't stretch out his legs with present members of the Senate and talk about the state of the world at Camp David as he can in the White House.

No question about it, the White House is now a home.

FBI FILES suggest that Charles English, the mental patient who barged into Michigan Gov. George Romney's office with a loaded revolver and a pocket knife, may have been a potential Lee Oswald.

Like the accused slayer of President Kennedy, English has a history of supporting Cuba's Dictator Fidel Castro. At one time, English ran a Miami air taxi service which smuggled arms to Castro.

One reliable report claims English actually served for a while on a secret council of twelve, which advised Castro. English's mental record began when he committed himself to an asylum in an attempt to escape payment of a $3,500 debt.

ILLINOIS SEN. Everett Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, never uses a short, simple word where a multi-syllable one will do.

He interrupted Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., on the Senate floor the other day with this saccharin-sweet remark: "Knowing the mental agility and the cerebral dexterity of the distinguished senator from Florida . . ."

"A parliamentary inquiry!" cried Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., in mock horror.

"It has been stated," said Aiken, "that the able Senator from Florida is suffering from Cerebral Dexterity, I believe it was called. In view of the fact that this attack has come upon him, is there nothing in the rules which permits the Senate to extend consideration to him in view of that affliction?"

"In some circles," allowed Smathers, "it is considered an affliction."

WALTER T. RIDDER

Walkie-Talkie Press Session Covers Ground—Little Else

I. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — To use a popular word of the day, "style," President Johnson is sure exhibiting a new and fascinating style towards the press. It is almost as if he intended to stuff press conferences down the throats of the reporters until they can't stand anymore. He had three or four of them the other week and heaven knows how many he will have this week.

RIDDER

It's not only that he has press conferences. He is having press conferences that no one ever thought of before. He is having them in his living quarters; he is having them over cups of coffee in a good old-fashioned "kaffeeklatsch"; he is having them sitting down and he is having them on the run. He had one the other day which some mathematician figured out covered some two-and-a-half miles. The day previous, he had had one that covered only two miles. These peripetetic news conferences leave the reporters limp and gasping for it is only the ones near the President who can hear or ask questions and the jockeying for position is therefore hot and heavy.

* * * *

THE CLIMAX—or on second thought maybe it isn't, there may be more to come—was reached the other afternoon when the President expansively invited not only the Washington press corps to a press conference in the White House rose garden, but included wives and children in the invitation. So, on a beautiful May afternoon, something like a family party took place on the White House lawn and if the affair was not entirely business at least a good time was had by all.

Just how relations between the President and the press will eventually evolve is difficult to forsee. It is well known that Johnson has particularly sensitive ears in regard to criticism and he has long displayed his dislike for the press in general. However, he is a canny politician and he knows full well that a favorable or a neutralized press can be of considerable help to him.

Yet it is obvious that he is going to meet the press on his terms—not its. The flamboyant manner in which he is holding his press conferences manages to catch the headlines. The substance of what he is saying is overshadowed by the way in which he says it—and this may be precisely what he has in mind.

* * * *

TRYING TO KEEP up with the President as he lopes around the White House lawn, pausing every now and then to shake hands through the iron fence with passers-by is not exactly the best way in which to ask a serious, well-thought out question nor to get a very reasoned or meaningful answer, but it looks as though that's the way press conferences will be conducted for the nonce—unless of course the President can think of some even more bizarre setting for his talks with reporters.

CAPITAL CAPERS

Washington Souvenir Racket Bilks School-Kid Tourists

Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A nasty little racket involving drivers of tour buses into Washington and a few greedy businessmen here is victimizing school children, here to visit the seat of government—and buy souvenirs.

These drivers—no one seems to know just how many are involved—"steer" the kids to certain stores here in return for payoffs from the stores. To handle this extra business expense, the merchants naturally charge the kids more.

One reporter here watched a busload of high school students from North Carolina taken to the cleaners this week. The kids—some of them obviously from poor families—trooped into a downtown drug-souvenir store.

"Best place in town for souvenirs," the kindly bus driver said sweeping them in the place. The students had cut grass and washed cars all year to pay for the big bus trip, and eagerly grabbed up sleezy souvenirs hiked in price by as much as 100 percent.

* * * *

ABOUT HALF of the junk had no price tags on it, letting the enterprising storekeeper get just about the the traffic would bear.

When the kids had gone back to the bus, the driver slipped back into the store and—in full view—received a $20 bill from the store owner.

Managers of several restaurants told the reporter that bus drivers had attempted to pressure them for payola. He noted that some souvenir stores—whose owners refused to bribe drivers—were fairly empty.

Not just the charter bus drivers are involved in this sordid business. Some of the licensed guides seek deals as well.

"Not all the guides or out-of-town drivers pressure you for a payoff," one store owner said, "But plenty of them do. Everybody knows it. There's a lot of talk about getting tourists to come here. So why gouge 'em?

"A driver said he makes $50 to $75 extra a week bringing loads of kids in. Tax free, too. Just look around and see how some buses block traffic near stores that are are nowhere near any sightseeing points."

* * * *

THE GOING IS getting rougher for Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, the man on muleback who's whipping up racial unrest in Democratic presidential primaries. Wallace got through the Wisconsin primary relatively unmarked, because no one took him seriously. In Indiana, Gov. Matthew Welsh gave him a thorough going-over. As the Maryland campaign begins, Gov. Wallace finds himself under some large-caliber oratorical artillery. Such forensic giants from the U.S. Senate as Birch Bayh (Ind.), Eugene J. McCarthy (Minn.), Hubert Humphrey (Minn.), Ted Kennedy (Mass.), and Abe Ribicoff (Conn.), will take to the hustings in nearby Maryland to campaign against Wallace.

* * * *

FOR SENATOR HUMPHREY, it has been a week to remember. On Monday night, he heard the president of the Minnesota Bankers Association, of all persons, describe him in a banquet introduction as "one of America's most powerful men." Hubert took those words to heart Wednesday night. The National Capital Democratic Club threw a reception in his honor (for meritorious duty on the civil rights bill), and the President of the United States showed up to join in the praise. Hubert didn't. The Senate stayed in session on the bill and he couldn't get away. Still in his Senate warpaint, Humphrey appeared Saturday as keynote speaker at the American Indian Capital Conference on poverty. That was a week that was.

There is ample reason for such a conference. As President Johnson pointed out a few months ago, Indian people suffer more from poverty than any other group in America. The President called it "a shameful fact." Family income of Indians on reservations is less than one-third the average family income in America.

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Johnson Prods Congress

By SAM FOGG
United Press International

After 49 days of debate, the Senate took its first vote on the civil rights bill last week and then went back to talking.

The slow pace on the legislation drew from President Johnson a sharp warning that it need be he would summon Congress back into special session later this election year to pass other legislation he has deemed a must.

He specifically mentioned his anti-poverty program, the medicare bill and a pay raise for federal officials.

* * * *

"THE PEOPLE'S business must come first," Johnson told a news conference. "I think that the people of this country are entitled to have a vote on these important measures, this administration is entitled to have a vote on them, and I am going to ask the Congress to vote them up and down."

It was the sharpest prod the President has given since the Senate took up the House-passed civil rights bill two months ago.

The first vote was on a jury trial amendment by Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., which was opposed by the Senate leaders of both parties. It was rejected late Wednesday by the narrow margin of 46 to 45.

At that point, both sides called a truce on further voting until probably this coming Wednesday, leaving the jury trial issue still undecided. Yet to be voted upon are a leadership-backed amendment and another by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., which is favored by Southern foes of the bill.

Johnson himself carried an appeal for a solution to the civil rights question into the South's heartland last week when at the end of a second tour of the poverty-stricken Appalachia area he spoke to the state legislators of Georgia at an integrated breakfast.

* * * *

HE DREW cheers when he predicted that the South may settle its racial problems before the North does.

"Heed not those who come waving the tattered and discredited banners of the past—who seem to stir old hostilities and kindle old hatreds — who preach battle between neighbors and bitterness between states," Johnson said.

The Texas-born President also said at Gainesvillet, Ga., that "full participation in our society can no longer be denied to men because of their race, religion or region."

SEN. TALMADGE
Proposes Amendment

In his six-state, two-day tour of the Appalachia, Johnson chatted with sharecroppers and unemployed workers about their problems and hammered home this theme: "We came because we care."

There were civil rights repercussions in the north as well. In Indiana, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace ran in the Democratic presidential primary against an administration stalking horse, Indiana Gov. Matthew E. Welsh and collected approximately 30 percent of the votes.

WHETHER his showing was a major portent of white "backlash" resentment against Negro civil rights demonstrations was in dispute.

The segregationist Southern governor noted that he had polled 33.7 percent of the primary vote in Wisconsin and declared:

"We shook the eyeteeth of those people in Wisconsin and those noises you hear now are the teeth falling out in Indiana. We're going on to Maryland from here."

But Johnson told his news conference he didn't think the total polled by Wallace in the Hoosier state was "any strong endorsement of a man's record."

In his home state of Alabama, Wallace scored a clear-cut victory when the voters supported him by choosing an unpledged slate of presidential electors. This gives him the authority to withhold the state's votes from Johnson if the governor sees fit.

Other primary results:

Rep. Robert Taft, son of the late Ohio Republican leader, won the GOP nomination for the Senate seat his father once held. He will oppose incumbent Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, in November.

* * * *

FORMER Oklahoma University football coach Bud Wilkinson swept to an easy victory as Oklahoma's Republican Senate nominee. His November opponent will be either incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmonson or State Sen. Fred Harris, who were forced into a runoff.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., won Indiana's convention votes in the Tuesday primary, but encountered a strong showing there by former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen.

Other developments of the week:

—Johnson dispatched Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara on another trip to South Viet Nam to check up on the progress of the fighting against Red guerrillas in the vital Southeast Asian country.

—U.S. Army Captain Alfred Svenson returned from behind the Iron Curtain after having defected more than a year ago to East Germany. The prospect of a court martial for desertion and possibly betraying secrets faced the Scranton, Pa., soldier.

—Harry S. Truman celebrated his 80th birthday in jaunty fashion in Washington Friday. He quipped and joked in high good humor with old political friends and foes. Upon being referred to as an octogenarian, the former President laughingly commented: "That sounds like an insult to me."

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

U.S.-Cuban Relations Pondered in Europe

By United Press International

European newspapers focused on U.S. relations with Cuba in their editorial comments about American affairs during the past week.

The Socialist newspaper Arbeiter-Zeitung in Vienna suggested that Cuba might allow the United Nations to conduct inspections on its soil if the United States was willing to guarantee Premier Fidel Castro against another Bay of Pigs invasion.

The United States is conducting reconnaissance flights over Cuba to make sure long-range missiles are not installed there by the Soviet Union. Cuba has protested bitterly against the overflights.

"(U.N. inspections) would be the best and only solution to carry out the regular international controls which had been agreed upon," Arbeiter-Zeitung said.

In Copenhagen, the conservative newspaper Berlingske Tidende commented on the U.S. protest against French sales of locomotives to Cuba.

"The American government is in its full right to follow the political line it regards the right and the effective one, and it is only reasonable that it tries to persuade its allies to support it," the newspaper said.

"But it cannot be their duty as allies to take part in a blockade in which they do not believe."

In Vienna, the conservative newspaper Suedost Tagespost charged that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is "sick."

"The countries of the free world, and those of Western Europe in particular, have grown much stronger economically and want their increased contributions to Western defense preparedness to be requited with more voice in the Western defense concept," the newspaper said.

"Bluntly put, these countries are no longer willing to obey the Americans in NATO," it added.

The Guardian of London observed that "The (British) government's main arguments for keeping the independent (nuclear) deterrent is that it gives us influence — particularly on the United States — which we would not otherwise possess." It continued:

"On the contrary, . . . Britain can often exert great influence in Washington not by the strength of her nuclear right arm but by giving sensible advice."

In East Berlin, the Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland said the Johnson administration "still is following a reactionary policy in South Viet Nam."

"The American extremists even have the insane goal of an extension of the war to North Viet Nam," the Communist newspaper claimed.

The influential Paris newspaper Le Monde charged there were "divergent views among the democrats after President Kennedy's death regarding U.S. policy toward Latin America."

MARCH OF DIMES DINNER

Polio Fighters to Observe Salk Vaccine's 10th Year

Long Beach chapter of the March of Dimes will celebrate the 10th anniversary of the discovery of Salk polio vaccine at its annual dinner Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Lafayette Hotel.

Tickets for the public event are available at the chapter's office, 3230 E. Broadway.

Actress Beatrice Fuerst, who was stricken with polio while entertaining in a Detroit children's hospital, will be featured speaker. She will represent the Salk Institute of Biological Research.

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick will be master of ceremonies.

Postmaster David Selcer, Long Beach March of Dimes chairman, pointing out the fund drive's accomplishments, said 10 years ago there were 40,000 polio cases in the United States. In 1962 there were 910 and in 1963 the figure dropped to 431.

Harvey Freeman, 1964 campaign chairman, will present awards to outstanding March of Dimes campaign workers.

BEATRICE W. FUERST
Polio Drive Speaker

Members of the executive board for 1964-65 are Vern J. Brustkern, co-chairman; Raymond J. Moore, treasurer; Mrs. Don R. Crosby, secretary; Dr. Arthur E. De Nio, medical advisory committee chairman; Ed. Purnell, campaign chairman.

L.B. Police HQ Opens Displays

Observance of the second annual Police Week begins today in Long Beach and will continue through next Sunday.

During an around-the-clock open house at police headquarters, 400 W. Broadway, various professional exhibits will be available to the public, Police Chief William J. Mooney said Saturday.

* * * *

THE OBSERVANCE, first suggested by President Kennedy, is designed to call attention to the work of police departments throughout the nation in upholding law and order.

Displays in the Long Beach headquarters building include pictures of the department in action, various types of guns and ballistic materials, a large collection of badges from police agencies throughout the world and a display of narcotics and harmful drugs.

AGILE HIGH-SCHOOLERS

Fingers Blur, Typewriters Whirr in Contest

Jordan High School's John Roberts averaged 82 words a minute in the best individual showing of the fourth annual typing contest sponsored Saturday by the Administrative Management Society.

Twenty-four high school teams competed in the afternoon at Long Beach City College's business and technology division.

Jordan High took the team prize in the open contest. Lakewood High won the contest for first-year typists using manual typewriters and Millikan High won the first-year competition for electric machines.

Fastest typist in each of the three contests will receive a portable typewriter at the society's meeting May 26 in Lafayette Hotel. Roberts, Ann Werner of Lakewood and Mary Compton of Millikan won typewriters.

Other members of the winning teams receive $50 savings bonds or $50 gift certificates. They are Julie Ford, Ann Brown and Pat Hernandez of Jordan; Julia Greenwood, Tom Miller and Marlena Sly of Lakewood; Sue Townsend, Beverly Wilson and Judy May of Millikan.

In the open contest Jordan's team average was 66 words a minute. Honorson High with a 63-w.p.m. average.

This was the first year an electric typewriter team has entered and Lakewood's team averaged 58 words per minute, three words faster than Millikan's team average for the first-year manual typing championship. Stanford Junior High School took honorable mention for first-year typists.

The contest was conducted by Prof. Darrell V. Burras of California State College at Long Beach. able mention went to Wil-

POLITICS

Major Talk Slated Here by Murphy

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

George Murphy, Republican candidate for U.S. Senate in California, will give a major political address at 8 p.m. May 18 in the Lafayette Hotel International Ball Room, under auspices of the Long Beach Surburban Republicans.

A no-host social is scheduled then for 7:15 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from Stan Thomson, 4150 Annapolis Rd., Lakewood, or Mrs. Willard M. Drowne, 1881 College Circle, Long Beach. Thomson will preside at the meeting.

Murphy was 1953 chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and was a GOP convention delegate in 1948, 1952 and 1956. The local club notes he has been a grass-roots worker and fund-raiser for the party in almost every county in California over the past 25 years.

* * * *

FRONTIER DEMOS

Superior Judge Vincent S. Dalsimer, candidate for district attorney of Los Angeles County, will speak at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club at Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway. The club convenes for business sessions at 10:30 a.m.

* * * *

DALSIMER COFFEE

A group of Long Beach businessmen will attend a public coffee hour for district attorney candidate Dalsimer from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Andy's Restaurant, 643 Pine Ave. Topic: organization of the candidate's local campaign.

* * * *

BAY DEMOCRATS

Alamitos Bay Democratic Club will see a film review of the recent Long Beach convention of the California Democratic Council and hear an analysis of voting trends in the Long Beach area's 32nd Congressional District at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Bayshore Library.

* * * *

PIERRE COFFEE

A "coffee" for Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Pierre Salinger will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the residence of Mrs. Joan Martinez, 10961 Marion Dr., Garden Grove. Attorney William R. Butler of Los Angeles will speak on behalf of the candidate.

Those Texas Dogies Just Strayed

Seven Texas youngsters who showed up in Hawaiian Gardens three days ago — without escort, without food and without funds—were just runaways, not kidnap victims.

So, at least, Texas authorities told Lakewood sheriff's station juvenile officers Saturday night.

Two of the youngsters, sisters, were put aboard a Texas-bound bus with tickets supplied by their father.

The other five wait in McClaren Hall for transportation home, while juvenile authorities continue an investigation of their stories.

"All seven were bathed, fed, dressed in clean clothing, and generally checked over for medical needs" Dep. Robert Lee, Lakewood juvenile officer, said Saturday night.

Lee said he and Dep. Marie Walter were told by one of the older girls in the group that the trip to California was a spur-of-the-moment idea which came while the older girls were baby-sitting.

"That's why we couldn't leave the little kids home" the older girls told officers here.

The youngsters' story was that they were brought west by a 20-year-old man who abandoned them in Hawaiian Gardens. Their plight was learned when one of the girls asked to phone home, collect, from a Hawaiian Gardens residence, and the householder notified authorities.

In the group were Linda Aldridge, 16, and her sister, Janet, 6, who are en route home to Ft. Worth by bus; Geraldine Newberry, 18, Ray Wilburn Hicks, 17, Joy Posey, 14, Darla Butler, 8, and her sister, Sharon Butler, 3.

Lee said Fort Worth police listed the children as "missing" and "runaways" but that Texas had not classified the case as a kidnap.

"We do not even know, for sure, that the man named by the kids exists, or that the story was true," Lee said. "The story is being checked."

SAFETY TALKER

Nabs 4 Armed Men, Now His Pupils Listen

In Downey the kids know him as "Mr. Vance." He's the motor cop who gives school talks on bicycle safety.

In full daylight, officer Robert Vance, 35, who has a wife and two children, wheeled his motor in a fast U-turn behind a car, stopped it while pointing his revolver at four black-clad men and kept them waiting "hands up" until help came Friday.

* * * *

THE FOUR were jailed. In the car police found three loaded pistols — and $2,793 taken moments before from a nearby market at 12270 Paramount Blvd. Police found $4,600 in rooms used by the men.

Detectives said the arrests would clear 16 market holdups with loot totaling $170,000.

* * * *

IN DOWNEY jail, awaiting a court hearing Monday, are the four, identified as Raymond Grant Edington, 32, of 15345 Paramount Blvd., Paramount, John Anthony Hochenauer, 28, Milan (Mike) Rajkow, 35, and George Lee Howell, 24, all of Gardena.

The motor cop called Mr. Vance, a qualified pistol expert who plans some interesting talks on bicycle safety, captured the four bandit suspects without firing a shot.

AMERICA'S 375-MILLION-DOLLAR NEW WAY OF LIFE

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Market Makes Progress Before Selling Off at End

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market made good progress last week and moved to two consecutive highs before selling off in the closing session.

Prices opened the week on a strong upsurge as traders followed through on a week ago Friday's late rally. An easier trend set in during the first hours Tuesday, but buyers took the upper hand late in the session and pushed prices still further.

* * * *

THE MARKET finally crossed into new high ground late Wednesday when the Dow-Jones Industrial average rose 1.55 to a record high of 828.18—ending the long downward slide which began after it reached its earlier peak on April 17. Enthusiasm carried into Thursday and another new peak was reached.

Most of the buyers' attention was concentrated in the blue chips and a few well known specialites. While most brokers consider this a good sign in itself, they were a little cautious about calling the new advance a continuation of the bull market, since the widespread advance which normally characterizes the bull market seemed lacking.

Many Wall Street diagnosticians attributed the change in direction to Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin's statement that demand for credit does not appear strong enough to warrant a boost in interest rates. Others felt it is merely the normal course of events.

* * * *

CORPORATE news continued to be favorable and about the only sour note heard on Wall Street last week was American Motors report of lower sales and earnings in the first quarter. However, even this was taken in stride.

Most economic indicators continue to present a good picture.

Dow-Jones Industrial averages climbed 11.47 to 828.57. Rails gained 2.85 to 199.35 and Utilities rose 1.35 to 140.98. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.83 to 81.00.

Volume shrank to 26,762,310 shares from 27,746,760 shares the previous week and compared with 24,281,148 shares in the same week last year.

Texas Gulf Sulphur topped the most active roster with a gain of 1¼ to 54⅛ on a turnover of 1,590,200 shares.

* * * *

CHRYSLER took second place with a gain of 4½ to new high of 51⅛ on 1,268,300 shares. Brokers said the company's report of an 18 percent gain in April provided much of the initial boost and, when the stock hit a new high of 50 Thursday, chartists scrambled to get aboard. They also pointed out that there had been some short covering in the stock.

Curtis Publishing was third with a loss of 2½ to 15 on 841,400 shares. The stock enjoyed a big runup the previous week and traders were apparently reaping profits.

American Motors also was among the most active. It dropped 1⅛ to ⅝ on news of lower sales and earnings for the first quarter and six months.

General Motors advanced 2 points, but Ford shed 1. Mack Truck continued on the upswing in response to news of a merger bid from Chrysler. It jumped 3⅜.

* * * *

STEELS were a strong spot with Lukens up 4½, Jones & Laughlin 4, Youngstown Sheet 2⅛, Bethlehem 1½, Republic 1¾ and U.S. Steel 1.

Oils also were strong. Standard Oil of Indiana rose 2⅛ on higher earnings. Standard Oil (N.J.) improved 1¼ on news it plans to enter the auto rental field on an experimental basis.

Barber Oil, which holds about 300,000 shares of Texas Gulf, climbed 2⅝. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped 3⅛. Continental Oil 2¾, Gulf Oil 3⅜, Pennzoil 4⅞, Pure Oil 5½ and Sinclair 2¾.

IBM jumped 5 while its "when issued" shares soared 7. Honeywell pushed ahead 8¼, Motorola 1½, Control Data 4¼, Foxboro 2⅜ and Litton and Beckman Instruments 1 each.

* * * *

RAILS showed a number of substantial gains including New York Central up 2, Chicago Great Western 2¾, Chesapeake & Ohio 2⅜, Louisville & Nashville 1, Nickel Plate 1⅛ and Chicago & Northwestern ¾. Canadian Pacific retreated 1⅛.

The ranks of the fast moving airline shares were thinned out somewhat as a number of issues failed to keep pace. However, Northwest Airlines soared 9¾, Western 6½, Pan American 3⅝ and Trans World 2. Eastern Airlines dropped 2.

Boeing Aircraft rose 2¼, McDonnell 2⅜ and Piper 2⅝. Alcoa rose 2½ in the metals where Cerro picked up 1⅜ and U.S. Smelting racked up a gain of 7¼.

Store shares benefited from forecasts of stronger sales in the second half. Sears Roebuck jumped 2½, Marshall Field 1⅜, Korvette 2½, Interstate Department Stores 3¾ and Mays Department Stores 3¼.

* * * *

GERBER Products rose 5¾ in response to news of an increased dividend and a proposed 2 for 1 stock split. Armour rose 2, Swift 2¾, General Foods 2¼, and Morrell 2. Royal Crown Cola advanced 3½.

Drugs were firm with G. D. Searle up 3½, Bristol-Myers 2½, Abbott Labs 1, Johnson & Johnson 1 and Merck 1½.

Consolidated Cigar climbed 3⅜. General Cigar 2¼, Liggett & Myers 1¼ and Reynolds Tobacco 1.

Polaroid rose 2½ but Xerox dropped 1¾ despite reports of record April sales. American Enka jumped 5⅝. American Export rose 2½. Cleanese picked up 2⅞. International Harvester rose 3¾. Hertz dropped 3⅜.

Samarkand Threat Over

MOSCOW (AP)—The Zeravshan River has begun to flow again past the shimmering blue mosques and fabled walls of Samarkand, the ancient capital of a Mongol empire.

The first trickle reached the city in Soviet Central Asia from the canal opened Wednesday in a landslide that blocked the river. The landslide occurred April 24 in mountains 100 miles upstream from the city.

TREAT YOURSELF to unexcelled cuisine, impeccable service, in a delightful atmosphere of sophisticated elegance. Cafe Lafayette not only serves the finest to the finest by the finest but does it with memorable style, the elegance of which inspires the diner.

Cafe Lafayette Debuts to L.B., So. Cal., Nation

Serve Gourmet Food in Continental Decor

Among the gourmets and those who enjoy gourmet food exquisitely served in sophisticated atmosphere, the Cafe Lafayette is fast becoming the most talked about restaurant in the industry. With quiet elegance, masterful service, and unexcelled cuisine, it has won public acceptance for that "extra something special."

Says John E. McKennon, "When our guests dine at the Cafe Lafayette it must be a memorable experience; both from service and food."

The concept was the brain child of McKennon who wanted a unique restaurant to replace the old hotel dining room.

How did it all come about?

The Cafe Lafayette, salon d'elegance, was designed and decorated by Glenn Petri and John Nicholson, (AID). McKennon asked for a smart and elegant dining room, sincerely sophisticated.

By using his guideline and screening traits of the outstanding dining rooms throughout the Continent, Petri and Nicholson met McKennon's request so well that Cafe Lafayette has become a conversation piece in the over-all feeling of quiet French Provincial elegance.

* * * *

TWO SIX-FOOT Eighteenth Century Flemish tapestries add a deft touch of character. Five 18-branch gold leaf candlelit chandeliers grace the room.

Comfortable banquettes at the perimeter, together with Louis XVI fruitwood tables and chairs upholstered in the room color scheme of gold, white, red, and blue, tie the entire space into the period.

The piece de resistance is the circular La Ronde board in the center from which hors d'oeuvres are served.

* * * *

SOME OF the gourmet specials at the Cafe include Chateaubriand Des Rois. "A Double Tenderloin of Prime Beef covred with Marrow in a Blanket of Hickory Smoked Bacon, Alumette Potatoes, Jardiniere of Vegetables, Perigeux Sauce;" Beef Fondue Bourguignone, "Tender Strips of choice Tenderloin that you cook yourself in a Casserole at your table.

Long Branch Potatoes, Sauce Bearnaise, Bordelaise, Horseradish preceded by an exquisite Salad of Boston Lettuce and Sliced Tomato, Beefsteak Tartar, A Raw Ground Sirloin is expertly prepared at your table with oil-vinegar, anchovies, capers, minced onions, ketchup, worchestershire sauce, egg yolk, lemon, brandy, served with assorted breads."

* * * *

ENTREES include Rack of Lamb Persille Bouquetiere; Double Entrecote Jardiniere.

"Our chef," says McKennon, "will be pleased to prepare any specialty you desire."

A prime example of Cafe Lafayette cuisine is the use of hot sauerkraut around a bottle of champagne (Pheasant Alsace Lorraine.) While diners watch, the heat pops the cork and champagne cascades down on the roast pheasant.

TEAM EFFORT

McKennon Has Broad, Rich Hotel Experience

John McKennon, manager of the Lafayette, is the son of a dentist.

Born March 30, 1917 in Clarksville, Ark., he is a graduate of Fort Smith Junior College.

JOHN McKENNON

McKennon entered the hotel field in 1937 as a front desk cashier at the Majestic Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark.

Nine years later, after service in four more hotels, he was maitre d' in the Continental Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

There, he worked with Victor Manske, now his resident manager at the Lafayette. In 1948, McKennon joined the Albert Pick chain in food training at the Heidelberg Hotel, Baton Rouge, La.

After other hotel jobs, he ventured into advertising in 1952, then in 1956, became manager of the Lafayette Hotel in San Diego. The same year he became manager of the Lafayette in Long Beach.

McKennon has a wife, Pat, sons John Jr., 14, and James 9. He is active in community life.

"Yes," he says, "we have faith in our community and also a responsibility. We must create a warm and friendly atmosphere and provide our guests with the ultimate in food and lodging."

VALET PARKING

George and Betsy Taubman's pet Cadillac is carefully parked by Richard Thompson, valet parking attendent. The Cafe Lafayette offers free valet parking. Just drive your car to the Broadway entrance of the Cafe Lafayette and the courteous parking attendant will do the rest.

Hotel Chef Alphonse Has Served World Notables

Alphonse J. G. Thomas is executive chef at the Lafayette Hotel. He directs the preparation of cuisine for its top restaurants and banquet rooms.

Alphonse has cooked for many international leaders, including former President Eisenhower and the King of Cambodia who dined on his cuisine while he was top chef at the French embassy in Ottawa, Canada.

A native of Belgium, he has cooked in top restaurants throughout the world and is a member of the Chaine des Rotisseurs, and international organization of chefs which originated in France in 1700.

Since his arrival at the Lafayette last year, Thomas has added many glamorous continental dishes to the menus of the hotel's posh new Cafe Lafayette.

CELEBRITIES SEEN

Remodel Program Sparkles

When John McKennon took over management of the Lafayette about four years ago, he looked the hotel over carefully and decided that—if it were to maintain its standards, an extensive remodeling job was in order.

By the time his schedule is completed in Dec., 1965, all the public rooms in the hotel will have been refurbished.

At a cost of $450,000 all of the public rooms were included in the remodeling. All were renamed to suit the decor. The schedule also calls for all guest rooms to be completed by 1965.

One of the first rooms to be remodeled and renovated was the Red Velvet Room. It emerged as the Sans Souci Lounge.

WHEN ONE enters, through a new street entrance, attention is focused on a huge crystal chandelier imported from France suspended above an oval bar which features Tru-Measur drinks.

Primarily a show room, the Lounge was designed with a three tier seating area facing the stage. A compact dance floor is also provided. It has the over-all feeling of high style and good taste in the blending of striking color combinations of red, deep purple, antique white and pasel pink together with an added touch of old world charm.

The Cavalier Room became the French Room—with sophistication embodied in 16 crystal wall scounces and five crystal chandeliers.

WOVEN tapestry-like panels, the use of mirrors well placed throughout the room, together with mustard, gold and green worked into the color scheme also emphasize the French decor.

Cafe Lafayette's Serving Schedule

The Cafe Lafayette serves luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and dinner from 6 to 11 p.m. daily. It is closed Sundays.

Complete Evening at Hotel Is Special Treat

For a special anniversary, birthday, out of town guest, or the something special treat for yourself. Plan a complete evening's entertainment at the Lafayette Hotel.

Enjoy the sophisticated atmosphere and out of this world foods of the Cafe Lafayette and then see the show and dancing at the smart Sans Sauci show lounge.

The maitre d' will arrange special reserved seating for you at the Sans Souci lounge where you will be entertained by some of America's finest entertainers.

In addition to the entertainment that appears in the room, the Sans Souci Adorables, clad in especially designed leotards, which have just the right abreviation, serve drinks promptly.

FRESNO FALLS TWICE

49ERS' FINEST HOUR

L.B. State Wins 1st Baseball Title

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State experienced its finest baseball hour Saturday.

The 49ers completed their miracle comeback story by polishing off Fresno State, 5-4 and 11-1, to lock up their first CCAA championship. It was just one year ago that Long Beach finished dead last.

Needing only a split, coach Bob Wuesthoff's charges rallied for two runs in the eighth inning of the opener to clinch the title, then bombed five Fresno hurlers in the nightcap to wind up sweeping all three games in the winner-take-all series.

LBSC's dressing room was sheer bedlam after the first game. Wuesthoff told his boys "My hat's off to you. You're the champions. You've come back when you're down every weekend.

"Kissler (Adrian) made the play that won the game. All I can say is 'nice going gang'."

Moments later Wuesthoff explained what he called the turning point. "I put Kissler in as a pinch runner to give us some speed in the eighth inning. He took out Williams at second to break up a double play and force the error which gave us the game. The only play Kissler gets to make in the series and he comes through. All of the boys have done this right along all year though," Bob added.

"I'm sure glad we didn't have to go into the second game with everything riding on it. Anderson (Don), Wallace (Barry) and Lowell (Bruce) all had injuries and could hardly run.

"I debated all night whether to start Hoffman (Jack) or Perry (Ed). Hoffman pulled a muscle in a gym class Thursday and also had a badly bruised heel. I had Perry ready to go anytime so when Jack started favoring his leg and I saw the chance to pinch hit early, I went with Ed."

Perry came on in the fifth inning with the score 3-all. Fresno jumped ahead, 4-3, but Perry settled down and slammed the door shut from the sixth on.

LBSC fashioned its tying and winning runs in the eighth on two hits and three errors. With one out, John Gonsalves was safe on shortstop Jim Williams' error. Steve Ramirez beat out a sacrifice bunt.

'Dial Scores Big Upset; Goetta Last

By DON HARDIN

In one of the major upsets in quarter horse racing, a mare by the name of Anna Dial scored an impressive victory in Saturday's $25,000 Quarter Horse Championship at Los Alamitos Race Course.

The odds-on favorite and the world's leading money winner among the swifties, Goetta, finished last beaten by 2½ lengths.

Jockey Charlie Smith, aboard the favorite Hugh Huntley colorbearer, said after the race that, "My horse reared up as the gate opened and I could never straighten him out."

Most of Goetta's admirers saw the mishap but the fact is, the winner turned in the fastest time of the meeting for 440 yards — 21.9 — along with Goetta's earlier clocking and won by a head over Tidy's Pleasure, the previous winner over Goetta.

* * * *

ANNA DIAL, with Robert Adair aboard, returned $16.60, $6.80 and $5. Tidy's Pleasure paid $6.20 and $4 and Scooper Chick returned $4 for show.

Scooper Chick got out in front of Tidy's Pleasure was pressured from the start and the favored Goetta was left wanting. The two raced head and head most of the way until Anna Dial, making her third start at the meeting, came on with a rush in the final yards to win by a head.

This was Adair's first win of the meet since Monday.

Although Goetta lost face in this particular race, she still maintained her leadership in money won at $206,375.

A fine crowd of 12,193 turned out for the afternoon's nine-race program and wa-

Angels' Bats Come Alive, Chisox Fall

Belinsky, Chance Pitch Win, 7-4

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Angels' Kiddie Korps, currently interested only in raising its batting averages not its bank accounts, provided Bo Belinsky with a future bargaining point Saturday night and even invited the boy orator, Dean Chance, to share in the rewards.

Belinsky returned to the winner's circle for the first time since last Sept. 19 as 19-year-old Ed Kirkpatrick, 23-year-old Tom Satriano and 22-year-old Jim Fregosi powered a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

* * * *

INSPIRED by a ladies night crowd of 9,898, Belinsky levelled his season record at 1-1 with help from Chance and Danny Osinski, who was credited with his first save.

Kirkpatrick was the fodder in an 11-hit Angels explosion which demolished the 2.3 runs-per-game Dodger Stadium average the Cherubs brought into the contest.

Spanky slammed a triple, double and single as he drove in three runs to raise his average 44 points to .264. Satriano, batting .400, drove home two runs with a single and sacrifice fly while Fregosi, swatting at a .393 pace, scored twice and drove home a run with a double and walk.

After stumbling through a grip of early wildness, Belinsky pitched effectively until the sixth when the White Sox threatened to erase a 5-1 Angel advantage.

* * * *

MANAGER Bill Rigney then called for Chance, who was planning his strategy for a scheduled starting assignment today and outlining his next financial address to be delivered to Fred Haney.

Dino stemmed the Sox' fire in the sixth only to ignite one of his own in the eighth. Osinski doused the blaze, however, and the Angels climbed into a tie for sixth—still only three and one-half games out of first despite their early-season batting anemia.

The Angels ran roughshod through four Chicago hurlers to hand Chicago only its third loss in its last 14 games.

STARTER John Buzhardt lasted but one inning as Albie Pearson and Billy Moran laced back-to-back singles and Fregosi followed with a double. An intentional walk to Buck

DODGERS WASTE PITCHING AGAIN

Sandy Learns Hard KO Facts

By GEORGE LEDERER
I. P-T Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Another better-than-average pitching performance went down the Dodger drain Saturday because the offense remained clogged.

Obviously, the Dodgers need more than a plumber to fix this peculiar type of sink.

The plunging world champions fell eight games behind the league-leading Giants, 10 on the losing side, as Bob Hendley overcame seven walks and went the distance for a 3-2 victory.

Sandy Koufax, not nearly as sharp as in his 10-inning, 2-1 conquest of the Cubs last Monday, was the loser. Koufax gave up the three runs in the fifth inning and was the victim of some questionable fielding besides his own.

The Dodger runs came on home runs by Tommy Davis and Frank Howard, who didn't have an opportunity to swing with men on bases. The Dodgers stranded nine, making a total of 28 during their current three-game losing streak.

The Dodgers filled the bases in the first two innings, but Hendley recovered both times and went on to strike out 12. John Roseboro was a four-time victim. Willie Davis, Jim Gilliam and Ken McMullen failed to hit a ball out of the infield.

Hendley (2-2) made 156 pitches, 100 in the first five innings. At least another 100 pitches were made in the Giants' bullpen, but Al Dark refused to panic. He did, however, contribute some weird strategy in the first inning.

With two out, Maury Wills on third and T. Davis on first base, Hendley's first two pitches to Howard were wide. Dark then ordered an intentional walk to Howard, which worked when McMullen grounded into a force play, at third.

Howard didn't renew his attack against Hendley until the eighth inning when he lined his ninth home run into the left field seats. It was Howard's seventh home run in his last 11 times up against the slim lefthander.

T. Davis hit home run No. 2, a line drive over the 410-foot mark in center and into the orchestra, to start the third inning.

The remainder of the five Dodger hits were singles by Maury Wills, who managed to keep the crowd from the exits until the final out. Wills' third hit came with two out in the ninth and his 10th steal followed. Gilliam grounded out to preserve the Giants' fourth successive win over the champions.

Koufax (2-3) didn't allow a hit and had retired 11 in a row until Jim Davenport opened the fifth inning with a ground single past Wills. Del Crandall followed with a line-single to right, setting up a gift first run that also allowed Hendley to bat.

Davenport managed to score after Dick Tracewski gloved Jose Pagan's pop-up, just behind the grass in right-center. Having staggered under the windblown pop, Tracewski was in poor position to throw to the plate. Roseboro also dropped the ball, but Davenport had arrived in time.

W. Davis, running in, had a better chance to make the throw that would have left Koufax in front, 1-0.

With the score tied, Dark allowed Hendley to sacrifice, and Hendley himself was safe when Koufax muffed the bunt. Jesus Alou singled home the go-ahead run and Willie Mays furnished the eventual margin with a ground-rule double that bounced over the center field fence.

Mays' slugging average was reduced from 1,000 to .995 and his batting average from .486 to .481, which shows that the Dodgers did accomplish something.

Mays carries a 16-game hitting streak into this afternoon's finale against Don Drysdale (3-1). Jack Sanford (3-2) will be pitching for the Giants.

Saturday's crowd was a capacity 42,316 bringing the two-games total to 82,863. Another full house is expected today.

Tickets are so scarce that one person had the gall to call the Giants' office and requested two tickets purchased by a party that perished in Thursday's air crash. The request was denied.

Jesus Alou, youngest of the three NL outstanding outfielding brothers, drew his first major league walk in the first inning when Koufax was wild and high. Jesus had been to bat 64 times.

Wills ran his hitting streak to nine games with a bunt single in the first inning.

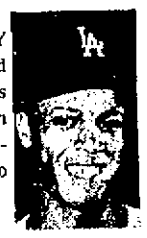

Orlando Cepeda made his first start for the Giants since a leg injury forced him out April 25.

The Giants entered Saturday's game with a .247 team average, but 32 of the points belonged to Mays. Without Willie's effort, the Giants' team average is .215. The Dodgers are batting .232.

T. Davis's home run was the Dodgers' first over-the-fence hit of the week. W. Davis hit an inside-the-park homer against Juan Marichal last Sunday.

Mays, playing Wills shallow as usual, had to backpedal in a hurry to make a one-hand stab of Maury's wind-aided liner in the seventh. Mays fell after making the catch, but held onto the ball.

Chisox Fighting Friction

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Despite their fast break from the American League gate, the Chicago White Sox are fighting friction. The boys in the powder blue travelling uniforms are getting along nicely with Manager Al Lopez, but they're still sore at the front office over contract problems. Aware of the ticklish situation, Lopez was forced to call a meeting recently and advise the athletes not to discuss their dissatisfaction in public. However, one disgruntled player whispered at Chavez Ravine that a teammate was cut $6,000 because he didn't produce last year. The irony: The man was out three months with a broken collar bone!

AL LOPEZ
He's Now a Referee

. . . Guess who's the leading hitter on the Trojan baseball club? Why, none other than ex-Poly star Harvey Crow, who has a sparkling 1.000 average. That is, one-for-one.

. . . Of the other Long Beachers on Rod Dedeaux's club, Bud Hollowell is .330, Willie Brown .259 and Walt Peterson .200. St. Anthony's Walt is far-and-away the leading moundsman with a 12-3 mark and a nifty 1.79 ERA. Of extreme interest to pro scouts is that Peterson has fanned 90 and walked only 28 in 110 innings.

. . . Brown leads the club in stolen bases (9), but the scouts are losing their enthusiasm over Willie as a baseball prospect. (And aren't the Rams turning handsprings over the happy—for them—turn of events?)

. . . Did you get the impact of those strong words by Buzzie Bavasi on his erstwhile ace lefthander Johnny Podres? When questioned on the future of Podres by our George Lederer, the Dodger g.m. barked: "I haven't talked to him since I returned from Vero Beach. As far as I'm concerned, he's through." (That's torrid language from Bavasi, who used to regard Podres almost as a son. In fact, not too long ago Podres simply signed his contract and then let Bavasi fill in the sum.)

. . . Doesn't anyone want to pitch against the Giants' brilliant Juan Marichal? (I can't say I blame them.) First, Podres bowed out of a duel last Sunday with the Latin flinger, then Sandy Koufax asked to be excused Friday night. Sandy's absence was OK'd by medics because of a slightly sore back, however. (The Marichal infection isn't confined to the Dodgers. In respect to Juan's ability, just about every National League manager bypasses his top hurlers when Marichal is scheduled as the opposition.)

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY wants to return to the football scene and, consequently, officials are studying the possibility of enrolling the Lions in the play-for-fun Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. The primarily academic league now boasts six schools; Claremont-Harvey Mudd, Caltech, Redlands, Occidental, Whittier and Pomona. One catch in the Loyola scheme: The SCIAC thinks the Lions are much too strong in basketball, after years in fast WCAC company, for the Harvey-Mudd group. (Thus, the Lions are caught on a treadmill, i.e., drop the caliber of its basketball in order to play football. Everyone seems to have headaches these days.)

. . . Even though he has a tremendous offer (which includes off-season executive employment) from the Phillips Oilers, UCLA's Walt Hazzard is bent at this time on joining the Lakers. The decision is a matter of pride with the nation's No. 1 basketball collegian. "I didn't like those stories I read that the Lakers and other pro teams thought I was too small and a poor defensive player to make it in the NBA," commented Hazzard a few days ago. "Now, I want to show them all." Another factor in Hazzard's present thinking: He likes the way Jerry West performs and believes he can team perfectly with the Laker guard. So do I.

. . . Even though it's spring, fall football echoes and both the USC and UCLA campuses sound the same warning: Beware of Washington. Football people at both schools are afraid that the Huskies just might have their best squad in 10 years . . . and that's quite an achievement.

THE TROJANS might prove to be the real "sleeper" this fall, even though Mike Giers is only one of two returning lettermen among last season's first six guards. Troy also loses its three best linebackers, but the Figueroa St. school's strong jaycee crop is making even John McKay smile. Loss of Willie Brown has been taken in stride because McKay has a soph named Ray Cahill who'll come close to filling Willie's brogans.

. . . The Trojans were thinking ahead a few years ago when they lined up future schedules. Even though the slates are completed through 1971, the Trojans (who must have known something) included ALL the current AAWU schools on their '67 grid schedule. Yep, including newcomers Oregon and Oregon State, too.

. . . Houston Colt general manager Paul Richards is nobody's fool. Texas writers accompanying the Colts to Dodger Stadium last week declared emphatically that the strict disciplinarian intends to return to the field again as dugout boss. The date, however, is not certain because Richards won't assign himself to field duties until the Colts can come up with a respectable team. Mr. Richards has been around a little.

49ers Stage Comeback to Snare Crown

'Kissler Made Key Play'—Wuesthoff

Lowell's single chased Gonsalves across with the tying run. Kessler went in to run for Lowell. Doug Meyer then forced Kissler at second, but the 49er reserve shortstop ploughed into Williams and forced him to throw wildly to first allowing Ramirez to charge home with the winning tally.

Minutes later Perry was mobbed by his teammates when he fanned Bill Himes for the game's final out.

Although one 49er player was ready to uncork his bottle of champagne immediately, he was persuaded to wait until after the nightcap. This turned out to be tasty one, too.

Long Beach wracked starter Buz Stephen for four runs in the third inning en route to its 11th conference victory of the year against only four setbacks. Fresno, which entered the three-game series tied with the 49ers with an 8-4 record, finished 8-7.

Poly's Earl McCullough breezes to national record—tying 18.3 in low hurdles

Poly's McCullough Ties Nat'l Hurdle Mark With 18.3 but...

By DOUG IVES

Jet-propelled Earl McCullough of Poly High equalled the national record of 18.3 in the low hurdles at the Moore League track finals Saturday, but his mark never will go up for recognition.

Not two hours after the smooth-striding Rabbit raced to this record-tying effort on a fast Wilson track did the news come that his chief nemesis, Steve Caminiti, was even more sensational.

The high-stepping strutter from little-known Crespi High in Encino clocked a sizzling 18.1 in the Camino Real League finals, and he did it with only a 2.9-mph wind—safely under the allowable 4.4.

The McCullough-Caminiti duel has been long awaited, even moreso now, but they won't meet until the night of May 29 in the CIF finals. Neither are headed for the same quarter or semifinal meet.

There was one major upset, one big heartbreak and five varsity records broken in the Moore League finals, which were contested on a beautifully sunny and wind-free day.

McCullough not only knocked down the low hurdle standard, he also ran the highs in 14 flat, bettering his own mark of 14.4, and anchored his 880 relay team to a record-smashing 1:28.3 clocking.

Onother Rabbit, erractic Al Nichols, turned in the most surprising performance by handily beating Millikan's Ralph Spicer in the 880 with a 1:54.7 effort—four seconds better than his previous '64 best.

As expected, Poly dominated the varsity division, qualifying 16, but among the missing was CIF long jump champion Marv Motley, whose badly bruised heel was too much to overcome.

Motley got off a 22-6¾ jump on his first try, but couldn't better that and had to scratch on his last three leaps. Teammate Manuel Murrell was an impressive winner at 23-8.

Poly's Larry Freeman high jumped 6-2½ and Wilson's Bob Deeds ran 22.3 around the curve in the 220 for the other records.

Millikan's dandy miler, Charles Webb, got a push from Poly's Tom Halpin (4:26.4) but couldn't crack the mile standard. The willowly Ram senior ran 4:24.2.

Deeds joined McCullough as a double winner, taking the 100 in 9.9; Poly's Ron Sommer won the 440 in 49.8; Wilson's Larry Laufenberg vaulted 13 feet and Poly soph John Hubbell won the shotput.

A sophomore, Hubbell had a spectacular day for a lad of his age. He heaved the 12-pound ball over 55 feet five times and wound up with a winning toss of 56-7¼—a season best.

In the lightweights, Millikan's Cee Greg Ward stunned the crowd with super-duper clockings of 9.8 and 17.4 in the sprints to easily shatter league records.

For the little soph motor scooter, the 100 time equalled the CIF record and the 180 mark was just off the 17.3 standard. His century clocking was better than the varsity time.

Poly sprinter Percy Johnson tied the Bee 100 record (10.) and broke the mark for a 220 around a curve (22.5), while Wilson's Skip McDowell and Millikan's Don Blair vaulted a record 12-6. McDowell was a winner on fewer misses.

Another Millikan runner, Jim Busher, broke the Cee 1320 record in (3:15.4), helping the Rams dominate the lower division. The Millikan 440 relay team also tied a record, running 45.1.

PERRY'S SHINING HOUR

Pitcher Ed Perry (center) is mobbed by teammates after beating Fresno State in first game of doubleheader, 5-4, at Blair Field Saturday. Victory earned Long Beach State its first CAAA baseball title.

Fresno St. Sprinter Clocks 9.2

FRESNO (UPI) — Dallas Long, 250-pound weight man for Los Angeles, got off three of the greatest heaves in the history of shotputting Saturday night — one of them a world's record toss of 66 feet, 7½ inches — in the West Coast Relays.

Long, who already holds the listed world mark of 65 feet, 10¼ inches, and a pending record of 65 feet, 11¼ inches, retired after three putts.

His tosses were 65 feet, 3 inches on his first effort, the world record on his second; and 64 feet, 11 inches on the third.

It was the highlight of a record-smashing night in the 38th annual relays which also saw Darel Newman, a baldheaded, 20-year-old lad from Fresno State run one heat in the 100-yard dash in 9.2 then come back to capture the finals in 9.3.

* * * *

FRESNO State, coached by the immortal Dutch Warmerdam of pole vault fame, finished one-two-three in the 100-yard dash with Sam Workman clocked in 9.4 and Marv Bryant in 9.5.

Charles Craig, a Fresno State athlete, broke the NCAA mark in the triple jump with a leap of 52 feet, 4 inches.

Southern California's 18-year team victory streak ended as San Jose won with 34 points to Stanford's 33. But the Trojans did not enter any relays because of injuries.

* * * *

LONG BEACH State's John Rambo won the college-open division high jump at 6-10 while the mile relay team clocked 3:12.0 to win its section and was second to Cal (3:08.9) in the overall placing.

Long Beach City College's Jeff Smtih won the shotput with a school record toss of 57-8½. The two-mile relay team was timed in 7:38.3 in third spot behind Santa Ana's National JC record-breaking 7:32.7.

SAN DIEGO WINS TITLE

LBCC Sweeps Cerritos

By GARY RAUSCH

Metropolitan Conference baseball champions they are not, but the Vikings of Long Beach City College will always be a group of spoilers in the eyes of Cerritos.

Dennis Busch, the forgotten man on the Viking pitching staff, came on in relief twice Saturday to preserve 4-2 and 5-3 victories for Jim Parks and Mike Linck and give San Diego the title.

In both games LBCC beat the Falcons to the punch with first-inning explosions. Singles by Rick Hayes and Barney Scholl, successive steals of second, Hayes' theft of home and a throwing error allowing Scholl to score got the Vikes started in the opener.

Angels' Bats Come Alive, Chisox Fall

Belinsky, Chance Pitch Victory, 7-4

Rodgers filled the bases for Satriano's sacrifice fly. Kirkpatrick rifled a single to center, giving the Angels' a 3-1 first frame advantage.

Bobby Knoop's single and a poor fielding play by third-sacker Don Buford provided the Angels with their fourth run off Frank Kreutzer in the fourth while a double by Kirkpatrick, which bad-bounced over first baseman Joe Cunningham's head, scored a fifth run in the fifth.

Satriano found that same rock in the seventh, lacing a run-scoring single past Cunningham and Kirkpatrick followed with a triple down the rightfield line, providing another important insurance run.

Chance relieved Belinsky after a walk and singles by Dave Nicholson and Cunningham reduced the Angels' edge to 5-2 in the sixth. Chance then appeared to aide his fellow midnight marauder, but first dispatched a run-scoring single to Al Weis.

ANGEL OF DAY

ED KIRKPATRICK singled, doubled, tripled, walked and drove in 3 runs in Angels 7-4 win over the White Sox.

THAT WAS the last activity off Chance until the eighth when a walk and singles by J. C. Martin and Gene Stephens ended Dino's shutout innings in relief string at 14.2.

Osinski then returned the smile to Rigney's face and Belinsky to the win column. Chance will now have the day free to filibuster Haney for more money. One must assume he found some way to afford a present for his mother out of his $18,000 salary.

ANGEL - ANGELS: Chicago pitcher Gary Peters became the first man to hit a baseball completely out of Dodger Stadium Saturday night . . . prior to the game, Peters used a fungo and orbited a baseball over the roof of the general admission section five levels above the field. . . . Coach Don Gutteridge put a quick halt to the frivolity. Peters (3-1) and Bob Lee (1-0) will be the pitchers this afternoon . . . All mothers will receive an orchid . . . Pinky Woods and the Hyatt House on Century Blvd. will host Angels, wives, mothers and press at a party following the game.

The Angels have completed the conditional purchase of Bob Lee by dispatching a check for $25,000 to Pittsburgh. . . . Fregosi reaped two pre-game honors. . . . He was selected Auril's athlete of the month by Snyder and Son Clothiers and Alpha Beta markets.

Pete Ward, who led the White Sox in five batting departments last season and is termed by manager Al Lopez "my best hitter," may return to the starting lineup this afternoon. . . . Ward has been sidelined by a damaged sacroilliac which the White Sox first feared might require an operation.

Look for the Angel cut to be made Tuesday with Art Fowler and Paul Foytack, as first reported by the I. P-T early last week, definitely feeling the ax. . . . Completing the "in jeopardy" list are Jack Spring, Hank Foiles and Felix Torres. . . . The I. P-T has learned the Angels offered Don Lee to virtually every club in the league without success.

Yanks 'Ready to Roll'

CLEVELAND (AP)—Note to other American League baseball clubs: Manager Yogi Berra thinks his New York Yankees, victorious in five of their last six games, may now be ready to roll.

"Maybe we started the last few days," the squat catcher-turned-manager said after the Yanks trounced Cleveland 10-3 Friday night and 6-2 Saturday and toppled the Indians from first place. "I hope so."

Yogi had several things to be happy about.

Four home runs, including two in the first inning by Tony Kubek and Mickey Mantle, powered the Yankees Saturday.

Joe Pepitone led off the fifth inning with a home run, and Hector Lopez connected following Bobby Richardson's single in the sixth.

The American League champs had hit only nine homers in 17 previous games. All four Saturday were off Pedro Ramos.

It was the fourth homer this year for Mantle and his second in as many days against Cleveland pitching.

Yankee southpaw Whitey Ford got credit for the victory, scattering seven singles and a double over six innings.

"I can't complain," Berra replied when asked if he was satisfied with the Yanks performance so far. "If it hadn't been for all the rainouts, we'd be in much better shape."

The Yanks haven't played all the teams yet, Berra said, so he can't tell which teams will battle it out for the pennant. He added:

"Those Senators are going to fool some people."

Phils Reach Purkey to Beat Reds, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies rallied for three runs with two out in the seventh on Johnny Callison's double and singles by rookie Richie Allen and Tony Gonzalez for a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies had managed to score single runs only on a passed ball and a wild pitch before loser Bob Purkey faltered in the seventh.

Gordy Coleman scored two Reds with a triple against the right field fence in the third.

SEATS LEFT FOR DODGER 'L.B. NIGHT'

Some 500 seats for the general public remain on sale at the Chamber of Commerce (121 Linden Ave.) for "Long Beach Night" at Dodger Stadium Friday.

The special bus transportation-game ticket package is $4 per person.

The Dodgers return home to play the Pittsburgh Pirates on "Long Beach Night". Pre-game ceremonies will honor two Long Beach players, Bob Bailey and Tom Sisk, now with the Pirates.

BUC COMEBACK

Law Handcuffs Milwaukee, 10-0

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Vernon Law, backed by lusty hitting, pitched a nifty five-hitter against Milwaukee Saturday for his first victory of the season as Pittsburgh downed the Braves, 10-0.

Law, who is attempting a comeback this season after being voluntarily retired part of last year, allowed only a double to Lee Maye and four singles.

The big right-hander, who has lost twice, collected two singles himself.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Whoops! Another Whooping Crane!

Another whooping crane has been born in Louisiana, and while this doesn't come under fishing or hunting topics, certainly the way this whooper came out of the egg deserves a story.

The Department of Interior's Wildlife Research substation at Lafayette, La., started the ambitious project last month with a pair of Japanese Silkie Bantam hens.

George Douglass, superintendent of the Audubon Park Zoo at New Orleans, took two eggs laid by Josephine (Crip is her mate) to the substation where specially prepared nests had been made ready for the Batams.

The Bantams, incidentally, were named Patience and Petulance. It was quite a chore for the tiny hens. A Bantam weighs about one pound. A whooping crane egg weighs half a pound, is four inches long and 2½ inches in diameter.

But anybody has been around chickens knows very well that a Bantam will tackle anything, and the hens will try to mother anything. I remember back to my own boyhood when I placed several china eggs in one nest. The Bantam tried to hatch those eggs for weeks until my mother found out about it. I got a good scolding and the eggs were taken from the Bantam.

PATIENCE AND PETULANCE went about their task just as though those large eggs were their own. They were selected for the task because of their light weight. The Fish and Wildlife Service thought that it could achieve better temperature and humidity control by using natural hatching.

Officials had seven backup Bantams just in case Patience and Petulance decided to quit the job.

The eggs hatched about a week ago. One of the whooper babies didn't survive, but the other did. At first, it was believed that the live baby had a defective leg and that they might have to operate. However, the defect straightened out and that makes 40 whooping cranes in existence.

There are 32 wild whooping cranes that winter at the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas. They have begun their migration to the breeding grounds in Canada.

Seven whoopers are in the New Orleans Zoo. Superintendent Douglass started with Josephine and Crip and this new baby makes their fifth offspring. Another whooper, Rosie, recently was transferred from San Antonio, Texas, Zoo to New Orleans where Douglass hopes she will mate with one of the male birds.

The Bantam that hatched the whooper in days to come may be pardoned for a bit of motherly pride. A whooper reaches a height of five feet and weighs about 15 pounds.

JACK MAGOFIN, SHERWOOD LAKE operator reports a pickup in fishing for crappie and bluegill, with anglers taking many limits. They also are catching many bass, but some are too small to keep. However, an eight-year-old boy, Ricky Parks, Reseda, caught a 4-pound, 12-ounce bass, and Bob Grill, Santa Monica, got one weighing 7-4.

Bass fishing is picking up at Irvine Lake with some 3- and 4-pounders being taken on surface plugs. Anglers also continue to catch crappie—big ones up to 2½ pounds. Trout plants continue twice weekly, Monday and Friday.

Railroad Canyon reports 2- and 3-pound bass rising to surface lures. Good reports also come from Henshaw and Wohlford Lakes (San Diego County).

Barbara O'Donnell writes from Kernville that Sierra Way running along the Kern River north of the city looked like the Harbor Freeway on opening weekend, but there were some splendid catches made. And not all the fish were planted trout. There were numbers of lunkers up to 5 and 6 pounds.

Big trout and bass were active in Isabella Lake, into which the Kern flows and the great numbers of crappie continued to come in from the boats. The taking of a hundreds of crappie by a single angler caused me to write Walter Shannon, director of the DG. There is no crappie limit at Isabella.

SHANNON, IN HIS REPLY, said that there is yet no indication that the lake is being overharvested. He said that the department is making a survey and that, if at any time, wardens feel that too many fish are being taken, the department will recommend appropriate restrictions.

In explaining the Isabella situation, Shannon said:

"In many bodies of water a large part of the warm-water fish crop remains unharvested, and the fish population becomes stunted. Such a lake contains small, old fish that provide little sport for the anglers. The remedy is to remove the bag limits.

"Isabella Lake is a very productive body of water capable of withstanding an enormous fish harvest. If those fish were not harvested, the problems associated with overpopulation soon would arise and the fishery would decline.

"It is unfortunate that not all fishermen are sportsmen. Your column is of prime importance in discouraging the wanton waste which accompanies the excessive catches you have cited in your letter."

In my letter to Shannon, and in a previously written column, I had pointed out that there were anglers who bragged of catching 300 to 400 fish a day—and keeping them. One man even said he took 800 fish in two days. What in the name of heaven would a man do with 800 crappie?

Let's hope that the DFG does keep a close watch on Isabella.

More Celebs Join Golf Field Here

Lawrence Welk, one of the most devoted golfers in show business, has joined the field for the sixth World Entertainment Golf Championship at Recreation Park, Saturday and Sunday, May 23-24.

Also filing entries Saturday were singer Curt Massey and actors Dennis Morgan and Johnny (Tarzan) Weismuller.

WELK

Among those already entered are Vic Damone, Jim Backus, Jack Kelly, Mickey Rooney, Phil Crosby, Pat Harrington Jr., Gary Morton, Jim Davis, Jack Ging and defending champion Bob Wilke.

Special pre-tournament tickets, priced at $3 for both days now are on sale at the Recreation Park Golf Shop and at 205 E. Broadway, room 204. Net proceeds from the tournament go to the Children's Orthopedic Hospital.

Casper Tied With Jacobs at Ft. Worth

Player Slips to 4 Strokes Behind

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Young Tommy Jacobs and Bill Casper took rare liberties with the treacherous Colonial course Saturday and shared the 54-hole lead in the national Invitation golf tournament.

Jacobs could have seized the lead outright, but he bogeyed the final hole when a putt slid to the cup and refused to drop.

CASPER

The 29-year-old California sharpshooter circled the par 70 layout in rounds of 69 and 71 for a total of 209.

Casper, admitting that his putter performed miracles, shot a 67 and a 70.

The 36-hole scramble was ordered Saturday after a thunder-storm washed out Friday's round.

* * * *

Gary Player, the South African who held the lead after 18 holes, lost his touch in the afternoon and stumbled to a 74. It left him trailing by four strokes at 213.

Casper was jubilant about his putting. He needed only 56 putts for the two rounds, part of which was due to a 50-yard chip-in on the third hole.

"I can't play this game at all," Casper grinned. "All I can do it putt."

Near the leaders were Art Wall Jr. and George Knudson at 214. One stroke back were Mason Rudolph, Kel Nagle, Billy Maxwell, Gay Brewer and Arnold Palmer.

Palmer broke par for the first time Saturday afternoon, carding a 69 after earlier rounds of 75 and 71.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 72 and a 71 Saturday and was 10 shots out of the lead.

Leaders at the end of three rounds:

GOLF'S NOT HIS GAME

Cliff Livingston of Rams gets in last-minute practice with Kay Adams prior to teeing off in first Rams golf tournament at Heartwell Park Saturday. But linebacker found it's easier knocking down enemy ball carriers than sinking a 6-foot putt.

RAM DEFENSE AHEAD OF OFFENSE—IN GOLF

Two defensive halfbacks took top honors in the first Ram football team golf tournament at Heartwell Park Saturday.

Capt. Ed Meador shot a 63 to win low gross and Lindon Crow teamed with his wife, Maureen, to win the husband-wife title at 142. Lindon shot 67, Maureen 75.

Public relations director Jack Teele and I, P-T Ram writer Jerry Wynn tied Meador at 63 but were ineligible for awards. The tourney was co-sponsored by Heartwell Park and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Indy Near Miss for Rodriguez

Compiled from Wire Reports

Pedro Rodriguez, 24, Mexico City, was injured Saturday when his rear-engine car crashed into a wall on the southwest turn at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as he practiced for the Memorial Day 500-mile race.

Rodriguez was taken to the field hospital for treatment of minor contusions on the chest and burns to his mouth and elbow.

The car spun halfway around and hit the wall backwards as Rodriguez sped around the oval at about 145 miles per hour. The impact tore off the left rear wheel.

The car slid more than 600 feet before it stopped and burst into flames. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze but the car was damaged extensively.

Earlier in the day, Paul Russo, veteran driver at the track, spun in the northeast turn when his car went out of control. It skidded into the infield, barely missing a wall, and was not damaged. Russo was not injured.

Strong, gusty winds interfered with practice activity.

FRED LORENZEN fought a bumper-to-bumper duel with Richard Petty for nearly 200 miles Saturday before coasting his silver Ford to victory in the Rebel 300 stock car race, his sixth consecutive major victory, at Darlington, S.C.

Lorenzen turned the 300 miles over Darlington's rough-surfaced mile and three-eighths oval in a record average of 130.013 mph.

TICKETS FOR INDY '500' TV ON SALE

Tickets for the telecast of the Indianapolis 500-mile race into the Long Beach Arena are being sold at several locations in the area for $4, $5, $6 and $7.

The race is scheduled for 9 a.m. (PDT) Memorial Day with the telecast starting at 8:30.

Tickets may be purchased at the West Coast, Imperial, Belmont and Crest theaters, at the Arena box office and at Wallichs Music City in Lakewood and Torrance.

Penhall Enters Regatta

National champion Leroy Penhall of Anaheim tops the popular Crackerbox class in the 16th Belmont Shore Lions Club Memorial Day all-inboard speedboat regatta at Marine Stadium.

Penhall, vice-commodore of the Southern California Speedboat Club, will defend the crown he won last Memorial Day. He will drive his Chevrolet-powered "Hot Cinders" which he won with at last week's Parker, Ariz., regatta.

The Crackerboxes are the only class on the nine-event card that use a riding mechanic. The Crackers, with pump gasoline, will face the E Racing Runabouts, which use either gas or fuel, in a special grudge match.

JOE POTY of Whittier, piloting "Dady's Baby," won last year's grudge race. He repeated last week when his big Runabout streaked across the finish line a couple of lengths ahead of Leroy, who went too high into the final turn.

Other entries in the Crackerbox class include: Bill Vlacich (Hot Mama), Roger Stull (Rinky-Dink), Dean Murry (Berzerk), Rocky Stone (Hot Dam), Ted Brown (Suddenly) and Don West (Big Deal).

Decision for Ramos... Title to Robertson

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI)—The Ghana Boxing Authority nullified a judges' verdict in favor of world champion Sugar Ramos Saturday night and was expected to declare Ghana's Floyd Robertson the new featherweight king.

The boxing authority called the fight "no contest" after Ramos, a Cuban now living in Mexico, gained a split decision in the 15-round bout when judges Ed Lassman of Miami Beach, Fla., and Ramon Valezquez of Mexico ruled in his favor.

Referee Jack Hart of London scored the fight for the 27-year-old Robertson, British Empire champion.

The Ghana Boxing Authority claimed the majority verdict "unfair" and the announcement was cheered by the crowd of 40,000 who jammed the Accra Stadium.

The boxing authority, co-promoters of the fight with Britain's Jack Solomons, was expected to meet through the night to reverse the decision and name Robertson the champion.

* * * *

HART, a London bookmaker who has awarded some controversial decisions in Britain, said after the fight: "The judges are mad. I feel sorry for Robertson, who fought like a real world champion."

Solomons agreed, saying: "Robertson won all right, and won well." Nigeria's Joe Rafiu King, who lost a decision to Ramos in a title bout, said, "Floyd won all right."

Ghana sports director Obene Djan called the verdict "wicked," but former world middleweight champion Dick Tiger went along with the judges saying: "The verdict was good. Robertson did not do sufficient attacking."

Robertson was strangely calm. He said: "What can I say? Everyone says I won, and that's enough for me."

Ramos refused to speak to sports writers.

Billie Jean Plays for Title Today

By BOB MARTIN

Defending champion Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach moved into the finals of the 78th Southern California Sectional Tennis Championships with a 6-2, 6-4 victory Saturday over 17-year-old Kathy Harter of Seal Beach.

Miss Moffitt will face Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica for the women's singles championship at 2:30 today at the Los Angeles Tennis Club. Billie Jean, 20-year-old Los Angeles State College coed, is ranked No. 2 in the nation among women players and Miss Caldwell is No. 4.

Mimi Arnold, who won an unusually long three-set match late Friday against Kathy Blake, had little left Saturday and bowed to Miss Caldwell, 6-1, 6-0, in the other women's semifinal. Mimi beat Carole in the recent Ojai women's final.

DAVIS CUP star Dennis Ralston of USC and Arthur Ashe of UCLA will clash for the men's singles title at 1 in today's first center court match.

Ralston, seeded first, had to go five sets to beat Allen Fox Saturday, 9-7, 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3. Ashe, seeded second, defeated Bruin teammate Dave Sanderlin, 10-8, 6-1, 6-2.

Today's action will begin at 11 with finals in men's 21 and under, junior veterans and senior singles slated at that time. The women's 21 and under finals will be at noon.

Other results Saturday included:

Women's doubles semi-finals—McGriff-Behmar def. Yeomans-Prentiss, 7-5, 6-3; Harter-Blake def. Caldwell-Arnold, 7-5, 6-4, 7-5.

Men's 21 and under semi-finals—Stan Smith def. Bob Lutz, 6-1, 6-2; Jim Hobson def. Dave Ranney, 6-3, 7-5, 6-0.

Richey 'Rooked' in Italian Net Loss to Osuna

ROME (AP)—Schoolboy Cliff Richey of Dallas won the first two sets and led 4-1 in the third before dropping a controversial five-set match to Mexico's top-seeded Rafael Osuna Saturday in the Rome international tennis tournament.

"They rooked me out of the match," the fiery, 17-year-old American junior champion said after bowing in the fourth round 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3. He protested an umpire's call in the eighth game of the final set.

The only other remaining American in the singles competition, Roger Werksman of Los Angeles, also was eliminated. He lost to Jan Erik Lundquist of Sweden.

Fred Stolle of Australia and Sergio Tacchini of Italy joined Osuna and Lundquist in the quarter-finals.

McKAY LIKES NEW SUB RULE

Sherman, Ex-Uclan, Shines for USC

By JEROME HALL

The new college football substitution rule got its first workout Saturday and USC coach John McKay, who suffered the tortures of the damned with last year's rule, likes it.

It is nearly the same as the one that paved the way for the Trojans' national championship season of two years ago.

And the assortment of grid talent that McKay put on display Saturday in a formal intra-squad scrimmage that closed out four weeks of spring practice was mindful of that undefeated bunch of two years ago, too.

The name of Rod Sherman emerged from the two-hour joust that saw the Reds beat the Whites 30-22 in a game that came an inch from ending in a 30-30 tie — one of football's rarities.

Sherman, the lad who walked out of UCLA where he was star frosh QB in '62 ("I like the kind of offense at USC better") passed for one touchdown and ran for another in accounting for 50 per cent of the winning team's scores.

While his passing wasn't sharp, Sherman lived up to his reputation as an exceptional runner. He carried eight times for 50 yards. He completed three of six including a PAT 2-pointer in addition to his 12-yard touchdown toss to end John Thomas.

Sherman also showed off his defensive ability several times. He "saved his own game," as they say around the baseball field, by batting a pass out of Dave Moton's hands in the end zone on the game's final play. A TD and 2-point conversion would have tied the game.

Craig Fertig, last year's understudy to graduated QB Pete Beathard, was injured late in the first quarter and will wear a full-leg cast for the next three weeks. He has a pulled knee ligament.

The same injury was suffered by sophomore halfback Ray Cahill, the replacement for Willie Brown. Cahill, who runs, walks and looks for all the world like a double for Willie (and the Trojan coaches say he's just as good a pass receiver) will wear the famed USC No. 26.

Cahill turned in some outstanding plays.

McKay used the scrimmage as a final trial for his new offense plan. He's going to turn upside down his 1962 pattern. Instead of his first-stringers playing both offense and defense with two specialist platoons behind them, the '64 Trojans will have a first-string offensive platoon, a first-string defensive platoon and a two-way team made up of the best that's left over.

THE SCRIMMAGE performances, before a crowd of about 3,000 at Troy's Cromwell Field, were "just about what I expected," said McKay.

"I enjoyed the game," he said from his spectator seat where he watched his assistants run the show. "I think we're going to have a pretty good football team."

Halfback Mike Garrett, the AAWU's ball-carrying champion last season as a sophomore, did not play because of a sore shoulder. Neither did a couple of other key men — middle lineman Jeff Smith and fullback Homer Williams—both still at Long Beach City College.

Bruins Improved on Ground

The UCLA Bruins, testing what they hope will be a strong ground threat to go with proven aerial combinations, scored a victory over an all-star alumni team Saturday in the finale of spring football practice.

Coach Bill Barnes unleashed a pair of scatbacks—neither weighing more than 165 pounds—and a rejuvenated veteran in defeating the old grads, 20-8, before a Spaulding Field crowd of more than 3,000.

Mike Haffner, the AAWU ground-gaining champion in 1961 but bothered by injuries in recent seasons, turned in an impressive showing both running with the ball and catching it.

HE HAD four carries for 40 yards and made three receptions. "I'm very encouraged by his showing," said Barnes. "And I think those two little fellows did a great job."

The little fellows are left halfbacks, Steve Durbin and Ray Armstrong. "They look like they'll give us the breakaway threat we've been looking for," said Barnes. Durbin carried 20 times for 90 yards.

Steve Sindell, handling most of the quarterback duties in the absence of Larry Zeno (playing baseball), completed 8 of 15 passes for 97 yards and 1 touchdown. Fullback Paul Horgan scored two touchdowns on short power bursts.

L.B. Musial Entry Debuts Against USC

Long Beach's entry in the new Stan Musial League, Salta Pontiac, makes its debut Tuesday when it plays Long Beach State and USC in a doubleheader at Blair Field. The 49er contest starts at 4:30 and the Trojan game gets under way at 8.

Coach Joe Hicks has lined up some of the area's top college talent, including Terry Richards, Jim Parks, Mike Linck and Dennis Busch.

PROBATION FOR GRID CHAMPS

Conference Slaps Texas, SMU

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Texas, the nation's collegiate football king, and Southern Methodist were placed on probation Saturday by the Southwest Conference for violations of recruiting rules.

In the case of Texas, there was little pain since the school won't have to forego post-season play, but for Southern Methodist, it was a deep and bitter blow.

Southern Methodist was put on probation for two years and can not participate in bowl games. It can, however, compete for the Southwest Conference championship.

Texas and Southern Methodist were two of four schools penalized for recruiting violations as the conference ended one of its stormiest meetings in history. A record number of complaints had been filed by the schools against each other.

Baylor and Texas Tech were reprimanded for exceeding the limit of two visits to prospective athletes, but there was no curtailment of either's athletic activities.

This also may not be the end of the conference's troubles. The NCAA may step in and impose stiffer penalties.

Southern Methodist was penalized for violating the rule prohibiting excessive financial inducements to athletes, financial aid to athletes already in school and the offer of financial aid to prospective athletes beyond what is permitted.

The charge against Southern Methodist reportedly involved the offer of an automobile by an alumnus to an athlete.

Coach-athletic director Darrell Royal of Texas said the charges against his school, which consisted of an alumnus not accompanying a prospective athlete to the campus and excessive entertainment, were inadvertent.

Ongais Retains Top Gas Dragster Rating

Danny Ongais of Carlsbad retained his No. 1 United States gas dragster title with two wins over Pete Robinson of Atlanta, Ga., before 4,200 spectators at Lions Drag Strip Saturday night.

A national super-charged gas roadster record of 9.77 seconds made at Bakersfield last week was backed up by Bones Barlow in the Mazmanian entry in a Lion's strip record of 9.84 seconds.

Best elapsed time fuel—Shubert-Herbert, 8.07 seconds. Top speed, fuel — Paul Sutherland, Long Beach, 191 mph.
Top fuel elimination — Shubert-Herbert 8.20 seconds, 187 mph.

Rams, Cowboys Set for Aug. 8 Opener

The Rams will entertain the Dallas Cowboys Saturday night, Aug. 8, to open their 1964 pre-season schedule.

The annual charity clash, first of two 1964 meetings between the Rams and Cowboys, will be the first pro game to be played in the "new" Coliseum and the initial appearance by star NFL ends Tommy McDonald and Buddy Dial as Dallas players.

The Rams' 1964 pre-season schedule:

August 8—Dallas Cowboys at Coliseum; August 15—Cleveland Browns at Coliseum; August 22—Dallas Cowboys at Portland; August 29—Minnesota Vikings at Coliseum; Sept. 5—San Francisco 49ers at Coliseum.

Back-to-back doubles by Bob Bomar and Eddie Waymire in the eighth inning gave the Long Beach Nitehawks a 1-0 win over the Downey Impalas in a Western Softball Congress game Saturday night at Imperial Park.

The victory was the first in three starts for the Hawks.

Joe Lynch, who has gone to the hill three times seeking his first win as a Hawk, pitched brilliantly, scattering four hits and fanning 13.

Roger Hull, Bomar and Waymire accounted for the five hits garnered by the Hawks off loser Don Sarno.

Lancers Top Los Alamitos for Third Win

By FRANK WHITNEY

George Pearson and Art Bungee combined pitching talents to rout Los Alamitos, 6-0, in a Western Softball Congress game Saturday night at Byous Field.

Pearson's third win matched that of his team's and it left the Lancers in second place, one-half game behind Gardena.

Ben Souders' triple and a fly out in the first inning, and Pearson's homer in the second made it a 2-0 game before Lakewood wrapped it up with a four-run third frame, highlighted by Dale Leach's two-run single.

Goetta Finishes Dead Last

gered $867,068. Neither the attendance nor the betting were records, but the bulge in both cases continued to push the track toward all-time betting and crowd records.

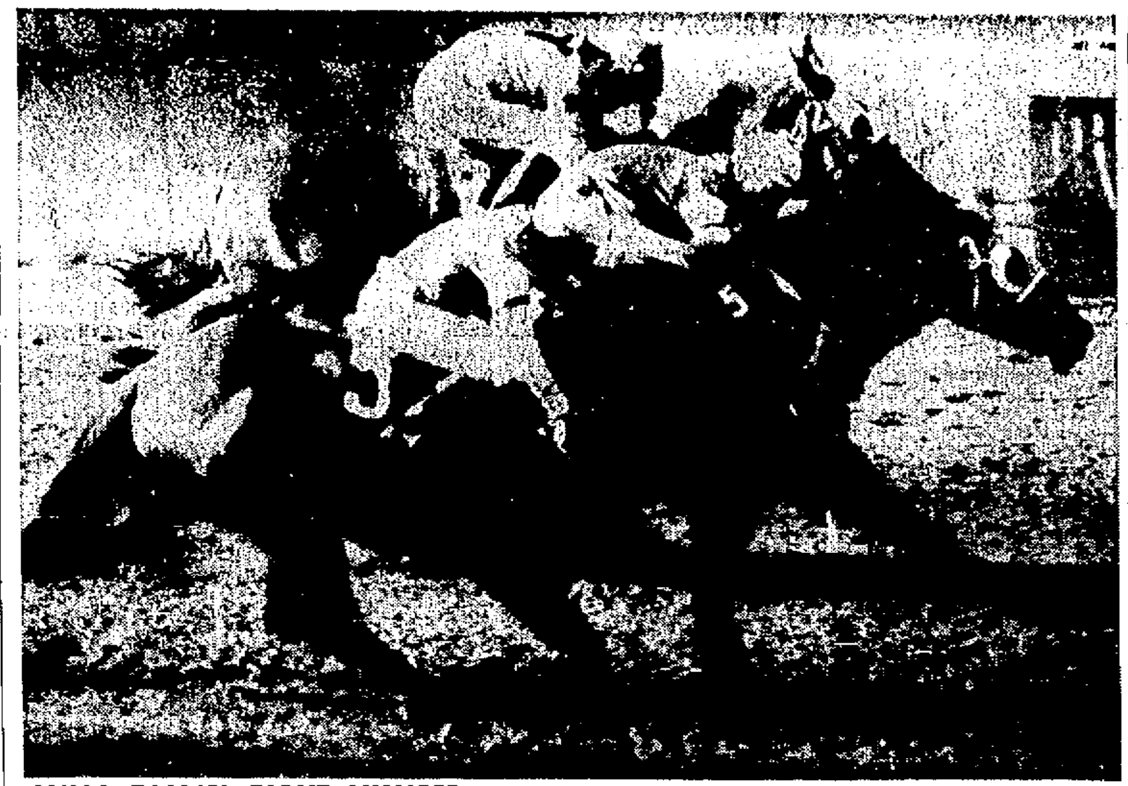

Longshot bettors had more emotional problems when Jim Sweazea popped home first for a $52 payoff in the first race and combined with Myrt's Request ($6.60) for a bountiful $279.20 return, one of many daily doubles in the higher brackets during the meeting.

In the second race Smith equalled his own all-time win mark as he was aboard Myrt's Request. It was Smith's 39th win of the meeting. Then he came right back in the fifth to set a new record while booting Trouble Bars home.

THE LOS Alamitos racing will conclude on Tuesday with the running of "The Juvenile Championship" which pits 10 top 2-year-olds in the $10,000 gross purse. There also will be racing on Monday.

Several members of the Rams football team were in the winner's circle Saturday to congratulate the winner of the supporting feature won by Dariman at a payoff of $10.60. Pokey Chargette, who has been chasing Goetta earlier, finished out of the money, after getting off to a bad start.

ANNA DIAL(S) RIGHT NUMBER
Anna Dial, with Robert Adair aboard, holds off Tidy's Pleasure (outside) and Scooper Chick (on rail) to capture $25,000 Los Alamitos Championship Saturday. Goetta, the 4-5 favorite, finished last in field of seven. Anna Dial ran 21.9 to equal fastest clocking of meeting.

Derby's First Five Set for Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — The first five finishers in the Kentucky Derby will go another round at Pimlico next Saturday in a Preakness filled with exciting ingredients matching any of the past 87 races.

Jockey personalities are playing a heavy role in what is billed in many minds as a rematch between Northern Dancer, the compact Canadian colt, and Hill Rise, the California challenger, for 3-year-old honors of 1964.

After they wound up a neck apart at the end of 1¼ miles last Saturday in Louisville, there was widespread feeling that riders made the difference. Bill Hartack had done a flawless job on Northern Dancer, was the consensus. That Willie Shoemaker had done less for Hill Rise also was heard.

Trainer Mesh Tenney has listed Henry Moreno as tentative rider for Rex Ellsworth's The Scoundrel, who was third in the Derby under Manuel Ycaza.

Northern Dancer faces tremendous odds in tacking the Preakness on to the Derby and keeping alive the Triple Crown hopes for owner E. P. Taylor.

In the 15 chances since 1948 when Citation was the eighth and last to score the triple only two 3-year-olds have won the first two before tripping up in the Belmont.

RACING ROUNDUP

Mr. Brick Has Easy Victory in Withers

Mr. Brick, who faded to sixth after setting the early pace in the Kentucky Derby, found the one mile of the $61,700 Withers more to his liking Saturday and posted an easy victory over 12 other 3-year-olds at Aqueduct.

As the favorite to earn the winner's purse of $40,105, Mr. Brick paid $5.30, $3.20 and $2.80. National, one-half of an entry which included Traffic, paid $3.40 and $3. Alphabet returned $5.60.

ISMAEL Valenzuela guided I'm Nashville to a three-quarter length victory over favored Blue Surge in the $16,650 Golden State Juvenile Stakes at Golden Gate Fields.

Time for the five furlongs was a rapid :58 1-5, the fastest clocking of the season. I'm Nashville paid $11, $5.00 and $4.00.

OVERTRICK, the nation's leading three-year-old pacer in 1963, scored an easy four-length victory Saturday night in the $104,381 Realization Purse — the world's richest race for 4-year-old harness horses.

NUSHKA caught the front running Geology near the far turn and went on to win the $40,325 Illinois Derby by two lengths at Sportsman's Park in Chicago.

Nushka, in his first start in a stakes race, paid $23.20, $15.20 and $8.40. Climax II paid $15.20 and $8.40 and Goff's Gay was $3.80 to show.

Nushka, a son of Kentucky Derby winner Needles, was timed in 1:53⅗.

SMART GOT up in the final strides and scored a one-half length victory over Inbalance in the $30,275 Valley Forge Handicap at Garden State Park. Eldon Nelson brought the winner home in 1:47⅘ for the 1⅛ miles. He paid $8, $4.60 and $3.60. Inbalance returned $5.40 and $4.20 while Morry E. paid $6.40.

Family Preview for Opening of Hollypark Meet

Hollywood Park kicks off its summer race meeting Wednesday, but hoofs fly, bands play and a steam-powered fire engine rolls in the annual family-style gathering this weekend.

Vice President James D. Stewart invites family groups to bring their picnic spreads for dining in the grandstand for the all-free program.

There are morning workouts for the horses training for the 55-day meeting, then a 2½-hour show on the main track.

BOUT SLATED 'TO DEATH'

Freddie Blassie and Nikita Mulkovich will stage a battle to the death Tuesday night at Municipal Auditorium.

Well, almost to the death. Loser must suffer the greatest humiliation that can come to a wrestler —he will be buried in a pine-box coffin at ringside and carried out in total disgrace.

Smart, Sophisticated and Elegant

that's the description of the Cafe Lafayette. Read in detail about this delightful restaurant on page B-11.

Whispering Pines
Turn down the country-like lane, go thru the gates & just take a long look at this beautiful redwood, farm-style home ... nestled beneath towering pines & shade trees.
So beautifully landscaped & fresh & bright as a shiny new nickel, it's bound to give you that "At Home" feeling. Beautiful living rm. with W-W carpets & matching drapes. Step thru the sliding doors & just look at this fabulous den & enclosed patio. Built-in bar & TV; yes ... even built-in radio & intercom.
Mom will just "FLIP" when she sees this ultra-modern kitchen, just loaded with beautiful mahogany cabinets ... pine paneled walls ... colorful counter top & huge family area.
3 "twin-size" bedrooms ... 2 baths & big 2-car detached garage, round out a picture of gracious living for some lucky family.
Folks ... we guarantee that even if this lovely home is not exactly what you're looking for, you won't regret the few minutes time you'll have spent seeing it. ...

A SUNDAY CARSIDE CHAT from RIDINGS CADILLAC

Long Beach's Only Authorized Cadillac Dealer

Vacation time is just around the corner and many of you are beginning to get that certain feeling of anticipation. An important part of the preparation for this happy occasion is to be "car ready." Quite often you will find it more practical to buy a later model car than to put more money into your present car.

In shopping for another car be sure to keep this in mind: DON'T BUY just a "USED" car, but DO BUY a thoroughly "RECONDITIONED" car. We have a choice selection of the finest reconditioned "Customer Ready" cars to be found anywhere. We urge you to carefully inspect our cars and to compare them with others . . . THERE IS A DIFFERENCE.

We are closed on Sundays. However, we cordially invite you to visit our lot today and look over our fine RECONDITIONED cars. All are clearly described as to equipment and price.

Introducing The dbo MAN

DICK BROWNING OLDS

Introduces A New Program for Automobile Buying

COME IN TODAY AND GET A FREE BOOKLET ON AUTO BUYING
(Expert Advice on How to Select, Finance and Insure a Used Car)

Dick Browning Oldsmobile is now attaching a new, comprehensive warranty to every used car he sells. This warranty is patterned after those offered on the new General Motors automobiles.

This new coverage extends beyond any previous dbo agreement and far outdistances guarantees made by other dealers. It is 100% in writing and is signed by both the buyer and the seller.

Minimum term of coverage is for 1 year or 12,000 miles, with substantial discounts on the replacement of parts and labor required for repairs within the term of the warranty. Additional consideration is given for the exceptionally fine used car. Ask your sales representative for further details.

Italys' Diletta Is Shy Starlet

ROME (AP)—Diletta D'Andrea, a trim signorina who is rising rapidly in the Italian movie world, doesn't think there is anything wrong with appearing nude on the screen.

DILETTA D'ANDREA
Under-Exposed

But she has lost five movie roles because she refuses to show too much of the assets given her by nature.

"It's not a question of morality," says Diletta. "The truth of the matter is I'm just shy." Diletta adds: "Perhaps other girls could do it. But I know I would die of embarrassment if I had to appear nude in a film."

The trim brunette actress is being seen by American audiences for the first time in "Crazy Desire."

* * * *

AN ASSISTANT director of famed Italian film-maker Federico Fellini got her a start in films. Turning 18 she made her debut in "I Nuovi Angeli" (The New Angels).

Then came "Crazy Desire," in which she played the best friend of actress Catherine Spaak.

"It was marvelous," recalls Diletta. "It was more fun than work, and we were getting paid for enjoying ourselves."

CHARLOTTE NETTLES, 21, legal secretary, pilots the popular Nu-Pike kiddieland miniature train on a trial run. She is the first candidate in the family amusement park's annual Miss Press Day beauty contest.

Nu-Pike Beauty Contest Opens

Leading Southland newspaper editors and two of its top legislators will combine their talents to select Miss Press Day at the Long Beach Nu-Pike's third annual salute to the Fourth Estate June 20.

Sterling J. Bemis, assistant managing editor of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram; William E. Totten, managing editor of the Huntington Park Daily Signal; Jim Graeme, editor of the Wilmington Press Journal, and Don Bazemore, publisher of the Long Beach News, will be assisted in their task by Congressman Craig Hosmer, 32nd District, and Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, 44th District.

Winner of the contest will receive a surf and sand wardrobe and reign over special events during the coming year at the eight-block family amusement zone on the ocean front.

Girls 17 and over may enter the contest by writing the Long Beach Amusement League or by submitting their names in person at the league's office in the Nu-Pike plunge building, 201 W. Pike.

Entrants in the contest will represent various rides in the amusement park.

5 Big Bands for Disneyland

Five exciting nights with five of the nation's greatest dance bands will inaugurate "Disneyland After Dark—1964" beginning June 13.

With the big bands of Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Wayne King, Count Basie and the Elliott Brothers playing each night throughout the Magic Kingdom, the five-night premiere will be the greatest collection of big bands in history.

'UNDER THE YUM YUM TREE'

Odd Sounds at Magnolia

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

For the next few weekends lots of strange animal noises will be emanating from around the Magnolia Theater box-office.

Don't call the police.

The mmmmmmmm sounds you hear will simply be coming from delighted theatergoers clamoring for yum-yum, or rather gathering in large numbers around or "Under the Yum Yum Tree."

Not that this latest Magnolia offering is any stage masterpiece or its writer, Lawrence Roman, any wonder boy. Roman drops literary names — e.e. cummings and Samuel Butler—but he's more sexwright than playwright who uses the teasing libido-and-the-stick technique.

After two hours of teasing, this technique sends audiences out in the streets happily murmuring: Isn't sex nice clean fun—when it is smart enough to 'happen' only in one's mind.

* * * *

SLICK AUTHOR Roman does not waste time sending his characters up a sex-tree. He has the young college girl, Robin Austin (Judith McCall) and her youthful lawyer boyfriend, Dave Manning (Gil De Rush) set up premarital joint housekeeping on a "connubial, but non-conjugal basis." Fellow occupants in this weird sex-tree are Robin's protecting angel, Irene Wilson (Pat Brown) and her "eternal" boyfriend, landlord Hogan.

By act two the sexwright is shaking up everybody in his tree with Hogan "yumming after" the college girl and the the college girl teasing the young lawyer, Dave, to the point of no platonic return.

Using every available "crevice" of her tiny theater as playing space, director Pat Brown and cast score individually well in the early scenes and even better as a team in act two. If director Brown will have the temerity to tell actress Brown that she has the rest of the cast "by the ears" until the closing scenes, the production will swing even better. Right now it suffers from a broad Shakespearean "hangover" and actress Brown has not yet shaken off the ghost of domineering Kate.

Accordingly, the other three main characters stand in trembling awe of her, yelping to be put down, but the high-powered Texas-born actress keeps driving.

* * * *

UNLIKE THE movie built up for Jack Lemmon, the 'big' character in the play is the girl, Robin. Youthful Judith McCall scrambles some of her lines by over-eagerly thinking them out loud before feeling them. Yet she gamely battles the part and the experienced "heavies" on-stage with her. She has the misfortune (for this gamey, beddybye play) of looking too angelic for the part. In short, her body does not contradict the words she is saying, thus depriving the absurd role of the sexual teasing it needs to stimulate the men. Even in Hogan, well-played by Logan Field, she seemed to arouse a refugee from Father's Day rather than "the fugitive from Kraft-Ebbing."

Field is a quaint comedian, getting terrific laughs when he says nothing, but just walks around with the sexual 'd.t's." Speaking with a sort of Sen. Dirksen mellifluousness, he could use a dash of Jack Lemmon to lighten the speaking part of his role and thus produce more a steady flow of humor. Irene's underplaying will also help.

Bred on stronger stuff, Gil De Rush takes a long time warming up to the lawyer role. He gets better as the situations start coming thick and fast. But there is still too much Hamletting when he debates whether to do or not to do. . . But as the author might say, all that "nekking" who has time for character analysis—or Hamletting?

Thomas Golden doubles as milkman and cab driver. This is an audience show.

Hormones to Sex Play

LONDON (UPI)—Joe Orton, 31-year-old author of the sex-laden play "Entertaining Mr. Sloane," which opened at the New Arts Theater here on Wednesday, once had a job making sex hormones for a drug company.

BIRTH of a BILLION DOLLAR BABY

Twin-Jet DC9, Douglas Entry in World Jet Race, Will Fly in 1965

By LEE CRAIG
I, P-T Aviation Editor

The blunt-nosed shape of America's newest jet-age transport —destined for its first flight in less than a year—is slowly taking form at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach plant.

And Douglas officials, despite their baby jet's late start in the highly competitive world market, still are confident that the DC9 eventually will be as great a success as its popular big brother, the DC8.

Of an estimated 1,000-plane market for short-haul jet transports, Douglas spokesmen anticipate 400 of these will be built in Long Beach.

At the basic price of slightly over $3 million per airplane, this means an addition to Douglas coffers of about $1.2 billion over the next 10 to 15 years.

THUS FAR, HOWEVER, potential airline purchasers have not exactly beaten down Douglas' doors to place orders for the sleek twin-jet craft.

To date, the company has a total of 24 orders and the same number of options from three carriers, plus a letter of intent to buy six more by another line.

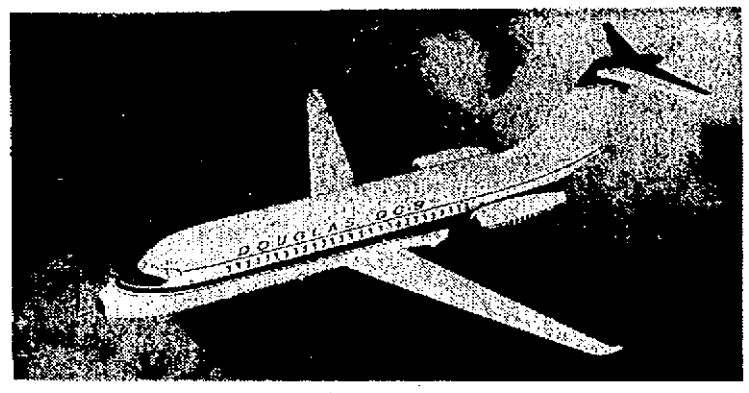

The DC9's British rival, the BAC-111, has received more than 40 orders from American carriers alone. And the European craft will begin deliveries even before the D9C's first flight next March.

BASIS FOR DOUGLAS optimism is the airlines' financial picture. Most lines, local officials say, are only now recovering from their heavy investments of a few years ago in their first jet equipment.

They'll be ready to buy, Douglas believes, just about the time DC9 deliveries begin in 1966.

Assembly of the first DC9 began here March 6. The upper and lower nose sub-assemblies are now nearly completed and ready for joining. The first ship will receive its wings next October.

ARTIST'S RENDERING of DC9 shows similarity with the Douglas jet's rival, the British BAC-111, shown below on its maiden flight last August. Two of British jets have since crashed.

Nearby Cities to Be Represented at L.B. Meeting

Glendale, San Diego, San Bernardino, Santa Ana and Lakewood are among a number of cities from which retailers will come to Long Beach to hear two top officials of the National Retail Merchants Association speak at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel, according to Harry Buffum, chairman for the event.

Carl N. Schmalz and J. Gordon Dakins, president and executive vice president, respectively, of N.R.M.A., will be featured speakers at the luncheon sponsored by the Downtown Long Beach Associates with Joe Shuff, president of DLBA, acting as presiding officer.

* * * *

THE N.R.M.A. officials will be on an eight-city national speaking tour which will end in Houston, Tex., at the end of this month.

The representation from Belmont Shore for the meeting will be led by Phil Hahn, from Los Altos by Martin Schuur and Bob Graham; from North Long Beach by Charles Dooley; and from Lakewood by Fred Sanchez.

Most of the members of the Long Beach City Council, V. Dovey, secretary to the mayor, as well as John Mansell, city manager, and Bob Creighton, assistant city manager, will be present to hear Schmalz and Dakins discuss the retail outlook for the second half of 1964.

* * * *

AFTER THE luncheon, Buffum, Shuff and Ike Sukman will accompany Schmalz and Dakins on a tour of the Long Beach harbor and points of interest in the city before they are taken to International Airport, Los Angeles, for their flight to Houston.

Bob Irvin, a public relations expert and member of DLBA, will act as guide on the tour.

Reservations for the no-host luncheon may be made by dialing the letters "H-E-L-P-E-R-S" for Downtown Long Beach Associates.

"Management Plus System Equals Profit" is the theme of the first annual Management Systems Symposium to be held Friday at the Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

Opening at 9 a.m., in the campus Horseshoe Theater, the program will include three general sessions in the morning and three afternoon workshop groups.

Management specialists from many business firms in the greater Long Beach area are expected to attend, and registration will be limited to 150 persons.

* * * *

PRINCIPAL speakers at the general sessions will be J.W. Leisner, in charge of West Coast Operations, and George Ott, management controls specialist, both of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co.; Raymond B. Lake Jr., assistant administrator of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach; and David Gindoff of the accounting firm of Gindoff & Schwartz.

J.W. LEISNER — GEORGE OTT

R.B. LAKE JR. — DAVID GINDOFF

Topics will be "The Systems Approach to Better Management," "The Use of Systems in Decision Making" and "Automated Accounting for the Small Business."

Moderators for the afternoon workshops will be Robert Aukerman, Benjamin Breslauer and Millard Cover, all management controls specialists.

* * * *

WORKSHOPS will deal with management systems for building contractors, small manufacturers and retail and service businesses.

Delegates to the one-day symposium will be welcomed by Clifton N. Patterson, dean of the Business and Technology Division, and Dr. Keith James, general coordinator for the program. Assisting will be members of the Paciolian Society, an organization of BTD students preparing for careers in accounting, data processing and business administration.

FHA Survey Yields Grove Housing Data

The Santa Ana Insuring Office of the Federal Housing Administration has surveyed all subdivisions in the Anaheim-Santa Ana-Garden Grove areas with five or more houses completed in 1963, according to Charles P. Deibel, director.

In the 383 subdivisions that met this criterion 16,846 houses had been completed during 1963 in price ranges from $10,000 to $35,000. The majority of the completed houses were in the $17,500 to $30,000 sale price range.

There were 2,473 houses sold before construction had started and 14,373 were built speculatively. Of those built speculatively, 11,265 were sold and 3,108 remained unsold on Jan. 1, 1964.

* * * *

OF THE 3,108 houses unsold available as of the survey date, 563 had been completed less than one month, 784 between two and three months, 941 between four and six months, and 820 between seven and 12 months.

The FHA office also reported 264 unsold houses that had been completed prior to 1963. These houses were in the $17,500 to $30,000 price range.

Builders reported 7,164 houses under construction in the 383 subdivisions canvassed on Jan. 1, 1964, according to Deibel; 4,822 of these had not been sold.

Printing Exhibit Set for June 7-13

The largest graphic arts display ever held in the United States will be staged June 7-13 at the Great Western Exhibit Center, Los Angeles.

Every important manufacturer of printing machinery in the country will have exhibits at the big WESTPRINT 64 show, according to Robert Black, director.

MISSING THE BOAT?

Opportunities Seen for Huntington Beach in Coastal Development

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Immense potentials in development of ocean frontage at Huntington Beach are seen by officials of the Stanford Research Institute.

In fact, they feel the city has somewhat 'missed the boat' in taking full advantage of tourist trade as its "biggest potential industry."

Stanford and city representatives discussed this and other aspects of future development recently at a luncheon meeting at the Huntington Beach Country Club.

* * * *

IN ATTENDANCE were Jack Higley, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee; Ralph C. Kiser, industrial consultant and vice president; and William Gallienne, chamber manager, for the city; and E.L. Perkins and William T. Kopp, Institute officials.

While the conference was aimed primarily at how to set a better climate for industry in Huntington Beach, it was recognized that cutbacks in defense and military spending could hurt industry committed to government projects. Thus, it was deemed necessary to woo other industries not so affected by any declines in government spending.

GALLIENE pointed out that the city is fortunate to have two established industrial parks amounting to a thousand acres.

The Stanford men were enthusiastic about beach development possibilities and the proposed Huntington Beach Co. projects. They said the city has failed to take full advantage of the ocean frontage and urged a master plan program.

In their opinion:

Much more parking could be provided on the beach. City buildings could be put to a better evaluated use by the proper leasing.

The Municipal Pier could attract thousands of persons if private enterprise could develop attractions that would produce revenue.

* * * *

NO LONGER should the beach strand be used to satisfy a few concessionaires. Attractions that bring people to spend their vacations who in turn spend money for lodging, pleasure and entertainment soon create lease rentals, sales tax and put the beach area in a position to become a park of attractiveness.

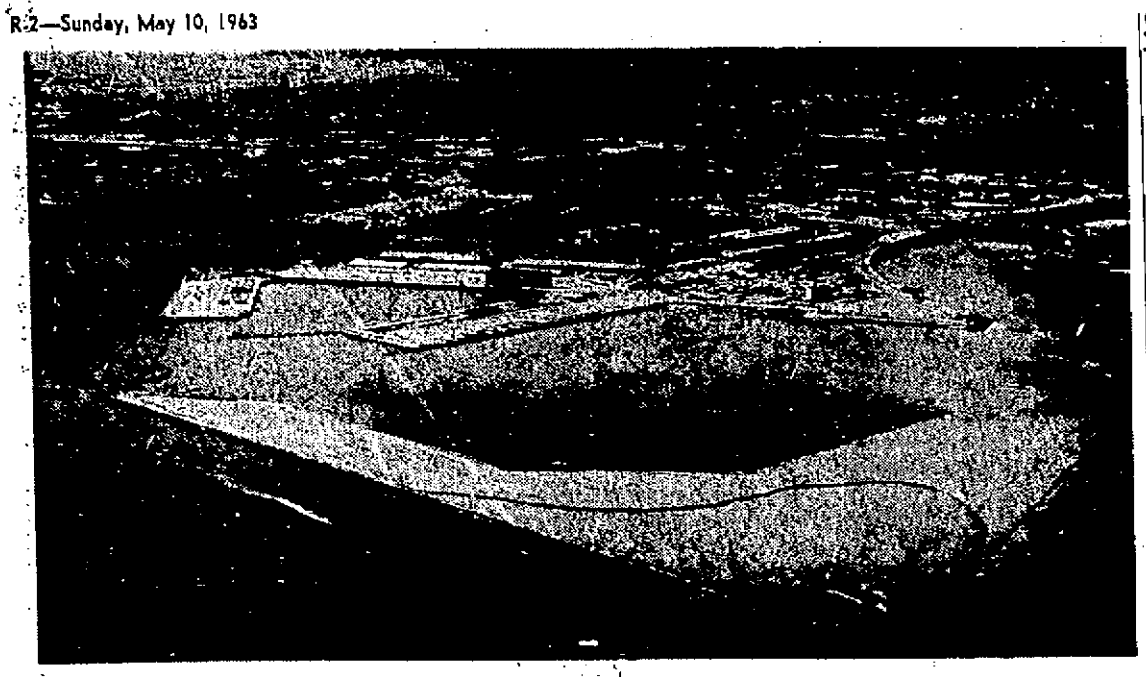

Huntington Beach must make up its mind, said the Stanford men, to launch a program of raising its standard of recreation and to produce the highest revenue from a commodity that everyone wants to partake of and enjoy.

Mechanic's Lien Law to Be Aired

A panel discussion on "Mechanic's Lien Law" will highlight the Monday night meeting of the Long Beach Builders' Exchange.

Preceded by a social hour, dinner will begin at 7 p.m. in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel, to be followed by the program.

Panel speakers will include Attorney Ven Fahrney; Jack Horner, Exchange manager; and Virgil E. Sewell, executive officer of the Belmont Savings & Loan Association.

PIER J 'SHAPING UP'
Aerial photograph made last week shows progress to date on 311-acre Pier J in the Port of Long Beach. Outline of the $20 million man-made peninsula is clearly visible (lighter area) extending across the photograph from left to right. All of the pier's land surface, composed of 33 million cubic yards of fill and three million tons of rock, will be out of the water by December, port officials report. Curving line in the foreground is dredge line. Pier is to be site of California World's Fair in 1967 or 1968.

$32 MILLION WORTH

West for Vacation, Meredith Stayed to Build Homes

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Opportunity really banged on the door for builder Eddy Meredith about 10 years ago when he came to California from New York City for a vacation.

Visiting in Orange County, he at once saw the area's growth potential. Fortune already had smiled on him as a builder of more than a thousand homes in suburban New York, but he gave up thoughts of retirement.

EDDY MEREDITH

He used personal funds to erect two split - level houses—first of such to be built in Orange County, records say.

These houses sold fast, convincing Meredith, and other builders, too, that the split-level concept would be popular with Southland home buyers.

Now, Meredith has sold some $32 million worth of houses in Orange County.

In rapid succession and with amazing success, Meredith, as sole owner of The Meredith Co., produced and sold out one development after another—the most recent ones being the $6 million Meredith Village and the $3.5 million Meredith Manor apartments in Fullerton.

He is opening in the Villa Park area on the outskirts of the City of Orange, known as Meredith Acres, another $6 million development.

Meredith Village is a community of 155 split-level and two-story homes located in Orange adjoining Santa Ana and Tustin and is practically sold out, having been opened in the summer of 1962.

He then developed and designed his luxury Meredith Manor Apartments in Fullerton—160 units.

This apartment community is located on 11 acres of completely landscaped park styled with four courts, each with a large heated pool.

MEREDITH MOVED IN $70,000 worth of 85-year-old Mission olive trees for shade and decorated the private patios and balconies with New Orleans style ornamental wrought iron. The courtyards are planted with lush grass and hundreds of flowering shrubs and plantings.

Meredith's latest and finest residential development, Meredith Acres, is another split-level and two-story community of approximately 150 homes ranging in price from $36,500 to $42,000. This is located in the Villa Park area but within the city limits of Orange.

"WE HAVE HAD on the drawing boards for some time now," Eddy Meredith stated, "another development with a brand new idea for the Huntington Beach area which will be in the neighborhood of a $13 million project."

When Meredith started building he was paying $6,000 per acre and he admits he is now paying as high as $23,500 an acre. "We believe that a prime location justifies the price and is essential to its success," Meredith stated.

One of Meredith's familiar statements is "We don't live with mistakes," so if he sees something in a Meredith project he thinks unsuitable he very often orders it ripped out. He says it is sometimes costly but he feels he would rather make less profit than sell what inevitably would bring his firm ill will.

IN ALL HIS DEVELOPMENTS Meredith insists on eye-appeal, quality, and livability.

A short review of Meredith's background includes his being a Wall Street brokerage house runner; schools through earning a law degree from New York University; service in the infantry in World War II; and in 1944 he established a chain of real estate and insurance agencies.

In 1945 he became a builder of homes in the suburban New York area and for 10 years he built hundreds of homes until he moved to California after the afore-mentioned vacation.

HE NOW LIVES in the Tustin area with his wife Violet and son Craig, who attends Tustin High School.

Meredith is a director and stockholder in a number of corporations including three savings and loan companies.

The one-time New Yorker no longer is thinking of retiring and has become one of Orange County's strongest boosters.

Says he: "There's a lot of building to be done yet to house the millions of future homebuyers in Orange County."

Oil Firm to Test Car-Rental Field

Humble Oil & Refining Co. has announced it will enter the car-rental field in the next few weeks in cooperation with a group of service-station dealers in five Eastern cities.

Humble's Eastern Region will provide the fleet of compact and standard cars to be used in the program. Rentals may be charged to Humble credit cards, or paid in cash, with no deposit required by a credit-card customer.

Humble said the project is an experiment. It will be launched by the oil company and dealers in the western suburbs of Boston, the Camden (New Jersey) area, and the combined Allentown-Bethlehem - Easton (Pennsylvania) areas.

TOM WARBURTON
BEST FOR APRIL

Born in Belfast, Ireland, and arrived on the shores of little old New York in 1926. Completed grade and high school education on Staten Island in 1937.

Worked in the construction business until entering the armed forces in 1942. Served with the Air Force for 4 years, 27 months of which was in the European area of operations. After his discharge, he purchased a restaurant and cocktail lounge on Staten Island which he operated successfully for 2 years until the call of the west got to him. Came to Long Beach in 1955 with his lovely wife, Libby, and now resides in the Wrigley District of Long Beach.

Tom says, "In my career in real estate I have met many wonderful people and believe my success in the business is attributed to the excellent training and sales aids provided by Walker & Lee. I am striving to personalize my dealings with my clients and at the close of a transaction have a new friendship and a satisfied client."

He tries to relax in his spare time by playing a bad game of golf and loves to putter around in the garden.

BILL WRAY
District Ad Club Head

Wray Heads Area Clubs

Bill Wray, manager of the Advertising Plans department of the Independent, Press-Telegram, was elected vice president of the Fifth District of the Advertising Association of the West at the annual conference at the Continental Hotel in Hollywood. He will be installed at the AAW Convention in Sun Valley, Idaho, in July.

For the next two years, Wray will represent the 1500 members of the 11 fifth district advertising clubs in Long Beach, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Orange County, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Bakersfield and Las Vegas.

Wray is a past president of the Advertising Club of Long Beach, and is also active in the American Academy of Advertising and Alpha Delta Sigma advertising fraternity.

Children Will Vie in Realtor Poster Contest

The Long Beach District Board of Realtors, in conjunction with Realtor Week which will be May 24-30, is sponsoring a poster contest.

All children ages 6 to 12 are welcome to enter. The theme is "What My Home Will Be Like."

Posters must be drawn with the theme in mind, on 12" x 18" paper and should be made with crayons, colored chalk, water paint or oil paint. The name, age and address should be on the back of each poster.

The contest began May 1, and all posters must be in by 5 p.m., May 18. Contestants may take their completed posters to their nearest Realtor or deliver them to the 3747 Long Beach Blvd. Twenty-seven awards will be made.

All posters will be on display at the board office at "open house" on May 30.

Start Trade Mission to Six Nations

Five members of the Society of Industrial Realtors departed last week for Europe where they will conduct a unique trade mission to six countries under official sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

They have assembled a giant portfolio of 200 investment properties in the United States totaling about $500 million which will be offered to leading European investors.

J. D. Sawyer, Middletown, Ohio, is mission chairman. He was appointed to replace C. Pat Lumpkin, Houston, who died on April 18.

• • • •

OTHER MEMBERS of the mission—all members of the Society and the American Chapter, International Real Estate Federation — are A. Kyle Bettilyon, Salt Lake City; James Q. Brett, San Francisco; J. J. Harrington Jr., Chicago; and Harold B. Hess, Philadelphia.

This will be the first mission of its kind under the industry - sponsored, government-approved trade mission program conducted by the Department of Commerce to expand foreign markets through increased sales of U.S. goods and services and established agencies of representation abroad.

Plan State Convention

Plans for the state convention of the California Employment Agencies Association, to be held at Long Beach in September, are being coordinated by the local South Coast Chapter.

Nearly 400 persons are expected at the four-day convention. Headquarters will be at the Edgewater Marina Inn.

Program details were discussed at a recent meeting called by Sally Haines, convention chairman. Committee heads include Claire Comody, chairman of publicity and hotel arrangements; James Hackfield, entertainment; and Laura Glascock, hospitality.

Cooperating in the planning is Kathy Milbrand of the Long Beach Convention Bureau. George Amey is chapter president.

Moon Program to Need Workers

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —In March 1964, the working population at this missile and space center was about 29,000. Experts forecast it will increase to 48,000 by 1966 as the Apollo man-to-the-moon program enters its early test launching phase.

More Tobacco Raised Per Acre

ATHENS, GA. (AP) — For the first time in history, Georgia farmers have produced more than a ton of tobacco per acre.

The Crop Reporting Service of the University of Georgia says farmers passed the one-ton-an-acre mark in 1963 with a yield of 2,003 pounds —503 pounds above the goal set for 1965.

Loan Firm Building at Costa Mesa

First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Alhambra has started construction of a $300,000, two-story building to house its Costa Mesa staff and office facilities on the northeast corner of Harbor Boulevard and Palm Drive, adjacent to the Orange Coast College.

Completion is planned for early fall of the 10,000-square-foot building featuring a community room with accommodations for more than 100 persons, according to First Federal president, A. G. Kruse.

The building, designed by the firm of Thomas & Richardson of Santa Ana, will be of contemporary construction with an accent on Spanish styling, including a mission tile roof as the dominant feature of the design, Kruse noted.

First Federal Savings of Alhambra will construct the $300,000 new building pictured above in artist's sketch for its Costa Mesa office staff and facilities. Location is at northeast corner of Harbor Boulevard, Palm Drive.

Using water on wood floors is the quickest way to ruin their natural beauty and reduce their useful life, warns the National Association of Home Builders.

Caddy Reports

SHELBYVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It was a nip and tuck golf match between W. W. Curtis and Jim Fulton.

As they prepared to tee off at one hole, the pro, Evan Settle, walked up to Curtis' caddy and asked: "How do they stand?"

The caddy, a newcomer to golf, threw back his shoulders and replied, "Why, they stands up straight, like this."

Announce Winners in Contest

BELLFLOWER — Dan Keulen, chairman of the high school essay contest of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, has announced that school winners have been notified and invited to receive their awards of $25 U.S. Savings Bonds at the breakfast meeting of the board to be held Thursday at the Student Center, Cerritos College, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Writing on the subject of, "The Home is the Heart and Hope of the Nation," the following students were judged to have submitted the best essay from their respective schools: Mayfair High, Sylvia Keulen, age 14 and a ninth grade student; Bellflower High, Craig Pottenger, 16, in the 11th grade; Artesia High, Don Burnett; Paramount Junior High, Patricia Cannon; Valley Christian High, Nita De Velder, 16, an 11th grade student; and Paramount High, Linda Rude, 16, and in the 11th grade.

* * * *

THESE SIX students will compete for the additional $100 bond that will be awarded for the best overall essay. Winner of the $100 bond will be announced at the breakfast meeting, also.

The essay of the overall winner then will be submitted in the statewide competition of the California Real Estate Association.

May Co. Reports on Finances

ST. LOUIS — The annual report of The May Department Stores Co., recently mailed to stockholders, reports capital expenditures during 1963 of $35,200,000 including $3,400,000 net advances to partially owned partnerships for shopping center construction. Capital expenditures in 1962 were $11,600,000.

The May company's record sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1964, were made public earlier this month. Net sales were $723,714,000, 2 percent above the previous record of $709,652,000 established in the year ended Jan. 31, 1963.

* * * *

NET EARNINGS amounted to $30,663,000, or $4.23 per share of common stock, compared with $24,790,000, or $3.40 per share, in the previous year.

Working capital at Jan. 31, 1964 amounted to $214,887,000 compared with $222,426,000 a year earlier.

The May Company report comments that the reduction "reflects the expenditure for new stores and other facilities of funds accumulated for that purpose."

The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 3.5 to 1 at Jan. 31, 1964 compared with 3.9 to 1 at Jan. 31, 1963.

Downtown Apartment Opening Set

Grand opening will be held May 17 for the new four-story Linden Towers condominium apartment building at 250 Linden Ave. in downtown Long Beach, it has been announced by Russell Mangum Co., owner.

The 25 unit building has been subdivided as a genuine condominium, according to Mangum, and buyers will receive grant deeds as with a conventional house.

The building is all-electric and there are one and two-bedroom units.

Special eye-catcher is the glassed-in four-story stairway at the northwest corner, with the stairs visible to passersby. There is elevator service and garages on the first floor.

Condominium units are bought, mortgaged, sold and taxed individually, with common ownership of various facilities in the building.

WORLD MOTOR CENSUS

Vehicle Registration Up 12,205,500 Last Year

Last year saw the greatest 12-month increase in world motor registration since the invention of the automobile, reports Automobile International in its annual World Motor Census.

Between Jan. 1, 1963 and Jan. 1, 1964, the number of cars, trucks and buses in operation around the world increased by 12,205,500 to a total of 158,395,700.

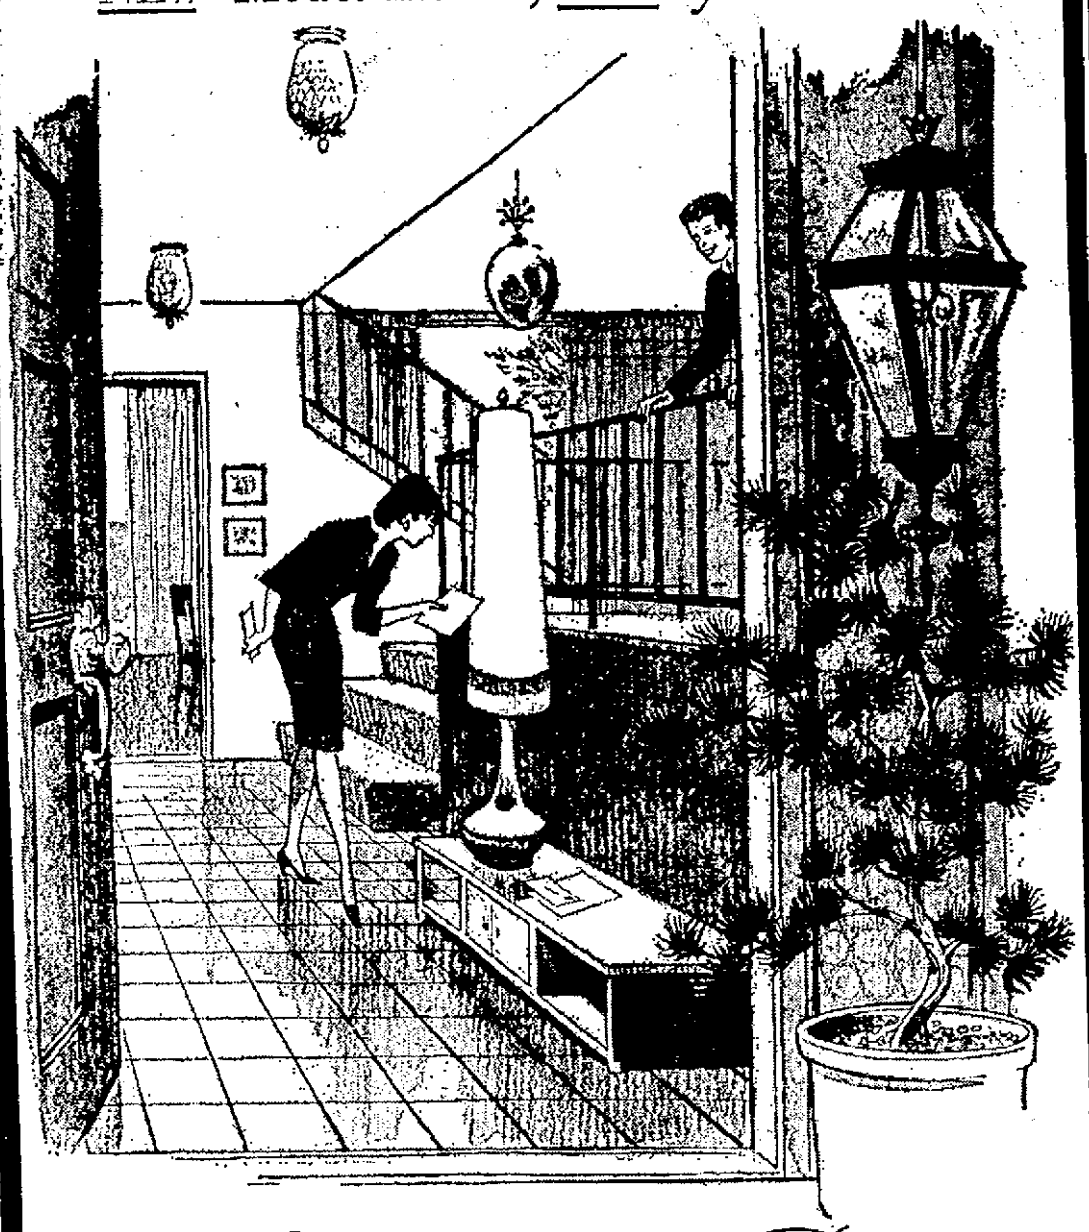

Largest concentration of vehicle registrations is in the United States. At the beginning of 1964, the total was 83,500,000, an increase of 4,477,100 over the 1963 figure.

Western Europe has the second largest vehicle registration with 41,561,600; third is Asia with 7,286,900, followed by Canada, 6,282,900; Other Americas, 6,180,700; Communist Bloc, 6,165,500; Oceania, 4,212,800, and Africa, 3,205,300.

During 1963, two more nations joined the million-and-over ranks—Mexico and the Netherlands — bringing this group to a total of 16.

Record 1,723 Attend Housing Conference

Largest conference of its kind in the history of the housing industry was held last week at the Palladium in Hollywood, with 1,723 in attendance.

Need for new concepts including planned developments and condominiums was emphasized by a parade of speakers, many rated as national authorities.

Occasion was the First Regional Conference on Planned Developments, Condominiums and Cluster Housing for the West.

* * * *

DISCUSSIONS centered on ways to house the 150 million new population expected in this country by the year 2000.

Speakers viewed planned developments and condominiums as among the best new solutions in major metropolitan areas, but they stressed the need for new concepts and new ingenuity in creating better ways to use land and better ways to building housing units.

Thirty-eight leaders in the home building industry, and allied activities, presented talks and answered questions at the one-day meeting sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties.

A total of 1,723 home builders, lenders, planners, state, county and city officials, and title executives from 14 western and mid-western states attended.

This was the largest conference of its kind in the history of the home building industry, said Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association, exceeding the previous record set by the HBA at its 1963 condominium conference at Disneyland Hotel with an attendance of 1,200.

* * * *

MAJOR controversial problems of jurisdiction and procedure in California were aired, with the three California commissioners involved meeting head-on the complaints of home builders in a tension-packed morning session. This long expected duel ended in a draw with each group in the same position as at the beginning of the conference.

The commissioners were Milton G. Gordon, California real estate commissioner; Charles E. Rickershauser, corporations commissioner; and Frederick E. Balderston, savings and loan commissioner.

The commissioners committed their organizations to simplification of procedures and forms and extensive clarification of rules and regulations.

Artesia Boy Wins CBA Certificate

Bill Lanting, 17, a senior at Artesia High School, has been awarded the California Bankers Association's Certificate of Merit for being selected as the school's outstanding Future Farmer of America for 1963-64.

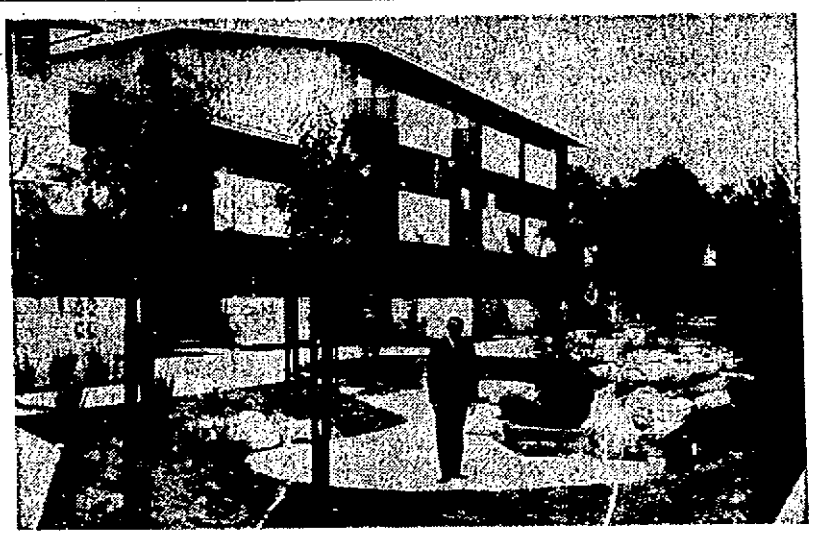

The presentation was made by Don M. Kruse, CBA representative and assistant vice president of Security First National Bank, at the annual Parent-Son Banquet held at Knott's Berry Farm.

Lanting is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Lanting of 12321 East 166th St., Artesia.

NEW $7 MILLION JET OVERHAUL BASE FOR PAN AM AT MIAMI

Here is the sprawling, modern industrial complex that makes up Pan American Airways' new $7 million jet maintenance and overhaul facility in Miami, Fla. It will be dedicated Saturday. Extreme left is the administration building, headquarters for the worldwide airline's Latin-American Division. At extreme right is the two-block-long maintenance building, housing shops, supply warehouse, engineering and production offices and other facilities. In center are previously existing hangars, with which the new maintenance plant has been consolidated. The maintenance-hangar complex contains 660,000 square feet, the equivalent of 14 football fields.

AT GARDEN GROVE

New Malabar Garden Apartments, 9777 Bixby Ave., Garden Grove, will have grand opening May 17. Co-owner Dana Andrews, actor, stands in foreground. Complex has 126 units, cost $2.5 million.

Actor Will Open New Apartment Complex May 17

Actor Dan Andrews, whose $2.5-million Malabar Garden Apartments complex in Garden Grove opens May 17, went into the real estate development business four years ago "almost in self-defense."

And today his new-found enterprise bids fair to transcend his 24-year career as a stage and film star.

"I need tax deductions," he explained, simply.

But Andrews, who lives in Palos Verdes, didn't merely invest his money and let others do the spadework. He burrowed into his new field avidly, taking UCLA real estate courses at night while making movies by day.

* * * *

IT STARTED in 1960 after he completed a long stage run in a play. He picked up a copy of a book on success in real estate, and soon became engrossed in it.

"It was explicit, written for the inexperienced," he said. "I studied the formula—take the money you have as a down payment on property, double the value by fixing it up, then trade up for a down payment on another.

"Suddenly everything became clear. I studied more and learned how to appraise property and how to use other people's money."

* * * *

HE TERRIFIED his wife, Mary, when, proudly clutching his UCLA certificates, he mortgaged their home to put $50,000 down on a $300,000 North Hollywood apartment building.

He disposed of it recently for a $150,000 net profit. He converted his Toluca Lake estate to income property and sold that. He began buying apartments until he had 15 in operation.

Now he is branching into office buildings and shopping centers. The Malabar is his biggest project to date, and it is the realization of a four-year dream to join the Orange County business community.

* * * *

"I'VE LONG FELT that Orange County was going to explode like a firecracker," he said. "I'm just sorry it has taken me so long to hop on the bandwagon."

Malabar 12 building apartment complex is located on 5½ acre parcel at 9777 Bixby Ave. It cost $2.5 million and contains 126 rental units with from one to three bedrooms. Jack M. Okean, Hollywood builder, is partner with Andrews in the development.

Andrews, who was on hand for a recent press preview, later went to Spain to do a movie.

Walker & Lee Promotes Mangan

Thomas J. Mangan Jr., of Anaheim has been promoted to district managership of the Lakewood-Long Beach area for Walker & Lee, Inc. The appointment covers management of the offices at Carson Street, Dutch Village, Los Altos, Los Alamitos, Park Estates and Woodruff Center.

Mangan recently was named "Manager of the Year," winning the company's 1963 management efficiency award.

He leaves his position as manager of the real estate sales agency's Euclid-Katella office, Anaheim, to take over the post vacated by the recent resignation of Oliver Speraw.

WOMAN WINS TRIP TO WORLD'S FAIR

Mrs. Irene Gatewood of 2061 Daisy Ave. was winner of grand prize awarded during opening of City National Bank at Fourth Street and Long Beach Boulevard. She won trip for two to New York World's Fair. At left is David G. Becker, bank vice president and manager. At right is Mrs. Gatewood's husband, Jack, who plans to accompany her to fair late next month. More than 3,000 persons visited bank on opening day.

MUSHROOMS GROW IN DARKENED HOTHOUSE

SOUTHLAND'S LARGEST MUSHROOM 'PAD'

This is an exclusive aerial view of Huntington Beach's mushroom farm that "grew like Topsy." The 24 shed-like "houses" are each divided into two growing sections in which plants are seeded, nurtured to maturity and harvested. (Photo was snapped by a passing aviator.)

BUSINESS PROFILE

Orange County Has One of Largest Mushroom Farms

By BOB BAUGHEY

Mushrooms are NOT parasol-shaped clouds that appear after a nuclear bomb explosion.

They are delectable vegetables which, when introduced to meats and salads, add a special "oomph" to good dining.

When you buy a small package of mushrooms at your local market the chances are overwhelming that they were grown in Orange County.

To be more specific, they could be the succulent produce of one of the largest mushroom farms in the country, Ocean View Mushroom Growers, Inc., of Huntington Beach.

* * * *

FOUNDED 10 years ago by Victor Emanuel Di Steffano, the farm occupies 15 company-owned acres on Golden West Street south of Talbert Avenue.

Utilizing more than 150,000 square feet of hothouse and other structural space, the farm produces and markets approximately 1,250,000 pounds of mushrooms per year.

Vic Di Steffano, whose father's 40 years in the mushroom growing business near Philadelphia (the American industry was founded there in 1904) gave him "the idea" after his return from World War II.

In the then unincorporated areas of Hawthorne he made a back yard start in the spring of 1946.

* * * *

THREE YEARS later he moved to Whittier, winding up there with 150,000 square feet (a little under three and one-half acres) of leased land. His present company, of which he is president, has two other stockholders, Morris B. Pendleton of San Marino and Miss Evelyn Andra of Los Angeles.

Mushrooms, a food delicacy discovered during Roman times, are really a fungus of which the spores, or seeds, are a botanical element known as mycelium.

They are grown in hotbeds of composte made of straw "seasoned" with gypsum, "brewer's grain" and sometimes a dash of peat.

* * * *

THE HOTHOUSES are kept in complete darkness except when workmen wearing battery operated miners' headlamps enter to harvest the adult plants.

A fixed hothouse temperature and humidity are "musts" in mushroom growing.

When full-grown plants are picked (they are not plucked from the bed, but twisted off of the secondary root section) they are taken to a packaging room where they are sorted for size, cleaned and boxed.

* * * *

THE COMPANY'S largest account is Safeway Stores, Inc., which operates approximately 250 markets in Southern California between Santa Maria and the Mexican border.

Approximately 75 per cent of the farm's output goes to the food chain. The balance is sold by brokers to other markets and to restaurants.

The company does not engage in retail sales.

FLAVOR NO PROBLEM

All mushrooms, regardless of size, have the same epicurean taste. Vic Di Steffano tilts up a box in the "cold room" awaiting shipment.

Geis Named as Branch Manager

Rex L. Hodges Realty Co. has appointed Joseph F. Geis as branch manager for the company's Eastside Sales Center, according to Robert C. Westmyer, firm president.

JOSEPH GEIS

Geis joined the firm in 1961 as a sales associate with the North Long Beach office and in 1963 became assistant manager of the Eastside branch. He has served on the board of directors of Long Beach District Board of Realtors and is on the membership and attendance committee.

Business Tabloids

Albert W. Hunter has been named manager of Bank of Amarica's Chapman-Valley View branch in Garden Grove, it was announced by Jesse W. Tapp, chairman of the board of the statewide bank. Hunter succeeds William H. McGinnis, who died recently. A bank officer for seven years, Hunter comes to his new post from Encinitas, where he was assistant manager.

C. B. WATSON A. W. HUNTER

ADVICE on how to use "leverage" (other people's money) to build a personal financial empire has generat-appearances by Long Beach ed popular demand for public real estate man Robert Westmyer. President of Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., Westmyer has appeared before more than 20 California groups to give his formula on how to develop "real estate investment opportunities."

OMER D. AKIN last week marked his 35th year with Bank of America. Akin is assistant cashier in the lending department at the bank's Belmont Shore branch, a post he has held since 1951. A bank officer for nearly 17 years, Akin began his career in Long Beach.

JOHN ADAM GIBSON has occupied a suite of offices in the 10-story, all-electric Long Beach Edison Building at 100 Long Beach Blvd. Gibson's activities are concentrated in the shopping center development field, and to some extent in general real estate development and leasing.

CHARLES B. WATSON has joined Kit Manufacturing Co., Inc., as a mobilehome sales representative for the Kit/Pacific Division, according to W. W. Walther, sales manager for the Long Beach plant.

Indian Village Restaurant Will Open Soon at Torrance

MILLION-DOLLAR TORRANCE PROJECT
Scale model of million-dollar dining-commercial complex, the Smith Bros. Indian Village, is inspected by designer Lyle Wheeler, Mrs. Virginia Smith Haack (center) and Miss Evelyn Smith, president of project being built by Smith Bros. Fish Shanty Inc. Indian Village Restaurant, initial phase of six-acre development to be managed by Mrs. Haack, opens late this month at 4020 Pacific Coast Hwy., Torrance.

TORRANCE—Nearing completion is the initial phase of a three-part dining-commercial complex, the Indian Village in Torrance, according to the Smith Bros. Fish Shanty, Inc., of Port Washington, Wis., and Southern California, which also revealed master plans for the $1 million program.

The six-acre site for the development is located at 4020 Pacific Coast Hwy.

First phase of the project is the Smith Bros. Indian Village Restaurant, whose construction is progressing rapidly, and its opening at the end of May is anticipated.

* * * *

GENERAL design and decorative scheme of the complex will be American Indian, an original motif to which the two-story restaurant's interior and exterior also will conform.

Architect on the project is Carrington H. Lewis, AIA, of Torrance, while the contractor is Sherman Johnson of El Monte.

The sprawling complex is a project of a long-range program, discloses Mrs. Virginia Smith Haack, a prominent member of the Smith family and manager of the restaurant in the past and the future.

* * * *

PRESIDENT of the Indian Village is Miss Evelyn Smith, founder of the restaurant corporation. In 1947, she opened the Smith Bros. Fish Shanty in Torrance on whose foundation now rises the Indian Village Restaurant, anad she still is active in the business that also includes Fish Shanty restaurants on La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles, and in Port Washington, Wis. These operations are branches of the Smiths' commercial fisheries.

Phases one and two for commercial units in Torrance still are on the drawing boards, but plans are being stepped up to meet the needs of prospective tenants and those already accommodated in existing buildings.

* * * *

MEANWHILE, the restaurant has been under construction during the past seven months, moving swiftly over the site where the Fish Shanty was razed last September.

Single Payment Plans OK'd for Growth Fund

Single Payment Plans for accumulation of shares of Keystone Growth Fund have been cleared for sale in California by the State Commissioner of Corporations.

The plans are sponsored by Keystone Accumulation Plans, Inc., and investments will be supervised by Keystone Custodian Funds, Inc.; 32-year-old investment organization which now manages more than $840,000,000 for 230,000 mutual fund shareholders.

Keystone economists, it was said, feel that the business outlook for the rest of this year is good. The tax cut, which applies to both individuals and corporations, is a big factor in this optimism. Reduction in corporate taxes carries the implication of special benefits for the stock market. Latest encouraging development is the progress made toward settling the railroad issues.

* * * *

CALIFORNIANS already are the largest holders of Keystone Funds in the nation. At the latest tabulation, 54,318 California residents owned Keystone shares valued at $142,314,698.

Key benefits offered by the new single payment plans were outlined recently by Peter B. Sholley of Boston, executive vice president of the sponsoring company, at a Stock Exchange Club luncheon in Los Angeles.

Louis A. Vachon Jr., vice president and west coast manager of Keystone, introduced Sholley.

All distributions may be reinvested without sales charge for not less than 30 years, Sholley said. If financial emergencies arise, up to 90 per cent of the investor's accumulated shares may be withdrawn or redeemed in cash and replaced later without sales charge.

* * * *

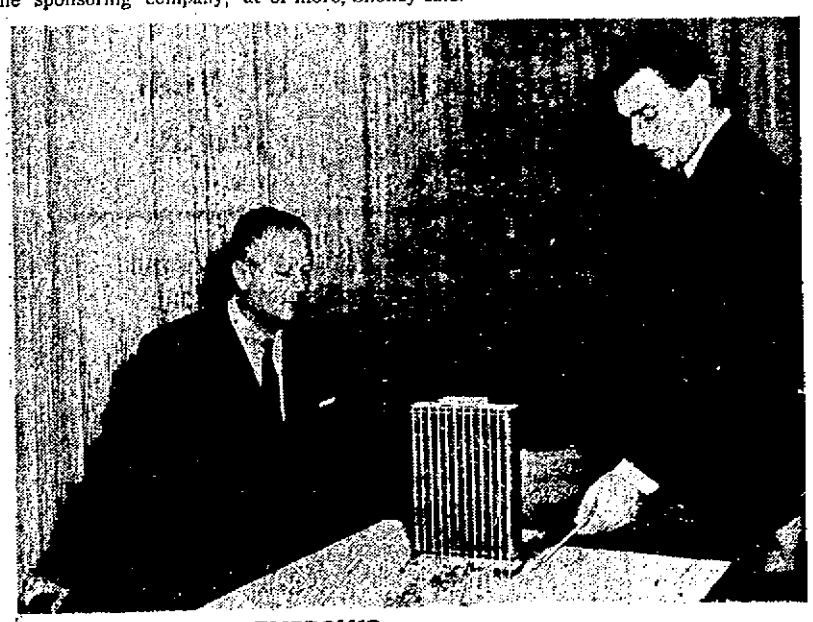

THERE IS no maximum to the plan program, and under a combined purchase privilege the sales charge on additional Single Payment Plan purchases will be reduced when the total market value of the previously purchased plans and the face value of the new plan reaches or exceeds $25,000.

A special conversion privilege will permit an investor to convert from Keystone Growth Fund to Keystone Income Fund for a $5 service fee should his investment objective change at some future time.

Keystone also has a systematic withdrawal plan which provides a check each month from Single Payment Plans whose value is $5,000 or more, Sholley said.

FATHER, SON PARTNERSHIP
Architect Hugh Gibbs (left) has announced that his son Donald (right) has become a partner in the Long Beach firm founded by the father in 1932. Photo shows them examining model of 38-story Taper Tower apartment project they have designed. Ground-breaking for Tower on Ocean Boulevard site is scheduled for this fall. It would be tallest building in the Southland. Donald Gibbs is a graduate of USC's School of Architecture and worked for a number of architectural organizations in Southern California and Hawaii prior to joining his father's firm three years ago.

NO TWO-STORY RESIDENCES

'Live Low and Like It' Is Theme of Somerset Homes

A Southland builder is challenging the eastern invasion of two-story homes!

"Our western way of life still is preferred by many people—and that means we should continue to build a good percentage of one-story homes," declares a spokesman for the Twaits-Wittenberg Co., a noted California construction firm.

At their Somerset home development in the western Orange County community of Cypress, TW is showing a blended-with-the-land, one-story home with four bedrooms and two baths priced at $27,000 with excellent terms.

"We are using the slogan, 'Live low and like it'," the company representative declared. ". . . and you'd be surprised how many people do prefer one-floor living. There are no stairs, no upstairs cleaning, no heights to pose a threat to youngsters."

* * * *

IN THEIR attractive 1650 square foot home, the builders have included wall-to-wall carpet with a striking tile entry.

Directly opposite the front door, the visitor encounters an "atrium," one of the unique aspects of this cleverly designed home. The "atrium" is a glass-walled section of the outdoors that penetrates into the center of the home with rich green plantings to lighten up the interior.

Completely equipped kitchens feature built-in range and oven with automatic clock and rotisserie, dishwasher and disposer. The living room is spacious, the bedrooms spotted so that adults can entertain friends without disturbing sleeping children.

* * * *

LOCATED in a pleasantly rural area that is surrounded by Long Beach, Lakewood and Los Angeles, the Somerset development offers a life of relaxation within the busy metropolis.

To visit the Somerset homes take Lakewood Blvd., to Carson, turn right to Moody and right again to the attractive models.

Future Construction Still 'Firm' in U.S.

Contracts for future construction in the United States in March totaled $4,214,544,000, an increase of 18 per cent compared to the like 1963 month, F. W. Dodge Co., a division of McGraw-Hill Inc., reported last week.

The Dodge Index (1957-59 equals 100) for March was 140, down three index points from the February value.

* * * *

"CONTRACT totals are continuing to show very large percentage gains over year-ago levels," declared George A. Christie, Dodge senior economist.

Big Treasure Trove Homes Have Appeal

Featuring extra-large rooms and a host of built-in features, Treasure Trove Homes in Fountain Valley are moderately priced from $26,475, which includes full title to the land, not a leasehold and Sam A. Brown, sales agent for the homes, stresses the many varied stylings provided which offer up to 2331 square feet. Living rooms as big as 22' by 16' have great appeal and in some models there is a "growing room" 25' by 29'.

* * * *

THE PEARL, a two-story model, has three bedrooms, two baths, a family room and the growing room. The Sapphire has four bedrooms, two baths, and full dining room. The Ruby, a rambling design, has five bedrooms, two baths and a family/dining room. The Emerald, another two-story model has four bedrooms, three baths and family room while the Diamond model has four bedrooms, three baths, master bedroom, dining room and den.

Found at the homes are such features as Bigelow carpeting, concrete patios and drives, dishwasher and disposal, extra-large entry halls, forced-air heating, large two-car garage with extra work space, fireplace, rear yard is fenced with gate and the kitchens have top quality Tappan built-ins including roomy wall oven.

From Long Beach drive east on Seventh St. to Brookhurst St., then south to Ellis Ave., and the homes. Or drive Pacific Coast Hwy., through Huntington Beach to Brookhurst St., and north to Ellis.

NLB Realty Club Plans Open Forum

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club meeting Thursday will be an open forum with Alice Hodick, owner of Jerry's Realty, as program chairman.

Salesmen and brokers are invited to bring up their problems and complaints, to make any suggestions and to encourage frank discussion among the club members.

The meeting starts at 8 a.m. at the Midnight Sun Restaurant, 5925 Cherry Ave.

Royal Coachline Big Homes Draw

The two-story home has proven its popularity in the new King Edward Series of Royal Coachline Homes, states Mark Pitman, developer of the new Anaheim community. "Many of our associates were skeptical about building a subdivision consisting of nothing but two-story homes. However, the excellent response to the new King Edward Series has proven our judgment to be correct," added Pitman.

Offering 17 exterior designs and four spacious floor plans, the new Royal Coachline Homes are two-story three and four bedrooms, all with large family rooms and two baths.

The homes are priced from $26,800 to $28,900 and can be purchased on terms on conventional financing. FHA and Cal-Vet terms are also available.

* * * *

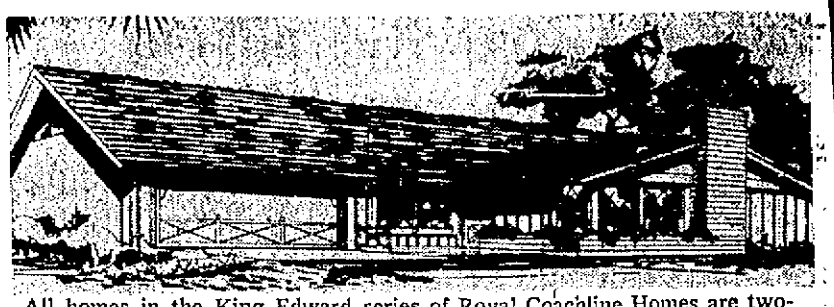

AMONG outstanding features in the new King Edward Series is wall-to-wall carpeting of 100% nylon in the living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, halls and stairways, custom block wall completely fenced rear yard with gate and lawns planted front and sides.

The luxury kitchens of the new series feature built-in gas range and oven with triple rotisserie and exhaust fan over range and are already piped for gas refrigeration, gas dryer and gas log-lighter. These kitchens also include dishwasher and disposal. The large cabinets offer a choice of driftwood, provincial, walnut or birch woods. The bar and sink tops are of self-edged Formica and the flooring is of all-new metallic vinyl asbestos tile.

* * * *

OTHER FEATURES include large pool-size lots, oversize garages with plenty of storage space. Baths are roomy, with marble-topped Pullmans, vanity and dressing tables, Mr. and Mrs. sinks with Dreslyn basins. There are entry halls, hardwood paneling, custom made light fixtures and hardware, forced air heating, glass sliding doors, hand print wallpapers by Van Luit and others and quality paints by W. P. Fuller.

El Dorado Homes in Appealing Location

EL DORADO PARK ESTATES
Master bedroom in plan 202 at El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach is shown here. Room's focal point is natural wood-burning fireplace. Living room in this plan has another fireplace.

Successful residential development is the result of the builder's application of several important rules, pointed out an official of El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach.

"The first rule should be the selection of a desirable location," said the spokesman.

El Dorado Park Estates are adjacent to a lovely city park and golf course. "The park is being developed by the City of Long Beach and eventually will be one of the largest in the city."

Schools, churches, entertainment and shopping are within close reach of the neighborhood.

* * * *

ANOTHER important rule we place high on the priority list is the necessity of offering a wide selection of functional and attractive floor plans that will appeal to a cross-section of buyers," the spokesman pointed out.

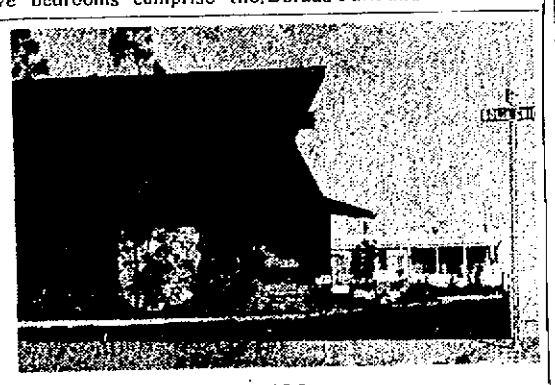

Large one-story, two-story, split-level and tri-level designs, with three, four and five bedrooms comprise the outstanding selection and some are built with a formal dining room and large family rumpus room or both. In the family room is included a handy wet-bar, making it an ideal entertainment center in the home.

* * * *

"IT'S AXIOMATIC we adhere to top quality," he said, "quality of workmanship and reliable brand-name products. We want these homes to provide years of meaningful home residence, and increase in value in the ensuing years."

Value features in El Dorado Park Estates' dwellings are efficiency kitchens with gleaming built-in appliances, stunning custom-designed electrical fixtures, genuine marble topped pullman lavatories, and many more.

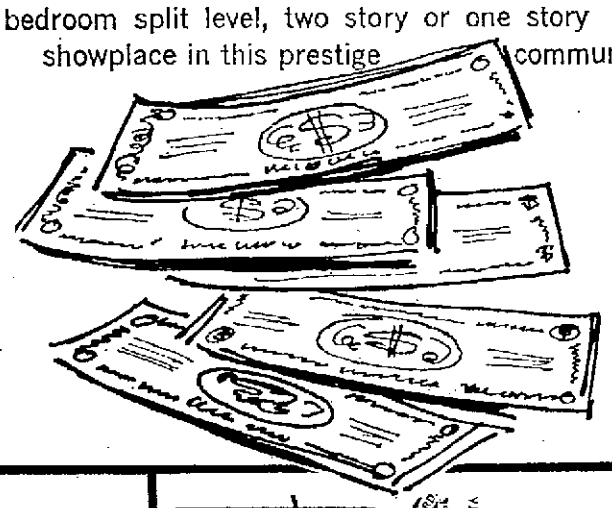

Furnished models are open for inspection daily. In Long Beach drive east on Spring St. across San Gabriel River to El Dorado Park Estates at Claremore, just east of El Dorado Park and Golf Course.

VA Financing Offered at Dutch Haven Units

HOMES WITH APPEAL
Dutch Haven is offering four new communities in Orange County. Attractive interiors have been a trademark in all Dutch Haven developments. Here is a view in one of the homes offered in Sunny Hills West.

Dutch Haven's four newest communities in Orange County — the Dutch Haven Marina Series, Newport-West, Sunny Hills West and the Dutch Haven College Series — are all offering homebuyers the desirable interest rates and down payment regulations available with VA Financing.

Especially remarkable for its inclusion of VA no down terms among its available forms of financing is Sunny Hills West, Dutch Haven's exclusive community in the fashionable hillside area overlooking the Fullerton and La Habra Valleys. According to Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, no down payment terms are rarely available in homes of this particular price range. Prices at Sunny Hills West begin at $29,950. FHA and attractive long-term conventional financing are also available.

* * * *

HOMES AT Sunny Hills West are 3 to 5 bedrooms, with family room, dining room and up to 3 full baths. Floor plans include split level, double level and single level designs.

An outstanding advantage is exclusive use of underground utilities designed to preserve its natural beauty and scenic vistas. Other luxury-inspired features include massive two-way fireplaces with log lighters, complete Medallion kitchens, oversized view lots, sunken living rooms, formal dining areas, imported parquet floors in foyers and up to 2400 sq. ft. of living area.

* * * *

NEWPORT-WEST located near the intersection of Pacific Coast Hwy. and Brookhurst also offers VA no down financing, as well as conventional financing with 10% down payments and 30-year loans.

Priced from $19,750, these homes are three and four bedrooms with family room and 2 baths. Single and double level floor plans are available, all including an exceptionally large master bedroom suite with adjoining dressing area.

* * * *

DUTCH Haven's College Series, located on Edinger Avenue in fast-growing Huntington Beach, also offers a wide selection of financing. Prices start at $20,950, with homes available on VA no down, FHA or Cal-Vet terms.

Homes are three to four bedrooms in size, with family room and up to three baths. Purchasers may select from single or double level plans and from a wide choice of exteriors varying from Tahitian Modern to California Conventional.

Also located in Huntington Beach, the newly opened Dutch Haven Marina Series features a move-in cost of $95 to Vets. Cal-Vet and FHA financing are available in addition to VA terms.

* * * *

PRICES AT the Dutch Haven Marina Series start at $18,950. Homes are three to four bedrooms with up to two baths.

To visit Sunny Hills West: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Riverside Fwy., then east to Euclid, and left to models.

To visit Newport-West: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst Turn-off, south on Brookhurst to models. Or, go south on Pacific Coast Hwy to Brookhurst, left on Brookhurst to models.

To visit the Dutch Haven College Series: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Beach, then south to Edinger, and right to models.

To visit the Dutch Haven Marina Series: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Beach Blvd. Turnoff, then south to Warner, right to Edwards, left on Edwards to homes.

DISCUSSING HOME
Senora Julia de Ghenis, Buenos Aires designer and decorator, discusses their new Scandia home at Sol-Vista International Home Fair with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Westerbach, formerly of Culver City. Left to right: Senora de Ghenis, Mrs. Westerbach, Ben Westerbach and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sharp, West Covina. Senora de Ghenis will conduct Sunday interior design clinics through May, 2-5 p. m., at the International Home Fair.

Among the many visitors last Sunday to the Sol-Vista International Home Fair, in Westminster, were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Westerbach, who recently purchased a Scandia home at the development.

"We are delighted that the International Home Fair builders presented the Buenos Aires interior decorator, Senora Julia de Ghenis, as their guest expert for Sunday interior design clinics," said Mrs. Westerbach. "We talked with her and she was perfectly charming, and answered every question we had about the decorating and furniture arrangement of our wonderful new Scandia home."

* * * *

Senora de Ghenis, noted Buenos Aires interior designer and decorator, will conduct informal design clinics each Sunday, from 2-5 p.m. through the month of May, a special event presented by the Alco-Pacific Company at the International Home Fair sales pavilion, at Bolsa Chica and Westminster Ave., in Westminster.

Model homes presented at the Sol-Vista development are famous for exotic design themes drawn from around the world — Scandinavian, Oriental, South Seas, Mediterranean, Continental, and The Americas. The one and two-story homes provide three, four and five bedrooms, two and two-and-one-half baths, family rooms, sunken living rooms in some plans, handsome raised hearth fireplaces, indoor gardens in entry halls, and built-in Caloric kitchens.

* * * *

AT THE 160-ACRE residential development there are still selections of the unusual one and two-story homes, but Sales Director Baxter Caterson urges interested home-seekers to make selections soon, as the development is rapidly approaching sell-out.

Prices are from $25,350 to $29,600 with FHA, Cal-Vet and conventional financing offered.

The public is invited to visit the Sol-Vista International Home Fair to discuss interior design and decorating questions with Senora de Ghenis Sundays. Model homes are open daily at Bolsa Chica and Westminster Ave., in Westminster.

Big Luxury Residences Open Today

Ray Clark, president of Clark Realty Co. announced a special showing today of two custom designed homes located at 3620 and 3626 Country Club Drive, Lakewood Estates. These two luxurious homes are priced at $74,500 and $75,950 and are the last word in modern day living.

Furnished and color coordinated by Lloyds of Long Beach they are fully carpeted and custom draped, landscaped, fenced, and have complete sprinkler system. These homes are described by the Southern California Edison Co. as "Total Electric" which includes thermostatically controlled heat.

Clark also announced that there are just 16 lots still available on the "Island" that is completely surrounded by the fairways and greens of the Lakewood Country Club for custom designed homes and these lots range in price from $16,000 to $35,000.

'Bonus' of Extras in Wakefield Home

A $1500 package of bonus extras is part of the deal at Wakefield, prestige community of three and four-bedroom, two story, split level and single-story homes in the Fullerton-Placentia hills.

Wall-to-wall carpeting of 100% continuous filament nylon, front lawn and shrubs, rear yard fencing — $1500 worth of necessities you'd have to find cash for if you bought a home elsewhere — are included with each home, according to the management of the Wakefield development.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, a highly flexible program lets the buyer decide whether to put in a pool now $13 a month) or later.

Homes are priced from $24,795 to $27,995. Financing is most attractive: 5% down, 30-year terms; no second trust deeds; no balloon payments.

Features include: Slate entry halls, floor to ceiling Palos Verdes Stone or used brick fireplace, forced-air heating, extra spacious wardrobe closets, heavy shake roofs, concrete driveways and walkways, oversize double garage.

To reach Wakefield, take the Riverside Freeway to State College Blvd. North to Pioneer, jog right one block, then left on Associated to Bastanchury to model homes.

The Award-Winning DIAMOND HEAD

MESA PALOS VERDES

Nowhere in Southern California can you find more award-winning homes in one location than at Mesa Palos Verdes.

For example, there's the Diamond Head. This outstanding four-bedroom tri-level home was awarded the honor of being the 1963 Balanced Power Model Home at the Los Angeles Home Show.

Also, the Diamond Head was given the highly selective Los Angeles Times Housewife's Panel Award as one of the five outstanding home values in Southern California.

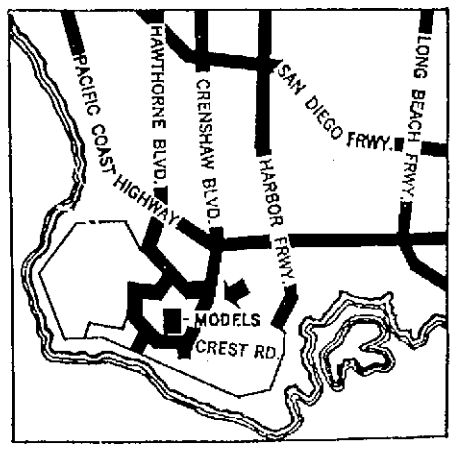

Add to this the unanimous approval of over 240,000 home buyers who have visited this model at Mesa Palos Verdes and the Home Show. And for good measure include the Home Buyer's Comparison League's Trophy for Outstanding Value. The Diamond Head is truly an outstanding award-winning home value. Plan to see it this week.

The Diamond Head is but one of seven award-winning model homes on display daily at Mesa Palos Verdes. Here, at Ray Watt's 38 million dollar country estate community, you will also see a premiere showing of The Hillhaven — selected as the 1964 Los Angeles Home Show Balanced Power Model Home. There's the House Beautiful magazine's much publicized "Home designed by 75 women" model and the exciting Better Homes and Gardens magazine's "Editor's Choice" home.

Seeing all these award-winning homes in one location is a must to anyone planning to buy a home in Southern California. Visit Mesa Palos Verdes. It will be a rewarding experience.

Lucky Store Earnings Up

Lucky Stores' earnings for the first quarter, ended March 29, 1964, were 61.3 per cent above earnings for the comparable period of 1963, on a 14.7 per cent increase in sales, it has been announced by Gerald A. Awes, president.

W. H. FISHER JR.

Consolidated earnings amounted to $826,000, as compared to $512,000 in 1963. This is equivalent to 37 cents per share on 2,203,038 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the quarter, as compared to 2 cents per share for the first quarter of 1963 (after adjustment for a 3 per cent stock dividend).

Consolidated sales for the quarter were $69,081,000, as compared to $60,203,000 last year—an increase of 14.7 per cent.

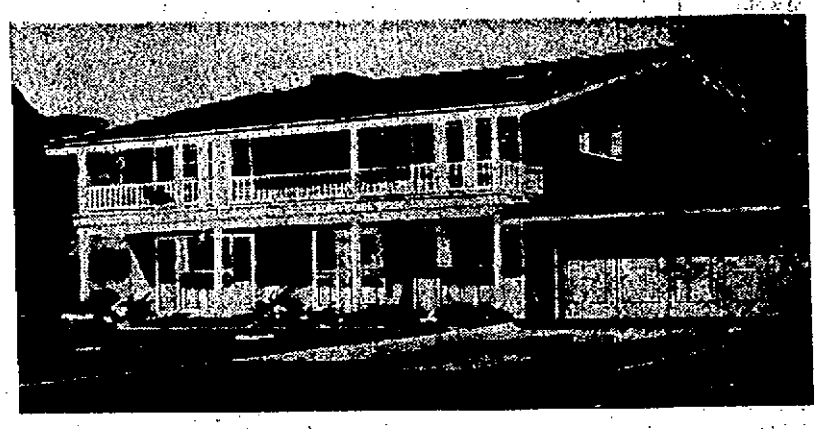

During the quarter, Lucky neither opened nor closed any stores. At the end of the quarter it had 144 stores in operation.

Classes to Help New Contractors

A fourth series of classes dealing with the basic essentials of contracting for newly licensed California building contractors will begin Wednesday with approximately 50 registrants, according to the Building Contractors Association of California, sponsor of the special five-week course.

The free school for new contractors held at the BCA headquarters in Los Angeles, 1571 Beverly Blvd., was begun in January to afford persons just entering the contracting field with a perspective on the problems commonly encountered so that they are better equipped for their new business venture, Rodney J. Hansen, BCA president, declared.

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley Selling at Fast Pace

BIG HOME ON LITTLE DOWN

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley offer homes such as this at moderate prices with as little as $395 down plus costs. It is a Charles W. Hester development.

Excellent sales continue at Cardinal Homes, states Charles W. Hester, developer of the popular Fountain Valley subdivision. According to Hester all models are selling equally good.

Cardinal Homes offer one and two-story dwellings of three, four and five bedrooms with two and three baths.

Among the features of the homes are kitchens with famous Medallion standards including built-in electrical Westinghouse range and double oven, hood and fan, Westinghouse dishwasher, disposal, ash cabinets with raised panel doors and Formica-topped kitchen cabinets.

* * * *

SOME MODELS have a completely finished bonus room of 580 square feet including a bath and shower. This upper story is adaptable to the uses and needs of the buyer and can be two or even three bedrooms, a guest apartment, studio, sewing, recreation or storage room. Some models have fireplaces in the bonus rooms, it was noted.

Other features of Cardinal Homes are block walls affording privacy at the rear and side returns, landscaped front and rear yards with six large shrubs, one six-foot tree and full coverage underground sprinklers installed. This represents an important savings to the new homeowner, it was stated.

* * * *

FIREPLACES are of used brick veneer with ash paneling and mantles, nylon carpeting and brick veneer exteriors are other appointments of Cardinal Homes. Built on pool-size lots, the dwellings can accommodate a variety of recreational and gardening interests as well as swimming pools.

Priced from $23,900 to $28,900, Cardinal Homes are available for as little as $395 down, plus costs. Located in peaceful Fountain Valley, the development is conveniently close to metropolitan advantages of both Orange and Los Angeles counties.

To reach the homes, located on the southwest corner of Cannery and Slater, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst, south to Warner, right to Cannery then left on Cannery to Slater and furnished models. From Long Beach, drive out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Brookhurst and follow directions above.

Hails Growth of Air-Vent

Air-Vent Aluminum Co., west's largest manufacturer of patio covers, screened-in patios and trailer shades, has announced its 750,000th installation, according to Pat Donohue, Long Beach branch manager, 5333 Long Beach Blvd.

This milestone in the company's history occurs in its 18th year. The company was founded in 1946 by Olin Stapp. He, and his associates starting from scratch have grown to an organization that did more than $4 million in volume during 1963.

Air-Vent has participated in such important projects as Rossmoor Leisure World, Seal Beach, and is developing custom designed patios and shades for another large senior citizens housing project.

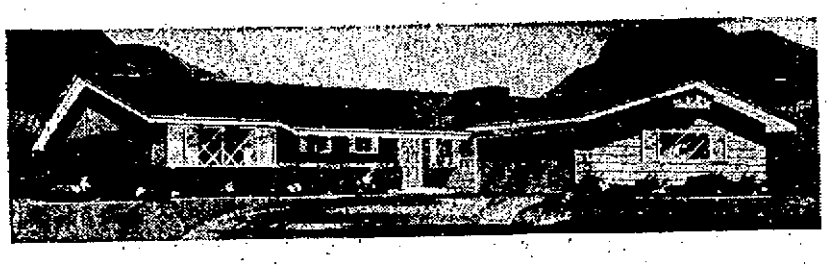

It designed a prize winning screened-in patio for the 1963 Los Angeles Flower Show.

Olin predicted the firm would do a $6 million volume this year.

Dana Point Knolls Has Trade-in Plan

HOME IN CAPISTRANO HILLS
Here is one of various attractive models offered at Dana Point Knolls where veterans may buy for nothing down. The homes are located in Capistrano Hills overlooking the Mission.

A unique trade-in program has been initiated at Dana Point Knolls, Butler-Harbour's new Valley View community, reports Mrs. Gene Harding of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents.

"Here, where land values are increasing constantly, one can select the home of his dreams," continued Mrs. Harding. "Then Walker & Lee will appraise their present home and through the real estate firm's 19 offices throughout the Orange County-Long Beach area, save them all the nuisance involved in selling their home."

Dana Point Knolls is situated in smog free Capistrano Hills, overlooking the historic San Juan Capistrano Mission, the view dwellings are classically California in architecture, Mrs. Harding said.

* * * *

THE balanced-power three and four-bedroom homes feature two or more pullman baths with wall-to-wall mirrors; complete kitchens with built-in ranges, ovens, dishwashers and disposals; oversized garages with boat doors; customized fireplaces with gas log lighters; and separate family rooms.

Their research-proven floor plans assure individual family members privacy-space, a necessity in today's living, Mrs. Harding noted.

No down, costs or impounds are required of veterans. FHA and conventional terms with minimum down are offered.

To visit the models open from 10 a.m. until dusk, take the Pacific Coast Hwy. to Del Obispo Rd. and left to the site.

100 Per Cent Sales Gain for Farrow

Farrow Realty Corp., Garden Grove-based general brokerage firm, has recorded $12 million in home sales during the first three months of 1964, Jerry Farrow, owner, announces.

The volume represents an increase of 100 per cent over the same period in 1963 by the eight offices and new home sales division of the 22-year-old firm.

Farrow said the record increase in sales is a direct result of a professionally-trained management team working together.

"Each of the managers in our offices are thoroughly trained real estate specialists, capable of serving buyers in all kinds of real estate transactions," he said.

* * * *

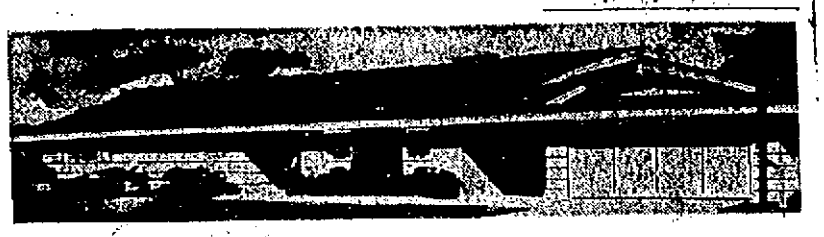

OPERATING in several rapidly expanding Orange County communities, Farrow Realty has an office in Garden Grove managed by Skeets Renner, one in East Anaheim managed by Frank Rohm, one in Santa Ana managed by Mark Corcoran, one in Costa Mesa managed by Russ O'Buch and one each in Fullerton and Buena Park, both managed by Dave Rams. Dick Murray is new home sales director for the firm.

"All offices are connected by teletype machines providing our personnel with a high-speed, direct communications system at all times for new listings, sales reports, and other information vital to our business," Farrow explained.

Farrow plans to open two new offices in the immediate future.

OFFERED IN CORONA
Homes such as this are offered in Corona de Oro, new subdivision at Corona. The developer says land prices there are $3,000 under similar ones in Orange County.

Low Cost Stressed for Corona de Oro

Many buyers from Orange County have bought in Corona de Oro, new Corona subdivision, states Leroy V. Williams, developer. Possibly the biggest reason for this sales activity is that these buyers realize that while Corona is only 20 minutes from Orange County, land prices there are much lower and a buyer actually gets about $3,000 more house for his money in Corona, Williams added.

Corona de Oro offers dwellings of three and four bedrooms, family room and two baths. Outstanding features include built-in range, oven and dishwasher, refrigerated air conditioning and forced air heating, built-in snack bar, shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighter, double front doors and slate entry ways. All streets, sewers and street lights are in and paid for, Williams states.

The homes are priced from $22,500 to $24,150. The development features "tailored financing" to the buyers needs offering FHA, VA and Conventional Financing. The monthly payments are from $108.89 which includes principal and interest.

Visitors from Orange County are directed to go out the Riverside Freeway and take the Sixth Street entry into Corona, turn right on Main Street to Hacienda and right again to furnished models.

Plan More Sun City Shopping Facilities

SUN CITY — Business, as well as population, is swelling at Del Webb's Sun City.

With almost 4,000 homeowning residents now living on land that produced farm crops less than two years ago, demands for more goods and services have resulted in plans for nearly tripling present shopping and service facilities in this over-50 retirement community.

The prsent shopping center with 11 businesses including a nursery and service station has grossed two and one-half million dollars since it was opened in November of 1962, when fewer than 100 residents were living here.

* * * *

BASED ON first quarter gross figures, 1964 is expected to see the Sun City merchants ring up more than $2,000,000 this year. This does not include postal receipts, although Sun City has its own post office in the shopping center.

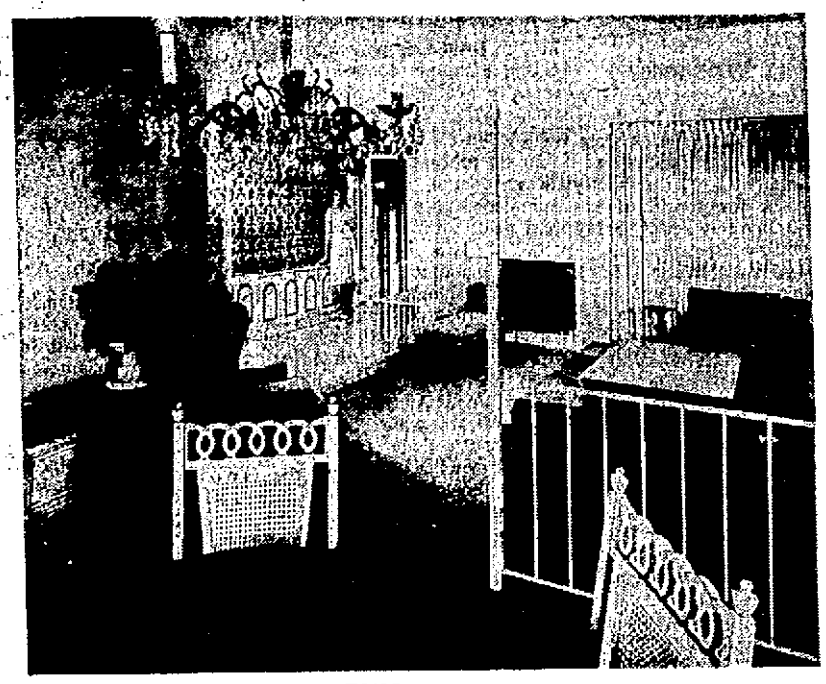

The rapid influx of retirees to Sun City has brought about the need for additional shopping facilities and plans to enlarge the shopping center from a single building of 34,000 square feet to a complex with 78,000 square feet under cover have been announced by the developing Del E. Webb Corporation.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the enlarged center, Security First National Bank has outgrown its leased facilities in the present structure, has purchased ground adjacent to the center and is in the process of constructing a bank building.

The Webb long range general plan calls for development of the more than 14,000 acres into a population near 100,000 in the next 10 to 20 years and calls for the development of commercial facilities to keep pace with the anticipated growth.

Varied Financing Plans on Fashion Shores Home

MOTHER WOULD LOVE THIS
Sunken living rooms and a formal dining area are just two of the many features of Fashion Shores homes in Huntington Beach. The very large one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes are priced from $23,900. What better gift for Mother's Day?

The many new owners in Fashion Shores Homes, located within walking distance of Huntington Beach State Park in the city of Huntington Beach, have been able to purchase a new home by taking advantage of the many forms of financing made available to them by the builder-developer, Marvin B. Johnson.

Johnson pointed out that the major forms of financing: No down VA, low FHA terms, and conventional, were all available; but, in many cases, potential buyers were able to purchase a Fashion Shores Home because he was able to put together a financial package that could meet the individual requirements of each buyer.

"We have had buyers who could not qualify for a government loan," Johnson continued, "yet have made down payments of anywhere from $10,000 to the full purchase price. At the other end of the scale, we've had young couples who could not meet the down payment figure yet their credit standing was so good we were able to work out the financial arrangement needed to allow them to purchase the home they wanted—a Fashion Shores Home."

* * * *

THE VERY big one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes with up to 3,157 sq. ft. under roof, are priced from $23,900. Major features include a formal dining area and sunken living room in the two-story homes; side and rear yard fencing; nylon wall-to-wall carpeting in all bedrooms, living room, halls and stairways; among many others.

The beautifully furnished model homes, four in all, are open daily from 10 a.m., to dusk. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh St., to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39). Turn right to Atlantic Ave., left on Atlanta to Cannery, right to the corner of Cannery and Hamilton and the homes.

L.B. Building Pace Slows

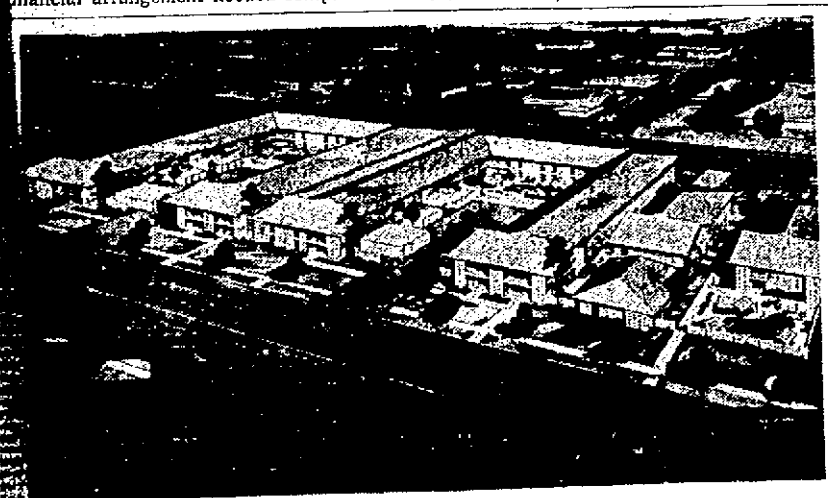

New building activity in Long Beach reached a valuation of $5,141,540 for 2,183 projects in April, city building officials have disclosed.

Last month's volume was down 17 per cent from the March figure of $6,164,157 for 2,229 permits. It represented a decrease of 21 per cent from April, 1963, when the record was $6,508,560 for 2,324 projects.

Residential construction in April was within one per cent of the March level—$2,266,495 for 90 family units as compared with $2,254,700 for 178 units. Last month's home construction, however, was a 35 per cent drop from the $3,446,375 recorded for 562 units in April, 1963.

The over-all building total this year, $33,048,219 for 8,780 permits, is a 5 per cent slump from the first four months of last year, which produced $34,937,610 for 8,793 projects.

This is equivalent to 37 cents per share on 2,203,038 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the quarter, as compared to 2 cents per share for the first quarter of 1963 (after adjustment for a 3 per cent stock dividend).

Consolidated sales for the quarter were $69,081,000, as compared to $60,203,000 last year—an increase of 14.7 per cent.

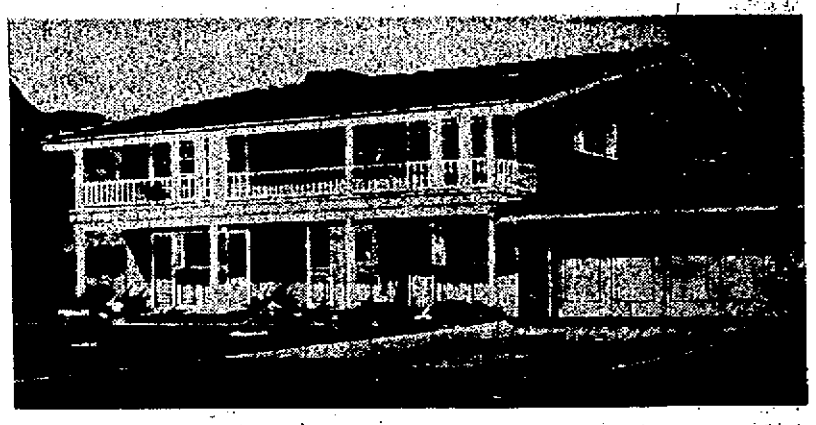

During the quarter, Lucky neither opened nor closed any stores. At the end of the quarter it had 144 stores in operation.

Classes to Help New Contractors

A fourth series of classes dealing with the basic essentials of contracting for newly licensed California building contractors will begin Wednesday with approximately 50 registrants, according to the Building Contractors Association of California, sponsor of the special five-week course.

The free school for new contractors held at the BCA headquarters in Los Angeles, 1571 Beverly Blvd., was begun in January to afford persons just entering the contracting field with a perspective on the problems commonly encountered so that they are better equipped for their new business venture, Rodney J. Hansen, BCA president, declared.

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley Selling at Fast Pace

BIG HOME ON LITTLE DOWN

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley offer homes such as this at moderate prices with as little as $395 down plus costs. It is a Charles W. Hester development.

Excellent sales continue at Cardinal Homes, states Charles W. Hester, developer of the popular Fountain Valley subdivision. According to Hester all models are selling equally good.

Cardinal Homes offer one- and two-story dwellings of three, four and five bedrooms with two and three baths.

Among the features of the homes are kitchens with famous Medallion standards including built-in electrical Westinghouse range and double oven, hood and fan, Westinghouse dishwasher, disposal, ash cabinets with raised panel doors and Formica-topped kitchen cabinets.

* * * *

SOME MODELS have a completely finished bonus room of 580 square feet including a bath and shower. This upper story is adaptable to the uses and needs of the buyer and can be two or even three bedrooms, a guest apartment, studio, sewing, recreation or storage room. Some models have fireplaces in the bonus rooms, it was noted.

Other features of Cardinal Homes are block walls affording privacy at the rear and side returns, landscaped front and rear yards with six large shrubs, one six-foot tree and full coverage underground sprinklers installed. This represents an important savings to the new homeowner, it was stated.

* * * *

FIREPLACES are of used brick veneer with ash paneling and mantles, nylon carpeting and brick veneer exteriors are other appointments of Cardinal Homes. Built on pool-size lots, the dwellings can accommodate a variety of recreational and gardening interests as well as swimming pools.

Priced from $23,900 to $28,900, Cardinal Homes are available for as little as $395 down, plus costs. Located in peaceful Fountain Valley, the development is conveniently close to metropolitan advantages of both Orange and Los Angeles counties.

To reach the homes, located on the southwest corner of Cannery and Slater, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst, south to Warner, right to Cannery then left on Cannery to Slater and furnished models. From Long Beach, drive out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Brookhurst and follow directions above.

Hails Growth of Air-Vent

Air-Vent Aluminum Co., west's largest manufacturer of patio covers, screened-in patios and trailer shades, has announced its 750,000th installation, according to Pat Donohue, Long Beach branch manager, 5333 Long Beach Blvd.

This milestone in the company's history occurs in its 18th year. The company was founded in 1946 by Olin Stapp. He, and his associates starting from scratch have grown to an organization that did more than $4 million in volume during 1963.

Air-Vent has participated in such important projects as Rossmoor Leisure World, Seal Beach, and is developing custom designed patios and shades for another large senior citizens housing project.

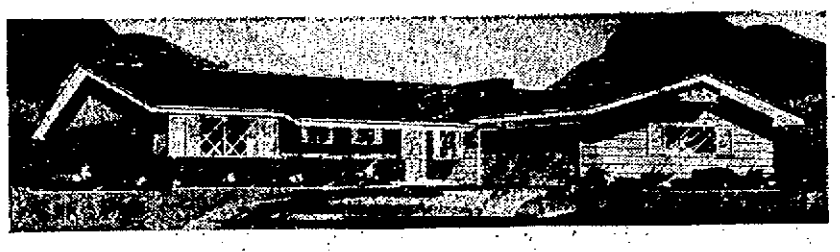

It designed a prize winning screened-in patio for the 1963 Los Angeles Flower Show.

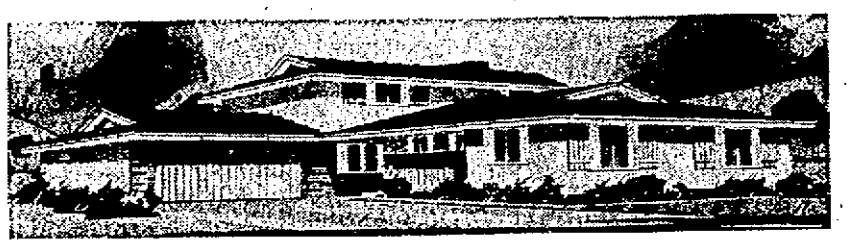

Olin predicted the firm would do a $6 million volume this year.

Dana Point Knolls Has Trade-in Plan

HOME IN CAPISTRANO HILLS
Here is one of various attractive models offered at Dana Point Knolls where veterans may buy for nothing down. The homes are located in Capistrano Hills overlooking the Mission.

A unique trade-in program has been initiated at Dana Point Knolls, Butler-Harbour's new Valley View community, reports Mrs. Gene Harding of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents.

"Here, where land values are increasing constantly, one can select the home of his dreams," continued Mrs. Harding. "Then Walker & Lee will appraise their present home and through the real estate firm's 19 offices throughout the Orange County-Long Beach area, save them all the nuisance involved in selling their home."

Dana Point Knolls is situated in smog free Capistrano Hills, overlooking the historic San Juan Capistrano Mission, the view dwellings are classically California in architecture, Mrs. Harding said.

* * * *

THE balanced-power three and four-bedroom homes feature two or more pullman baths with wall-to-wall mirrors; complete kitchens with built-in ranges, ovens, dishwashers and disposals; oversized garages with boat doors; customized fireplaces with gas log lighters; and separate family rooms.

Their research-proven floor plans assure individual family members privacy-space, a necessity in today's living, Mrs. Harding noted.

No down, costs or impounds are required of veterans. FHA and conventional terms with minimum down are offered.

To visit the models open from 10 a.m. until dusk, take the Pacific Coast Hwy. to Del Obispo Rd. and left to the site.

100 Per Cent Sales Gain for Farrow

Farrow Realty Corp., Garden Grove-based general brokerage firm, has recorded $12 million in home sales during the first three months of 1964, Jerry Farrow, owner, announces.

The volume represents an increase of 100 per cent over the same period in 1963 by the eight offices and new home sales division of the 22-year-old firm.

Farrow said the record increase in sales is a direct result of a professionally-trained management team working together.

"Each of the managers in our offices are thoroughly trained real estate specialists, capable of serving buyers in all kinds of real estate transactions," he said.

* * * *

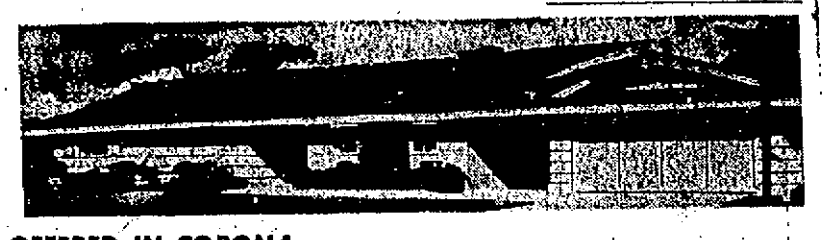

OPERATING in several rapidly expanding Orange County communities, Farrow Realty has an office in Garden Grove managed by Skeets Renner, one in East Anaheim managed by Frank Rohm, one in Santa Ana managed by Mark Corcoran, one in Costa Mesa managed by Russ O'Buch and one each in Fullerton and Buena Park, both managed by Dave Rams. Dick Murray is new home sales director for the firm.

"All offices are connected by teletype machines providing our personnel with a high-speed, direct communications system at all times for new listings, sales reports, and other information vital to our business," Farrow explained.

Farrow plans to open two new offices in the immediate future.

OFFERED IN CORONA
Homes such as this are offered in Corona de Oro, new subdivision at Corona. The developer says land prices there are $3,000 under similar ones in Orange County.

Low Cost Stressed for Corona de Oro

Many buyers from Orange County have bought in Corona de Oro, new Corona subdivision, states Leroy V. Williams, developer. Possibly the biggest reason for this sales activity is that these buyers realize that while Corona is only 20 minutes from Orange County, land prices there are much lower and a buyer actually gets about $3,000 more house for his money in Corona, Williams added.

Corona de Oro offers dwellings of three and four bedrooms, family room and two baths. Outstanding features include built-in range, oven and dishwasher, refrigerated air conditioning and forced air heating, built-in snack bar, shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighter, double front doors and slate entry ways. All streets, sewers and street lights are in and paid for, Williams states.

The homes are priced from $22,500 to $24,150. The development features "tailored financing" to the buyers needs offering FHA, VA and Conventional Financing. The monthly payments are from $108.89 which includes principal and interest.

Visitors from Orange County are directed to go out the Riverside Freeway and take the Sixth Street entry into Corona, turn right on Main Street to Hacienda and right again to furnished models.

Plan More Sun City Shopping Facilities

SUN CITY — Business, as well as population, is swelling at Del Webb's Sun City.

With almost 4,000 homeowning residents now living on land that produced farm crops less than two years ago, demands for more goods and services have resulted in plans for nearly tripling present shopping and service facilities in this over-50 retirement community.

The prsent shopping center with 11 businesses including a nursery and service station has grossed two and one-half million dollars since it was opened in November of 1962, when fewer than 100 residents were living here.

* * * *

BASED ON first quarter gross figures, 1964 is expected to see the Sun City merchants ring up more than $2,000,000 this year. This does not include postal receipts, although Sun City has its own post office in the shopping center.

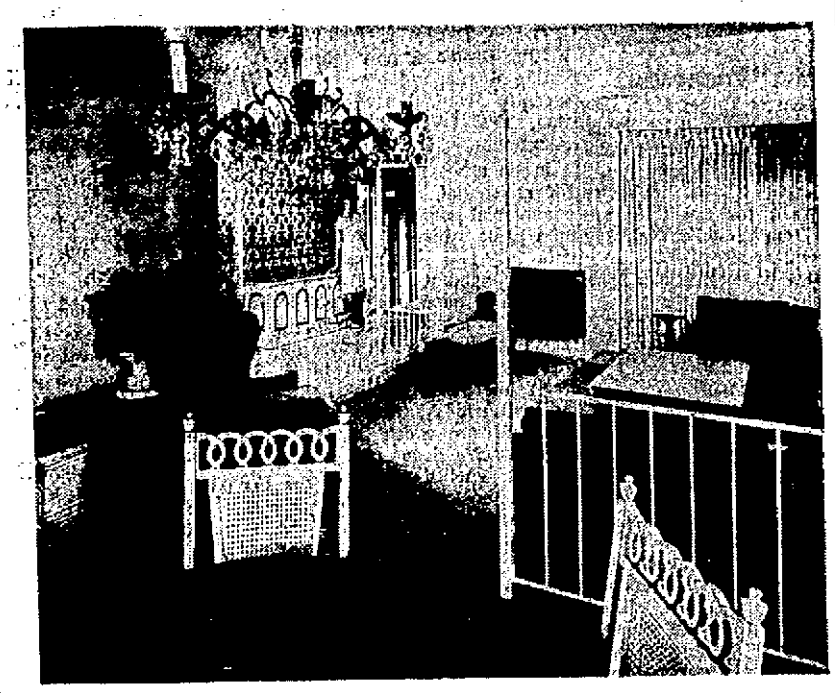

The rapid influx of retirees to Sun City has brought about the need for additional shopping facilities and plans to enlarge the shopping center from a single building of 34,000 square feet to a complex with 78,000 square feet under cover have been announced by the developing Del E. Webb Corporation.

* * * *

IN ADDITION to the enlarged center, Security First National Bank has outgrown its leased facilities in the present structure, has purchased ground adjacent to the center and is in the process of constructing a bank building.

The Webb long range general plan calls for development of the more than 14,000 acres into a population near 100,000 in the next 10 to 20 years and calls for the development of commercial facilities to keep pace with the anticipated growth.

Varied Financing Plans on Fashion Shores Home

MOTHER WOULD LOVE THIS
Sunken living rooms and a formal dining area are just two of the many features of Fashion Shores homes in Huntington Beach. The very large one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes are priced from $23,900. What better gift for Mother's Day?

The many new owners in Fashion Shores Homes, located within walking distance of Huntington Beach State Park in the city of Huntington Beach, have been able to purchase a new home by taking advantage of the many forms of financing made available to them by the builder-developer, Marvin B. Johnson.

Johnson pointed out that the major forms of financing: No down VA, low FHA terms, and conventional, were all available; but, in many cases, potential buyers were able to purchase a Fashion Shores Home because he was able to put together a financial package that could meet the individual requirements of each buyer.

"We have had buyers who could not qualify for a government loan," Johnson continued, "yet have made down payments of anywhere from $10,000 to the full purchase price. At the other end of the scale, we've had young couples who could not meet the down payment figure yet their credit standing was so good we were able to work out the financial arrangement needed to allow them to purchase the home they wanted—a Fashion Shores Home."

* * * *

THE VERY big one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes with up to 3,157 sq. ft. under roof, are priced from $23,900. Major features include a formal dining area and sunken living room in the two-story homes; side and rear yard fencing; nylon wall-to-wall carpeting in all bedrooms, living room, halls and stairways; among many others.

The beautifully furnished model homes, four in all, are open daily from 10 a.m., to dusk. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh St., to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39). Turn right to Atlantic Ave., left on Atlanta to Cannery, right to the corner of Cannery and Hamilton and the homes.

L.B. Building Pace Slows

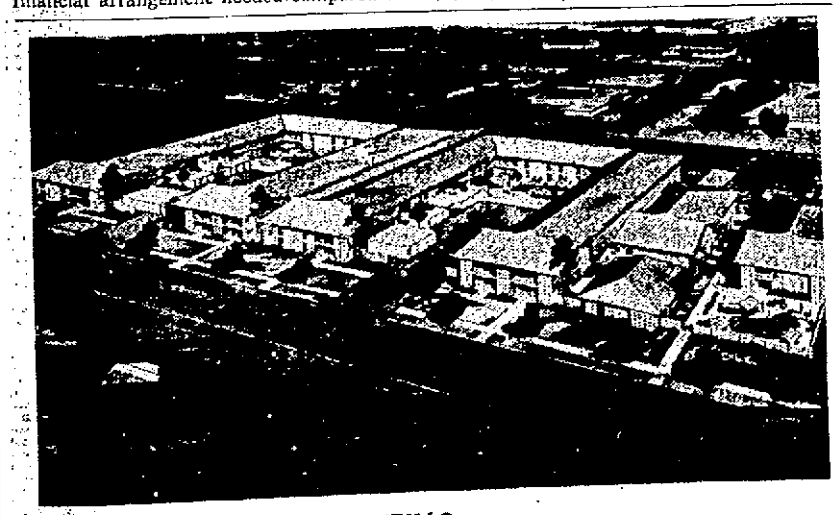

New building activity in Long Beach reached a valuation of $5,141,540 for 2,183 projects in April, city building officials have disclosed.

Last month's volume was down 17 per cent from the March figure of $6,164,157 for 2,229 permits. It represented a decrease of 21 per cent from April, 1963, when the record was $6,508,560 for 2,324 projects.

Residential construction in April was within one per cent of the March level—$2,266,495 for 90 family units as compared with $2,254,700 for 178 units. Last month's home construction, however, was a 35 per cent drop from the $3,446,375 recorded for 562 units in April, 1963.

The over-all building total this year, $33,048,219 for 8,780 permits, is a 5 per cent slump from the first four months of last year, which produced $34,937,610 for 8,793 projects.

Award Winning Homes Offered in Mesa Palos Verdes Project

IN HOME WITH VIEW
Here is an interior picture of a Mesa Palos Verdes home in the new Ray Watt development high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula where wonderful views are provided.

Nowhere in Southern California can home buyers find more award-winning homes in one location than at Mesa Palos Verdes, Developer Ray Watt's new $38,000,000 prestige project high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Custom three, four and five-bedroom award-winning model homes are available in Mesa Palos Verdes in single, two-story, split-level and tri-level plans. A total of 30 different exteriors give infinite variety to the seven different plans.

For example, there's The Diamond Head. This outstanding four-bedroom tri-level home was awarded the honor of being the 1963 Balanced Power Model Home at the Los Angeles Home Show. Also, the Diamond Head was named by the Los Angeles Times Housewives' Panel as one of the five outstanding home values in Southern California.

* * * *

ADDED TO this is the unanimous approval of over 240,000 home buyers who have visited this model at Mesa Palos Verdes and the Home Show. The Diamond Head also won the Home Buyers' Comparison League's Trophy for Outstanding Value. The Diamond Head is truly an outstanding award-winning home value.

The Mesa Palos Verdes development was planned to appeal to discriminating tastes. All utilities are underground, and a curved street pattern with "child-safe" cul-de-sacs is featured. All these fully-carpeted homes have O'Keefe and Merritt color-coordinated built-ins, oversized closets, forced-aid and fireplace with gas log lighters.

Seven furnished models are at the corner of Crenshaw Blvd., and Crest Road, open daily from 10 a.m., until dark.

Cloyd to Address Forum Wednesday

"Theater Target for a City on the Grow" will be discussed at the Long Beach Community Forum Wednesday.

Marvin Cloyd, publicity chairman for the third annual Drama Day Festival, May 23, will speak.

Cloyd has been one of Long Beach's busiest and most distinguished actors, having appeared in more than 20 plays at the Community Playhouse. He also has starred at the Magnolia Theater and in Civic Light Opera Association productions.

MARVIN CLOYD

Sponsored weekly by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, the Forum is conducted in the Crown Cafeteria, First Street and Alamitos Avenue, beginning at 7:15 a.m.

NEW PLANT OPEN
Jim Orman stands beside a section of a large fabricated aluminum door which his new firm in Paramount is producing, using products of two other Paramount firms.

Firm in Paramount Fabricating Doors

Orman Door Co., headed by Jim Orman, is now fabricating aluminum doors at its recently acquired new location, 15732 Vermont Ave., Paramount.

In its processing of doors for residential, industrial or commercial purposes, the Orman plant utilizes the products of two other Paramount manufacturing concerns. The aluminum extrusions (a processed aluminum which gives this otherwise soft metal the strength of steel) are made locally by the Jay Woods Aluminum Co. The hardware which makes even massive doors easy to open, is supplied by the nationally known Tavart Co. of Paramount.

The central location of the Orman plant, accessible by numerous freeways serving Long Beach area and Orange Counties, is expected to be an important factor in the growth and development of the new enterprise.

The plant has facilities for immediate expansion to meet growing demands.

Orman, a state licensed door contractor since 1956, has long been active in Paramount and Long Beach civic and business affairs.

Appraiser to Talk on Condemnations

"The Condemnation Appraisal" will be discussed at the Wednesday dinner meeting of Long Beach Chapter 94, Society of Real Estate Appraisers, at the Captain's Inn.

GEO. FISHER

Speaker will be George Fisher, S.R.-E.A., according to James Hoffman Jr., program chairman. Fisher has specialized in condemnation appraisals since 1955. He has made appraisals for numerous government agencies and private corporations.

Long Beach Chapter 94 has 146 members.

Construction Is Speeded in Laguna Leisure World

JUST TRY AND COUNT 'EM

One thousand and 18 luxury share-ownership manors, comprising the first two units of Rossmoor Leisure World at Laguna Hills, are under construction. Move-in date for owners is set for Sept. 1 at Ross W. Cortese's $375 million luxury country club community. There will be 18,000 manors built when the "people-over-52" community is completed.

Construction is proceeding at a fast pace at Ross W. Cortese's luxury country club "People-Over-52" community, Rossmoor Leisure World at Laguna Hills.

Building of the first unit of 1018 share-ownership manors is progressing at the rate of 12 foundations and wall-framing installations a day, William G. Brangham, national sales manager, announced.

Target move-in dates for the owners of these manors is Sept. 1, Brangham said. "More than 100,000 persons have visited the $375 million community since last December, he said.

* * * *

NEW RECREATION facilities completed, aside from the first of seven clubhouses at cost of $750,000 and the first of two $125,000 swimming pools, are the extensive stables and golf courses.

Landscaping of trails leading from the stables is now underway.

Unit Three will go on sale in the immediate future.

The completed California mission style clubhouse contains lavish sitting-and-dining room area equipped with kitchen for serving over 100 persons.

Seven clubhouses will be built for the community, the others to be constructed as soon as various mutual corporations are sold and occupied.

* * * *

SINCE RECREATION forms a major part of the Cortese retirement concept, these clubhouses will contain shuffleboard and roque courts, lawn bowling installations, card rooms, libraries, tour excursion headquarters, dancing areas, classrooms for adult education courses and dining rooms for family occasions.

A nominal monthly payment includes principal, interest, taxes, insurance, complete exterior maintenance of house, lawns, gardens, sidewalks and streets; an intra-community transportation system, a 24-hour security guard; 80 per cent of costs at the community's Medical Center and an $12,000,000 hospital when completed, including all prescription drugs; enjoyment of all recreation facilities, and an all-electric kitchen.

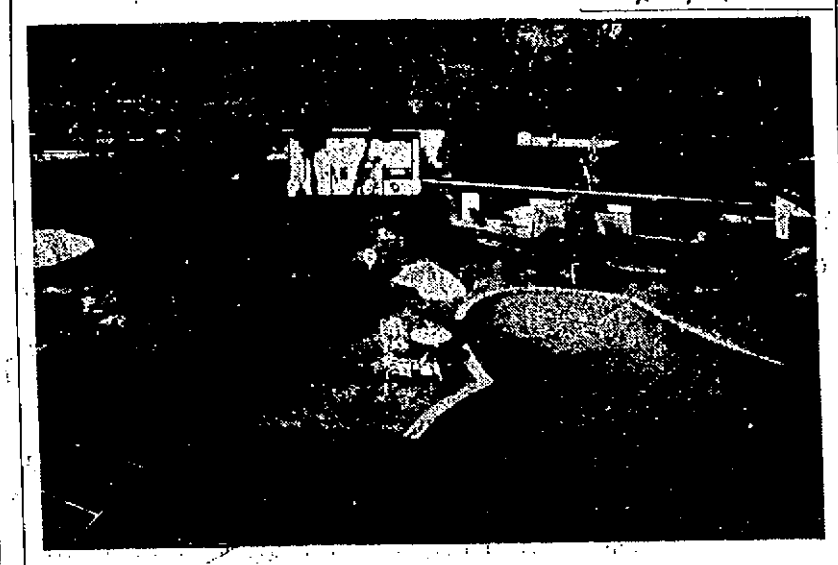

* * * *

ONE-BEDROOM manors start at $11,095, with total down payments beginning at $1187. A portion of this down payment, $335 to $347, represents the cost of a share of stock in a mutual corporation, which, together with the execution of an occupancy agreement, entitles the buyer to occupy the one-bedroom share-ownership manor of his choice in purchases.

Initial monthly payments for one-bedroom manors start at $145, subject to possible modifications. Prices for two-bedroom manors start at $13,795, with total down payments beginning at $1360. A portion of the down payment, $416 to $497, represents the cost of a share of stock in a mutual corporation.

Purchasers must be 52 years or older. No physical examination is required prior to purchase.

RECREATION AREA FOR RESIDENTS

First Families Are Occupying New Horizons-South Bay Units

The first two of several hundred couples who have purchased homes in New Horizons-South Bay moved in this past week, Bob Norton, Sales Director, announced.

"This milestone in New Horizons development marks the realization of dreams of engineers, architects, designers, land-planners and developers — the development in fact of New Horizons-South Bay—going back for almost five years," Norton explained.

* * * *

NEW HORIZONS - South Bay originally was the adult recreation concept of one man —Ray Watt—one of the Southland's leading builder-developers, who placed the creative, financial and practical resources of one of the nation's largest home-building organizations to work in the design, construction and execution of what is regarded as one of Southern California's most advanced development of its kind.

Norton said that the new all-underground electric system, one of the first to be installed in the Southland, is particularly effective because of the project's land plan, resulting in no interior streets and with homes grouped in clusters about landscaped malls.

Norton also said that all utilities underground had proved to be a strong point in the sale of more than 250 garden homes in 10 weeks.

* * * *

WHEN COMPLETED, New Horizons will include 600 Gold Medallion garden homes, in addition to the extensive recreation and meeting facilities represented by the Town Hall. Home buyers have a share in their own nine-hole golf course and the Town Hall, which includes a lounge, assembly room, billiard room, golf shop and photo lab.

Other facilities include two swimming pools, horseshoe pits, badminton, paddle and regular tennis courts, barbeque rings and shuffleboard decks.

Residency, according to Norton, is limited to families in which one spouse must be 35 or older, single persons must be at least 35, and no children under 18 may be permanent residents.

Furnished models are open daily on Sepulveda between Crenshaw and Hawthorne Blvds. in Torrance.

MEREDITH ACRES OPENS TODAY

Music for the Merry Month of May

By ELISE EMERY

For its festive May concert, Long Beach Symphony Orchestra will perform Smetana's gay, lively opera, "The Bartered Bride," next Sunday at 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

No ordinary concert, this will be the orchestra's most ambitious undertaking and will combine the talents of vocalists, dancers and musicians.

The opera in concert form uses a chorus of 225 voices, outstanding soloists, and a company of 20 dancers.

Lauris Jones will conduct the full orchestra—not the usually smaller opera orchestra—and John Ingle will serve as both narrator and stage director.

The principal roles will be sung by four professional musicians, Grace Lynne Martin, Richard Riffell, Richard Robinson and William Vennard. Each has had extensive experience in opera and is well-known to Southern California audiences.

ON STAGE, the large chorus—the combined choruses of Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach—will sing and, in a spotlighted area, the principals will perform with simple action. The orchestra will be seated on the floor of the auditorium in front of the stage.

Although there will not be an attempt to stage the opera, there will be some stage "decorations" and the colorfully costumed dancers will enhance the performance.

Stanley Hall has done fresh, new choreography for the full ballet, the fair scene and incidental dances which Audrey Share will direct.

Even before the audience enters the auditorium, the happy mood of the evening will be set, for this will be the orchestra's annual Flower Night. Each person who renews his ticket subscription will be asked to "Pick a Posy." Long Beach Symphony Guild will supply the flowers.

Tickets are on sale at Long Beach Symphony Association, 1935 E. Seventh St., and at Humphreys Music Co., 135 E. Third St.

LAURIS JONES conducts Long Beach Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal of "The Bartered Bride." When he composed the work in 1866, Smetana drew on the melodies of his beloved homeland, Bohemia, for inspiration.

SEVEN DANCES, including a full ballet and a spirited fair scene complete with acrobats, will enliven the concert program. Combining laughter and lovely music, "The Bartered Bride" is considered masterpiece of comic opera.

Jackie's Famous Smile Again Charms a Nation

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—It is late spring now and the tourists are coming in increasing numbers for a look at the stately Georgetown home of Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Police try to keep the traffic moving, but the narrow street is almost always congested —day and night.

It's nearly a half-year since that tragic day in Dallas but an admiring and adoring public is still eager to keep track of the former First Lady. The 34-year-old widow has retained some of the formal trappings of mourning, but has begun to resume her own life.

She looks her old self when seen in public. Her smile is there again, the photogenic one that looked out from so many happy pictures in White House days.

Friends say Mrs. Kennedy is fine. She has been dining out with friends, has taken skiing and Caribbean vacations and even enjoyed an afternoon at the circus with her children.

Mrs. Kennedy has been devoting her time mainly to Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, and to memorials for her husband.

SHE HAS MUCH of the privacy she yearned for. Her travels are unannounced. She frequently goes unrecognized. On one recent trip, she went unreported for four days in New York City. But, the former First Lady can never be just a private citizen.

Police have posted "emergency, no parking anytime" signs to keep space for six cars in front of Mrs. Kennedy's house.

Many limousines drive up there. It has become something of protocol for famous women to call on the President's widow. The visitors have included the wife of Italy's President Antonio Segni, Queen Frederika of Greece, and the wife of Britain's Prime Minister, Lady Douglas-Home.

Perhaps the most frequent caller is Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, 38-year-old brother of the President, who pops in many an afternoon when he thinks Mrs. Kennedy's spirits may need bolstering.

He and Mrs. Kennedy's 30-year-old sister, Lee Radziwill of London, have been constant companions of Mrs. Kennedy since the tragedy.

Dave Powers, a friend and assistant to Kennedy, still turns up every day to lunch with John Jr.

FIRST MAJOR decision after she left the White House was to find a permanent home. In the only private interview she gave after the assassination, she said: "I'm going to live in the places I lived with Jack—in Georgetown and with the Kennedys at the Cape. They're my family."

In early December, Mrs. Kennedy purchased a 170-year-old federal-style, three-story brick house on "N" Street in Georgetown, the same street where she and Kennedy lived when he was a senator.

She is only around the corner, too, from the recently purchased and refurbished big yellow-painted brick house of her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

Mrs. Kennedy still makes frequent visits to her husband's grave in Arlington National Cemetery. She also has met frequently with the architect, John Warneke, whom she has asked to design a permanent memorial at the grave.

HUNDREDS of letters continue to come to Mrs. Kennedy daily. Dozens of nations have invited her to visit. But so far she has accepted none of the offers. She did accept the gift of a palace in Morocco from the king, whom she had met on vacation there last fall.

Mrs. Kennedy's major efforts have been in behalf of the Kennedy Memorial Library to be built on the campus of Harvard University. She has been working to help raise $8 million to build the library, has met with architects and designers and has joined with the Kennedy family in working out details of the library.

One of the building's unusual features is an oral history section, which will have tape-recorded interviews with persons who took part in major events and decisions of Kennedy's career. All of the Kennedy family, friends and staff plan to help provide this unique record for the library.

Mrs. Kennedy already has started sessions with the interviewer she selected, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., the historian who was friend and advisor to Kennedy. Together they are talking for posterity about the late President.

MRS. KENNEDY has no money worries. The late President was reported to have had holdings amounting to some $10 million. His will provided that one-half of the estate be held in trust for Mrs. Kennedy, and the other half go into a trust for the children.

The only home Mrs. Kennedy had of her

Trails, Travels, Trials and Tra La Las

"I'd love to go, fellas—but couldn't we make it some other weekend?

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

"AW, COME ON, LADY, it won't be that tough," said Ben Knight (right, above) to his horse, pretty good horse with, for that moment, at least, an unsyncopated gait, as Bob McNulty tried to convince her it was time to go.

Men and horse were in process of leaving for this past week's hoity toity Los Ranchros Visitadores traditional horsemen's trek from Santa Barbara to Santa Ynez. In one of the most exciting mass horseback rides in the country, the Visitadores, about 500 strong, rode, as they have for years, through the rolling hills and back country.

Considering the weather, perhaps Lady's ". . . but I don't WANT to go to Santa Barbara" expression was as prophetic for equines as Omarr's is for people.

Others from Long Beach on the ride this year were Hal Haney, Frank Vessels Jr., Fred Dean, Jim Bragg and Ed Edmundson.

They rode about 20 miles each day, as is the custom. At the end of every junket a very well stocked chuck wagon, with full camp crew on the ready to serve them, awaited. The trick of setting up the elaborate camp each night is one of the marvels of this journey.

The men should all be home today to spin stories of what happened around the campfires.

To give you some idea of how popular the journey is, about 1,000 horsemen, from all over the country, have their names on the waiting list, chomping at the bit to be accepted.

FOOT LOOSE and fancy free traveling is in progress for Janie and Gil Brown, now driving leisurely to New York. They stopped in Denver to visit friends, paused in St. Paul, Minn., to relish reunionizing with daughter and son-in-law, Sally and Hunt McCaulley. After they've completed touring the fair, they may—or may not—decide to go to Europe. Decisions, decisions!

THE BEST STOCK is blue chip. In the case of Salvation Army Auxiliary members, the best is Blue Chip Stamp books—stacks 'n stacks of 'em.

Auxiliary live wires met at Jean (Mrs. Russell) Johnson's home in Rossmoor Tuesday to plan some more for annual big fund raiser, their Bonnet Tea, to take place May 26. "Price" of admittance at Jean's was blue chip stamps. Books assembled will be used to purchase the main door award for the tea, a portable television.

Among those chipping in, generously, were Willa Gilmore, Hilma Greenberg, Gladdie Jewett, Jean Hodge, June Cox, Marge (Mrs. Bob) Young and Joan Forman to name some of the book collectors.

WALKING AT A merry clip can sometimes cause a nasty slip. Margaret (Mrs. Phil) Clark stepped on slate entry flooring, in vigorous approach for visit with daughter. Whoops! Cracked a bone in her arm—her right one at that. Now she wears it (since accident last Sunday) in cast and sling and will continue to do so for a total of five weeks. Can't drive, worst of all, can't play bridge. BEST of all, can't do housework, cook. Almost everything has its compensations.

JUST THE RIGHT informal and chatty mood prevailed at Ann and Chet Yunker's cocktail buffet last weekend when they entertained for 150 friends in their home to honor son Don's fiancee, Margo Metzler.

Not just parties make news at the Yunkers. Chet had an operation Monday and on Tuesday, the Yunker's daughter, Barbara, underwent surgery in St. Louis.

Songfest, to take place at Hollywood Bowl next Saturday, will feature lots of costume juggling as well as people juggling. No wonder. More than 1,000 students, from 20 singing groups, will engage in the yearly "sound warfare," as they call it, before a crowd of at least 14,000.

Brenda and Melinda's "juggling" chores are behind scenes committee work maneuvering while Mrs. Basler is among those keeping ball bouncing as member of alum coordinating council.

Songfest is country's largest college musicale and is, I'm assured, great fun to hear. Tickets are now available at USC's ticket office and will be on sale at Bowl's box office Saturday prior to musicale's 8 p.m. starting time.

Lots to juggle before big USC Songfest is over.

Anouilh Comedy at LBCC

"Time Remembered," a romantic comedy by Jean Anouilh, will be the final Long Beach City College "Evenings at Eight" program of the year. Curtain time will be 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday in the LBCC Auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Ave.

General admission tickets will be available both nights, along with the final public presale of 1964-65 "Evenings at Eight" season tickets.

Produced by the City College Theater Arts department, under the direction of David Emmes, "Time Remembered" involves a slightly mad duchess, a melancholy prince, and a simple young milliner who resembles the prince's lost love (an eccentric, orchid-eating ballerina).

* * * *

* * * *

PROGRAMS announced for the 1964-65 season include the Duke Ellington Band, Emlyn Williams in his impersonation of Charles Dickens, the Varel and Bailly Chanteurs de Paris and the guitar duo of Presti and Lagoya.

The "Evenings at Eight Extra," available to season subscribers at reduced rates, will be the original London company of "Beyond the Fringe," satirical revue, on Nov. 17.

Concert, Lecture at CSLB

Today at 4 p.m., the California State College at Long Beach department of music will present a symphony concert directed by Bertram McGarrity. Works by Handel, Beethoven, Tschaikowsky and Copland are scheduled.

A reception at the Soroptimist House will be hostessed by SPURS following the concert. The public is invited; there is no admission charge.

* * * *

LECTURES and forums committee of CSLB announces a talk by Dr. Gerald Strang, professor of music, Thursday at 4 p.m. on the subject "Electronic and Computer Music."

Dr. Strang will discuss in detail the production of synthetic sound and its use in composition. He worked last summer at the Bell Telephone Laboratory in New Jersey in programming a digital computer. He is a consultant in acoustics for music buildings and is a teacher and composer.

Conductor Will Speak at Preview

The public is invited to hear Lauris Jones preview Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in Virginia Country Club. There will be no admission charge.

Jones is conductor of Long Beach Symphony Orchestra which will present the opera in concert form next Sunday at 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

The preview is sponsored by Long Beach Symphony Guild and Junior League of Long Beach. Those who wish to stay for luncheon after the program may make reservations with Mrs. Walter Gray, 5540 Las Lomas St.

To Present Music Bill

"The World of Contemporary Piano Music," an admission-free program sponsored by the Long Beach City College General Adult Division, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Studio C of the LBCC music building, Clark Ave. and Harvey Way.

Lecturer will be Duane Gurnee, chairman of the City College music department. Performer will be Joanna Hodges, Long Beach pianist who has attained an international reputation during four extensive concert tours of Europe and the U.S.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Civic Light Opera Grows Steadily

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Long Beach Civic Light Opera Company, has just finished its 40th production of light opera in Long Beach with 11 highly successful performances of "Song of Norway."

In viewing a recent presentation of "Song of Norway," I realized that in the 15 years of its existence this company has gone a long way in cultural achievement for Long Beach.

The growth and accomplishment of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Company has been steadily improving so that now, as in "Song of Norway," although the singers are amateurs, the shows themselves are on a high, professional level.

I looked to the general manager, Harvey Waggoner, for information on those facts and in a most interesting interview with him I gleaned some informative truths.

* * * *

IT WOULD appear that "all is not gold that glitters," and that the picture seen in front of the footlights is not as golden when viewed from the managerial standpoint.

It cost in the neighborhood of $30,000 to produce "Song of Norway" for 11 nights, and although the attendance was excellent and the public most responsive, it appears there may be a loss of approximately $8,000. The services on stage are largely gratuitous, but there are administrative overhead expenses totaling $2,500 a month. Since four productions a year are given, a quarterly total of $7,500 is expended in overhead; the production itself costs $30,000, making a grand total of $37,500 outlay. The average production intake is $32,500, which leaves a possible deficit of $5,000 quarterly.

"How then do you keep solvent and carry on?" I anxiously inquired.

* * * *

"WE ARE fortunate in having some outside revenue," replied Waggoner. "The City of Long Beach has given us $5,000 for the past two years and we have contributing members who this year have given us $12,000 (we hope for more next year). So the net loss this year could be about $3,000."

"Our real purpose," said Waggoner, "is first to serve and enhance the cultural life of the community through the production of first class theater on a non-professional basis and, second, to provide a vehicle for the talents of those who are interested in participation in musical theater."

Other valuable assistance given the company comes from the Independent, Press-Telegram; free advertising services are given by Sarver and Witzerman advertising agency; public service radio spots are donated; valuable publicity is given by Mountain View Dairy, and General Telephone Company; inserts are given by Soft Water Laundry, Nu-Way Laundry and Foasberg Laundry; free billboard space is given, as are discounts on printing, etc.

In congratulating Harvey Waggoner, I asked him what his hopes are for the future.

"I hope for continued success and growth," he answered, "and for more financial support. And most of all, I hope for a suitable music center for the performing arts."

For the privilege of such a cultural influence in our midst, we in Long Beach should support the efforts of this company 100 percent. The City of Long Beach should exert itself more generously for this organization, and also for our Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, considering the enormous amount given by the city each year to the Long Beach Municipal Band.

'Gold' Stays at L.A. Museum

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The "Gold Before Columbus" exhibition at Los Angeles County Museum, originally scheduled to close next Sunday, has been continued through June 28.

More than 250 examples of the art of ancient New World Indian goldsmiths are on display.

On view are priceless golden pieces representing Indian craftsmanship in Peru, Ecuador, Panama, Colombia, Mexico and Costa Rica from 800 B.C. to 1500 A.D. The exhibit is the first of its kind to be shown on the West Coast and will be on display only at the County Museum.

Exhibition hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays, closed Mondays, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the week. There is a small admission fee.

* * * *

GARDENA HERITAGE Foundation is conducting a contest to select the most appropriate over-all design for a mosaic mural.

* * * *

The mural, which will measure approximately 7 feet high by 16 feet long, will be installed in the City Council chambers and will portray the growth of Gardena. The winner will receive a cash award of $250.

Following selection of the design, a recognized mosaicist will be commissioned to construct the award winning concept on the south wall of the council chambers.

Artists from throughout Los Angeles County are invited to participate. Entries must be received by June 1. A fee of $2.50 will be charged for each entry. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Betty Donahue, 2624 W. 155 St., Gardena, or to William Gerber, 2927 W. 139 St., Gardena.

The mural will be presented to the city in commemoration of the late Paul A. Rowley, Gardena's first administrative officer.

* * * *

WATER COLORS by Harold Scott will go on display Monday at North Branch Library, 5571 Orange Ave.

Scott is a member of Long Beach Art Association and of Laguna Beach Art Association. He has studied locally with Keith Finch, Arthur Beaumont and Rex Brandt.

His extensive travels have furnished subjects for many of his works. A continuing exhibition of his paintings is on view at 266 Alamitos Ave.

* * * *

TUESDAY, Helen E. Wilson, 156 Granada Ave., will go to Wichita Falls, Tex., to exhibit 25 of her paintings.

Mrs. Wilson has exhibited at Long Beach Museum of Art, Long Beach Art Association, Pacific Coast Club, Seal Beach Artists League and has been represented in many other shows.

* * * *

PAINTINGS, drawings and sculpture by Seena and Harry Futoran will hang through May at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

Futoran, a teacher at Hosler Junior High School in Lynwood for 13 years, has studied with Ben Messick and Ken Glenn. Both Mr. and Mrs. Futoran have had instruction in life drawing from James Congell and Robert Lincoln.

EDNA SCHMERLER, 4147 Fleethaven Road, Lakewood, has a display of oil paintings at W & J Sloane's in Beverly Hills. The works will hang through May 30.

Mrs. Schmerler, wife of a physician and mother of four children, has studied at Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach.

She has exhibited locally and is represented in private collections.

Spike Jones

L.B.'s Own Spike Jones to Head Arena Show

Spike Jones, that master musical satirist, will come home to the city of his birth when he plays Saturday night in Long Beach Arena.

Concerts, Inc. has put the show together for people who like country music. Co-starring with Spike and his City Slickers will be Irene Ryan, Donna Douglas and Max Baer Jr. of the Beverly Hillbillies, Helen Grayco, The Good Time Singers, the Larry Maldanado Dancers, Homer and Jethro and Yonely, musical comic.

* * * *

SPIKE FIRST made his mark as star drummer with the late Victor Young's recording orchestra and with John Scott Trotter's band. He played drums on nearly all recording orchestras under Victor, Columbia and Decca labels and accompanied recording artists from Bobby Breen and Martha Raye to John Charles Thomas and Lily Pons.

Spike always was fascinated by odd and unusual noises and when he heard Igor Stravinsky's shoes squeaking in cadence at a performance of "Firebird Suite," his unusual brand of music was born.

* * * *

USING DOG barks, bird whistles, hiccoughs, sneezes and even belches, he began a recording career which made him famous on network television and rich through the sale of more than 40 million recordings.

Tickets for the show with plenty of corn, country music and folk tunes, are on sale at all Mutual Agencies.

'Tosca' Slated

Greek Theater's annual summer season will open June 27 with Puccini's "Tosca". Dorothy Kirsten will star with Barry Morell as co-star.

La Cienega Galleries Gala for Promenade

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Anyone who missed last Sunday's Gallery Promenade on La Cienega Blvd., sponsored by the Art Museum Council of the Los Angeles County Museum, should heap upon his head coals of remorse.

Aside from the gala and enchanting social details (which included a Lucullan offering of food and drink), the event provided an excellent opportunity to see the 25 galleries with their brilliant and appropriate offerings.

* * * *

COMARA commissioned the members of its stable to do works referring to an original Haiku verse (Japanese poetic form of immense succinctness). Of these, the most compelling is Ward Kimball's "Night Train." The artist, also the leader of the "Fire House Five" (which cruised up and down the boulevard on a fire engine), did an interesting rendering of an old sleeping car; in each of its six black windows a glass eyeball winks disconcertingly.

Felix Landau offered a major show of the works of John Paul Jones — mysterious personages in the landscape of far away. Another important one-man show, that of Balcolm Greene, is a first good look at this stellar New York artist, and is found at Feingarten Galleries.

* * * *

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to cite all the shows; among the most unusual were the collection of Cecil Beaton originals for "My Fair Lady" at Rex Evans, the widely sinister "Pop Art" parodies of advertising by Herb Hazelton at Ceeje and those at the David Stuart Gallery. Ferus shows Streeter Blair primitive painting . . . sort of Grandma Moses paeans to the agriculture of several states.

Esther Robles is presenting Stanton MacDonald Wright, whose "synchronist" works are cubistic color harmonies.

How to Be Seaworthy AND See-Worthy

Turns and pivots—whether on a slow boat to China or a fast boat to Catalina—become quite a navigation problem for mannequins who ride the waves.

Just ask any of the models who lurch through fashion showings of nautical-inspired resort wear every Saturday morning aboard the Big White Steamer to Catalina. Staged in the S.S. Catalina's ballroom, the show is produced by local fashion authority Elda Barry and her Vogue Agency mannequins.

● Commentator Elda Barry (dressed in Spanish costume for Catalina's Fiesta de Oro celebration) reads script written hurriedly while boat travels from shoreline to breakwater. . . .

● Small-fry model Janise Borner, 9, like older models, uses center posts in ballroom to anchor model turns. . . .

● And Jo Marie Gaskill, modeling blouson swimsuit, hangs on for dear life as deck makes like a roller coaster.

Like she said: "Sometimes it's pretty difficult to be seaworthy and look ship shape at the same time."

Onlookers had no complaints. Jo Marie—and the show—shaped up beautifully . . . as they no doubt will every Saturday hence on the Great White Steamer to Catalina.

Decision to Divorce Not Easily Reached

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married eight years and have three small children. Keeping house and caring for the children has kept me pretty busy and close to home most of the eight years.

A few weeks ago I found out my husband hasn't been spending his evenings where he told me he was spending them. I checked around and found foolproof evidence that he has been cheating for the past six months. I also found out that my neighbors knew about it, long before I did. I finally faced him with my evidence and he stated flatly that he wanted a divorce so he could marry the girl.

I am angry, hurt and not sure what I should do—give him a divorce or make him suffer along with me. What do you think?

—UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED:

Pretty lousy husband you have and you would probably be better off without him. Not much of a father, either.

You could refuse to divorce him but I wonder who would be the more miserable—you or he. On the other hand, if you divorce him, he gets the gal he wants and you are left to raise the three children. If you do let him go, be sure to get a good lawyer and see that you get ample support for you and the children. Keeping up two households is going to be rough on him unless he makes a lot of money.

Really, I think I'd get rid of him — sure wouldn't be any fun having him around the house, and I don't think the atmosphere would be good for the children, either.

I really hesitate to advise strongly either way—I can only tell you what I think I would do. Do whatever gives you the most satisfaction and peace of mind.

—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a party-line phone (not by choice but by necessity) and I have one heck of a time trying to use it for necessary calls — let alone any other kind. It is bad enough, waiting a half-hour to 45 minutes to get to use the phone, but it is worse to have someone listening in on my conversation. I have reported this to the phone company (no results) and finally reached the point of becoming nasty to the listeners. Listening in on someone's conversation is, to me, like going through their purse — it just isn't done. Another thing, when my phone rings someone other than myself invariably picks it up and tells the caller they have the wrong number! Honestly, my phone has become a necessary evil and about to make a nasty woman of me.

I know you can't do anything about this but maybe some of the party-liners will read this and take heed.

—OUTRAGED

DEAR OUTRAGED:

I know what you mean, Outraged, and I don't blame you for feeling the way you do. I guess there are a lot of busybodies who can't think of anything to do but poke their noses in other people's business, and a lot of housewives who would rather gab on the phone for the better part of the day than do anything else.

Frankly, I think there should be a law against "visiting" on the phone for more than 15 minutes (an automatic cut-off would be fine). Listening in on another's conversation is small and petty—something sane, mature people wouldn't think of doing.

I have no remedy for you—just sympathy. The world is full of "little" people who never grew up.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you think about a man who tells you he loves you more than anything in the world — and then when the holidays come doesn't once contact you?

He is a widower, professes to be lonely, says he adores me—but has never given me a gift, nor mentioned the word marriage.

I honestly don't know what to think. He is very persuasive when I'm with him.—SOFTHEARTED

DEAR SOFTHEARTED:

Or — and really, I don't mean this cruelly—perhaps we should say you're "softheaded." This man isn't in love with you or he would most certainly pay you more attention. He'd try to win you with little gifts and by planning special treats for you.

Don't you see, he gives exactly zero as a lover? And I think it's quite too bad that you've gone on settling for so little.—M.M.

* * * *

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have quite a problem with heavy legs and a big "seat." I've trid exercises, dieting, and even special girdles but nothing helps.

I am wondering if there is any place I can go to have the weight removed or any weight-reducing machines that will do the job.

I also blush easily and over nothing! Could that be all nerves?—BULGY

DEAR BULGY:

I don't put much stock in reducing "gadgets," and girdles don't take off weight—just push it around.

I would imagine there is a good slenderizing school in your city (check, to be sure it is reliable) that specializes in reducing certain parts of the body.

Actually, I would suggest you talk with your doctor about both your problems; he could soon tell you about the blushes and also recommend a way to slenderize your legs and "seat."—M.M.

Reception to Honor Democrats May 17

LOOKING FORWARD to a reception given by Democratic Women's Club of Long Beach for distinguished women leaders of the Democratic Party May 17 at Ebell Clubhouse are (from left) Mmes. Kit Cullen, Flora Dell Thompson, Mila Hastings and Ruth Kennick. Mrs. Cullen amuses her fellow Democrats with a rendition of "Donkey Serenade."

More than 1,000 invitations are in the mail for a reception May 17 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Ebell Clubhouse honoring women leaders of the Democratic Party from throughout the State of California.

Among those attending the event sponsored by Democratic Women's Study Club of Long Beach will be Elizabeth Smith Gatov, Democratic national committee woman and former treasurer of the United States; Jane Morrison, state women's chairman; Dianne McGinness, state vice-chairman; Ann Alanson, women's chairman, north; Carmen H. Warschaw, women's chairman, south, and chairman of the California Fair Practices Commission; and Trudy Owens, state secretary.

* * * *

HONORARY chairmen of the event will be Mmes. Clyde Doyle, Carl Fletcher, Joseph Kennick, Michael Cullen, Willard Hastings, Angelo Icaboni and Thomas Moore.

Mrs. Clarence Wright is club chairman.

Mrs. Flora Dell Thompson, club chaplain, who was among the founders of the club in 1932, and is the only charter member still active said, "Never before has a club been so honored by the presence of all state and national women officials."

Invitations have also been extended to Mrs. Pat Brown and Mrs. Alan Cranston.

* * * *

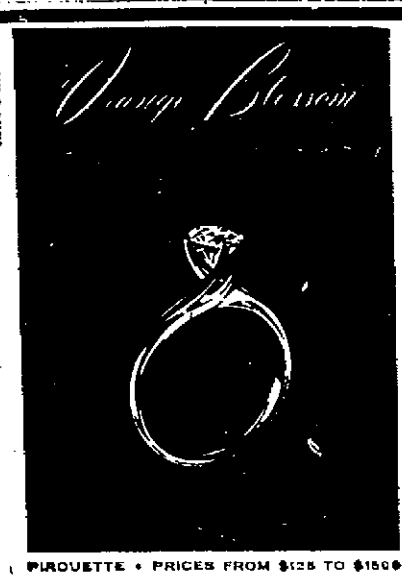

COMMITTEE members in charge of arrangements include Mmes. Maurice Patchett, Arlo Wieding, J. N. Waters, Guy Shane, Lloyd Seeliger, A. N. Tilston, Raymond Simpson, Carl Prough, L. M. Arbuckle and Russell Cocks.

Others are Doris Rumsey, Winifred Alan and Rose Mountain.

The reception is open to the public. For further information call Mrs. Wright, 231 Obispo Ave.

Junior Exchange Alums to Dance

Junior Exchange alumni will stage their ninth annual dance from 8 p.m. to midnight Friday at Meadowlark Country Club. Bids may be obtained from George Mahin, 180 Quincy Ave., or at the door.

OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS

Enrollment Is Now Open for YWCA's Summer Classes for 'Tiny Teens'

Long Beach YWCA, 550 Pacific Ave., is taking enrollments for its summer "Tiny Teens" program for girls from 7 to 11 years of age.

Classes are offered in swimming, baton twirling, crafts, modern dance, little theater, tumbling and reporting.

Swimming instruction is most popular with the girls and gives them an opportunity to earn their Red Cross Swim cards.

Girls also publish a weekly paper, "The Newsreel," which tells of program activities and contests.

* * * *

QUALIFIED instructors teach all classes and teenage girls assist as aides with small groups. Girls come twice a week for four weeks; they may enroll for the July or the August term.

Transportation from designated areas throughout Long Beach and Lakewood will bring girls to the downtown building where complete gym and pool facilities are available.

* * * *

THE SUMMER program will be climaxed with a carnival party in August at which parents will watch their daughters perform their new skills.

Information on other programs and registration can be obtained at the YWCA Mondays through Saturdays.

Spring Party to Be Friday

Dr. and Mrs. James Magnall will be host to members of the Auxiliary to the Long Beach District of the 41st Medical Society and their husbands at a spring dinner dance at Long Beach Yacht Club Friday night at 7 p.m.

Assisting will be Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Mathison and Dr. and Mrs. Willis E. Tunnell.

The auxiliary's major project for the year is giving financial support to the American Medical Education Research Foundation. Funds raised have been alloted to the California College of Medicine in Los Angeles.

German-American Club Dance Set

German American Club Fidelitas of Long Beach will have a Crazy Hat dance Saturday at 8 p.m. at 516 W. Esther St. Mrs. William Hendler, 1980 Chestnut Ave., is in charge of reservations.

Franz Bahl, Los Angeles, and his five-piece band will play modern and folk dances. Prizes will be awarded to members with winning hats. Highlight of the evening will be the visit of a German soccerball team from Hamburg, Germany. The team, here for six weeks, is guest playing in Los Angeles.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It's a Day of Remembering

DEAR ABBY: My mother gave me her annual warning speech again this year prior to Mother's Day. It always starts out, "Please don't buy me anything. There's nothing I need." Abby, this hurts me. I KNOW my mother doesn't "need" anything, but it takes the pleasure out of it for me when she is so ungracious as to reject my gift before she even gets it. Please put a word or two in your column letting mothers know that their children enjoy buying Mother's Day gifts, and they should not be discouraged from doing so.—LOVES TO GIVE

ABBY

DEAR LOVES: Most mothers are fearful that their children will deny themselves something in order to buy a Mother's Day gift. An original poem or letter doesn't cost anything, and is the most cherished of all gifts. When I was a child, my own mother used to say, "Don't buy me anything. I have everything I need." So I would write little poems and verses telling her how much I appreciated her. Only after she passed away did I realize how much they meant to her. She had saved every one.

* * * *

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm wrong, but I always thought that Mother's Day was a day to remember one's OWN mother. I am my husband's sweetheart, companion, partner and lover but, by Jove, I am NOT his mother! I hope that Bill and I never start calling each other "Mother" and "Dad" like some couples we know. And we certainly don't intend to exchange gifts on "Mother's Day" and "Father's Day."—MY MOTHER'S DAUGHTER

Dear Readers: In my files is this letter, written on Mother's Day by a young prisoner who was awaiting execution in San Quintin prison:

"A crime was committed. There was an arrest. And a boy was thrown into a cell. The crime was great, the boy was young and the cell was dark. Life seemed at an end, and hell became a living thing.

"Then one day, as the boy sat weeping, he looked up to see his mother. She was smiling. She opened her arms and said, 'My son, did you think I would not come to you?' Suddenly the boy forgot his terror and found comfort in the magic circle of his mother's arms.

"Through the dark that shrouded the hill of Calvary, a voice cried, 'Son, behold thy mother!' And Mary knelt at the foot of the cross.

"For every son who crucifies himself on pillars of hate, weakness and greed, there at the foot of the cross you will find his mother. Your mother and mine. God bless them, here and beyond. They have known so much pain."

CHEF OF THE WEEK

His Hobby--Horses

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
Ind.-P-T Food Editor

It all sounds a bit ambiguous. He's president of the Cutting Horse Association, yet he's in the tuna business. Apparently he's a master at both, for today's Chef of the Week, Glenn H. Copeland, is executive vice president of Chicken of the Sea, Inc., and has a room full of ribbons for knowing his horses.

And—now, for you ladies — here's what a "cutting horse" is. You may be sure that we're quoting: "The Cutting horse is a stock horse with a high economic value; he can earn his keep at home and then go to a contest and put on a splendid and entertaining performance to the spectator by presenting a colorful picture of ranch work at its best. Performance regardless of color, sex or breed, is the sole guide to his value; that is, the ability to enter a herd of cattle, cut an animal out of the herd for shipment to market, doctoring or moving to another pasture; and prevent this animal from returning to the herd. . .

"Cow sense in its highest degree is shown as this horse anticipates every movement of the animal and does his own thinking and acting with little help from the rider. . ."

* * * *

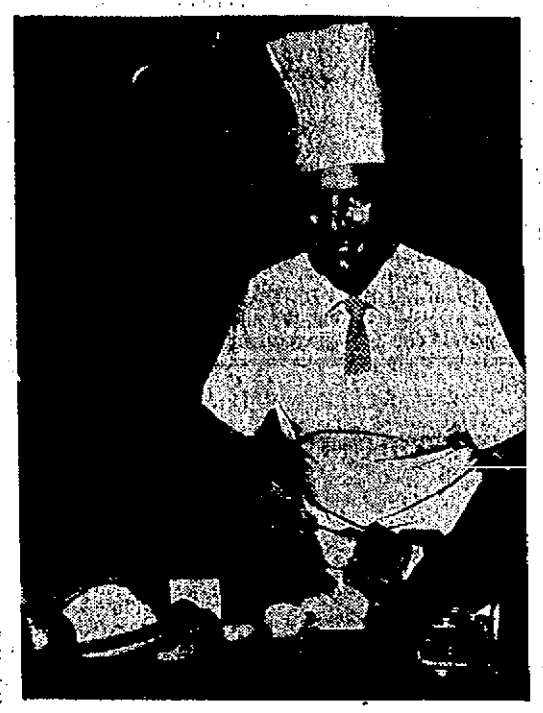

NOW, YOU, too, know that a cutting horse isn't a toy horse cut out of anything.

To get back to our "Chef" . . . he was born in Waynesboro, Tenn., way down near the Alabama border. At the age of six, however, he left his southern drawl and moved with his family to Imperial Valley where his father became a cotton farmer.

He says there wasn't much to write about that era. When he was in the eighth grade, however, his family moved to San Diego. It was during summer vacations, when he went to work for a grocery store, that the groundwork for his present vocation was laid.

He had climbed from stock clerk to checker by the time he had finished school, so he went to work full-time for the (late) Humpty-Dumpty chain of stores. It was through a mutual friend that he met the Van Camp Seafood's management; and in 1937 joined their San Diego plant as timekeeper. He learned all facets of the business while serving as superintendent, assistant manager and then manager.

Eight years ago he came to the Long Beach office as purchasing agent. Presently he is the executive "veep."

GLENN H. COPELAND

WHILE COPELAND was, is and always has been, vitally interested in the tuna, he still had the yearnings of a rancher. So, in 1944, he and his family purchased 11 acres in La Mesa, where he raises oranges, avocados, doing his own tree grafting. He also, at one time, boasted the presence of 20 sheep. The sheep have since departed, but he still has two horses of his own.

He and Mrs. Copeland (Luelle) have two sons, Robert, a law student at USC, and John, a 9th grade student at Rogers.

By the way, he gives credit to the grocery business, also, for his having met Luelle. He explains: "I was her groceryman in San Diego."

Copeland is actively interested in Boy Scout work and in the Red Cross. He also spends much time atop that cutting horse. Just last week he journeyed to Lompoc to ride in a cutting horse race.

Our "Chef's" cooking abilities didn't develop until the "later" years — that is, not until the advent of the chicken and the barbecue. But he can think of more ways to eat tuna than you can ever imagine—and believes there is no better combination than tuna and avocado. He has a rather special interest in both, you see.

His recipe today, however, is for Tuna Pizza. And it is NOT a business secret.

TUNA PIZZA

COMBINE:
- 1 cup pitted sliced ripe olives
- 1 can (6½-oz) tuna
- 1 can (8-oz) drained mushrooms
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 minced garlic clove
- 1¾ cups (15-oz) can tomato sauce.

Season with salt and pepper. Spread on toasted French or sour dough bread slices. Sprinkle with 2½ cups grated Cheddar cheese and 1 teaspoon oregano. Bake in hot oven (425°) 15-20 minutes or until brown. Serves 6.

Mrs. Frankenburger Heads State TTT for Second Term

Mrs. H. L. Frankenburger, 2140 E. First St., will be installed for her second term as state president of the National TTT Society during the state convention at Mira Mar Hotel, Santa Monica, May 15 and 16.

California Chapter B, Los Angeles, is in charge of convention plans.

Mrs. Frankenburger has served on the board of directors of Long Beach Ebell Club. She is a past president of TTT Society's Chapter E in Long Beach and is now a member of Long Beach Chapter L. She originated the plan for TTT Society to sponsor a foster home pilot project in this city.

* * * *

FOR SOME MONTHS, one child has been cared for in a foster home, and a second child soon may be placed.

The National TTT Society, founded 53 years ago in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, now has 6,000 members in chapters across the country. The main project is the support of two summer camps for girls 10 to 11 years of age.

* * * *

IN ADDITION, each chapter supports its own local philanthropy.

Among TTT members in Long Beach who will attend the convention are Mmes. E. T. Beckman, P. L. Roberts, U. B. Killingsworth and E. Ralph Clarke.

Honored guests will include the national president, Mrs. Paul R. Fry of Omaha, Neb., and other national officers.

Mrs. Pascal to Take Office

Mrs. Peter Pascal will be installed as president of Alpha Gamma Delta alumnae on Tuesday at a 6 p.m. dinner meeting at Mr. C's.

Mrs. Charles Brantingham will preside at the candlelight ceremony when others taking office will be Mmes. John Lokey, George Cain, Frank Courtney, Edwin Mossinger, John Williams, Roy Miller Jr. and Gene Chapman.

East-West Must Beat

One reason why bridge columns rarely show part-score hands is because they are likely to be far more difficult than the more sensational game and slam holdings.

North has a doubtful one-spade response and, when South jumps to three hearts North should pass and let him struggle with that contract.

Of course, the North-South par on this hand at the Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament was easy. All they had to do was to play the hand below game in hearts.

East-West had a much tougher par. They had to beat the three heart contract.

West made his normal lead of the king of diamonds and it was up to East to drop the queen. This is a conventional play that shows the jack. West then must take advantage of this information and lead his ten of diamonds.

AFTER THIS nice start, East should have no trouble overtaking with the jack and leading back a trump.

South's best play will be to win the trick and lead a club toward dummy's queen. East will win with the king and lead a second trump, whereupon South will be held to eight tricks.

With Calm Resolve, She Faces Future

own during her 10 years of marriage was the one built in 1963 at Rattlesnake Mountain in Atoka, Va., 45 miles from Washington.

When Kennedy died, Mrs. Kennedy went there as her first place of retreat with her cridren. The ranch-style five-bedroom house on a 39-acre tract has a magnificent view of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Mrs. Kennedy has dined out at several fashionable restaurants around town with small parties, usually dining late. One night, with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara in her party at the Rive Gauche, she gave an autograph to the chef and told him she liked his French cuisine.

Mrs. Kennedy has given some private dinners and has been a dinner guest at the home of friends. She has dined out with the British Ambassador and Lady Harlech and dropped in on a gay party given by Schlesinger's friends.

Instead of an Easter trek to Palm Beach this year, Mrs. Kennedy joined other Kennedys at a ski resort in Stowe, Vt. She launched into lessons in skiing, taking a few spills as she was tutored in the basics. Caroline had trouble keeping upright at first, too, and little John gleefully tried the sport on a pair of bright red skis.

BEFORE SHE LEFT, Mrs. Kennedy tried out the more difficult intermediate trail. As she returned from the steeper slope at Spruce Peak, her face rosy in the crisp weather, she said "It was perfectly wonderful."

Late on Easter Sunday, Mrs. Kennedy left her children with other Kennedy cousins and flew to Antigua, in the British West Indies. She traveled by commercial plane accompanied by the Attorney General and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanislas Radziwill.

They were guests at the seaside mansion of banker Paul Mellon, who is a Virginia hunt country neighbor and friend of Mrs. Kennedy.

These holidays indicated that Mrs. Kennedy was not only in good spirits, but had returned to the more normal pursuits of life.

Durand-Wood Betrothal Told

June 13 has been selected as their wedding date by Sarah Kemper Durand and Kerry Michael Wood, according to an announcement by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Durand of Palo Alto.

Miss Durand is a graduate of Stanford University.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer A. Wood, Long Beach, was graduated from St. Anthony's High School and Yale University where he affiliated with the St. Elmo Society. He also is a graduate of the Army Language School at Monterey.

INCREASING number of tourists find way to the Georgetown home of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

WHY GROW OLD?

Reducing Diets Must Include Essential Foods

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who have been following my 9-Day Reducing Diet must be feeling pretty proud of yourselves about now if you began the menus last Tuesday. That bulge above the waist is going, going, and will soon be gone! Your belts are treating you to the wonderful loose feeling, and you can see your insteps without half trying!

There are only three days to go. Don't stop just short of the finish line! Another two or three pounds may be hanging by an ounce, ready to drop away, if you provide that last little three-day shove.

I publish this diet each year in the spring because so many women have just a few pounds to lose and are anxious to do so before summer sports and play clothes roll around. Five to 10 pounds make such a great difference in the way a woman looks and in the way she feels.

* * * *

IF YOU have more weight to lose, use this rapid diet as an encouraging start. Then count calories, holding your daily intake to 1200 a day. Every few weeks repeat the 9-Day Diet.

When planning your own low-calorie meals, be sure that you obtain all of the essential food elements. Be certain that your menus are high in proteins, minerals and vitamins. The important protein foods are meats, fowl, eggs, seafoods, cheese and milk. You will have plenty of minerals and vitamins if you use the above foods and add generous amounts of fruits and vegetables.

You need some whole grain foods. You can get these in bread or cereal. If you have cereal use only a moderate amount of sugar or one of the artificial sweeteners and skim milk.

Take smaller servings than usual and use lean meat, skim milk and broil or bake foods rather than frying or creaming them. Cut down on carbohydrates and fats.

Here are the menus for Monday:

BREAKFAST
One-half grapefruit
One boiled egg
One thin dry slice of whole wheat toast
Black coffee

LUNCHEON
Chicken sandwich (no butter—thin slices of whole wheat bread)
Sliced tomatoes or canned tomatoes
One glass skimmed milk

DINNER
Minute steak or chops
Salad of shredded cabbage and carrots
One-half cup spinach-greens or broccoli
One-half grapefruit
One glass skimmed milk

If you would like to have the complete 9-Day Reducing Diet, which gives you substitute foods, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. Wells Takes Helm for Council

Mrs. Tracy Wells will be installed as the new president of Long Beach Area Council of Beta Sigma Phi on Tuesday in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Also installed by the past president, Mrs. Carl B. Hensley, will be Mmes. William E. Gough, Xi Delta Xi; Rodger Hulette, Xi Theta Phi; William J. Vadalma, Iota; Dorothy Abshere, Gamma Rho; and Lou Bowman, Xi Alpha Kappa.

The new top officer has been president of her chapter, Nu Mu, and has been directory chairman of the council during the past year. She lives in Seal Beach with her husband and two children.

* * * *

LOS ANGELES Statler Hilton will be setting for the 24th annual California state convention of Beta Sigma Phi on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Representatives of local chapters wil attend, and, at the closing event, four state area council philanthropic chairmen will present donations to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

New Group Organizing

A tea will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Harold Stein, 63 Rivo Alto Canal, to organize a new chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training.

The group is a fast growing Jewish women's organization. It now has 60,000 members in 450 chapters throughout the nation and is the largest non-governmental vocational training agency in the world.

Over 600 technical and vocational training agencies in 22 countries are maintained by ORT.

Long Beach Dancers Draw Top Mail

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Three years ago a young dancing couple from Long Beach made their debut on "The Lawrence Welk Show."

If they were nervous, Barbara Boylan and Bob Burgess, the dancing couple, didn't show it.

The couple brought new life to the program and Welk, an old pro, recognized it. He kept the Long Beach dancers on as regulars.

In a recent interview—not with this reporter—Welk said he felt the youngsters were his No. 1 attraction.

Eight secretaries, who keep count of the mail for Welk, agree. The Long Beach dancers get the most letters.

BARBARA AND Bob don't agree. It could be true that they get more mail, they acquiesce, but don't forget they're a combined entry. It is "together" that the postal tally makes them No. 1.

If that attitude indicates to you that the Boylan-Burgess combo hasn't yet gone Hollywood, go to the head of the viewing class.

They haven't gone Hollywood literally or figuratively.

Both still live in Long Beach, which frequently necessitates commuting to Hollywood back and forth twice a day.

"It is harder to live in Hollywood," said Barbara, "than drive back and forth.

"There's something about Hollywood — sometimes you lose a sense of reality.

"In Long Beach you can forget about Hollywood. It's a different life."

IT IS ALSO a "different life" which Bob prefers.

"My best friends are in Long Beach," he said. "I can go to the beach when I feel like it."

Bob, 22, a graduate of Poly High, and Barbara, "about the same age," a graduate of Millikan, both attend California State College at Long Beach.

Neither is ready for marriage.

"I think you have to devote quite a bit of time to marriage," said Barbara, "and we don't have that time right now.

"When I do get married, I want to have enough time to devote to my husband.

"I couldn't marry anybody else and work. I'm with Bob so much more time than I would be at home."

As for Bob:

"I'm determined to get my college degree before I get married. A bachelor of arts degree to me will represent security."

NEITHER dates anyone else at the moment. Their dates are mailmen's holidays. They go see a movie where there's dancing or to a club where there are dancers.

When they go on tour, as they currently are, the couple is accompanied by Barbara's mother, Mrs. Ruby Boylan, or Bob's grandmother, Mrs. Sadie Thompson, or one of Bob's sisters.

On tour and off tour, one thing is becoming increasingly more evident.

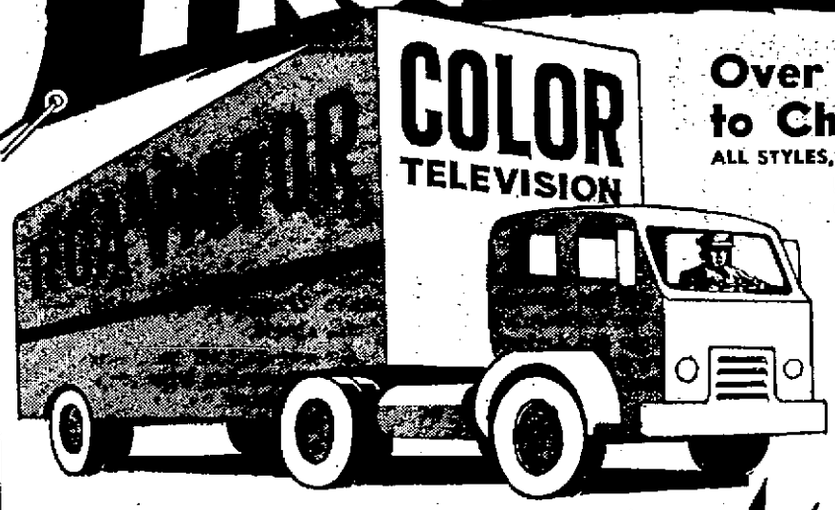

"People are really beginning to recognize us now,"

The Sharpest Pencil in the Swimming Pool Business!

The man from FIESTA knows so much about pools that we permit him to give you a firm estimate on your swimming pool (any size, any shape) the first time he calls on you!

THAT TAKES A REAL EXPERT! Because if he estimates your pool too high, we'll lose the job. And if he estimates your pool too low, we'll lose money on it. More than 10,000 Fiesta Pool owners have said that the man from Fiesta is right—that he does indeed have the sharpest pencil in the swimming pool business! We know he's right, or Fiesta couldn't be the world's largest privately owned pool company, and the only pool builder in Southern California that uses no subcontractors to build your swimming pool! That's what makes his pencil so sharp!

If you can afford $21 A MONTH for a swimming pool (from $1688 COMPLETE*) with a lifetime structural guarantee, call the man from Fiesta. With any Fiesta Pool he will give you all these Fiesta exclusives for a limited time only: A built-in Barbecue Fire-Pit (illustrated)—FREE! An automatic pool cleaner—for only $135.00! Custom landscaping service! And a 10-Point Pool Service Program—FREE! So call the man who knows most about swimming pools—the man with the lowest price, the sharpest pencil, and the best bonus offer—the man from Fiesta! Call him at the number nearest you, listed below. Sports Today

BASEBALL, 10:25 a.m., ch. 8 (San Diego), has the Phillies hosting the Cincinnati Reds at Connie Mack.

BASEBALL, 11 a.m., ch. 10 (San Diego), with the Yankees - Indians game from Cleveland Stadium.

BASEBALL, 12:55 p.m., ch. 11, with the wind-up of the 3-game Dodgers-Giant series from Candlestick Park.

COLONIAL OPEN golf tournament, 3:30 p.m., ch. 9, is the 19th annual PGA tourney from Fort Worth (Tex.), as Julius Boros defends his title in the final round.

SPORTS SPECTACULAR, 5 p.m., ch. 2, has tapes of Saturday's sixth annual Syracuse University varsity-alumni football game at Archbald Stadium.

SPECIAL

ARMED FORCES PARADE—One-time KTLA star Ken Graue is behind the ch. 11 microphones at 10:40 a.m. with 90-min. tapes of Saturday's San Pedro parade kicking off Armed Forces Week.

ARREST & TRIAL—The single segment which won three Emmy nominations for the defunct series is repeated at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, as a young man's secret gloating over his "perfect" murder prompts him to strike up an acquaintance with the investigating detective. Featured, in nomination-winning roles, are Roddy McDowall, Anjanette Comer and Martine Bartlett.

BRENNER—The father-son police drama series, starring Edward Binns and James Broderick, returns with 10 new and 10 repeat segments at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2, replacing the ill-fated "Made in America" until Joey Bishop's debut next fall. Opener deals with a "stoolie" who sells tips to the police.

THE SENSUALISTS—George Mathews, R. A. Jordan, Peter Brandon and Mark Leonard star in a Robert Herridge adaptation of Destoevski's novel "The Brothers Karamazov" at 9 p.m., ch. 11. Capturing the heart of the novel through a segment exposing its principal characters, show is the second in six Herridge-produced hours.

AMERICAN SPECTACLE—Van Heflin is guide on a tour of the great natural wonders of America, from the rugged shores of Capes Cod and Hatteras, across the land to Hawaii, in a repeat hour at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Produced and written by Lou Hazam, show visits Niagara Falls, the bayous, Petrified Forest, Monument Valley, Yellowstone, Grand Tetons, etc.

Pan and Fan Mail

Why, oh why, do so many TV announcers ruin the viewer's enjoyment of a movie by spilling the entire plot ahead of time?

One of the most exasperating emcees is Ted Meyers of Channel Nine's Million Dollar Movie. We can understand the desire of the announcer to whet the viewer's appetite so he won't switch channels as a movie is about to come on, but is it necessary to go into such detail?

Here's a typical example of Meyer's pre-movie commentary:

"Tonight's thrilling mystery concerns a millionaire heiress who is killed in a fall from a horse but is later discovered to have been killed by a poison dart from a blow gun at first thought to have been used by the butler who is not really the butler at all but the girl's half-brother. A gardner who is actually an FBI agent saves the brother-butler from being lynched by a mob whose leader is a Nazi spy who is dragged into the alligator infested waters when the rope with which he was going to hang the innocent brother gets tangled in the propeller of a swampboat. Now stay tuned for the suspenseful opening scenes of tonight's mystery."

By this time the movie has about as much intrigue as a marshmallow.

We are not blessed at our house with a remote control shut-off so when the announcer starts to spill the beans we beat pie tins, begin a hottenanny, rattle the potato chip bag—anything to drown out the tattletale until he shuts up so we can find out for ourselves that it was the butler after all who really dun-it!

Jack Baldwin, Long Beach

You're wrong, Jack. It was the maid.

JILL ST. JOHN plays a gangster's girl friend during "The Bob Hope Theater" repeat at 8:30 p. m. Friday, channel 4 in COLOR.

What happened to Miss Barbara on channel 5's "Romper Room?" Our children miss her.

Chickie Drestick, Long Beach

"Romper Room" operations are controlled on a semi-syndicated basis from headquarters in Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore headquarters, which a year or so back had approved Miss Barbara (Bellino), suddenly decided to un-approve her. The basis, according to what they told KTLA management, is that Miss Barbara doesn't have a college education, although she holds a nurse's certificate.

KTLA (channel 5) was happy with Miss Barbara and sorry to see her go.

Her replacement, Miss Sally (McCrae), has a masters degree in education.

Could you tell me if the gentleman who sings the advertisement for Gallo Wine is one of the male singers who sings with Lawrence Welk's show. We enjoy his singing and all of Welk's.

Mrs. Lena A. Blair, Long Beach

Personally, I prefer the way Welk blows bubbles.

FRED MacMURRAY, star of "My Three Sons," switches roles to guest-host "The Hollywood Palace" at 9:30 p. m. Saturday, channel 7.

SPECIAL

CHAD MITCHELL TRIO—Hour-long folk singing special, filmed on location in Chicago, Lake Michigan, area colleges, and originally planned as pilot for proposed series, is repeated at 8 p.m., ch. 13. Joining the roster are Josh White, The Weavers, Kathleen O'Grady and the Second City Players.

BREAKING POINT—ABC continues its 3-day rescreening of Emmy-nominated segments at 10 p.m., ch. 7, with the critically-acclaimed story of a schizophrenic child and the therapist dedicated to finding the key to communicating with him. Eddie Rossen plays the child, with Martine Bartlett, Emmy-nominated for her "Arrest & Trial" role re-shown Sunday, as the therapist, in episode which won writing nomination for Allan Sloane. Entered in the Cannes Film Festival, segment lost out to ABC's 4-Emmy - nominations special, "Making of the President 1960," which copped the Grand Prize, and will be rescreened June 11. ("Breaking Point," incidentally, cancelled by ABC, will be repeated next season on KTTV.)

GUEST STARS PAY CUT

Salary Halved from $10,000 to $5,000 an Appearance

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — High-salaried television actors are being hit with a pay cut, slashes which might cost them each $5,000 a week.

The salary scale for most video actors, under terms of the Screen Actors Guild contract with producers, is $100 a day. However, well-known stars can command much more than that. At one time they were getting $10,000 or more for a guest-star appearance on a television series episode—one week's work.

Top salaries for guest stars are now in the neighborhood of $5,000 per segment, and less. Such series as "Breaking Point," "Eleventh Hour," "Dr. Kildare," "Greatest Show on Earth" and "Ben Casey" are trying to hold the line at $5,000. "Route 66," before it was canceled, dropped its top price from $7,500 to $5,000.

Richard Wookey, head of casting for NBC-TV here, said he believed that guest stars have been "grossly overpaid."

"What I have to say is based on previous years of experience," he said. "I do strongly feel that the tops of these shows have been abused. I think it was the industry's own fault in the first instance, we allowed it to happen."

WOOKEY BLAMES much of the trouble on agents who get 10 per cent of their actor client's salary.

"I think the major fault lies with the agents who have misguided their performers to a point where they've given them delusions of grandeur,' he said. "It's hard for the actor's ego to pull back on that. I've been an actor, I've been an agent and a casting director."

Wookey said he was not speaking for NBC. But it was apparent from comments of others in Hollywood that television producers are setting ceilings on salaries.

"I think definitely that tops will be imposed on the major burden of the television filmed shows and actors will either have to subscribe to it or find their work in some other area," Wookey said. "They're certainly not going to get it on stage."

HE ALSO SAID actors who work for $5,000 a show in Hollywood will fly to New York and act in an episode of a series emanating from that city for $1,500.

Dana Andrews, president of the Screen Actors Guild, said there was little his organization could do about top salaries in television.

"This has been going on for a year," he said. "It's been slowly sneaking up on us. It started out with shows that said they couldn't pay more than a certain figure."

Andrews, who believes that pay-television would result in more money for actors, said he doesn't blame producers for cutting guest star salaries.

"They have to work within the limits of the television industry as it is today," he said.

LONG BEACH GA 2-0461

SINGER Andy Williams and his guest, Joey Bishop, team up for a song-and-dance number during "The Andy Williams Show" at 10 p. m. Tuesday, channel 4, COLOR.

SPECIAL

TODAY — Actor Maurice Evans is guide for a 2-hour tour of the American Shakespeare Festival Theater and Academy at Stratford, Conn., seen by tape at 7 a.m., ch. 4. A scene from "Hamlet" is preceded by a discussion of the play by members of the theatre's repertory company.

COMBAT!— Conlan Carter is seen in his Emmy-nominated performance as Doc, the medic, during the repeat segment at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7. Mark Richman guestars as a German officer who has captured Saunders, Caje and Doc, intending to use them for safe passage back to the German lines, with a stolen ambulance for transportation.

OREGON PRIMARY Preview — Frank McGee is anchor man for a half-hour report on the final campaign activity in the only primary election (to be held Friday) in which the names of Lodge, Nixon and Scranton appear on the ballot (in addition to Goldwater, Rockefeller and Mrs. Smith). David Brinkley evaluates the candidates' chances (polls have it another Lodge sweep) during the 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, special.

ANDY WILLIAMS — Joey Bishop repays Andy's recent visit to his Sat. night show by guesting at 10 p.m., ch. 4, in color. The comedian almost sings and almost plays the mandolin, but is playfully upstaged by Andy, the Osmond Brothers and the Good Time Singers. For his close, Williams sings the complete lyrics to "May Each Day."

SPECIAL

AFTER TEN YEARS: The Court and the Schools—Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Georgia's Governor Carl E. Sanders and NAACP's executive secretary Roy Wilkins, in RFK's Justice Dept. office, participate in a taped discussion of the status of school desegregation of the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregated public schools. Preceding this, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, is an hour-long report, anchored by Harry Reasoner, of the progress in key cities affected, with Charles Kuralt in Topeka, Reasoner in Little Rock, Dan Rather in Nashville, Martin Agronsky in Prince Edward County (Va.), Mike Wallace in New Rochelle (N.Y.), and Kuralt, Nelson Benton and Lew Wood in New Orleans.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER—A political first is this half-hour prime-time network talk two months before the nominating convention, and with only three primaries to go, as the Arizona conservative talks with some of his friends at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2. Chatting informally with two of his campaign leaders, Goldwater airs his views on civil rights, foreign and economic policy and morality in government. (Goldwater also is interviewed in Washington by Robert MacNeil on "Today," 8:30 a.m., ch. 4)

BOB THORNDIKE Owner, Meat Dept. Cherry Ave. Food & Liquor Mart HE 4-7649

"The Little Things in Life . . ." does the old refrain. To those of us at CHERRY AVE. FOOD & LIQUOR MART (1420 Cherry Ave.), the so-called "Little Things" are BIG things . . . and we believe they are to you. Maybe that's why we see the same folks again and again in our cheery store on Cherry Avenue, along with lots of new faces. Several of these new customers have mentioned hearing about us through friends.

Naturally it make us feel pretty good to be told we have the reputation of being "THE" place in town to get the finest meats, the freshest fruits and vegetables, and the friendliest service.

. . . but it also gives us a responsibility to live up to. . . . it means we can't get "lazy" . . . we have to continue to offer prices as low or lower than supermarkets, and to be always on our toes to please you with the highest quality and best value obtainable. This gets back to the "little things" like the special way we trim our meats of every bit of waste possible . . . of going into the fields to get plump choice strawberries and get them to you faster! . . . and lots, lots more!

VIDEO COWBOYS BITE DUST

East Gunning Old West Off TV

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's a darned good thing the men of the old west were more durable than the shows that have chronicled their exploits on television, or everything west of St. Louis would still be sagebrush and Indians.

From a peak of more than 20 prime-time horse-operas three years ago, television is down to a puny five for next season.

Boots and saddles haven't been this empty since Custer's last stand.

The dearth of westerns elicits cheers from some sectors and tears from others. No matter. There must be a reason for the fading thunder of hoofbeats in television.

There is. And the man with the answer is David Dortort, producer of "Bonanza," one of the five survivors on the air.

"The mortality rate for westerns is due to the provincialism of New York television executives who are out of touch with 99 per cent of the country," he said.

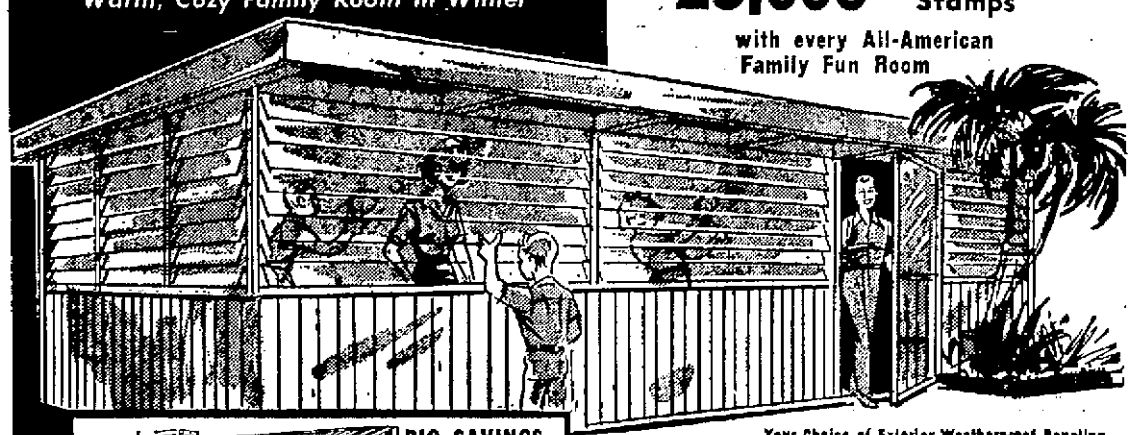

* * * *

DORTORT'S "Bonanza," running neck and neck with "The Beverly Hillbillies" for top rating honors, has one thing in common with other westerns still on the air. It is an hour show.

The others, "Gunsmoke," "Rawhide," "The Virginian" and "Wagon Train," are also an hour longer. "Wagon Train" pares down from 90 minutes to 60 next fall, but "The Virginian" will stay with its hour-and-half format.

"The public will always want to see westerns. And I'll tell you why. Because 75 per cent of the American people are only a generation or two away from the pioneers who built the west—or at least of the same stock."

MY THREE SONS — Don Grady, who at one time had his own 8-piece band, and who plays clarinet, drums, ukulele, bass, accordion and piano, draws two credits during the 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, segment today. The 20-year-old actor, in addition to his regular billing as Robbie Douglas, racks up his second tunesmith credit for his latest song, "A Broken Heart Knows Better," recently recorded by Capitol. Show finds Mike and Robbie, following Bub's outdated recommendations, in New York to audition songs they hope will win them showbiz fame and fortune. J. Pat O'Malley and Joe Mantell are featured. (Series, incidentally, retains its same slot for its 5th season come fall.)

OREGON PRIMARY Preview — The Beaver State, whose primary elections Friday for 18 electoral votes are getting even more coverage than New Hampshire's because of the six names on the GOP ballot, is examined historically, economically and geographically during "ABC News Reports" at 10:30 p.m., ch. 7. Edward P. Morgan and Howard K. Smith review from Portland the campaigns, candidates and issues.

JIMMY STEWART and his wife, Gloria, are guests on "Password" at 7:30 p. m. Thursday, channel 2.

Comic Carter Seeks Change of Pace --By Jove!-- in Merry Old England

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian Jack Carter, who would prefer to be called an entertainer these days, couldn't resist the typical comic's quip when asked why he is going to Britain to do some television.

"I am going to England as America's answer to the Beatles," he said, referring to the rock-'n'-roll quartet that appeared here recently.

"But seriously, the English audiences, both in clubs and for television, are very, very good. I enjoy working in England because it provides a change of pace and helps keep me sharp.

"I don't do the same things there that I do here. I try to localize my act. I base my material on what is happening as reported in the British press and on the activities of British personalities.

* * * *

"I WISH ALL of those American performers who don't change a line in their

acts well, but I feel that an entertainer has a certain responsibility to his audiences to give the material that is topical and familiar to them.

"A performer such as myself must always search for new outlets and new audiences. You get stale doing the same things for the same people continually."

Carter will tape two programs for a new British broadcasting corporation series called "International Cabaret."

Carter, of course, has been appearing on television here almost since the home screen became a fact.

"I never worry about overexposure," he said, "since I only do guest shots on variety shows or an occasional dramatic role. If I had my own show, or were a regular guest on a program, I would have cause to be concerned about over-exposure.

* * * *

THE STAR turned to a general discussion of the comic art, saying that one thing that bugs him is the perennial question as to whether all funny men aren't really sad underneath.

"It isn't a question of the 'Hamlet complex,'" Carter said. "I mean, wanting to play a tragic character, which is what most people who ask the question are driving at. But there can be times when you feel low.

"If you don't go over big in a play, for example, you can kid yourself that the author didn't know his business. You can blame the writer or composer if the audience fails to come through with the applause you think you should get for a certain bit.

"But a comedian doing a solo routine iis selling himself—personality, style, attitude. I'm offering you me when I try to make you laugh, and if you don't laugh, it's like a stab right in the heart because that is personal rejection. That hurts, and that's why clowns must be the saddest people on earth."

Like many entertainers, Carter worries about not making sufficiient contribution as a human being.

Double Dose

Although Jack Benny is moving to NBC-TV in the fall, re-runs of his old programs will be aired by CBS-TV on Sunday afternoons.

The latter network, in an unusual move, will provide a double dose of "The Andy Griffith Show" for its viewers.

It will daily repeat Andy's old programs at 11 a.m. In addition, new programs will air Monday night.

Long Beach Dancers Hit on Welk Program

said Bob.

The couple hopes to stay with Welk as long as he's on television.

"He's always trying to improve," said Bob.

So are Barbara and Bob.

* * * *

IN THREE years' of appearances on the network program, the Long Beach couple has yet to repeat any of their dance numbers.

"Our goal is to try and do all new steps each week," said Bob.

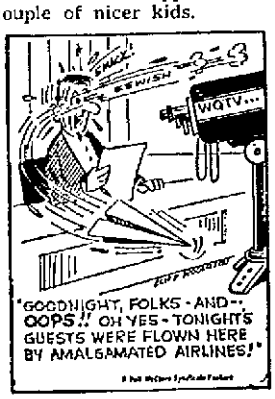

Welk has been on television for 13 consecutive years. Every indication, including ratings and sponsorship interest, indicates that his longevity record will continue.

That means that Barbara and Bob are going to wear out a lot of shoe leather with new stepping, not to mention piling up the freeway mileage.

It couldn't happen to a couple of nicer kids.

JIM BACKUS is a panelist for "Celebrity Game" at 9:30 p. m. Sunday, channel 2.

S. I. Turoff, well-known scalp authority, opens a 6-day hair clinic to demonstrate remarkable new scientific methods, that stop hair loss, eliminate dandruff and help grow stronger, thicker hair; offer complete introductory hair and scalp treatment for $2 during Clinic Week—next 6 days.

S. I. TUROFF
Director 10 California
TUROFF CLINICS

QUESTION: IS BALDNESS INHERITED?
ANSWER: Definitely NOT. WE MAY INHERIT A TENDENCY to baldness, not baldness itself.

QUESTION: WHAT CAUSES BALDNESS?
ANSWER: Many things, among them excessive dandruff, poor circulation, neglect. It takes a professional to determine the factors in each individual case.

QUESTION: WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT BALDNESS?
ANSWER: No matter WHAT stage of baldness you have reached, your hair can be regrown with proper treatments, if the roots are alive.

FIRST REMARKABLE TREATMENT TO NEW CLIENTS $2.00 NEXT 6 DAYS

What ARE the Danger Signals

There are definite warnings and everyone can recognize them. DANDRUFF means there are bacteria at work. If they are not removed, they choke off the hair roots, a bald spot soon appears, and baldness spreads until you are completely bald. The same is true of EXCESS FALLING HAIR and ITCHY SCALP. In fact, anything but a healthy, good-looking head of hair means something is wrong and you MAY BE ON THE WAY TO BALDNESS. The longer one waits, the more advanced the condition.

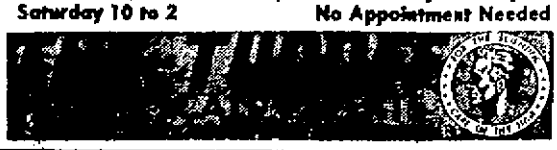

AMAZING NEW METHODS MUST BE EXPERIENCED TO BE APPRECIATED

$2 is the complete charge for your first remarkable TUROFF treatment during this SPECIAL CLINIC, for the next 6 days. IF YOUR HAIR is thinning, over dry or over oily — if you are troubled with dandruff, increasing hair loss, come in and see us during this special clinic, for the next 6 days. If the FREE examination shows we can help you, your very first TUROFF treatment will cost you just $2.00. Our guarantee: YOU MUST BE SATISFIED WITH THE WONDERFUL RESULTS WITHIN 4 TREATMENTS OR YOUR MONEY BACK. Find out why thousands of happy Californians have made us California's biggest, with 10 offices.

OUR COVER

Faced with an exploding world population and with an expanding science and technology at hand, mankind is looking more and more toward the seas for solutions to his problems of tomorrow. The seas, scientists believe, may provide food, raw materials and even additional living space for man. "It is our greatest frontier," says one oceanographer, "and it is about time we took to taming and settling it." How will this be done? Marine writer Lou Jobst and artists for the Martin Company take a look at a tomorrow which envisions unmanned cargo ships directed by navigation satellites and subsurface factories (cover pictures) in the "Seas of the Seventies" on Page 7.

School for the Mask and Fin Set

By George Eres

THE Southland's beaches are the skin and SCUBA capital of the world, with an estimated 250,000 persons venturing into the ocean's depths.

Year-around temperate weather and the topography of the local coast region beckon the ever-increasing number of mask and fin buffs.

Morgan "Clint" Degn, who heads the County of Los Angeles Department of Parks and Recreation's underwater unit, commenting on the increasing enthusiasm of the underwater venturers, notes:

"The sensations a diver has underwater must be similar to those experienced by solo space fliers. These impressions are compounded when you realize the area you are exploring underwater has very likely never before been seen by human eyes."

IN LONG BEACH alone, where the Neptunes are one of the oldest diving clubs in the nation, there are an estimated 25,000 persons participating in the sport, according to James Christensen, 540 Santiago Ave., who captained the U. S. Olympic Spearfishing team in 1960. Christensen, now engaged in the research and development phase of underwater activity, was one of the first in the county's instructor trainer's program.

The county's basic interest in the program is keeping divers safe. They have set up an extensive program for making the sport safe and in the past decade have trained and certified 125,000 underwater enthusiasts.

"Not one of the skin and SCUBA divers completing county-sanctioned courses has suffered a fatal injury," said Degn.

THE COUNTY'S figure of the number of persons involved in the sport includes everybody from those with a mask and fins to those with the most sophisticated diving equipment.

Christensen said for about $20 you can get outfitted with mask, fins and snorkel for free-diving.

SCUBA equipment including tank, regulator and backpack can be obtained for about $100, he said.

"If you want to go into it in a big way," he said, "you can spend thousands of dollars and get outfitted with everything from a wet suit to one of those two-man submarines. Then, of course, there are four-man submarines that can take you into the hundreds of thousands of dollars investment."

THE TWO-MAN sub which sells for about $2,500, called a "wet sub" is manfactured in Gardena. It has a two hour cruising range with a top speed of five knots. It has a

The Incredible Ginger Rogers

Ginger Rogers has capped a long career on stage and in films with TV appearances. Above, in a recent TV show.

By Aubrey B. Haines

THOUGH she has been a dancing star in many films, Ginger Rogers confesses, "I never took a dancing lesson in my life." This seems incredible when one recalls her co-starring films with Fred Astaire and her more recent CBS television network appearances as guest star. Last spring she performed, in a half-hour program, a history of dance steps over the years. "I don't consider myself primarily a dancer," she adds. "I regard myself as an actress. Dancing and singing have been a part of my acting career."

Strangely, though Ginger Rogers became a dancing star on her own, she never looked forward to a dancing or even a theatrical career. "Like Topsy," she says, "my career as an actress just grew. Actually I always wanted to become a school teacher."

Born Virginia Katherine McMath in Independence, Mo., in 1911, the girl's talent first became apparent at an early age. While just a child Ginger appeared in two Charleston contests: A city contest in Fort Worth and a state contest at Dallas. She won them both. These amateur contests were a springboard to vaudeville appearances in the act of her own called "Ginger Rogers and the Red Heads." From there she went to a singing-and-dancing engagement at Chicago's Oriental Theater at the age of 14.

PAUL ASH, the Oriental's band leader, was so impressed with her talent, that, when he went to Brooklyn's Paramount Theater, he called her to join him. "Eddie Cantor saw me at the Paramount," Ginger recalls. "He was unsuccessful in getting me a part in 'Whoopee,' produced by Florenz Ziegfeld, but this contact finally resulted in my getting the comedy lead role of 'Top Speed'."

Her first film opportunity was at the Paramount Long Island studios in "Young Man of Manhattan." So pleased was Paramount with her work that the studio offered her a contract and asked her to leave for Hollywood immediately. At the same time she was also offered the lead role in "Girl Crazy" on Broadway. Her success in this musical comedy solidly established her status as an entertainer.

Ginger's big film opportunity came when she danced with Fred Astaire in "Flying Down to Rio." In that picture the "Carioca" number created a public demand for more teamwork from them. Then came "Gay Divorcee," "Roberta," "Top Hat," "Fol-

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90812, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy, for reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we learn about our name SPEIGHT?—J.C., Lakewood.

J.C.: SPEIGHT had an unusual origin. The source, "Speght," meant "woodpecker." This name was adopted by a medieval English shop owner who used the picture of woodpecker as the trademark of his premises. Yorkshire ancestors include Hugo Speght in 1376. No coat-of-arms is available for Speight.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give history on DUNCAN. —R. O. D., Artesia.

R. O. D.: DUNCAN, an old Scotch Gaelic clan name, means "brown warrior." Duncan the Stout, heir of the ancient Scotch Earls of Atholl, was founder of this honored lineage. He and his clansmen fought beside King Robert the Bruce, defeating the English in 1314. The Duncan estates were in Forfarshire, Scotland. The clan coat-of-arms has three blue belt buckles on a chevron, placed between two blue five-leaved rosettes and a blue hunting horn on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze DE LA CLAIRE.—L. B. D., Long Beach.

L. B. D.: DE LA CLAIRE is from the French surname Le Claire. History's memorandum of this patronymic name is a testimony for a peaceful ancestor. "Le Clair" meant "man with untroubled countenance." The forebear was baptized in honor of Saint Clair, 3rd Century bishop of Nantes, France. The family coat-of-arms, granted in Lorraine in 1512, has a red leopard centered below three gold coins on a red stripe across a gold shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you print the history on RIDENOUR.—R. R., Paramount.

R. R.: RIDENOUR originated as the Anglo-Saxon English word "Readenoran," which translates as "at the red shoreline," a graphic descriptive of the prominent red cliffs where this family lived. Ridenour, a dialectical divergence from Readenoran, became a surname in the south English county of Hampshire and the adjoining coastal Isle of Wight. Some descendants shortened the name to Ridener, Ridner and Redner. The family coat-of-arms has three gold coins on a red stripe across the top of a gold shield. The Welsh county of Radnor has the same source word.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on STEVENSON.—A. S., Lakewood.

A.S.: STEPHENSON STEVENSON were interchangeable names in the Middle Ages, taken from an English ancestor baptized Stepfan meaning "crowned one." Stefan was used in honor of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Old records list Gilbert, son of Stephen, of Lincolnshire in 1273. The Stephenson shield is red, engraved with three green leopard heads on a diagonal silver stripe. The Stephenson shield from Derby, York and Lincoln has the same design.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish data on McGINNIS. —T. M., Long Beach.

T. M.: McGINNIS is from an Irish chief, Angus, whose name meant "man of one choice." Angus was the name-founder of the Scotch Clan MacAonguis of Argyllshire. This clan was formed by some of his progeny. MacAonguis was changed to MacGinnes, MacInnes and Mannix in the 1500s. The family coat-of-arms has a silver rose on a blue shield. James McGinnes of Scotch ancestry, born in north Ireland in 1739, came to Philadelphia in 1790. His descendants lived in Perry County, Pennsylvania.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you please explain MILLIKAN.—Mrs. E. L. T., Long Beach.

E. L. T.: MILLIKAN is from the Irish O'Maolagain descended from Maclacan, a famous chieftain whose name meant "little bald one." The Gaelic clan name was modernized to Milliken, Mulliken, Milligan, and Mulligan. The clan forebears were natives of Donegal, North Ireland. The Milliken shield is silver, decorated with a blue band between three red, gold-crowned half lions.

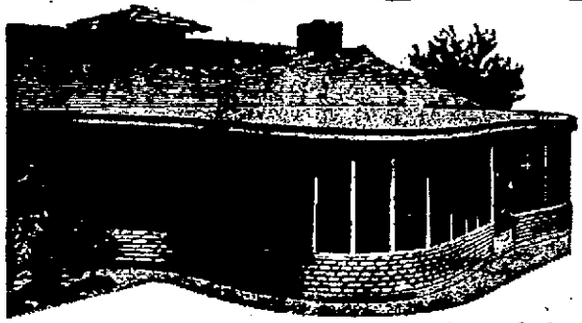

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on CHEATWOOD. —L.R., Long Beach.

L.R.: CHEATWOOD, also spelled Chetwood, had its inception from ancestors living in the English town of Chetwode in Buckinghamshire. The source phrase "Ceattawode" translates from Anglo-Saxon as "cottage in the forest." The Cheatwood-Chetwood family shield from Staffordshire is divided into four sections, two colored silver, two red. On these sections are four red and silver crosses. The family motto, "Corona mea Christus," means "Christ is my crown."

The Seas of the Seventies

Earth satellites will provide many new services to ocean-going commerce, both civilian and military. Photo reconnaissance satellites could eliminate the need for iceberg patrols. Circling the earth, they could report to land-based information centers the locations and courses of dangerous masses of ice. Ships at sea in dangerous areas could query the satellite and receive information that could eliminate any future Titanic disaster. Navigation satellites also would advance seafaring knowledge.

By Lou Jobst

NEVER HAS today promised so much for tomorrow. And never in human history has earth's historically mysterious and forbidding seas been more of a potential boon to mankind and his burgeoning problems.

The seas, which cover more than 70 per cent of the earth's surface, promise to provide both nutrition and vital raw materials for a rapidly growing human population.

The oceans and the ocean basins which cover 140 million square miles also will likely, with space, be major battlegrounds in any future war should such a holocaust come.

Man is just beginning to probe his offshore deeps and has started development of marine technologies which will likely revolutionize human history.

Based on existing technical know how and scientific information, ranging from the laser light to earth satellites to new ship configurations, scientists and artists of the Martin Co., makers of a past era's great flying boats, have taken a wishful look into the future.

The "Seas in the Seventies" are likely to be a startling place. . . .

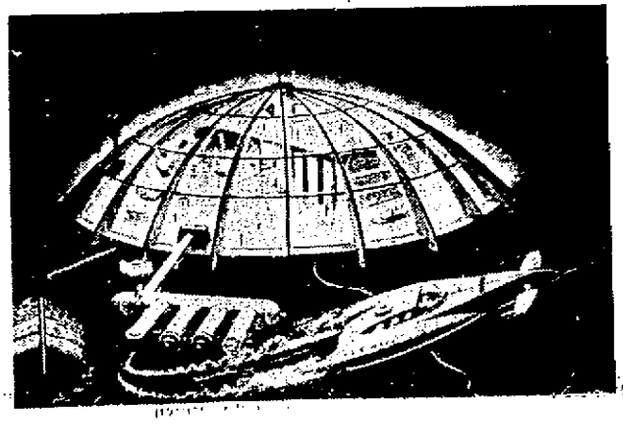

Underwater mining, already being done, will be advanced through prospecting by submarines carrying underwater magnetometers that can sense likely locations of mineral and petroleum deposits by measuring deviations in the earth's magnetic field.

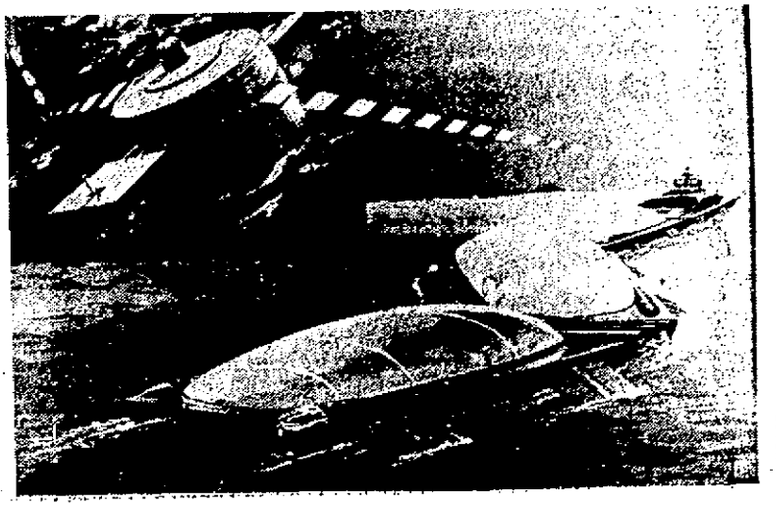

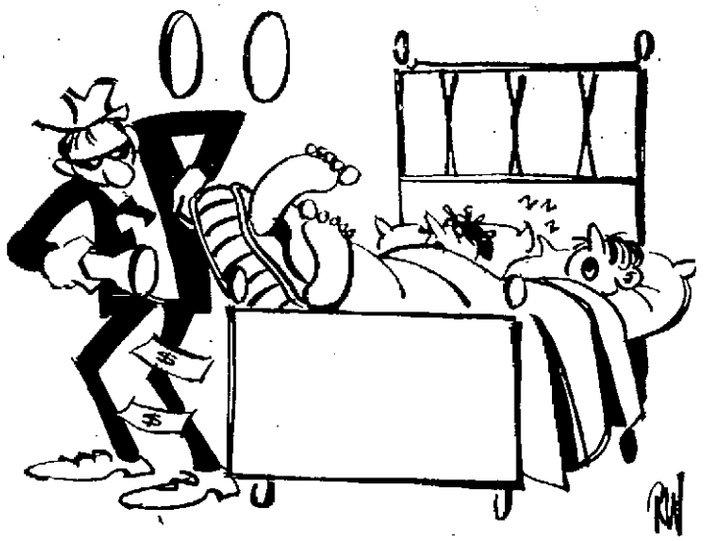

Seas in the Seventies will find new and revolutionary surface craft afloat: catamaran aircraft carriers, cargo and passenger vessels will cross seas at mile-a-minute and better speeds. Hover craft that can ride above water or land on a cushion of air will transport personnel to shore.

Underwater communities are a thing of the future. They will house research centers, factories, mining operations, farms, even military bases. Smaller submersibles and air locks will provide for transportation to and from surface. Strange new aids will provide for communication with shore facilities.

Robot convoys of unmanned merchantmen could roam sea lanes of the world, carrying international commerce with clockwork precision. Plastic cargo seatrains, towed by pilotless tugs, would be directed from an orbiting satellite. Human pilots could then board craft for docking them when they arrive at designated ports. Weather satellites could route such vessels around storm centers. The cargo carriers would be inexpensive to build and would be virtually impervious to ordinary hazards of the sea.

A MATTER OF MONEY

Where (Not) to Stash Hard-Earned Cash

By Frank L. Remington

LATE ONE evening James Dunbar closed his service station in McAllenn, Tex., and counted the day's receipts of more than $1,000. He wouldn't be able to bank it the next day, Washington's Birthday, so he glanced around the station for a hiding place. His glimpse fell on a rack of tires. "That's it!" he exclaimed. Carefully he stashed the moneybag inside one of the new casings.

Arriving late at the station next morning, Dunbar almost fainted when an unsuspecting attendant proudly announced he'd sold two new tires. Sure enough, the improvised safe had been one of them. Dunbar frantically contacted the state police.

In the meantime, motorist Jose Gonzalez was blithely high-balling toward Houston on his new tires. Suddenly, one of them blew out. Jose changed it and proceeded on his way. A police car finally overtook him and found the cash still reposing within the astonished Gonzalez' mutilated tire. He received a new casing from the happy service station owner.

THERE'S NO TELLING in what singular hideaway some folks may stash their cash. An ingenious California motorist banked $820 in the gas tank of his car, tossing in a half dollar each time he filled 'er up. A Seattle man stuffed $40 in his sock, pulled it on, locked his apartment, and went to bed. Next morning the sock still graced his foot —but not the $40. It had disappeared during the night!

Money may be harder to come by these days, but people still find it easy to lose. Last year Americans lost more than $100 million. Probably unreported losses account for twice as much.

Many losses result from carelessness or unforeseen circumstances. One fellow slipped a $20 bill between the pages of his telephone book for safe keeping—then left town on business. When he returned, the volume had been replaced by a new one. Rushing to the local telephone office, he recounted his sad story. An official pointed to three freight cars jammed with old books. Sadly, the fellow muttered, "Two hundred thousand books against 20 bucks. I'd better forget it."

One evening a Knoxville, Tenn., man did a double take as he tore the wrappings from a box of crackers. The container held a lady's purse, but not a single cracker!

THE BAG was full of feminine do-dads, identification cards, and a wallet full of currency. Owner of the purse, it turned out, worked in a cracker factory. She'd hidden her purse in an empty cracker box for safe keeping. A co-worker inadvertently tossed it on the conveyor belt and it slid down a chute and was sealed.

It's risky to hide even small amounts of cash in a telephone book or a cracker box. Attempting to conceal large sums of money is foolhardy. A bank is the only safe depository. Yet thousands of people eye banks with unjustified suspicion and cleverly, they believe, secrete their currency around the home.

A person with money in the house thinks, "Now where can I hide it where nobody will find it?" Then he is struck by the thought: "The mattress! Under the mattress! How original of me!" Actually, it's just about as original as sin. Householders have been hiding valuables under mattresses for years. It's the first place a burglar looks.

The second bright idea a person usually has is: "I'll hide the money in the cookie jar." That's the second place a housebreaker looks. He knows the average person keeps everything but cookies in the cookie jar.

NEXT, THE do-it-yourself banker thinks of concealing his money in a trunk and covering it with underwear. That's usually the third place a burglar investigates. The long underwear may keep the cold cash warm—but not safe.

Those who don't trust banks may hide their money in flower vases. That's like putting cash in a shoe and setting it on a closet shelf—the fifth place a housebreaker looks.

Frequently householders are a bit more ingenious. An Ohio woman dashed to the sanitation department when she remembered the $600 stuffed in an old flashlight she'd thrown in the trash. She was too late; the refuse had been buried beneath two feet of earth in a landfill.

One man used the interior of his hollow, wooden leg for a money depository. Another tucked his greenbacks behind the upper plate of his false teeth. A hunchback's "hunch" turned out to be the hiding place for his life's savings. For 20 years another fellow kept his cash in a rat trap hidden in his piano; another hid his money in a stuffed bird in a glass cage.

Illustrated by Richard Wallmeyer

One man hid his money inside a wooden leg; another behind his false teeth.

A CLEVER PET lover has taught his parrot to scream "Stop thief!" whenever anyone puts his hand into its cage. Under the cage floor reposes the owner's savings. A miserly old woman pasted her banknotes to the walls of her home and covered them with wallpaper. An Irishman, who'd long been suspected of subversive activities, dropped dead one day. Investigators discovered a bomb at his side. When demolition experts opened it, they found a neat stack of gold and currency.

A few years ago a thrifty Denver woman with a large family managed to stint and save $800. Since she didn't trust banks, she hid the money in the house and eventually forgot where she'd put it.

One day, soon after lighting the broiler in her oven, she remembered. She'd concealed the money there. It had become a pile of char. Each bill was still intact, but fragile as a soap bubble.

One fellow who stuffed his paper money in fruit jars and buried them in the back yard saw the folly of his ways as he grew older and opened a bank account. "If buried money doesn't mold and mildew," he declared, "the dogs dig it up. It got so every time a worm popped out of the ground in the back yard, I ran out and frisked him for a five-dollar bill. No more burying money for me."

ACTUALLY, A FRUIT jar or a short length of pipe capped tightly at both ends—favorite methods for do-it-yourself bankers—isn't much protection against mold, whether the container is buried or not. The jar lids and the section of pipe corrode and moisture sets in. Mold does the rest.

Fortunately, however, if paper money can be retrieved b e f o r e mold ruins it completely, or snatched out of a fire before it is entirely reduced to fine ashes, there may be a chance for its owner to get it back. Or part of it, anyway. The currency redemption division of the United States Treasury specializes in reconstructing and identifying mutilated currency.

Millions of dollars worth of charred and rotted bills pass through this special division. They come from those who have thoughtlessly hidden money in fireplaces and stoves and then inadvertently set the bills on fire. They come also from people whose currency has been mutilated in accidents, in plane wrecks, or even been chewed by cats and dogs.

THE CURRENCY Redemption Division always redeems full value for mutilated currency if three-fifths or more of the bill remains. If less than three-fifths but more than two-fifths remains, it is redeemable at half its face value. This rule, however, is not rigid. Even if only a fragment of the bill is identifiable, the owner is reimbursed if he or someone else familiar with the case can supply an affidavit that the rest of the money has been completely destroyed. In addition, the owner must furnish a certificate testifying to his character and trustworthiness.

Employes of the redemption division are familiar with the pathos accompanying each box of burned or mutilated bills. To them the banknotes are far more than mere scraps of paper—they represent years of work and savings.

There are some morals to these stories. In the first place, for your own sake don't stash your hard-earned money where it may rot, burn, get lost or deteriorate. The best place for it, of course, is in the bank. Then you won't ever need the help of the currency redemption division.

IN THE SECOND place, if you insist on being your own banker, be sure to leave an easily-found record of where you've hidden your money. If something should happen to you, your survivors will be able to locate the cache and settle your affairs—if the money hasn't rotted away beyond recognition.

'LEST WE FORGET . . .'

Some Pioneer Mothers of Long Beach

By Maymie R. Krythe

Mrs. Benjamin Flint posed for this photo taken in the 1870s. She held a prominent place in the life of Long Beach during city's early period.

THROUGHOUT the 50 states and in some foreign lands, mothers are honored today for their efforts in rearing children and maintaining homes, but Mother's Day is an occasion also for recognition of hundreds of women who have not only attended the duties of home and motherhood but have achieved distinction in civic, art, literature, medicine, philanthropic and other fields.

And, at each Thanksgiving, we are reminded of the hardships undergone by those Pilgrim mothers in Salem, especially during that first long hard winter. However, we should also remember the other pioneer mothers all over the United States who had their share of difficulties when they helped open up new territories; and those women found that pioneering was no easy job.

In the annals of Long Beach, we find the names and records of several mothers who pioneered, and helped start the great city we enjoy living in today. For example, there is Orlena M. Healey, the first woman who set up housekeeping in what is now Long Beach proper; for she started in a tent on the spot where the Heartwell Building now stands.

SHE AND her daughters had come down from San Francisco, with her husband, Capt. Charles T. Healey, a surveyor. He had been asked by the Bixbys to do some work for them, and to lay out the townsite of Willmore City, later to become Long Beach. For six weeks Mrs. Healey lived under very primitive conditions. Water had to be brought from Rancho Los Cerritos; five miles away; food supplies from Wilmington. In addition, she had to endure frequent sand storms, and loneliness, not to mention the many scorpions that made their way into the tent. However, in spite of such conditions, she persevered and deserves honor as a worthy pioneer mother.

Maude Healey, one of her daughters, married George C. Flint, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Flint. Benjamin Flint, a cousin of the Bixbys, first reached California in 1849. He is given credit for "discovering" Rancho Los Cerritos in 1866, and for interesting his associates in the Flint-Bixby Company to buy the 27,000 acre rancho from John Temple. Mrs. Flint was another important pioneer mother. From the excellent photograph preserved of her, we can gain a good idea of what the well dressed wife and mother wore in that early period.

Mrs. Margaret Hathaway Bixby, wife of Jotham Bixby, and mother of seven children, has long been remembered for her good works in community life. She and her husband, often called "The Father of Long Beach," founded the Congregational Church here, giving the site and funds toward the erection of the building. Another mother from this same family, who also had seven children, was Amelia Bixby, who married George H. Bixby. She also was a strong supporter of the Congregational Church, was interested in the founding of a hospital, and in the work of the YWCA.

THERE WERE several other pioneer women whose names should be remembered, both as mothers and community builders. To name just a few: Mrs. R.B. Robinson (mother of Mrs. J.K. Bushong); Mrs. James R. Cook (whose son, Frank Cook, aged 90, is still living); Mrs. J. T. Cullen (mother of Margaret C. Wilson, the third girl born in Long Beach); Mrs. H.C. Dillon (wife of Judge Dillon, second president of Ebell Club, and mother of a talented family); Mrs. Lula Teel (whose son, Courtney, was the first Long Beach boy, and whose daughter Ethel Van Houten is a local resident); Mrs. W.L. Cuthbert (mother of a long remembered musical family); and Mrs. Lafayette Saunders (whose daughter, Mrs. R.W.E. Lewis, still resides here.)

However, the pioneer mother to whom credit is given for naming Long Beach, was Mrs. Belle Lowe, wife of W. W. Lowe, an early storekeeper, and first Long Beach postmaster. The Lowes reached town in 1884, two years after the founding of Wilmore City. Their home and store were on Pine Avenue near Ocean Boulevard. There were two daughters in the family, Ethel and LaVerne; the latter married Charles Heartwell.

When a committee met to change the name of the community, three names were suggested: Crescent City, Bay View, and Long Beach. At first, Crescent City was preferred; but the men decided to wait a day to make a final decision.

Mrs. Jotham Bixby, photo about 1874, was another Long Beach pioneer mother.

THAT EVENING, so the story goes, Mrs. Lowe talked in a most convincing manner to her husband. She pointed out the fact that there was a long natural beach from Alamitos Bay to the San Pedro breakwater, 12 miles in length; and at that time, it was "an unimpeded thoroughfare." Mrs. Lowe declared that Long Beach was the logical name; that it would publicize the town; and also popularize it as a seaside resort.

Apparently, Lowe agreed with her; for next day, he presented her arguments to the committee. Then "the gallant delegates" said they "would let the woman decide it;" and that day the name Long Beach was chosen by a unanimous vote.

Mrs. Lowe also helped start a small private school in 1885. She and other energetic mothers collected $75 for a three-month school term, taught by a 16-year-old girl,

Free Swimming Pool Planning Kit

If you are planning a pool this year here is your opportunity to get a free kit showing all phases of pool construction. Also included are tips on pool buying plus complete information on special equipment. Kit is packed with facts and ideas you will want to know before you build.

This free kit was put out by Anthony Pools, world's largest pool-builder.

Its authorative information was developed by Anthony, based on the building of over 24,000 pools.

In the pictures and text it describes the way modern pools are constructed. The growing use of high-speed automatic equipment for excavation and gunite cementing has kept the price of Anthony pools low while prices in general have gone up. A modern pool is just about the biggest bargain you can get these days.

It is important that you choose a builder large enough to offer you modern speed and economy.

During the first four months of this year Anthony has built more pools in the greater Los Angeles area than the next three largest pool builders combined. This is a dramatic endorsement of Anthony's value, service, and reputation.

Kit also describes such Anthony exclusive accessories as Hida-Sweep automatic pool cleaner – it is never removed from the pool – and Antho-Pure, the automatic pool purifier that holds up to six months' supply of Gardex.

Other sub-assemblies and accessories manufactured in Anthony's 15 acre plant and sold direct to the pool buyer help keep Anthony's price low.

Anthony Pools' stock is listed on the American and Pacific Coast Stock exchanges.

For your free copy of this valuable kit, drop in or call Anthony Pools South Gate office at 5871 Firestone Blvd., phone SP 3-2210, TO 1-0381, or our Torrance office, 25412 S. Crenshaw Blvd., phone 832-5391 or our Anaheim office at 2050 So. Harbor, phone JE 4-3100.

Panama Votes on 'Yanqui Baiters'

By Hoyt McAfee

THERE will be much shouting and some shooting when Panamanians troop to the polls today to pick a new president. Voters from 19 political parties have seven presidential candidates to choose from. Only three of them, however, command enough popular support to make the race lively and truly competitive.

Even more disconcerting, from the U. S. point of view, no one of the Big Three can be called "pro-American." Take the candidacy of 63-year-old Dr. Armulfo Arias: As head of the extremist Panamenista party, he long has shown his true colors as a "Yanqui baiter." Elected president of Panama on two occasions in the past, he proved himself less than friendly to the U. S.

In truth, on specific occasions he seized upon his chance to belittle and undermine U. S. influence in Latin American affairs. Once, in the early autumn of 1941, he went so far as to express sympathy for the aims of Nazi Germany under Adolf Hitler! This meant that swarms of Nazi spies and potential saboteurs found the welcome mat out for them upon their arrival in Panama.

THEIR VERY presence there posed a threat, a dangerous one, to the safety of the Panama Canal—especially in the event of America's entry into World War II against Nazi Germany.

Fortunately for the U. S. and her vital interests, popular indignation against President Arias and his pro-Hitler sentiments soon reached the explosion point. Responsible democratic elements in Panama then asserted themselves and drove Arnulfo Arias into exile. On that occasion, he sought and received political asylum in Cuba.

Now, 23 years later, he finds the political climate in Panama receptive to his anti-Yanqui hate slogans. Spouting them much like a broken record, he exerts himself in his bid to succeed outgoing President Roberto Chiari as Panama's new chief executive. Should he win the election on this May 10, watch out!

UNQUESTIONABLY that might well herald the worst kind of stormy weather ahead for the U. S. in her dealings with Panama. Informed government officials in Washington, D. C., describe Arias as "the most undesirable" of the three leading candidates in Panama's presidential election. All the more so because in the effort by the two countries to reach a just settlement in the thorny Panama Canal dispute, Arias would—in the event of his success at the polls on May 10—agitate for all-out control of this waterway!

Juan de Arco Galindo, a 54-year-old candidate, will no doubt receive a fair-sized vote. Five government opposition parties are throwing their support to him. Barring a major upset, nonetheless, he stands little chance of winning the big prize.

Dr. Arnulfo Arias (above) is a foremost candidate in the Panama election today. He is far less than pro-American.

But he will siphon off votes from the government coalition candidate, 59-year-old Marco Robles, rather than from Dr. Arnulfo Arias. In a sense, then, the Panamanian election simmers down to this: If the trio of major candidates, which one represents the lesser of three evils?

MARCO ROBLES, the recipient of support from eight political parties, certainly qualifies as the most reasonable one of the lot. His position corresponds fairly close to the one long championed by President Chiari. In other words, that a new Panama Canal treaty must be written by the U. S. and Panama—one which will yield Panamanians more jobs, better pay, and the government a larger share of the revenue realized from toll fees from the waterway.

Having listened to all three candidates harangue their followers on past visits to Panama, I suppose that Marco Robles offers the best hope of keeping U. S. and Panamanian negotiators at the conference table. Even he, the most rational of the top three, will—I suspect—prove a tough customer to deal with. Assuming, of course, that he triumphs today.

FOR INSTANCE, I once heard him tell a group of my Panamanian friends that he admired the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. That the latter's "Good Neighbor Policy" was "working and making friends for the U. S. all across Latin America." In his recent campaign speeches, however, he has spoken critically of FDR's apt pupil, President Lyndon Johnson.

No doubt of it, a presidential election in Panama generates considerably more excitement and color than in the U. S. As election day approaches, the whole country takes on a carnival-like atmosphere. Motor caravans bearing the leading candidates swoop into towns, villages, and cities with a dramatic flourish—somewhat like the entry of a conquering army.

Almost all speeches are delivered amid colorful streamers, bobbing slogans, shouts of vivia, and with frequent emotional outbursts. Denunciations of unpopular "Yanqui" policies pour forth. Maybe the candidate makes little sense or offers little in the way of new or creative ideas. No matter, he knows how to evoke stormy emotional responses from his listeners.

DESPITE its serious shortcomings, Panama's presidential election never becomes bogged down with dull routines. Fist fights or brawls at all large political rallies can be expected. Heated arguments roar on well into the night—long after the candidates have gone home.

On April 23, Panama's National Guard (which functions as the country's defense and police force) called upon all citizens of the Republic to surrender their weapons (rifles, pistols, machetes, and the like). It was an appeal long familiar to Panamanians—one considerable numbers of them always ignore.

These rabid political partisans would no more turn in their weapons, on election eve, than they'd permit you to chop off their right or left arm! On election day, some of the zealots among them always become involved in knock-down, drag-out arguments. Then, despite the watchfulness of Panamanian National Guardsmen, they whip out their guns and blaze away at one another.

Luckily, most of the shooting proves erratic—its primary purpose being to "throw a scare into the other fellow" (supporting an opposing candidate)!

No one will take a siesta in Panama today!

A TISKET, A TASKET . . .

A Little Paper Basket

Giving of baskets of flowers anonymously on May 1 is a custom recalled by many generations. Above, a little basket that can bring pleasure if given on any day.

By Lorena Fleissig

SOFT spring days filled with blooming fragrance and color turn our fancies toward sentiment in its more pleasing interpretations. There is surely nothing more delightful than to receive a gift of freshly picked flowers from a secret someone who so honors you. And that most charming gesture of affection is the still-loved, never forgotten custom of hanging a surprise basket on a certain door.

We used to call them May Baskets, but this frivolous type of basket should bring a celebrant of whatever age, or for whatever reason, a special happiness in any month of the year.

There is little or no expense involved in making this lacy tribute. Simply plan to use some of the pretty gift wrap you may have on hand, or possibly the left-over wrap from some package. The illustration was made with a large decorative paper bag from a stationery store — saved because of its bright spring colors.

EXPERIMENT first with a page from the classified section of the newspaper by measuring a piece about 20 inches square. The square is then folded to make a triangle of three corners. The long crease is smoothed flat with the hand making sure that the edges of the paper are kept perfectly even. From the center of the crease fold over again. Keep folding, always from the same center point. It takes altogether, five folds to prepare the final triangle for cutting. (See diagram below.)

Always fold evenly and press folds as flat as possible. Notice that the last fold is lower at the top. Begin to cut below this final fold as shown in the illustration.

Cut across the fold to within one fourth inch of the opposite side. Alternate the cuts about one half inch apart down the sides of the folds until three inches from the bottom point. The three inches are left uncut to provide a firmer base for the basket contents. A little practice will give you the idea.

Never cut off any of the folded paper.

AFTER CUTTING according to the diagram, open the folds by separating them with caution as paper cuts mesh together and can easily tear. Spread the square gently. An object is needed to weight the basket and to give it shape. So place a handful of wrapped candy, nuts, a small boxed gift or substitute a medium small stone as ballast for the center of the square. Gather the two opposite points and tie with a long loop of ribbon for a hanger. Finish with a fluffy bow and fill the completed basket with flowers. Or with their counterpart if the weather has foiled your garden.

This kind of surprise is always welcomed.

plastic canopy that can be pulled back underwater to allow occupants to leave the vehicle.

"Diving is dangerous," said Degn, "but primarily because of human factors. Training and supervision under experienced and educated experts does reduce the danger element for the beginner to a negligible level. Underwater physical dangers, and limiting human factors, once understood and respected, pose little threat to the diver."

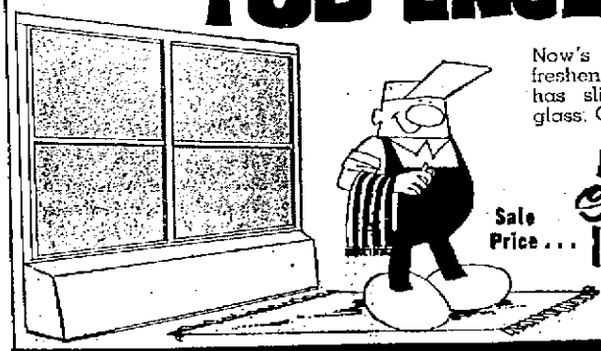

EACH YEAR some novice skin and SCUBA divers lose their lives off California's coast. Seven such fatalities are known to have occurred in 1962-63.

"Most dive shops in Los Angeles County will not rent or sell equipment to individuals who don't possess evidence they've completed a YMCA, National Association of Underwater Instructors (NAUI) or county-sanctioned skin and SCUBA course," Degn said. "These courses are reasonable in terms of cost. In any case, if you look at the safety record resulting from our certification program, completing a sanctioned course may save the beginner's life."

Neither the city of Long Beach nor the county offer free courses in skin diving. However, the county's Parks and Recreation department keeps a list of certified diving instructors. Persons interested may call Degn's office for information about the nearest instruction.

Hilltop Haven from a Busy World

Native beauty—from rock found on the premises and worked into the home and garden walls—is prominent in gateway.

From one side, the family room in the Dana Andrews hilltop home looks out on a quiet garden. The opposite side unites with the kitchen through bar and pass-through. Sunken living room is beyond the door, left background.

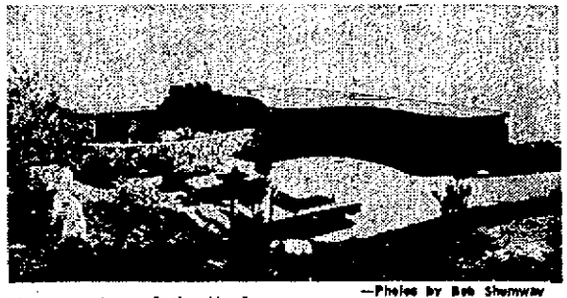

By Stella George

WHEN SCREEN STAR, Dana Andrews, goes home after a day, or a week, or months of work before the motion picture camera, he thinks that his new Palos Verdes Peninsula home at 30569 Oceanaire Drive provides the ultimate in warm, inviting relaxation. Mrs. Andrews, son, Stephen, and daughters, Katharine and Susan, are satisfied that it is their ideal home.

The homesite is on a 1,200-foot-high hill, and incorporates a grand-scale view. The architect is Richard O. Spencer and Mrs. Andrews received the assistance of Virginia Woodbridge, AID, NSID, with her own artistic ideas of theme and execution of the interior decorating.

Sculptured gates lead into a Japanese garden, then over a footbridge with a waterfall nearby and into the modern home. This contrast is further carried out in fact that the home has two dissimilar views —one through the glass walls looking towards the quiet garden, and the other a panoramic view of the countryside, the Pacific Ocean, past Catalina Island and northward. Actually, the home sits on one of the highest crests of the peninsula.

THE DOUBLE GLASS front door opens into a spacious slate floor entrance hall where, at a glance, there is a view through filigree panels of the sunken living room surrounded by glass, the dining room, glass enclosed, the passage down to the bedrooms, and, to the right, the family room and kitchen.

Filigree panels separate the slate-floored entry from the living room. A corner fireplace is of stone and metal.

Walls are of pecky cypress, off white in finish. Four wide steps lead to the living room. To the right is a large round rock planter—all of rock used inside and out were taken from the property itself. Above the planter is a skylight where the sun can shine its rays on the live plants below.

Thick wool turf carpeting is on the floor, off white in color. In one corner of the room is a Skons metal fireplace. The black slate hearth runs to the steps, and, covered with black foam cushions, becomes a comfortable sofa.

A long gold sofa faces the TV end of the room where built-in shelves and cupboards display treasures picked up from all over the world. The furniture, sofa and chairs, are on rollers so that they may be rolled around with ease if the need arises.

Behind the sofa is a conversation grouping with avocado occasional chairs and a small table. Beyond the glass wall which faces the ocean is a semi-circular balcony.

A QUEEN ANN set in the dining room is upholstered in violet. Pieces, large and small, all have a fascinating story behind them—the heavy wall brackets that support a small buffet, the Oriental tree, items too numerous to mention. Although many pieces such as the dining set were brought from the family's former home, a large Normandie style house with 7,500 square feet, where living was more formal, through the ingenuity of Mrs. Andrews and Virginia Woodbridge, they have been refinished or recovered, or added to in such a way that they seem customed for their new modern setting.

Another view of the Andrews' living room, entry hall at right, dining room far down at right rear. Wide window encompasses a sweeping view.

On one side, the family room views the quiet garden. The other side is joined to the kitchen (or separated as the case may be) with an open bar ready for dining or entertaining. A table and six chairs are in the center of the room, with a conversation area at one end.

The spacious kitchen has every modern convenience plus many original, brand new ones. One example of the latter was designed by Mrs. Andrews; a cupboard below the sink level opens to reveal a heavy service table which can be rolled out to the center of the room when needed. It can be used as a serving table, a chopping board, or any one of a dozen such uses when needed. A shelf below enables it to serve as a utility table to hold silver or dishes which are about to be or have been used.

STEVE'S ROOM and bath are down a small hall from the family room. He plans to become a sculptor, and the evidence of his art are decorative additions to the room. One such piece is particularly worthy of mention: a pair of painstakingly carved feet.

The master bedroom suite with dressing rooms and bath is at the far end of the hall from the entrance. One wall of glass has the view of the ocean. In the nearby bath, glass is behind the sunken tub, where it is possible to relax in the height of luxury viewing the countryside and blue Pacific without being seen.

The rooms of Katharine and Susan represent their own individual tastes, althought the time spent in them is somewhat limited since both are away at school or college.

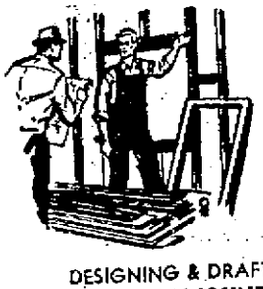

A door to the right of the main entrance opens to reveal a red carpeted stairway which leads to Andrews' private hideaway below. It is the type of study every busy man dreams of—richly carpeted in rich red, furnished with every necessity and luxury such as a comfortable lounge chair and hassock, desk-with-a-view, conversation corner, and built-in cupboards for personal books, papers and other such items. Nearby is a private bath, a storage room, and still another room which could double as a [illegible] room or workroom.

Split-Level Has Room for Attic Expansion

By Jules Loh

GROWING families and tight budgets seem, inexorably, to go together. This handsome three-bedroom home with an expansion attic —an entirely new concept in split-level design—should help ease the strain.

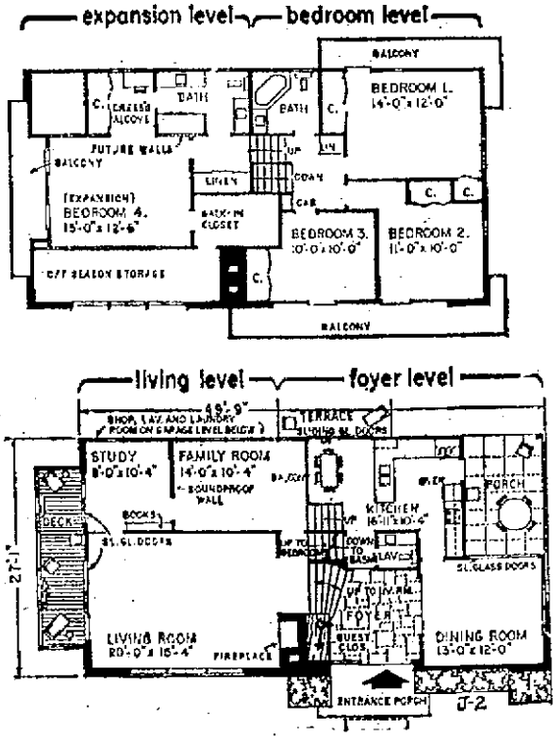

Its straight ridge roof makes the home look, from the outside, like a two story, or perhaps one of the new bi-level designs. Actually it is a side-to-side split with no less than six levels.

Designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern, the house is No. J-2 in the House of the Week series.

"By extending the roof line over the living level," said Matern, "I was able to provide 517 additional square feet of expansion room which many homeowners can finish off themselves at half the cost."

IF FINISHED in the manner Matern suggests, the house would then contain four bedrooms and 3½ baths. The new bedroom would be a huge 15 feet by 12 feet 6 inches room opening onto a side balcony, plus a dressing alcove with an oversized closet, a second large walk-in closet, and a two-lavatory bath—in addition to an off-season storage area the full width of the living level.

This split is different from the usual type in another respect, too. In this one, the lower grade level contains the Expansion portion of this home could be finished piecemeal by a handy man, adding 517 sq. ft. of living space.

Sun deck adjoining the living room is one of a number of inexpensive touches of luxury in this split level house. Each of the four bedrooms has a balcony access.

foyer, kitchen and dining room which usually are found on the living level.

A TWO-CAR garage (plus shop, lavatory and laundry room) is on the slab level, and the basement is a half flight down, beneath the foyer, dining room and kitchen.

Such efficient use of space results in the entire house occupying only 1,210 square feet of ground cover in dimensions of 21 feet 1 inch deep by 49 feet 9 inches wide—small enough for an 80-foot lot. The area of the bedroom level is 665 square feet.

Outdoor living areas are so well integrated in this home that even each bedroom has access to a balcony—a private one for the master bedroom. A sun deck also adjoins the living level, entered through sliding glass doors from both the living room and study. A rear terrace is on the grade level, separated from the breakfast room by sliding glass doors; and a covered porch is fitted nicely in the kitchen-dining room corner.

THE KITCHEN contains a number of unsual features, in addition to its 16 feet 11 inches by 10 feet 4 inch size. Note the location of the double sink, and also the uncommon amount of counter space. Cabinet space also is plentiful, in fact there are 31½ lineal feet of base and wall cabinets.

The family room is well placed a few steps above the kitchen and overlooking the back yard through an entire wall of windows, and a soundproof wall divides it from the study.

Another well placed room is the lavatory, located in the small hallway between the foyer and kitchen. It is convenient also to the living room and, with its large vanity, serves as an excellent powder room for guests.

CLOSET SPACE is abundant throughout the house. The master bedroom has two closets, one of them especially large, and both the other bedrooms have oversized closets. The linen closet is convenient to the main bath (note the corner tub, and there is a cabinet outside bedroom No. 3 "for the linen closet overflow," as architect Matern put it.

All in all, the house is a well-ordered innovation which provides an exceptional amount of livability with numerous touches of luxury in a modest amount of space.

To order, send name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan Design J-2.

Although its straight ridge roof is deceiving, this actually is a side-to-side split on no less than six levels. The roof extends over to provide for expansion room.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

CUERNAVACA, MEXICO

"We would like to bike through Europe but our parents think we are crazy. They would believe what you say."

YOU'RE in the right madhouse. In the summer, Europe is loaded with kids on bicycles, scooters and motorcycles.

"Could you suggest a type of bicycle and where to buy or rent one?"

A friend of mine—a bicycle buff—is pedaling around Europe now. He said he was using a bike with a three-speed shift which made it easier to pump up hills.

I don't recall the make. But these two addresses may help you, not only with bikes but places to stay: American Youth Hostel, 14 W. 8th St., and Council on Student Travel, 179 Broadway. Both New York City.

You can do pretty well by putting yourself and the bikes on trains for long hauls. European trains are geared for this kind of transportation. Also, I saw a light folding bicycle that you can carry almost everywhere—in a catalogue by Hammacher-Schlemmer, New York City. (They also showed a folding scooter.)

"We would like to rent a house (temporarily) in Mexico with a view to making it a permanent place of retirement. We had heard of Ajijic and Jocotepec. Have you any idea of costs?"

I HAVE TALKED to people who were doing it on about $300 per month per couple. I've only driven through Ajijic and Jocotepec. Both on Lake Chapala. Both within short drive from Guadalajara where you can get modern drug stores, magazines and supermarkets. American art colony at Ajijic and probably something the same at Jocotepec.

The farther you go from American colonies, the cheaper it gets. And the more you have to adjust to: No English or American company or magazines or newspapers; lack of refrigeration and occasional breakdowns in electricity; open markets, colorful but plenty of flies. Good fruit and vegetables but poor quality meat.

Here in Cuernavaca — the oldest and most luxurious American colony — my living costs without rent are running $20 a day. Two children, three adults. Includes food, drink, laundry, household help, gasoline, tank gas for cooking, supermarket shopping, occasional trip to Mexico City, few dinners out.

"Are there some good guest houses at Ochos Rios or Montego Bay in Jamaica?"

I SAW a couple that looked good (from the outside) at Montego Bay. But Ochos Rios looked like a hotel-resort center. I didn't see guest houses. Lots of them around Kingston. But I think the North Shore at Montego Bay has better and more available beaches.

"You said it was more economical to ship a car home from London than Lisbon. We are planning to ship a car. . ."

THAT WAS THE way it worked out for me. Because I bought a BMC Austin 7 and the shipping to the U. S. was part of the package price. There seem to be two prices for shipping autos, maybe due to freighter agreements. One is much cheaper than the other. I would consult AAA on this before you buy or go to Europe.

"Do you have any information on summer schools in Switzerland?"

SUPPOSED to be excellent. You get a whole folder free by writing Swiss National Tourist office — New York City, 10 W. 49th Street.

"Is it worthwhile stopping over a few days in Ireland?"

ONE OF THE BEST country. But try to drive or bus around the countryside if you can, not just a visit to Dublin.

GERMAN CIRCUS ON FILM

The world of the circus is the major theme and a tour of Germany the minor theme in the latest 30-minute Lufthansa film shot in Technicolor which is available for group showings throughout the country.

The featurette, titled "Once Upon a Circus Tale," follows Ingrid, a young circus performer, whipping through Germany in her Volkswagen, visiting such places as Hamburg, Cologne, Luebeck and the Wine Festival at Bacharach. There her boy friend meets her with the news that she is wanted to appear in the Hollywood spectacular "Circus World" starring John Wayne and Rita Hayworth, being filmed in Spain.

The first half of the picture is an offbeat travelogue of Germany, the second half shows Ingrid in Barcelona going through the ups and downs of a minor performer in a gigantic motion picture production being filmed. The picture is available through Lufthansa German Airlines office in Beverly Hills (9389 Wilshire Blvd.).

The First Travel Agent

By Emil H. Himanka

THE TRAVEL business today is a multi-billion dollar business, and few people would undertake a trip abroad without first consulting a travel agent. Quite often they will travel in groups at reduced rates arranged through a travel agency.

The idea of group travel at reduced rates originated with Thomas Cook, a young Englishman working as a traveling missionary for the General Baptist Association in 1841, when he persuaded the Midland Railroad to place a special train at his disposal at reduced rates to a temperance rally at a distant town. On July 5, of that year, 500 people rode to the meeting and back again at the price of one-way fares.

Cook soon became famous as a travel impresario, and found himself organizing excursions for groups all over England. For more than 50 years Cook had the travel industry all to himself. It was not until the turn of the century that his monopoly was challenged.

THE WORLD'S first travel agents were traveling merchants who journeyed from country to country by donkey and camel, peddling their wares, usually accompanied by travelers who depended upon the knowledge and experience of the wandering traders to lead them safely to their destination.

Perhaps the most famous traveler of a bygone era was Marco Polo who journeyed in the company of his trader father and uncle to the Orient where he spent 30 years in the services of the Tarter Khans. Upon his return to Europe he wrote a book about his travels throughout the Tartar Empire. Today, 700 years later, this book is classed among the most interesting travel books written.

It was the Romans who invented tourism. For 600 years, from 100 B.C. to 500 A.D., the Roman Empire with its magificent highways extending from the Atlantic ocean on the west to the Arabian desert on the east, fostered the biggest tourist movement of ancient times. With numberless legions to insure peace over a dominion of more than a million square miles, and her slave-driven galleys spanning the [illegible] the citizens of the known civilized world, the citizens of Rome journeyed from Spain to Syria without hindrance of barrier to stay their wandering feet.

AS THE AMERICAN tourist travels across Europe and into Greece to gaze upon the splendor of the Parthenon, to marvel at the Acropolis, to pause and contemplate the rubble that is the site of ancient Troy, and then pass on to Asia Minor, it seldom occurs to him that even so did the Romans 2,000 years ago.

There were no travel agents to advise or chart his course, and a long journey often entailed hardships and rigors seldom encountered in the travels of today; and one usually carried his food and cooking utensils along with him.

It is estimated that international travel amounted to $8 billion in 1963. Americans alone spent a record $3 billion in foreign travel last year.

Mexican musicians, led by violin ensemble, are an attraction at Mexico City's famed Focolare, first of a chain of fine restaurants operated by the Balsa Hotels.

'Superlative Service' Builds Hotel Chain

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WHEN YOU go to the New York World's Fair, don't miss the delightful Mexican Pavilion and its deluxe Focolare restaurant, Cafe Alameda and the Jorongo cocktail lounge and bar.

All three have a Mexican motiff and atmosphere, with mariachis livening things up at the Focolare and Jorongo.

The food and service at all three: they say it's out of this world.

But probably the most remarkable thing about these pleasant spots is that they are the newest additions to a constantly growing hotel-restaurant empire extending from New York into the Caribbean and throughout Mexico.

CESAR BALSA, the empire's architect, has an exacting but simple success formula: superlative service.

I interviewed Sr. Balsa a year ago—just 10 years after he launched what was to become his hotel and restaurant chain with the opening of the now famous Focolare restaurant in Mexico City. At that time, the chain had mushroomed from the Focolare to 11 hotels and restaurants.

They included, in Mexico, the Hotels El Presidente, Del Prado, Prado Alffer and Maria Isabel; the Focolare Restaurant, and two nightclubs, Jacaranda and Can Can; in Acapulco, the Hotels El Presidente and Tampa, and Focolare restaurant; and in New York, the Hotel St. Regis.

A FEW EVENINGS ago I chatted with him again—the "eagle" in his aerie, a graciously appointed penthouse business suite atop his first hotel, El Presidente. The view was magnificent from his desk.

"Is it?" he asked. "I really haven't had time to take a good look—yet."

He was not exaggerating.

His Balsa Hotels had undergone phenomenal growth under his personal direction.

To his hotel chain he had added the Merida, at Merida, Yucatan, Mexico; the Zazil-Ha on Isla Mujeres, Quintana Roo; begun construction of a new El Presidente, this one on Cozumel; and purchased a site for still another El Presidente, at Guadalajara.

IN ADDITION to his restaurants and cocktail lounge at the World's Fair, a chain of Koala coffee shops is springing up in Mexico City, there are new Focolare restaurants in Guadalajara, Mexico, and in Puerto Rico, and the Restaurant Las Piramides at the pyramids outside of Mexico City.

As you have gathered by now, Balsa has supreme confidence in a great future for tourism in Mexico.

"With our rapidly expanding Mexican economy, and our prosperous Good Neighbor to the north with its 190 million travel-hungry people, why not?" he asks.

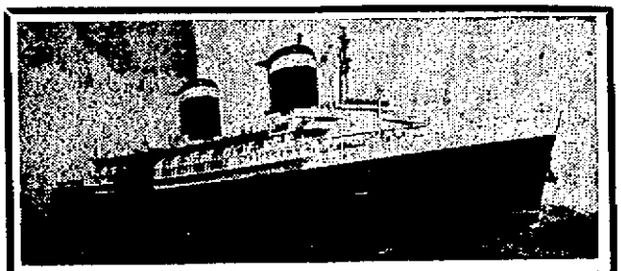

Despite responsibilities of running a hotel-restaurant empire, Cesar Balsa, at 41, retains rare boyish charm.

Pampered Pooch

Chic canine, like wise man, does not live by bone or bread alone, according to Air France, the world's largest airline. Recently, Mister "J", a well-known French poodle, made a trip by Air France 707 jetliner from Chicago to Paris, where he visited relatives at the French Poodle Society.

Putting on the dog, the French airline prepared a poodle menu which included: Bone Biscuit Vol au Vent, Medaillon de Beef Liver Truffe, Le Steak Tartare with Gravy Train Sauce Madere. Boisson: Eau d'Evian (spring water) Grand Cru 1963.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Teaching Machines

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Are teaching machines successful?

ANSWER: The United States Office of Education reports, on the basis of a two-year experiment conducted at the University of South Florida, that mentally retarded children learn reading faster by using teaching machines than by attending conventional reading classes.

In this experiment, a group of 66 children learned many more words in eight weeks than they had learned in four years in regular classrooms.

These results would suggest that at least in some areas of learning, machines are more effective than the methods of ordinary teaching.

QUESTION: Is phonics a good method of teaching reading?

ANSWER: Phonics is but one tool in the teaching of reading. But of late the regard of educators for this tool has increased markedly.

American schools experimenting with a reading system used in Britain since 1960 have reported outstanding achievements.

The system is known as the Initial Teaching Alphabet. Taught by this system, first-graders in Bethlehem, Pa., read textbooks written for advanced grades and spell words in the second-grade vocabulary.

What's the secret? A 44-letter alphabet which seeks to cover all the sounds in English. In short, a more concentrated form of phonetics.

QUESTION: Is the cost of college getting prohibitive?

ANSWER: The trend in college costs is upward. There are still some good college bargains, especially in the state colleges of California, but in general the cost of college for the generation of students now in elementary schools is expected to be very stiff. According to some estimates, their parents may have to pay $15,000 to give them four years of college education.

Remember the old gag about the father who starts making plans for the college education of his newborn child? It's no longer a gag.

low the Fleet," "Swing Time," "Shall We Dance?" and "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle."

THOUGH A hard-working professional who demands much from herself and from others, Ginger Rogers gets along well with her fellow actors. She is completely engrossed in her work when making a picture—an attitude which earns the respect of everyone who works with her. Her driving ambition has enabled this 5-foot 4-inch, 112-pound, blue-eyed actress to make 69 films.

Today Ginger Rogers and her husband live in Beverly Hills. She has made occasional night club appearances, such as at the Riviera Hotel in Havana before the emergence of Castro and at the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas. Because her personal appearances are relatively few nowadays, she has little need to keep physically fit for dancing. However, she enjoys tennis, golf, ping-pong, swimming, and water skiing. "I think that tennis can be played more gracefully if the player is a dancer," she says.

Muffins for a Spring Breakfast

Homemade English muffins will spark up any breakfast and improve a festive brunch.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

TOASTY English muffins are always welcome at the breakfast table, and when they are homemade they are extra special. Here's a way to make them, done the day before, if you like, and kept in the refrigerator ready to split, toast, butter and serve.

These muffins are a no-knead yeast bread that features corn meal baked inside and sprinkled outside for crunch and flavor. They are baked on a griddle!

Toasty English Muffins

1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1¼ cups milk, scalded
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup enriched corn meal

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and corn meal, mixing well. Beat 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 vigorous strokes with a wooden spoon. Beat in remaining flour to make a soft dough.

Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour. Stir dough down. Roll out to ½-inch thickness on board or canvas heavily sprinkled with corn meal. Cut with 3-inch round cutter. Cover; let rest on board 30 minutes.

Preheat griddle to medium-hot (300 degree F.). Grease griddle lightly; then carefully place muffins, corn meal side down on it. Bake until bottom is brown, about 20 minutes; turn and bake an additional 20 minutes. Split horizontally, toast and butter. Serve with preserves. Makes 12 muffins.

Recipe of the Week

CASSEROLE cookery holds the spotlight and wins $5 for Mrs. Kathryn Pritsos, 3633 Petaluma Ave., Long Beach 90808, for best recipe of the week. The recipe:

Vegetable and Cream Sauce Casserole

2 medium eggplants
4 small zucchini
4 medium potatoes
1½ lbs. ground beef
2 onions, chopped
Grated cheese
4 tblsp. butter
1 tsp. tomato paste
Dash of cinnamon
Salt and pepper
¼ cup bread crumbs

Slice eggplant, salt and place in colander, weighing down with heavy plate, for several hours. Slice zucchini and potatoes. Broil eggplant slightly. Saute ground beef in butter along with chopped onions. Add 1 teaspoon tomato paste, cinnamon, salt and pepper. Using greased pan, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, place vegetables and meat in layers and sprinkle with cheese. Top layer should be vegetable. Dot with butter and add a little water. Bake in 350 degrees.

Cream Sauce

4 tblsp. butter, heaping
¾ cup flour
6 eggs
1 qt. milk

Melt butter, add flour and brown slightly. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. When thickened, add well beaten eggs gradually. Remove immediately. Pour a little more than half the sauce over eggplant moussaka. Reheat remaining sauce to thicken. Top casserole with cheese. Bake until golden brown.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 13, Calif.

You Ask We Answer

By Hoskin

Q. Why were ancient cities such as Troy built one above another? K. C.

A. Partly because the building was a gradual development. In these cities, built of brick, refuse was thrown into the streets or dumped over walls. When houses were repaired, they were brought up to street level. When destroyed by war, or abandoned, the next occupants would not clear away the ruins but would level them off as a substantial base for a new city. When a city was permanently abandoned, the weathered bricks disintegrated and eventually desert sands covered the mounds. Some of these mounds are 100 feet high and contain the remains of 20 or more cities.

Q. Please give a recipe for a potato soup that can be made quickly. E. N.

A. Add 2 cups thinly sliced raw potatoes and ¼ cup finely chopped onion to 1¼ cups boiling water. Cover and cook until potatoes are tender, usually 15 to 20 minutes. Potatoes may be mashed slightly with a fork to thicken the soup. Add 1½ cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, and pepper to taste. Heat. The soup may be garnished with chopped parsley, grated cheese or finely-cut watercress or chives. This recipe makes 4 one-cup servings.

Q. Who coined the phrase "almighty dollar?" A. S.

A. Washington Irving (1783-1859). The American writer remarked in "The Creole Village" of Wolfert's Roost, that "the almighty dollar, that great object of universal devotion throughout our land, seems to have no genuine devotees in these peculiar villages."

Q. What is the largest flower in the world? B. J.

A. The largest bloom is the parasitic mottled orange-brown and white Rafflesia arnoldi which grows on Cissus vines in the jungles of Malaya. The flower may be as much as 3 feet across and weigh 15 pounds.

Q. When did "The Jazz Singer" first appear on the screen? D. L.

A. "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, was released in October 1927. It was one of the first talking motion pictures.

Home Workshop

Unit that keeps things handy for a busy housewife when ironing is demonstrated by NBC-TV actress Francine York.

By Steve Ellingson

WE HAVE often thought that a special medal should be minted for that busy homemaker who, in addition to cooking, housekeeping and raising a family, takes on that thankless job of washing and ironing. Of all household chores, ironing is the most monotonous and tiresome. But since there are no medals, perhaps we can make the job more pleasant by showing how to build the good looking and handy ironing center illustrated above.

Ironing, like all household chores, goes faster if everything you need is at your finger tips. This unit has a place for everything. Both below and back of the board are areas for storing your spray starch, distilled water, a sewing kit to repair rips and replace buttons, hangers and anything else you find useful when ironing. When the task is finished, the board slides down into the unit where it's out of the way.

YOU WILL notice that there are no braces or legs under the board to interfere with your work. And what is more, you can sit at this board as well as stand. It fits in perfectly with your other appliances and built-ins. And what a joy it is to be able to conceal the clutter within the unit when your work is finished or interrupted. Here is another idea that merges the practical with the beautiful and creates a pleasant atmosphere in your laundry area.

Any amateur home carpenter can build this ironing center when he uses the full size pattern. You need only then saw out the parts and put them together. Inexpensive too, when you build it yourself. The pattern lists the required materials and gives easy-to-understand directions and illustrations.

To obtain the ironing center pattern number 349 send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2383, Van Nuys, Calif.

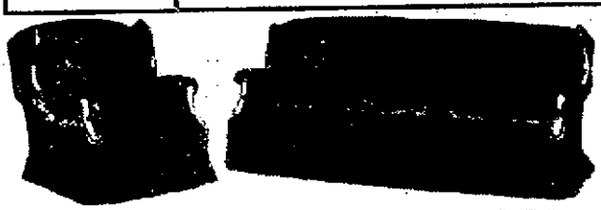

When not in use, the ironing unit folds up and stands by compactly, set for next call.

Gauguin's Search for Paradise

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

PAINTING filled a desperate need for Paul Gauguin but gave him a life of misery and despair.

Renouncing a successful banking career in Paris and deserting his wife and children, Gauguin searched endlessly — in Brittany, Martinique, Tahiti and other faraway places for an impossible paradise.

The discovery of innumerable unpublished documents and Gauguin's private conversations with some of his contemporaries enabled Henri Perruchot to reconstruct the life of the great painter in its full continuity, "GAUGUIN" (World, $6.95). This biography not only explains the adventurous destiny of the man but the fascinating character of his work, considered some of the most important in the history of modern painting.

Perruchot previously wrote "Toulouse - Lautrec," "Cezanne" and "Manet."

LEOPOLD II is down in history as the grand colonizer —the founder of the Congo Free State — but his was a brand of colonialism that shocked all Europe and brought denunciation from such American leaders as President Theodore Roosevelt and Mark Twain and, more than a half century later, resulted in terrible retribution, when the Congolese threw out the Belgian masters they didn't slaughter.

An important aspect of the biography by Neal Ascherson, "THE KING INCORPORATED" (Doubleday, $4.95) was the robber king's ability to swindle, exploit the slave trade and plunder Congo rubber while ruling a basically liberal, moral, compassionate Belgium in the 19th Century and early in the 20th.

DAVID STOREY, young Briton whose first and second novels earned major literary awards, may not win any with his third but it has already received strong critical acclaim in England and could prove popular with American readers, despite a preponderance of ugly and shocking situations.

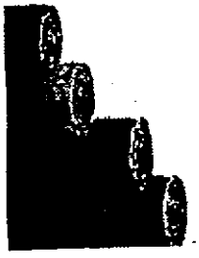

For "RADCLIFFE" (Coward-McCann, $4.95) is a compelling tragedy of a love-hate relationship between two men, Leonard Radcliffe, lonely scion of an aristocratic family, meets masculine, athletic Vic Tolson, first in school and later on a construction job.

Tolson's relationship with another married man, Blakely, and Tolson's seduction of Raadcliffe's sister lead to the inescapable destruction of all three men in Storey's bizarre, brutish drama.

THE POET is having his day in court nowadays; more and more often his essays are appearing in book form. Recently John Ciardi published a trenchant collection of his ideas and opinions; now we have Howard Nemerov's "POETRY AND FICTION" (Rutgers University Press $7.50). That poets are now enabled in growing numbers to reach the reader in prose form is a great step forward for American literature.

Nemerov's essays are those of a broadly cultivated man; they are independent, witty; their taste and judgment of a high order.

'Laundromat' 150 Years Ago

Spring water, collected by cobbled area (background) poured through this stone face into tiled channel where Indian women washed their clothing 150 years ago.

By Betty Hardesty

"LAUNDROMAT" of 150 years ago, a lavanderia or community laundry has been excavated and restored to something approaching its former outlines at Mission San Luis Rey, inland from Oceanside.

Structural beauty surrounded the laundry area in its original state, a 20-foot wide grand staircase descending from an ornamental arch to a broad terrace. Russet tiles were incorporated into the stairway and the six tiers of the lavanderias, which were of step-like construction centered by a channel for water. Springs supplied the water which was gathered by cobbled approaches which channeled the water through the mouths of stone faces resembling gargoyles.

Women of the mission environs gathered there, even as modern apartment dwellers converge on the modern laundromats, to clean clothing—but they pounded the articles to be laundered with stones and in bowl-like depressions along the channeled water.

AT ONE POINT along the water course, a charcoal filter provided drinking water.

San Luis Rey properties were confiscated after Mexico became independent and the mission fell into partial ruin. A century of silt covered much of the water course and the lavenderias until recent restoration. The mission was returned by the Franciscan Order by President Lincoln in 1865.

In addition to the restored facilities of the mission, a number of interesting relics are on display there.

Calling Dr. Computer

IBM Poughkeepsie Laboratory Photographic Services

Computer "brains" have entered many fields, the latest being medicine. Above, an IBM computer with an operator loading a magnetic tape for the high-speed recording of data.

By Aubrey B. Haines

ELECTRONIC computers, being fed information, have quickly revealed facts that would have required men — working for years — to discover the hard way and they have been put to work at medical research.

The Veterans Administration and the System Development Corporation of Santa Monica are using a computer-based system that quickly investigates data about patients in a simulated hospital environment.

"This new use of computers is the result of over two years' work," says John A. Vallance, director of System Research Development and Training Center in Santa Monica. "We don't have the simulated hospital in the form of staff, facilities, and plant. The work is done wholly by a computer. Using information from real patient data taken from a Veterans Administration General Medical and Surgical Hospital, the computer reveals the answers. Thus dependable operations are guaranteed by records produced by the computer. Conclusions are periodically made, the communication among all parts of the hospital environment are maintained."

ALSO IN SANTA MONICA at the RAND Corporation a mathematician, Dr. Richard Bellman, is working on a way to use computers to test the potency of anticancer drugs. "I'm also working on the use of computers to diagnose medically," he says. "We're trying to calculate the physiological effects of radiation and answer psychiatric problems besides finding answers to problems in neurology and cardiology."

Southern California universities are similarly engaged. The UCLA Medical School has installed the 7094, the newest, most powerful of IBM's scientific computers.

"This costly instrument," says Dr. Wilfrid J. Dixon, professor of biostatistics, "can be used for such varied purposes as keeping records of pathology specimens and analyzing electrocardiograms."

Medical research done altogether at the bedside, he explains, is now outmoded. A voluminous amount of statistics is required, including clinical studies on people and animal experiments with human implications. "Computers," Dixon says, "synthesize tremendous amounts of statistics, dig out important facts, and apply what is discovered."

A SMALLER computer at UCLA's Brain Research Institute analyzes brain waves to help doctors plot the course of intricate brain operations.

Similarly the USC School of Medicine is trying to store, retrieve, and process medical data on patients with chronic diseases. According to Dr. Frederick J. Moore, professor of Public Health, vast information about patients is gathered by hundreds of private and public groups. "However," he adds, "very little exchange of information occurs. Then it is obtained only with great difficulty and after loss of time. This makes impossible the intelligent use of information gathered on any one patient."

The USC team is changing to computer form the entire patient record systems of the Los Angeles office of Vocational Rehabilitation Service, the Olive View Hospital, and General Hospital. This finished, the records of other groups will be transformed until the medical reports of millions of residents can be available at a moment's notice.

ELSEWHERE throughout the nation computers are aiding scientists to treat cancer; chart obscure, fatal diseases; and do many other things. Already computer use has revealed that pyelonephritis—a disease which kills many dogs — is four separate diseases which also kill many people. Computers reveal how much radiation a human being can withstand and are planning radium dosage with sufficient accuracy to guarantee effective treatment of some types of cancer.

U. S. Navy physicians are using a computer at Pensacola, Fla., to discover a student's chances for finishing the Navy's difficult eighteen-month pilot-training program. "The computer can't 'wash out' a candidate," says James R. Berkshire, a psychologist with the U. S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine. "But it tells the staff at the training center what a student could perform potentially at any stage of training."

Besides delving into medicine and health, IBM computers are being fed information on frustration, love, anger, and fear. Eventually the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., hopes to pattern "mathematical models" of crews who are psychologically balanced for assignments at isolated radar stations, for jet flights, or for undersea craft.

He Invents Toys

By Irma McCall

WHEN FRANK Crew of 325 E. 8th St., Long Beach chose a hobby for his "golden years" he confirmed Wadsworth's well-known line: "The child is father of the man." Does a bit of the little boy survive in the man—and even in the grandfather?

Crew's eyes light up as he constructs novel wooden toys that really work. Any child would enjoy working Crew's dump-truck with a capacity of, say, five thimblesful of dirt or the well digger that excavates a pencil-sized hole. The tanker truck, open mine digger, and the trailer are simple compared with Crew's complete sawmill, or the radar station with 196 pieces.

As a building contractor in Maryland, Crew liked to work with wood. Retiring in 1952, he moved to Long Beach.

"I'll make toys—entirely of wood," he declared. "And they will have moving parts—to entertain the kids and to teach them skills in operating machinery."

FIRST MODEL—a fork lift. The blueprint completed, he experimented with different woods and found that white pine and redwood were best. He mounted the model on wooden tracks and operated it by remote control. It worked perfectly!

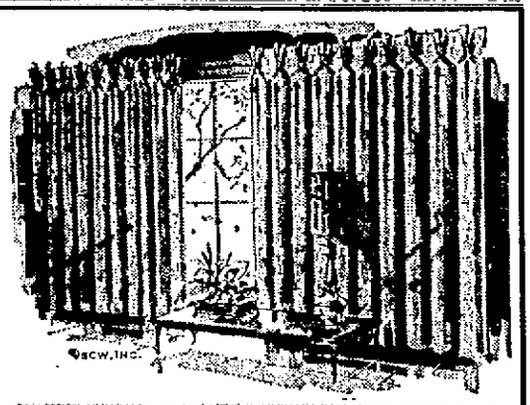

The inventor has dreamed up 65 different models so far, and undoubtedly is moving into the Space Age with the astronauts of 1984.

Before presenting his brain children to the world, Crew obtained six basic patents, and today his models are on display at the Patent Exchange in New York City.

His toys may never sell like hula hoops or Beatle wigs, but Crew states, "I have had a million dollars worth of fun making them."

He Crystal-Gazes for Animals

By Eleanor Avery Price

WHEN Jules Hilborn of Los Angeles gazes into a crystal ball he sees an animal. And the animal is not a vision that will vanish. It is forever delicately carved into the flat side of half a very tiny crystal ball — Cooks crystal it is called and made only in England—and then carefully painted from the flat side with a tiny brush.

Anyone who goes to London can probably contact dealers Longman Strongint'arm on Dover St. for modern carved crystals made with electric drills, but most of those accumulated by Hilborn were created centuries ago by hand in the workshop of an old craftsman in a remote section of England's countryside. The craftsman favored cats and dogs, although he carved a few horses, fish, birds, and other animals.

Some of the original crystal carvings found their way to the royal families of England where they were used as scarf pins, brooches, and the like. And a few somehow turned up in antique shops and markets where Hilborn obtained those in his collection. He now has only about 37 pieces in 13 years of searching, yet it is considered the largest collection of its kind in the world. Eventually it will go to a museum.

Jules Hilborn displays a collection of crystals into which animal heads have been carved and painted.

Zinnias Like the Sunshine

There's a zinnia for almost every need, as this array indicates. They provide cut flowers and garden color.

By Joe Littlefield

PLANT some zinnias in an enriched soil area, water them well when needed, feed them about twice when young, and you'll have lots of cut flowers and color, too, in those sunny garden areas.

A sunny corner near the back porch, an orphan sunlit area between driveway and the property boundary line, or a space between a walk and house wall, garage wall, or path and garden wall also are to the liking of zinnias.

If there's enough space left for a row of petunias in front of the zinnias, you'll have the brightest, gayest splash of color imaginable, and with minimum care involved.

Be sure to plant some amaranthus, a sun-loving annual that has its brightest foliage near the top of the plants as they mature.

Leafage near the top develops into fiery, bright color. Set the plants in a group for massed color effect, and don't baby them too much. Check with your local nurseryman or garden center dealer as to which variety offers the gayest foliage color.

Don't forget to plant some summer color in the shade garden, too. Plant fuchsias, coleus, impatiens, and bedding begonias which do well in milder sections. Some varieties of fuchsias and the bedding begonias planted in protected areas of shade garden will do quite well in hot, dry sections.

A FEW sun loving, summer blooming perennials such as vinca the periwinkle, dahlias, and tulbaghia violacea will supply attractive flowers for summer into fall color. Usually, sun loving plants can take around three hours or so of shade if need be, and bloom well.

Unless soil has been prepared in advance, at least prepare the holes where plants are to be set out. First fill the holes twice with water if the soil is dry. When water soaks in, mix some organic matter such as compost soil, leaf mold, pre-moistened peat moss or one of the prepared planting mulches, with soil dug out to make the plant holes, and set the plants out.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . For quick color accents, now is the time to consider bedding plants; dwarf dahlias, marigolds, zinnias, asters, petunias, stocks, snapdragons and ageratum.

Soon on the scene, if not already, are roses in bloom in cans. Now is the time to select the varieties suited to your garden. Your local nursery has a wide selection, ready for transplanting.

For your camellias mulch with two or three inches of leaf mold or peat moss. This insures that the ground will remain cool and moist during warm summer days.

When you decide to set out your new chrysanthemum plants, pinch them back and continue this method on the new growth until July. Pinching and proper fertilization insure sturdy, full plants.

You'll miss the enjoyment of fresh vegetables if you don't start tomato and pepper plants now.

Dorothy Digs

If you are having trouble greening up your lawn, even though you have fertilized and watered regularly, consider that fertilizers sometimes become "locked" into the soil and are not readily available or acceptable to the digestive systems of many kinds of grasses and plants.

A good thing for you to try in a case of this kind is an application of fertilizer or soil conditioner containing iron chelates and trace minerals.

Many times alkaline water and soils combine to create growth stagnation and cause chlorosis in foliage. It would be wise to have both water and soil tested to help determine the cause.

Potted Plant Aid

A "Lazy Susan" for potted plans has been put on the market by William K. Cochran, Fowler, Calif., and is catching fire among home owners.

Build from plywood and finished in natural wood color, the turntable is placed under the flower pot, permitting the plant to be easily turned to get proper light without marring the surface on which it sits. The price is $1.20 postpaid.

Pinch Your Way to Fine Chrysanthemums

"Mysteries of Plant Life" will be the topic of Bert Slatter at a meeting of Fuchsia Society members at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. The public is invited. A plant table and refreshments will be provided.

Long Beach Garden Club will present a flower exhibit and will install officers at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at 208 Linden Ave. The public is invited. Harry Daley, a past president of the club, will install. Mrs. Florence Sunn, club president, and several members will attend the California Garden Clubs, Inc., convention Tuesday through Thursday at Disneyland Hotel.

North Long Beach Branch, American Begonia Society, will hear a talk on begonias by Mrs. Jean Kerlin of Arcadia, an authority on growing and hybridizing shade plants, at a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Friday at the Community Savings & Loan social room, 3901 Atlantic Ave.

Spring is mum-pinching time in the garden.

Chrysanthemums often get long and spindly by autumn. They fall over just when they should look their best.

To prevent this, take a few minutes today to pinch back the mums. All you need to do is to use thumb and forefinger to pinch out the young, growing tips. This makes the plant branch out. It doesn't get so long and leggy, and produces a sturdy, well-branched plant with house flowers.

Simply remove the top half-inch of each shoot, when the plants are eight inches tall. In a few days you'll see new side branches start to form. As soon as side branches reach about six inches long, pinch them. As long as the branches grow out, keep this pattern up until about mid-July. After that time, flower buds will be starting to form.

This system of pinching-out terminal growth is fine for chrysanthemums where you want a mass of bloom. If you grow the special varieties with large blooms, the so-called "football mums," you may want to aim for a few big, beautiful blooms.

To do this, wait until the top bud is well formed, and strong. Then remove the side buds below it, to force all the growth into one big blossom bud. That's the way to get big "football" chrysanthemums.

But for masses of bloom on sturdy chrysanthemum plants that aren't leggy and spindly, pinch the buds back until the first or second week of July.

Greener-Upper

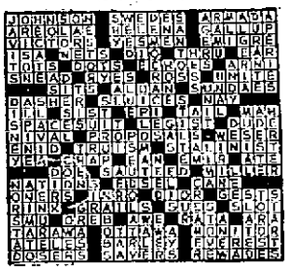

If every gardener was to specify his favorite color, 9 out of 10 would indicate "green."

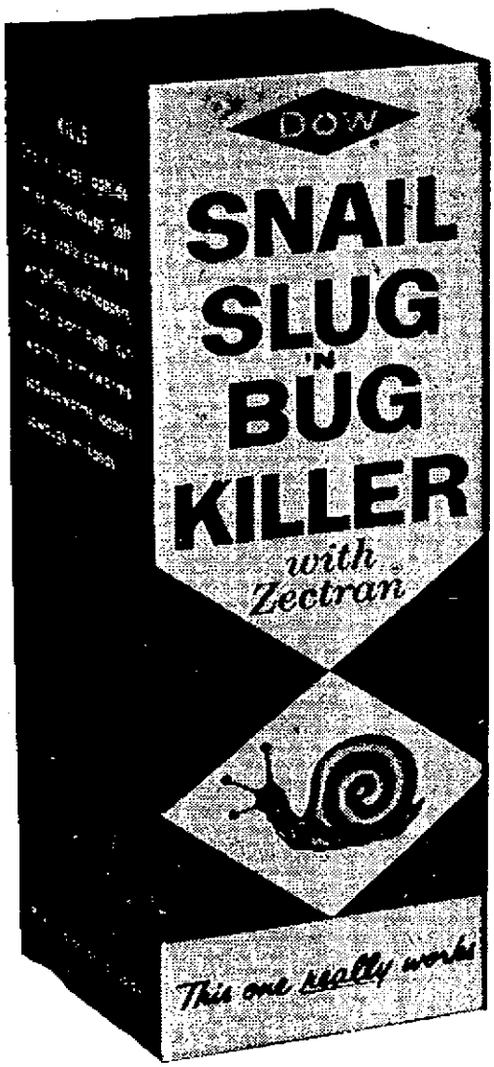

This year, a new product has been developed to further their cause. It's called "Greenol," and is a liquid iron solution to correct a "chlorotic" condition that causes yellowing of leaves in plants and grasses. According to the label, Greenol "healthies up" lawns, ornamental plants, annuals and perennials, and brings green back to the garden.

It is applied in spray dilution to the soil around the base of plants, and can also be applied directly to the foliage of roses, azaleas, camellias, and other favorites. A lawn sprayer filled with Greenol will cover 1,000 square feet of lawn.

The new product contains iron, copper, zinc and sulfur. In supplying plants these elements, it also acts to release important trace minerals that are often "locked in" the soil. It is not a fertilizer.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

We're thinking of changing its name to Aphid 'N Thrips Killer.

In a way, it seems only right. Our Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer with Zectran® Insecticide is just as great for knocking out aphids and thrips on flowers and plants. One spraying and the little monsters are gone; and once dry, there's no danger to children or pets. But on the other hand, Dow Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer gets rid of snails, slugs, and practically any gardening insect pest you can name. Kills more pests, in fact, than any other single product around.

Until we make up our minds, ask your garden supply dealer for it by its present name: Dow Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer. And while you're talking to him, check on Dowpon® Grass Killer Bar that you rub along the edge of walks, flowerbeds, buildings to eliminate unwanted grass. Two more great ones from The Dow Chemical Company.

Geranium Show

Geraniums and pelargoniums, ranging from dwarfs, both single and double flowered, up to tree forms are on display today in the final display of a two-day "Pelargoniums on Parade" show at Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia. The public is invited and admission is free. Many choice specimens will be offered in a plant sale.

The show is co-sponsored by Southwest Branch, International Geranium Society, and California Arboretum Foundation, Inc. Show hours are 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

How to Cut Rose Blooms for Long Lasting

The pride and pleasure a home gardener derives from growing roses often reaches its highest point when he cuts a lovely rose. This is one of his rewards for planting and generally taking good care of his plants.

Roses preferably should be cut either in the morning before the sun is high, or in the evening, says the American Association of Nurserymen. If cut at this time, they will last longer indoors.

Rosarians recommend that a knife be used rather than scissors or other tools, making a slanting cut on the stem. Knives usually are not as blunt and therefore will not bruise stem tissues so easily. At what part of the bush a rose stem should be cut is a question often raised by gardeners.

Roses will keep longer if picked when the bud is just starting to open. Petals will drop more quickly if the rose is mature when cut, while too tight buds may possibly not bloom after cutting, although they sometimes may be useful in flower arrangements.

The stems of the roses should immediately be put into a pail of water. This prevents quick hardening or calcification at the stems' ends, allowing better absorption of water.

If possible, before the flowers are arranged, keep them in a dark, cool room in deep water for a few hours. This conditions them for vase arrangement, and is said to keep them fresh longer.

Pioneer Mothers

Grace Bush. At first the group was allowed to use a small empty store room at Pine and Broadway — where Buffums' now stands. However, only two weeks later, after the start, the building was sold and the school moved to a tent at Pine and First Street. The children had to bring their own chairs or stools. (Later that year, a Long Beach School District was formed, and $6,000 worth of bonds were voted for a public school at Sixth Street and Pine.)

MRS. LOWE took part in various community activities, including those of the Lady Maccabees, Order of Eastern Star, and Ebell Club. She is also remembered for her close association with the development of the Summer Assemblies or Chautauquas, which brought many summer visitors. The Methodist Resort Association built the Tabernacle, the first place of religious worship here; even though the Lowes were Congregationalists, they took part in the activities of this church, until their own denomination started a church here.

Mrs. Lowe was a great lover of flowers, and was very successful in growing them. She was generous, too, in sharing them with friends and for community use. For example, in 1888, Long Beach women had a booth at the annual Flower Festival in Los Angeles and for this event Mrs. Lowe supplied 1,000 calla lilies and 400 carnations, "all raised within a few feet of the breakers."

A local magazine in 1916 paid Mrs. Lowe this tribute:

"Time has laid no impress upon her charming personality. With hardly a gray hair, physically vigorous as a girl, her mentality pulsing with the newest and best in progressive thought. She exemplifies the resourcefulness and tireless energy of our best womanhood. . . ."

No doubt these same words could have been applied to other early mothers in Long Beach, who, often under trying circumstances, brought up their families and used their talents to make their community a better place in which to live.

PETER HIRSBRUNNER
Welcome, Mothers

LITTLE mothers, cute mothers, skinny mothers and plump mothers — all will be royally welcome today at the Reef restaurant, where a special Mother's Day menu will be served in their honor.

The Reef, located at the end of Harbor Scenic Drive in the Port of Long Beach, is one of the city's largest and most glamorous dining establishments. Its numerous view windows provide diners with spectacular glimpses of boat activity and the continually growing and changing skyline of Long Beach directly across the harbor.

The Mother's Day repast, which will be served from noon to 9 p.m., has been planned by Reef manager Ralph Fulton and executive chef Peter Hirsbrunner, a native of Switzerland with many years of cooking experience in the finest restaurants of Europe and the United States. The dinner will include a tray of chilled relishes, tossed green salad, potato or rice, green beans, candied yams, beverage and sherbet or ice cream.

The entrees, priced from $3.25 to $5 will include baked honey-cured ham with Cumberland spiced fruit sauce; the Ports O' Call combination of a lobster tail and broiled chunks of top sirloin with mushroom caps; roast Mt. Whitney tom turkey with dressing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce; sea food curry of shrimp, lobster and crabmeat; giant Australian lobster tail with drawn butter, and charcoal-broiled New York cut steak with mushroom caps. Children's dinners will be $1.75.

The Reef, owned by restaurateur Dave Tallichet, serves luncheon daily from 11:30 a.m. on, and dinners daily from 4:30 p.m. on.

Q. When CBS signed Judy Garland last year to do television, many of the critics predicted that she would never last the season. Were they right?—D. Hazen, Princeton, N.J.

A. True. Judy walked out without completing her final show, much of which came from old clips.

Q. Has Robert Welch or the John Birch Society ever financed Barry Goldwater in his political campaigns?—J.C.S., Brooklyn, N.Y.

A. Robert Welch, founder of the Birch Society, says on p. 119 of his Blue Book, 1961 edition, 8th printing: "I know Barry fairly well. He is a great American . . . I took it on myself to become a one-man finance committee for him in Massachusetts. I raised around $2,000 in my state and sent it on early to him in 1958 . . . I'd love to see him President of the U.S." Sen. Goldwater has repeatedly emphasized his disagreement with Welch's political viewpoint, has suggested that the John Birch Society get rid of leader Welch or disband.

Q. Does anyone know what's happened to Rachele Mussolini, widow of the Italian dictator? Also how old is she if still alive?—Leslie Geiger, Chicago, Ill.

A. Rachele Mussolini, 73, owns and runs a restaurant in Rocca Delle Caminate, an Italian village on the Adriatic.

Q. Is there anything to the Roger Vadim-Jane Fonda thing? — Carol Martin, Miami, Fla.

A. Vadim directed Jane in a remake of La Ronde in Paris; nothing serious between them.

Q. Who is the author of the following quotation: "The best way to fight a woman is with your hat—grab it and run"?—C.O. Ames, Charleston, S.C.

A. The late John Barrymore.

Q. Do people in Hollywood who know Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor think their marriage will last?—T.E., Oakland, Calif.

A. They give it five years.

Q. I understand that Jackie Gleason has a contract with CBS-TV which calls for him to receive $100,000 annually for life. Is this true?—L. H., Newark, N. J.

A. It is not. Gleason's present contract with CBS runs until 1972, guarantees him $110,000 a year, work or not. His present show is budgeted at $150,000 a week, from which he nets a minimum of $30,000.

Q. I would like to know why at Princeton University there is no marker, stone, plate, shrine or urn marking the remains of the late and great Albert Einstein.—B. H. Knox, Falls Church, Va.

A. It was Dr. Einstein's wish that he be remembered only by his work.

Q. On the Ed Sullivan TV show and other variety programs, is the studio audience signaled to cheer, whistle and applaud?—David Mann, Miami, Fla.

A. Yes.

Q. The present Prince Philip of England was originally of the Greek Orthodox faith. At the time of his marriage to Elizabeth, was there a wedding ceremony in the Greek Orthodox Church as well as in the Church of England?—Dr. James Majarakis, Chicago, Ill.

A. No; Philip renounced his faith to marry Elizabeth.

Q. Could you possibly explain the marital status of the well-known actress Gloria Grahame? Is it true that she is married to her son?—Nick Demantis, Las Vegas, Nev.

A. Miss Grahame's first husband was actor Stanley Clements, 1945-47. Her second was director Nick Ray, 1948-52. Her third was writer Cy Howard, 1954-57. Her fourth and present husband is Bill Ray, son of her second husband, Nick Ray; so that she is married to her former stepson.

Q. Would you tell us something about the wives of Johnny Carson?—Mrs. J.G.D., Springfield, Mo.

A. Carson has been married twice. His first wife, Jody, lives on Long Island with their three boys: Chris, 13, Ricky, 11, and Cory, 10. His second and current wife, the former Jo Anne Copeland, worked as a model before her recent marriage to Carson.

Q. How old is Maureen O'Sullivan?—Diane Herrera, Loma Linda, Calif.

A. She is 53.

Q. Is it true that the Las Vegas gambling syndicate paid the late Sen. George Bender of Ohio a $100,000 bribe to prevent owners of the Desert Inn from being sent to jail?—L.M., Jean, Nev.

A. Samuel Garfield, one of the Desert Inn owners, recently testified that he had arranged to pay Sen. Bender a $100,000 fee for checking into the United Dye scandal in which Garfield and his associates were involved, but that none of the $100,000 fee was ever paid to Sen. Bender.

Q. Could you please tell me if the Greek actor Stathis Giallelis lives in Greece or America, and is he married?—Roberta Halvorson, Portland, Ore.

A. Giallelis lives in New York, is unmarried.

Q. Who is Simone Bicheron?—H. T., Jackson, Miss.

A. French model who became the fourth wife of actor Curt Jurgens.

Q. I read in this column that The Beatles were getting $7,000 per night versus 60 per cent of the gross. When I tried to buy the act at that price from their agents in this country, I was laughed at. How much are The Beatles asking?—L.P.T., Hartford, Conn.

A. They are now asking and getting a minimum of $25,000 per night against 60 per cent of the gross. As they get hotter, their asking price mounts.

Q. Why has the relationship between actor Ernest Borgnine and that DuPont girl been hushed up?—L.T., Wilmington, Del.

A. Borgnine has filed suit against Ricki DuPont for her failure to return $25,000 he claims he loaned her.

Q. What kind of car does President Johnson drive personally on his Texas ranch? — George Odlum, Grayville, Ill.

A. A white Lincoln Continental.

why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"Because you want beautiful haircoloring to stay beautiful—fresh and lively! Not to be dulled or clouded by the wrong shampoo," says Gene Shacove. "To keep enjoying the flattery of haircoloring chosen just for you, you should insist on this special colorfast shampoo by Clairol, which won't change hair color." Very different from other leading shampoos, colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. Two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. At leading beauty salons and cosmetic counters.

BLUE—for blondes and lightest tones GREEN—for tint and toning-tone users

Young couple proudly watch their newborn baby in maternity ward. When the baby is 3 days old he should be tested for possible PKU.

NEEDED: A LAW TO PREVENT HEARTBREAK

■ A new law is needed in Western states to save millions of families from heartbreak. Since 1961, a simple, inexpensive test to detect in newborn babies a genetic defect which causes severe mental retardation has been available to hospitals and health departments. Yet, at this writing, only Massachusetts has passed legislation requiring the test for all newborn babies.

Frequently called the PKU test (short for phenylketonuria), it requires that a drop of blood be drawn from the baby's heel on the third day of life. Through culture tests the PKU defect —an inability to assimilate certain chemicals—can be detected at this early date and overcome with a special diet before brain damage occurs. The tragic effect of PKU is that victims are born normal but become progressively more retarded as poisonous chemicals build up and destroy brain tissue.

In some Western states many hospitals give the PKU test on a voluntary basis. In other areas, an older, diaper test for PKU, which is given at six weeks of age, is still being used. This can mean that a baby may be two months old before the PKU condition is confirmed, and brain damage may already have started. In other states, public health officials and medical societies have not acted on the issue or have openly resisted it.

SUCCESSFUL TRIALS

Recently completed field trials conducted by the developer of the test, Dr. Robert Guthrie of the University of Buffalo, revealed that more than twice the number of babies carry the PKU characteristic than previously suspected—more than 1 in 10,000. The 400,000 babies tested in the recent trials were double-checked, and no cases of PKU were missed in the first screening. Based on this trial, the Children's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare strongly recommends that all newborn babies be given the PKU test.

The PKU test is of proven value in detecting a savage defect, but possibly more important is its value as a model for similar screening tests to uncover other unseen chemical and metabolic defects in the newborn. One biochemist estimates that in the future from 4 to 7 such tests will be feasible on a large scale.

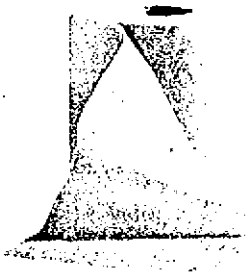

How can you help to get this law passed? One way is to put pressure on your state legislature and public health departments. Another is to support organizations like the National Association for Retarded Children, which wants legislation requiring the use of all screening tests as they are developed and are made available.

Your help is needed urgently in finding the tiny victims of this savage destroyer.

"My very first roll of your toilet tissue cost me $53.98

This is the ad I saw that started it all: 'When you can get yards of double-layered, pale jonquil Crown Chiffon for pennies, why pick plain toilet paper?' Why, indeed? So...

...I took some pennies and bought some. It looked so soft and rich and I began to feel very extravagant having double-ply toilet tissue in my plain old bathroom. So extravagant that...

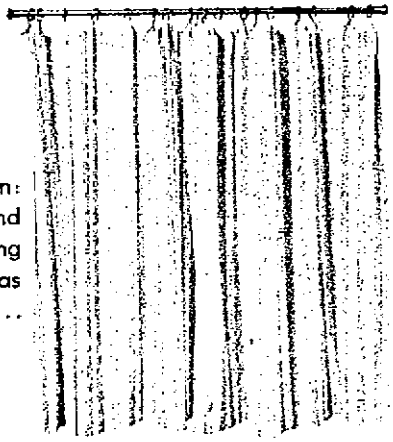

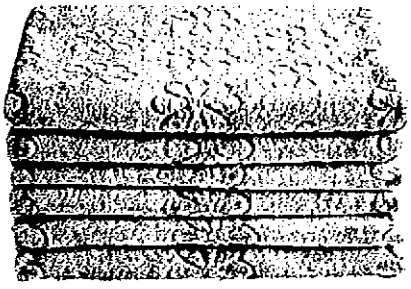

...I bought some yellow flowers (for the bathroom!) to match and a yellow vase for them and put them on the shelf. (Plastic flowers, $3; vase, $1.50.) Then...

...I saw some imported English lemon soap ($3 a dozen) which certainly deserved a better soap dish than mine. (New milk glass soap dish, $2.50.) I thought this was it until...

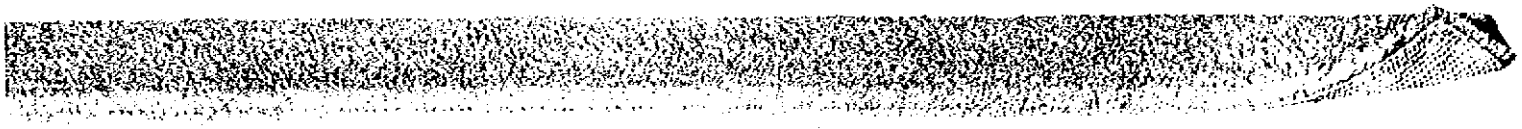

...the window curtain: pale jonquil stripes, soft and silky cotton, just as rich-looking as Chiffon. Only $9. It was all getting beyond me and...

...by the time I'd bought six new towels ($15) I knew Chiffon had changed my life, not to mention my bank account, because...

How LBJ protected from

WASHINGTON, D.C.

One evening last month a tall dowager type slithered up to one of the guards who patrol the White House.

Drawing a blue cloth coat tightly around her plump figure, she announced imperiously, "I am Cleopatra."

"Oh!" intoned the guard.

"Just don't stand there," the woman commanded, her voice stamping its foot. "Fetch me my Antony."

Long accustomed to the stream of crackpots, eccentrics and psychotics who pour into Washington, the policeman said courteously, "And who might that be, ma'am?"

"My Antony," the dowager declared, "is Lyndon Johnson. Fetch him."

The guard knew what he had on his hands. "I'm sorry, ma'am," he said. "The President is not in the White House."

The woman pointed an accusing index finger at him, then drew it sharply across her throat. "You," she declared, "will be beheaded in the morning." She whirled and stalked north on East Executive Avenue.

Having witnessed this scene, I strolled a few minutes later to the White House entrance on Pennsylvania Avenue. There I asked a White House policeman what procedure he followed when an obviously disturbed person demanded to see the President and wouldn't take "no" for an answer.

The policeman studied me as if I were one of the psychotics I'd described. "What've you got in your pockets?" he asked. It was cold, and my hands were thrust deep in my coat pockets.

"My hands," I answered. "Also a comb." I took out the comb and held it up.

"Why are you asking these questions?" he continued.

I handed him my press card and explained I was trying to research an assassination story on whether there was any defense of the President against deranged persons, of whom Lee Harvey Oswald certainly was one.

"Listen," the policeman said. "I'm not about to tell you anything. You wanna know something? You're legitimate? You call the Secret Service."

"Officer," I remonstrated, "since I'm a taxpayer, would you please tell me the time?"

"No," he said flatly. "I won't even tell you that. What's more, I don't believe your story." Then he shut the auto gate.

Next morning I phoned Inspector Burrill Peterson, in charge of press relations for the Secret Service. He was only too happy to give me the time of day, but that's practically all he gave.

"You can understand," he explained, "that until the Warren Commission makes public its full report on the assassination of President Kennedy, there's nothing we can say on the subject of nuts who'd like to take a shot at the President, or people who threaten him, or how we're guarding the President, or anything even remotely connected with the subject."

Despite the understandable reluctance of the Secret Service, charged with protecting the President, to disclose its guarding techniques even in general terms, the fact is that Lyndon Johnson will probably go down in history as the best-guarded U.S. President.

Until the election later this year he certainly will not leave the country unless an international emergency makes an overseas trip imperative.

Within the country the Secret Service now insists that when the President leaves Washington, none of his routes be disclosed. If possible no names of airports at which he is to land are given out. His auto routes are surveyed in advance by Secret Service agents who study the buildings lining the roads. Crackpots who threaten the President are to be apprehended and prosecuted.

Nightmare for Secret Service: President Johnson recently opened White House gates, mingled with visitors.

The Presidential limousine has been refitted with bulletproof glass, bulletproof bubble top and 1,600 pounds of bulletproof armor plate. The limousine is to be chauffeured always by a Secret Service agent with another agent in the front seat. The seat is so constructed that the agent can make a complete turn and face the President.

Ten years ago 4 Puerto Rican extremists, 1 a woman carrying guns in her handbag for the other 3, entered the visitors' gallery in the House of Representatives and fired 25 shots, wounding 5 Congressmen. To prevent such extremists from zeroing in on the President when he addresses Congress, no visitor may enter the gallery when the President is scheduled to talk unless he is known personally either by a senator or by a member of the House.

Every possible precaution is being taken to safeguard the life of the President. But is there, or can there be, any defense against the deranged, the insane, the mentally disturbed? History proves for the most part that these are the Presidential assassins.

Over the years the Secret Service has put together a file of approximately 50,000 names of mentally deranged persons. They are unstable characters, ranging from rabble rousers to paranoiacs and psychotics who have written, phoned or denounced a President in so violent a manner as to constitute a potential threat to any occupant of the White House.

Before a President journeys to a location where one or several of these mentally disturbed individuals live, the Secret Service tries to check them out.

Lee Harvey Oswald was not listed in the Secret Service master file because Lee Harvey Oswald never wrote President John F. Kennedy. He wrote John Connally, now governor of Texas, when Connally was Secretary of the Navy, complaining about his dishonorable discharge from the Marines and threatening vengeance. He wrote Sen. John Tower of Texas with the same complaint. But the Secret Service keeps no list of disgruntled persons who threaten legislators or cabinet members. That is not its job. Had Oswald written John F. Kennedy, however, there is a good chance the Secret Service might have placed the alleged assassin under observation before the President ever got to Dallas.

MANY BELIEVE IT WAS A CONSPIRACY

The Soviet Union has turned over to President Johnson its file on Lee Harvey Oswald. The Warren Commission investigating the assassination has uncovered no evidence that the killing was anything other than the act of a deranged individual. But a large portion of the American public refuses to believe that one suspect, Lee Harvey Oswald, was responsible for the crime. They say Oswald was head of an intricate Communist conspiracy, that he was trained by the Soviet Secret Intelligence, by his wife's uncle, his wife's stepfather, that the Soviet government financed him, that his was a joint conspiracy with Jack Ruby. Revilo Oliver, a professor of classic languages at the University of Illinois and a representative of the John Birch Society, recently wrote in the Birch magazine, American Opinion, that John F. Kennedy was murdered because he was simply too slow in turning over the American government to Communist leaders.

There is still, regardless of the evidence, a tremendous reluctance to admit that one small, thin, impoverished, hate-ridden, demented, self-professed Marxist could so easily and single-handedly murder a President of the U.S.

It is the deranged individual, however, acting alone, motivated solely by his own insanity, whom the Secret Service fears the most.

In the words of former Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman, these individuals constitute "the central is being crackpot killers

by Lloyd Shearer

danger to the President and his family." This danger revolves around the lack of a predictable behavior pattern for potential assassins. Who knows what a psychotic or a paranoiac will do next?

To find out, the Secret Service is working closely with two psychiatrists in the District of Columbia General Hospital, Drs. James L. Foy and Joseph A. Sebastiani. These two men are reviewing the case histories of some 40 mentally disturbed characters who tried unsuccessfully to crash the White House in 1960-61. Each year about 50 deranged people travel to Washington and insist upon seeing the President. The White House guards, perceptive and experienced, turn them over to the Secret Service, and presently they are transported to D.C. General Hospital for observation.

"It's all very legal," Dr. Foy explains. "You just can't put people in a hospital for observation unless you're doing it under law. So when the Secret Service believes that it has someone who is seriously ill mentally and such a person cannot be persuaded to leave the White House grounds — and all these people have certain characteristics in common: they talk incessantly, they're ridden with false beliefs, they have a distorted sense of reality and of what the President can do to help them—then the Secret Service calls the local police to come and get this character and go through the proper legal channels to place him under observation. And it's then that we get them for study.

"Proportionately we've had just about the same number of mentally disturbed persons coming to see President Johnson as those who tried to see President Eisenhower and President Kennedy. They range in age from 18 to 72, but most are between 30 and 50. The overwhelming majority have previously been confined to mental institutions in their own states but have been released as improved, harmless and possibly cured. Unfortunately, many of them have suffered relapses.

"In some instances," Dr. Foy continues, "these sick people write the President and tell him beforehand that they're coming to Washington. In other cases their relatives tip off the White House ahead of time, and the guards are waiting for them when they arrive."

The reasons given by deranged persons for wanting to see the President are varied. One 28-year-old told the White House guards he was Jesus Christ come to Washington to tell President Eisenhower "the Third Secret of Fatima." Another said he had to see President Kennedy because only Kennedy could help him solve his problem. His problem: he had $100 billion on deposit in a savings bank, and the bank refused to let him withdraw the money without the President's okay. During the Kennedy administration several women accused Jacqueline Kennedy of being an impostor and declared that only they were the true wives of John F. Kennedy.

"I," announced one California matron, "am the real First Lady of this land."

Not too long ago a young man turned up at the White House and asked for the $2,000,000 President Johnson was supposed to have left for him. He declared himself to be the son of God and explained that his Father had sent him to make the pickup.

A recent case of the mentally disturbed individual who insists upon seeing the President involves Doyle Allen Hicks, 28, of Waynesville, N.C. Last September Hicks crashed his pickup truck through the White House gate and was only 25 feet from the north portico when the White House guards, their guns drawn, captured him.

A schizophrenic with paranoid delusions, a married plumber, father of five, a former inmate of Broughton State Hospital in North Carolina, young Hicks had driven all night from his home to the White House to alert President Kennedy that the Disturbed man, Doyle Hicks of Waynesville, N.C., is led away after trying to crash White House gate with truck.

Communists had invaded the Tar Heel State and were marching on Washington.

"I tell you, boys," he shouted when taken, "you'd better get down to North Carolina. You'd better get down there and see what's going on. They're killing people like flies."

Dr. Foy, who's been specializing in psychiatry since 1954—he received his M.D. from Loyola University, Chicago, in 1949—explains: "The people the Secret Service sends us are way out, but not all of them are angry or hostile. Thus far in our review of their cases, one thing stands out — more of these people are born outside the U.S. than one would ordinarily expect.

"It may well be that in their childhoods many of these people lived in cultures of structured authority based on father figures. When they came to this country they derived some strange notion about the supreme authority of the President, that he was the man to whom they could appeal all their troubles, he was the man responsible for everything, he was the omnipotent, God-like commander in charge of their destiny. I speculate that their view of the Presidency is somehow tied up with their sociocultural background and inheritance.

"The Secret Service has a branch in the White House," Dr. Foy points out, "called the Protective Research Branch. The men assigned to it try to deal with all the abusive and threatening mail the President gets. They classify the senders as major risks, minor risks, very dangerous, not so dangerous. It's an overwhelming job, but they manage to keep track of hostile and deranged people."

It is said with only slight exaggeration of Bob Bouck, in charge of the Protective Research Branch, that he can look at an envelope and discern from the handwriting whether the writer is normal, abnormal, male or female, native or foreign-born. Inspector Bouck is typical of the sagacious, perceptive and knowledgeable men the Secret Service has long assigned to this important detail.

ALL LONE OPERATORS

Historical studies of Presidential assassinations and attempts made both by scholars and the Secret Service prove conclusively that all of the assassins except the two Puerto Ricans from the Bronx who tried to shoot Harry Truman in 1950 were lone operators.

This was true of Richard Lawrence, who tried to kill Andrew Jackson in 1835; John Wilkes Booth, who murdered Lincoln in 1865; Charles Guiteau, who gunned down Garfield in 1881; Leon Czolgosz, who shot McKinley in 1901; Joseph Schrank, who tried to murder Theodore Roosevelt in 1912; Giuseppe Zangara, who in 1933 missed Franklin D. Roosevelt but killed Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago; and Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin in 1963 of President John F. Kennedy.

With the exception of Oswald, all these assassins were men with a cause who cried out for discovery and martyrdom. Most of them were foreign-born, but what they all had in common was mental disease. Each was a deranged individual badly in need of psychiatric treatment.

In a free society such as ours there is as yet no protection against such men. As Dr. Walter Alvarez says, "Unfortunately the average physician has no interest in psychiatry and no training in this field; he cannot be counted on even to recognize a mentally deranged man when he comes into the office."

The Secret Service can recognize the mentally disturbed all right. Its major problem is to ferret out and keep track of the potential assassin. It seems an almost impossible task. But its men keep trying. Perhaps in some other tomorrow computers will help.

GUNSMOKE'S DENNIS WEAVER

"I want to walk without a limp"

BY ARNO JOHANSEN

HOLLYWOOD.

Ten years ago, a tall (6-feet-2), dark (brown hair, brown eyes), handsome actor from Joplin, Mo., named Dennis Weaver was working here in his uncle's flower shop as a handyman.

Weaver labored at odd jobs for $5 and $7.50 a day because acting parts were scarce and he had both a wife and a 5-year-old son to support.

Today Dennis Weaver, the gimpy Chester of Gunsmoke, the limping, stiff-legged deputy side-kick of Marshal Matt Dillon, is a millionaire at 38. A proud father of 3 sons, he owns a $180,000 mansion, speeds about in a $13,000 Facel Vega, owns 4 bowling alleys, a string of racehorses, a flock of oil wells, several parcels of choice real estate.

This wealth is the result of nine years of acting in Gunsmoke, on which Dennis has now turned his back for the third time.

Come this fall, Dennis Weaver will star in Kentucky Jones, a "half-hour serious comedy" to be telecast Saturday nights from 8:30 to 9:00 via NBC.

WHY SHOULD HE?

Why should Weaver give up a sure thing like Gunsmoke, which paid him $7,000 a week at the finish, to star in a new TV series, the public acceptance of which is at best doubtful and which was originally written for the late Jack Carson?

The answer is that Dennis Weaver is a dedicated ham. "After almost 10 years," he explains, "I want to walk without a limp. In Gunsmoke I've exhausted all the dimensions of Chester. There's nothing I can do with that character anymore. I knew it some time ago, and I tried to quit the program twice before.

"Two years ago I did a variety show pilot, TV Tonight. I was a combination host and master of ceremonies. It didn't sell. Last year I worked in another pilot, Giant Step. I played a high school vice-principal. That didn't sell either. In both instances I returned to Gunsmoke because financially that was the best thing to do. But this time I'm severing the umbilical cord for good. Kentucky Jones has been bought and scheduled. I own 25 per cent of the package, and I'll get a weekly guarantee of about $5,000."

According to Weaver, however, money is not his primary motivation for quitting Gunsmoke, "I want to grow as an actor, to create, to expand. I know I'll never be lucky enough to find another show like Gunsmoke, but in all fairness to myself, I can't afford to make it my whole life's work.

Dennis Weaver, as Chester (l.), has for 9 years

"In Kentucky Jones," Dennis explains, "I play a horse trainer who becomes a veterinarian, a one-time playboy who marries and settles down with a lovely bride. Subsequently, we adopt a Chinese boy named Dwight Eisenhower Wong. Then my wife dies, and I become mother and father to the boy. Essentially, the series deals with a father-son relationship.

NO LIMP, NO DRAWL

"It's what I call," Weaver says, "a serious comedy. I don't limp in it and I don't drawl, but my character has broader horizons, wider boundaries than Chester had in Gunsmoke."

To understand Weaver's profound interest in acting, one must know something of his background. He was born and raised in Missouri, the son of a Joplin electrician, and at school divided his time almost equally between drama and athletics. He was one of the Midwest's great high school athletes and later at the University of Oklahoma qualified for the Olympic decathlon.

On graduation he came to New York, studied at the Actors Studio under Lee Strasberg, married his schoolgirl sweetheart, later worked on Broadway with Shirley Booth in Come Back, Little Sheba. He also enacted the role of Stanley Kowalski, the part that zoomed Marlon Brando to stardom in Streetcar Named Desire. Many who saw him play the role opposite Shelley Winters thought he was Brando's equal, if not his superior.

On the strength of that performance he was signed by Universal Pictures. But this was back in the days of Rock Hudson, Jeff Chandler and Tony Curtis, and there just weren't enough good parts at the studio to go around.

When Universal dropped Weaver, he freelanced in Hollywood, trying to keep body and soul together. In 1954 Charles Marquis Warren, a director who had previously worked with him, tested Dennis for Gunsmoke and signed him at $400 a week.

It was Weaver who thought up Chester's phony limp. Week after week for nine years he limped so well that thousands of Gunsmoke fans wrote him offering money, advice and the names of top surgeons to help him.

Whatever acting gimmick Weaver comes up with in Kentucky Jones, rest assured it will be no limp. Insofar as Chester is concerned, he's had it. ■

ICELAND
A SURPRISING PLACE TO VACATION

by JESS GORKIN

What's in a name?

In the case of Iceland, our closest European neighbor, an increasing number of Americans are discovering that the name is misleading. These Americans include tourists as well as men in uniform stationed at the U.S. air base in Keflavik.

Iceland spells I-C-E and nothing more to most people. But this Kentucky-sized country—39,768 square miles—is warmed by the Gulf Stream and enjoys a moderate climate even in midwinter. The mean temperature during the summer months is in the middle 50's and reaches into the 70's during the day. Moreover, Iceland has an abundance of natural beauty that includes 30 volcanoes, sparkling trout streams, rustic hamlets, steaming sulfur beds, giant glaciers and green, fertile valleys teeming with an infinite variety of flowers, grasses and mosses.

You can camp, hunt reindeer, bird-watch or do any one or all of the following interesting things.

● Fish around the clock in this land of 24-hour summer daylight. There is an abundance of fish of many kinds.

● Ride a gentle Icelandic pony, even if you have never mounted a horse before. This is true for an hour's ride or a week-long trek cross-country. The Icelandic pony, actually a small horse, is a descendant of stock brought by early Viking settlers.

● Swim in comfort in warm-water pools fed by natural hot springs. If you choose, you can go swimming with Iceland's president, Asgeir Asgeirsson, in Reykjavik, the capital city. He swims almost every day the year around in one of Reykjavik's outdoor public pools.

● Take a guided trip up the volcano, Hekla, 4,747 feet high.

● Visit a whaling station on days when the huge mammals are brought in by the whaling fleet.

● View the Great Geyser, after which spouting springs all over the world are named. And here's an added bonus for tourists. To accommodate them, the geyser is agitated into action by feeding it liquid soap. The geyser shoots boiling water and steam to heights of 180 feet. Iceland is, in fact, a geologist's paradise. One-seventh of the island is lava-covered, one-seventh glacier-encased and its numerous waterfalls are among the world's most scenic.

Blending into the scenery are the Icelandic women, who are among the prettiest in the world. Two of them, Johanna how Iceland was discovered in the middle of the ninth century by the Vikings. Icelanders are predominantly of Nordic origin, with an admixture of Celtic blood from Ireland. In the year 930, the Althing, or parliament, was formed — making it the oldest parliament in the world—and in 1944 Iceland became an independent republic.

In addition to Johanna and Maria, there are 180,000 other Icelanders, 75,000 of whom live in Reykjavik.

If you decide to visit these proud and handsome people, who like to joke about the fact that their sheep population outnumbers the people 6 to 1, you can easily accomplish this by air. English meat pie

By Beth Merriman
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

It's a great pity that English cookery has been so unjustly maligned, because in English homes, in fine English restaurants and aboard great English liners like the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, the cuisine is superb. Consider this recipe for traditional steak and kidney pie as it is prepared and served to passengers on these liners. Deliciously flavored and quite easy to prepare, it is no wonder that this hearty meat pie is one of the most popular dishes on the Queens' menu. No doubt it will be equally popular with your family or for special company. Serve with hot carrots, salad and assorted relishes.

English steak and kidney pie

½ lb. beef suet
1 lb. lamb kidneys, quartered
2 lb. top round, cut 1 inch thick
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper and cayenne
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Pastry for 1-crust pie
1 cup beef stock
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons water

Cook suet until golden-brown. Remove from pan. Fry onion in drippings until soft and brown; remove from pan. Cut beef in 1-inch cubes; add with kidneys; fry in drippings until well browned. Return onions to pan; add seasonings and beef stock. Stir well; cover; simmer 2 hours; adding more broth if necessary. Thicken gravy if desired. Transfer to baking dish. Cool. Meanwhile roll out pastry ⅛ inch thick; place over meat mixture. Trim; crimp edges with floured fork. Cut slits in center of pastry. Cut "leaves" from pastry scraps; place on top. Beat egg yolk slightly; add water; brush over pastry. Bake at 425° for 10 minutes; lower heat to 350°; bake 20 minutes longer, or until pastry is deep golden-brown. Makes 6 servings.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of the large volume of mail received, PARADE regrets that it is unable to answer queries about this column.

CEREALS & CAVITIES. Indiana University makes dental research pay. In 1955 its researchers discovered that sodium fluoride mixed into toothpaste helps prevent cavities. They sold the patent on this discovery to Procter & Gamble. As a result, the Indiana University Foundation today receives thousands from the sale of Crest toothpaste. The University's dental researchers are now under contract to the Post division of General Foods, working on a mineral additive for breakfast cereals that will help reduce tooth decay.

WOMANPOWER. There are now approximately 66,848,000 females in the U.S. 14 years of age or older. They own 65% of all savings accounts, 74% of all titles to suburban homes, stand to inherit 70% of the nation's wealth and control 85% of total consumer buying power.

QUACKS. Beware of unqualified persons who pass themselves off as psychologists, scientologists or metaphysicians. More than half our states have no laws preventing such quacks from operating under those titles. Result: each year they bilk an estimated $350,000,000 from unknowing patients.

PAY HIKE. To stop the "brain drain" of British scientists and teachers to the U.S., the British are raising the minimum salary of professors from $8,120 to $9,520, the maximum from $11,200 to $13,300.

CHILD SUICIDES. Why do school children commit suicide? In the past 3 years 41 New Jersey children have taken their lives; another 738 have unsuccessfully tried the same. Of the 41 who killed themselves, not one had a confidant of any age to whom he or she could communicate his personal distress. Fifteen is the most likely age at which the lonely child, desperate to be loved and accepted, attempts suicide.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS. According to a poll in San Diego, the average American high school girl has stopped lionizing the captain of the football team, prefers to date the boy with brains. According to Dr. Orrin Klapp, who supervised the survey: "The young intellectual is in."

DEDUCTIBLE WHISKY. If you drink whisky for purely medicinal purposes, you can claim it as a deduction on your federal income tax. Says the Internal Revenue Service in its latest tax guide: "Your doctor has prescribed two ounces of whisky to be taken by you twice a day for relief of angina pain resulting from coronary artery disease. The expense you incur for the prescribed whisky is a deductible medical expense."

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT. California is outpacing all other 49 states in enrollment of college students, boasting 629,000 registered pupils. New York is runner-up with 415,000, followed by Illinois with 242,000, Texas with 233,000 and Pennsylvania with 230,000.

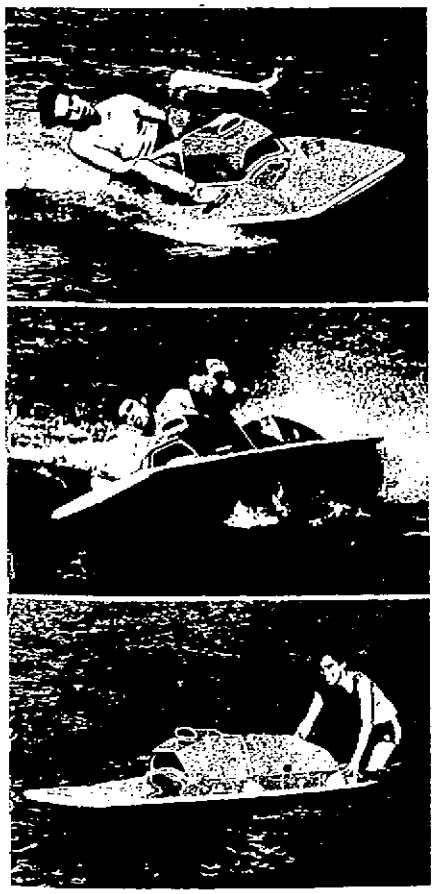

HOME-BUYERS IMPROVE WITH EACH HOUSE THAT THEY BUY.

HOME-BUYERS. During the course of his lifetime, the average American buys three houses, each one successively better. He occupies house#1 for eight years, house #2 for seven years, and house #3 until his death.

LOS ANGELES.

■ The speedy little go-kart is storming the American recreation scene a second time! As a miniature racing car, it has brought thrills to 3.5 million U.S. owners, plus guests permitted to take the helm. Now—as these photos, taken at Hansen Dam near here, show—the 7-to-12 hp chain-saw engines have been harnessed to Fiberglas boats not much bigger than a surfboard. The resulting "hydro-karts" are the newest rage of the water sports field. They spurt along at 25 mph ("It seems like 80!" say West Coast daredevils who've gunned them), and it's practically impossible to tip one over. Prices run from $300 to over $700. The average craft is 8 feet long, weighs 110 pounds, needs only 18 inches of water, runs for hours on a gallon of gas. Pilots sit so close to the water level the speed-impression is amplified. So is the fun!

My Favorite Jokes

by Jerry Lewis

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jerry Lewis, born Joseph Levitch in Newark, N.J., in 1926 to Danny and Mona Lewis, a pair of vaudevillians, is probably the most successful financial clown in show business. He lives in the Bel Air mansion formerly owned by the power-crazy, ostentatious chief of MGM, Louis B. Mayer. The house has 31 rooms and 17 bathrooms; and Lewis has stocked it with a radio station control room, small mountains of his awards and trophies, endless volumes of leather-bound photo collections. Possibly the greatest natural comedian since Chaplin, Lewis is kind, restless, insecure and, for the most part, self-educated. He attended Irvington High School in Irvington, N.J., where, to compensate for his insecurity, he clowned outrageously and was nicknamed "Id" — for idiot — by his classmates. For many years he teamed with Dean Martin, a straight man of small vocal talent, from whom he broke away in 1956. Since then Jerry has been fabulously successful in all avenues of show business except for his TV program on ABC last year, which laid a bomb. Lewis possesses tremendous energy, a fertile creative imagination, but is handicapped by a short concentration span. He claims in his whole life to have read completely only one book, Courtroom, by Quentin Reynolds. Herewith some of his favorite funnies.

An ardent teenager pulled up to a drive-in restaurant with his girl friend and was shocked at the high prices on the menu. He solved his financial problem with typical adolescent nonchalance, however, by turning to the girl and asking: "And what will you have, my plump little pigeon?"

At a Catskill resort, a vacationer encountered a frail, rabbinical old man who identified himself as the head dietician, making sure that meat and milk were not served at the same meal. Came February, the vacationer went to Miami, where he met the same old man. "What brings you south?" he asked. "The sun?"

"No, same thing as in the Catskills," replied the old man. "I'm in charge of the dietary laws here now."

In June, the vacationer took a trip to Israel, and in Tel Aviv he ran into the old man for the third time. "I suppose you're still taking charge of the dietary laws?" he asked.

"Oh, no," the old man answered. "Here I'm the golf pro."

A man finally succeeded in buying a parrot at an auction, but only after some very spirited bidding.

"I suppose the bird talks," he said to the auctioneer as he went up to claim his purchase.

"Talks?" was the reply. "Who do you think was bidding against you for the past half-hour!"

An old joke had it that the way the kiddies in Las Vegas learned to count was: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, Jack, Queen, King."

The story has now been up-dated and the scene shifted to Cape Kennedy and the rocket launching pads. There the bright young things recite as follows: "Ten, nine, eight, seven six, five, four, three, two, one, zero—oh, damn!"

What's so different about Union Oil tires?

They carry America's First Insured Tire Warranty

NEW FROM UNION OIL: Buy any Minute Man IV or Minute Man III tire. If it fails due to normal road hazards any time during the first year or the first 10,000 miles you drive (whichever occurs first), we will replace the tire free. The Minute Man IV is probably America's safest tire. It actually seals punctures as you drive. The Minute Man III is the Union Oil tire with more rubber in the shoulder, where there's more wear.

Now you can buy either one with a warranty that is insured by an American Capital Stock Insurance Company. Never before have you had this kind of reassurance—that you will get a free tire if the tire you buy should fail due to normal road hazards during the first year or 10,000 miles.

What's more, your Union Oil dealer is open seven days a week, ready with free follow-up service every mile you drive. His prices are competitive. You can pick your own terms. Up to 15 months to pay—no money down on approved credit.

If you're driving on thin rubber, drive in at the Sign of the 76 and drive out on warranty-insured Minute Man tires. It's a great feeling.

HOW TO PREVENT A HEART ATTACK

BY STAN MUSIAL
THE PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL ON PHYSICAL FITNESS

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Relaxing in an easy chair isn't as safe and snug as you may think. Though it may seem less risky to watch Indians on TV than to fight them as our forefathers did, the perils of our chair-bound, push-button society are almost as great as those faced by the pioneers.

Most doctors agree that too much ease can lead to cardiovascular trouble (disease of the heart and blood vessels), which now causes 55 per cent of all deaths in the U.S. The American Heart Association reported a slight decline in cardiovascular disease in 1963, but most doctors regard this merely as a pause in the general upward climb (an increase of 7 per cent since 1940).

Our TV-sitting, tranquilizer-taking generation is surrounded by gadgets—from power mowers to electric back-scratchers—designed to save exertion. Thanks to the miracle of electronics, we can even change TV channels without stirring from our chairs. Our most overworked muscles are the jaw muscles we use to chew food.

The symptoms of softness showed up even in the officers and men of the 2070 Army Reserve Service Unit. They were summoned to Ft. Myer recently for a surprise physical fitness test. From the moment they stripped to singlets and shorts, it was painfully evident that few would be able to perform the simple exercises. One officer moaned after a few knee bends: "I'm so pooped I can't take my sneakers off."

Under President Johnson, The Council on Physical Fitness will encourage Americans to strengthen their hearts through regular exercise and thereby reduce the toll of heart attacks. The President has given me this personal message for PARADE readers:

"Every adult should find time in his daily schedule for some form of physical activity. Medical evidence tells us that our hearts, lungs and even our minds need the effects of regular vigorous exercise. Overweight and flagging stamina, the badges of the unfit, now are recognized as invitations to old age and illness."

EXERCISE YOUR HEART

Here is advice that may save your life: give your heart a regular workout by exercising daily. For heart muscles, like biceps, become soft from disuse. "The best insurance against coronary disease," say Dr. Howard B. Sprague, famous Boston heart specialist, "is exercise—lots of it."

Specialists also refute the old wives' tale that physical activity can produce "athlete's heart." "Loafer's heart" is infinitely more dangerous. The heart degenerates as its muscles and blood vessels become atrophied from lack of exercise. Few heart attacks result from physical strain; indeed, most occur while the victim is asleep.

Not only is the idler more vulnerable to heart attack; he is also less likely to recover from one. A heart made strong by exercise can better survive an occlusion. Doctors believe exercise develops supplementary blood vessels which can nourish the heart in case a coronary artery is blocked.

Two heart researchers, Drs. Cedric Bainton and Donald Peterson, conducted a year-long study of heart attack victims under 50 in a city of 1 million. They reported that 66 per cent of all male victims presented "a picture of indolence." They occupied their leisure time "with television, reading and visiting." Another 27 per cent, slightly more ambitious, kept "generally busy with such activities as house repair, light carpentry and gardening." Only 8 per cent performed heavy carpentry and other arduous labor.

A study of 120,000 railroad employees reveals that the heart attack rate among office workers was twice that of the men doing heavy labor. In Britain, foot-slogging mail carriers were found to live longer and have far fewer heart attacks than their desk-bound bosses.

The sedentary person usually begins to weaken his heart by putting on the pounds. No people on earth are more weight-conscious than Americans—and with good reason. Some 25 per cent of our people are overweight, many dangerously so. It is a problem that begins early in life and is as much a matter of underactivity as of overeating.

In most people, fat piles up at the rate of merely a few calories a day. An excess of only 100 calories a day (about 2 slices of bread) can produce a 10-pound gain in a year. But those extra calories could be burned up daily by a 15-minute walk. A half-hour of proper exercise a day can keep off, or take off, as much as 26 pounds a year. Caution: don't take off more than two pounds a week without your physician's knowledge and consent.

WALK, DON'T RIDE

We can't all be star athletes, nor is it wise for sedentary people suddenly to indulge in violent exertions. But there are simple ways to keep the body active as you go about your daily routine.

Walk every chance you get. It is the simplest exercise and one of the best. The massaging action of the leg muscles on your veins speeds the flow of blood back to the heart. When you walk, you are improving not only the leg muscles but the heart pumping action. Develop a brisk stride, toes pointing straight, with knees and ankles limber. Also choose the stairs instead of the elevator or escalator, and bound up them two at a time.

If you are tied to a desk, get up occasionally and stretch; move around for a minute or two. Sit tall with hips touching the back of the chair and feet flat on the floor. Good posture prevents cramping of internal organs and improves blood circulation. Instead of coffee breaks, take exercise breaks: a brisk stroll around the block or a few push-ups. If you prefer something less conspicuous, you can work out your muscles by pushing or pulling against an immovable object such as a wall or door frame, or by pitting one muscle against the opposition of another muscle. Also try pull-ins: suck in your stomach occasionally and hold it taut for a few seconds.

Nearly 4,000 doctors participating in a survey conducted by Parke, Davis & Company said at least one-quarter of their patients, though apparently in good health, were not physically fit. One of every three doctors questioned said at least half of their patients were not physically fit.

Questioned further, the doctors said a regular program of exercise would produce improved cardiovascular efficiency, respiratory function and mental health and longer life.

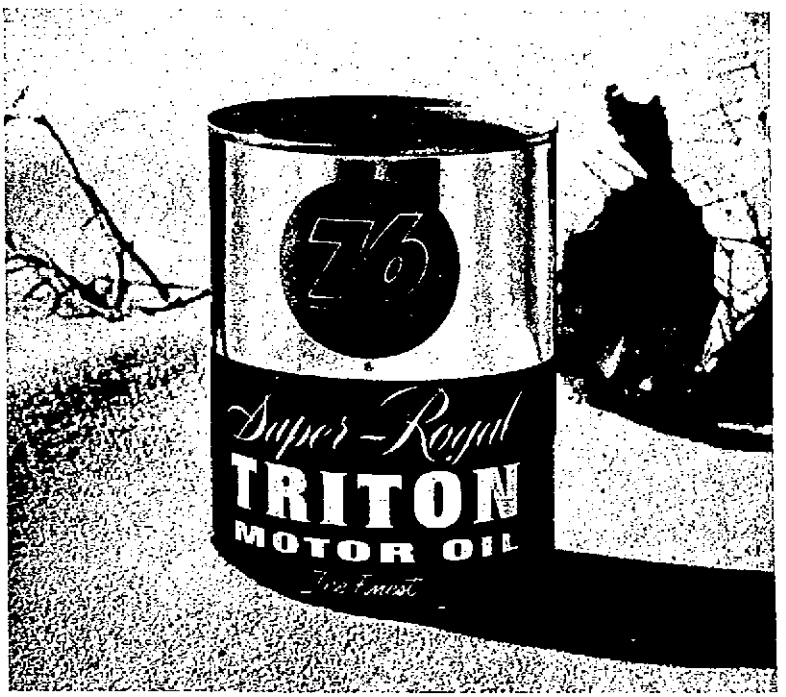

A few simple exercises each day will help you develop a stronger heart, good health and, very probably, insurance against early aging and death.

TO KEEP IN CONDITION

The "sudden" heart attack is seldom sudden at all, but rather the end result of a long process of deterioration. To help keep your heart in condition, you should start a program of home exercises. ■ In Boston recently Judge John V. Mahoney was holding a modification of custody hearing. The father had custody of an 8-year-old son, and the mother wanted custody. The judge asked the boy whether he preferred to stay with his father or live with his mother. The 8-year-old thought for a moment, then turned to Mahoney and said wisely: "I refuse to tell you on the grounds it might incriminate me." ■

A nurse speaks frankly about periodic pain

People seem to think a nurse knows everything. Women, particularly, come to me with special problems they might hesitate to discuss with others—periodic pain, for example.

What amazes me is that, in this day of modern medicine, many women still resort to aspirin for relief of periodic pain. Sometimes they're lucky. It works for the "periodic" headache. But for those who suffer from discomforts that aspirin cannot help, I recommend a new relief formula you may not have heard about yet. It's called Femicin. Femicin tablets were designed specifically to relieve all the most common symptoms of periodic pain—whether they last 2, 5, or even 7 days.

The Cause of Distress—And What You Can Do About It

The questions women ask me show that too few of them know what causes their periodic pain—or how to get relief. First, you should know that although you may react to the onset of your period with many kinds of discomfort, all these symptoms are related to one another. All stem from the basic change that is taking place in your body. That's why many women need a relief formula compounded to act on several common symptoms at the same time. Femicin is just such a formula.

Why Femicin Works Where Simple Pain Killers Fail

A simple pain killer—aspirin, for example—contains no special ingredient to control the abdominal spasms and painful cramps. Femicin has not only a mild anti-spasmodic, but two potent pain relievers, as well. Then, too, aspirin has no effect whatsoever on the excess water that accumulates in your body at this time. Some women put on as much as ten or twelve pounds of this bloating "water-weight," frequently causing puffiness and tenderness in the abdominal or bosom area. This excess water will disappear during the course of your period—but certain substances will hasten the process. The Femicin formula supplies a gentle water-eliminating action you won't find in aspirin.

"Period Nerves"

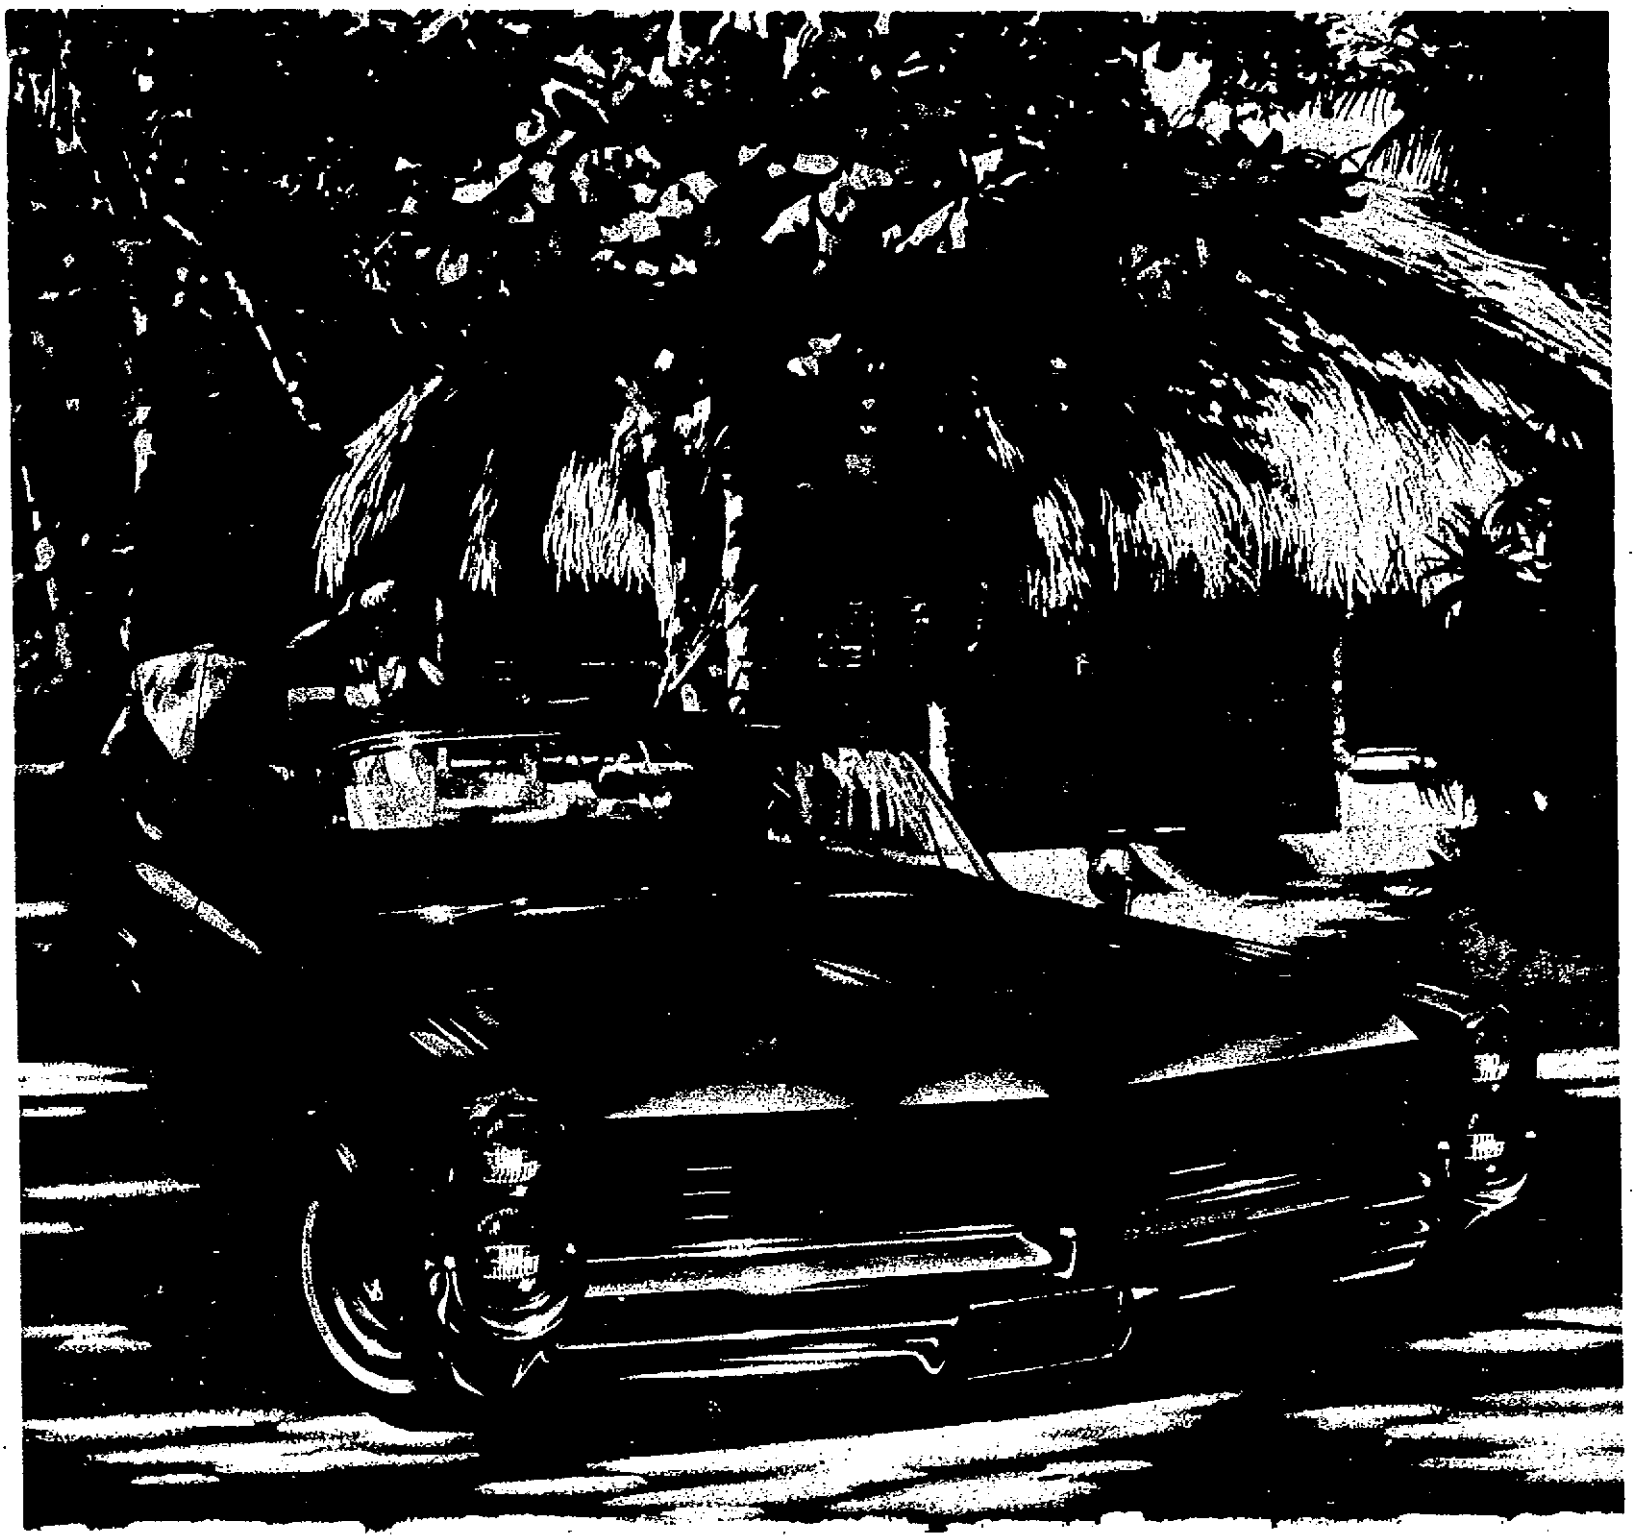

I've been asked so many times about the feelings of tension, edginess and irritability that so frequently accompany the monthly period. Women dread the "period nerves" that turn them into tense, moody strangers—even to their own families. But Femicin's gentle sedative action works to relax the edginess and irritability. You feel better—look better—function better—all week long.

A Common Problem That Wears Many Faces

Not everyone suffers from all the common, medically-recognized symptoms of periodic pain and distress. Your own symptoms may be different from those of your friends. For you it may be the blinding headaches. Others suffer from painful cramps and backaches. That is why the Femicin formula combines many proven relief-bringing ingredients. And why Femicin tablets may well be the safe, non-prescription tablet for you.

Why do I recommend Femicin tablets so highly? Simply because, as a nurse, I have seen the clinical test reports that show Femicin's modern formula usually makes suffering periodic pain unnecessary. And as a woman...well, I've experienced Femicin's better-than-aspirin relief for myself.

Right now, Femicin is available at local drug counters, so there's no longer any need to think of periodic pain as inevitable. Follow the simple directions. Discover this new way to relief—Femicin relief—for yourself. I recommend it.

OWNER OF AIR-CRASH REVOLVER IDENTIFIED

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Reliable sources said Saturday that Frank Gonzalez, 27, Olympic yachtsman competitor for the Philippines in the 1960 Olympics, owned the gun which triggered the Pacific Air Lines crash Thursday. He was among the 44 persons killed. Gonzalez reportedly bought the revolver the day before he left for Reno.

The Civil Aeronautics Board made public the tape recording of the last message radioed from the plane in which a voice, presumably that of the pilot, said: "I've been shot! I've been shot! Oh, my God! Help!"

A reliable source told the Associated Press in San Francisco that Gonzalez gambled and lost at Reno and carried $100,000 air-trip life insurance made out to his wife of two years. A brother, James, said Frank Gonzalez had become estranged from his wife two months ago.

FRANK GONZALEZ

The New York Herald Tribune and the Los Angeles Times both published reports that Gonzalez had been identified as the owner of the .357 Smith and Wesson magnum revolver found in the plane wreckage. All six cartridges were spent. They had been fired recently.

FBI national headquarters in Washington would neither confirm nor deny the report that Gonzalez had been established as owner of the weapon.

But sources previously had said a male passenger was the gunman, that he carried heavy air-trip insurance, and that apparently he had shot at least one member of the crew.

Lee Martin, in charge of the CAB investigation to determine the cause of the crash, said "we have found no evidence" that either the pilot or copilot was shot by a passenger. He added, however, that any criminal investigation was in the hands of the FBI.

Gonzalez's brother said Frank had a penchant for gambling and had gone to Reno several times previously, always without any word of it to his family, but his previous trips were by car.

"I never knew what he was doing," the brother said, adding that Frank kept to himself.

He said Frank became separated recently from his wife, legal secretary with the U.S. government. They have a small son.

Frank Gonzalez settled on San Francisco as his adopted home while on his way back to the Philippines after taking part in the yachting Olympics at Naples four years ago.

FBI agents were reported to be interrogating Gonzalez's relatives, including his brother, mother and father. But district headquarters in San Francisco kept its around-the-clock operations a secret. A spokesman said there would be no talking while the solution remained incomplete.

Saturday's playback of the tape-recorded last message from the Reno-to-San Francisco plane did not pin down whose voice cried out "I've been shot!" It was believed to have been that of the pilot, Ernest A. Clark, 53, of San Carlos.

Shortly before 7 a.m. Thursday, Oakland control tower advised the incoming

Home-Contract Dispute Flares in Beach City

More than 1,000 homeowners in Huntington Beach and Ventura County have threatened court action against a Los Angeles developer on charges that sales contracts were grossly unfair to buyers.

The controversy came to a head late last week when a standing-room-only crowd of more than 150 homeowners met in Huntington Beach to protest the contracts.

Interested spectators at the meeting in Circleview Elementary School were County Supervisor David Baker and representatives of Congressman Richard T. Hanna, D-Anaheim, and Assemblyman James E. Whetmore. All pledged to aid the homeowners.

Baker told the audience that he would have county counsel study the land sales contracts. The others suggested possibile legislation to tighten home purchase contracts.

Tempers flared when S. Allen, attorney for the land developer, A. L. Gindling, told the crowd:

Johnson Sees Yule Session if Solons Balk

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — President Johnson served warning Saturday night that he may keep Congress in session until Christmas if it fails to enact his top-priority legislation by the end of August.

In remarks prepared for a Democratic fund-raising dinner here at the convention hall where he is expected to be nominated in August, Johnson asked his partisan audience to muster support for eight of his pending programs.

Civil rights and the war against poverty headed the list, followed by medical care for the aged, aid to the distressed Appalachian region, and bills affecting housing, immigration, extended minimum-wage coverage and aid to education.

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (UPI) — President Johnson startled 3,000 guests at a fund-raising dinner here Saturday night at the site of the 1964 Democratic Convention when he said:

"There will be chosen in this hall a leader of this nation for 1965 and I am sad to say it will not be me."

The President paused for a full five seconds and added: "It will be Miss America."

"I want you to call upon your neighbors — of every race, creed and color—and get their support for these programs," Johnson told the New Jersey Democrats. "And I want you to call upon your congressman and get him behind these programs. Because if we don't pass them between now and convention—we'll be working on them between convention and Christmas."

The President thus hardened a warning he first issued at a news conference last Wednesday.

Johnson's Atlantic City appearance followed a visit to New York where he addressed the Amalgamated Clothing Workers union at the World's Fair, held a news conference, helped open the Venezuelan pavilion, and participated in dedication of Nassau County's John F. Kennedy Cultural Center at the old site of Mitchell Air Force Base, on Long Island.

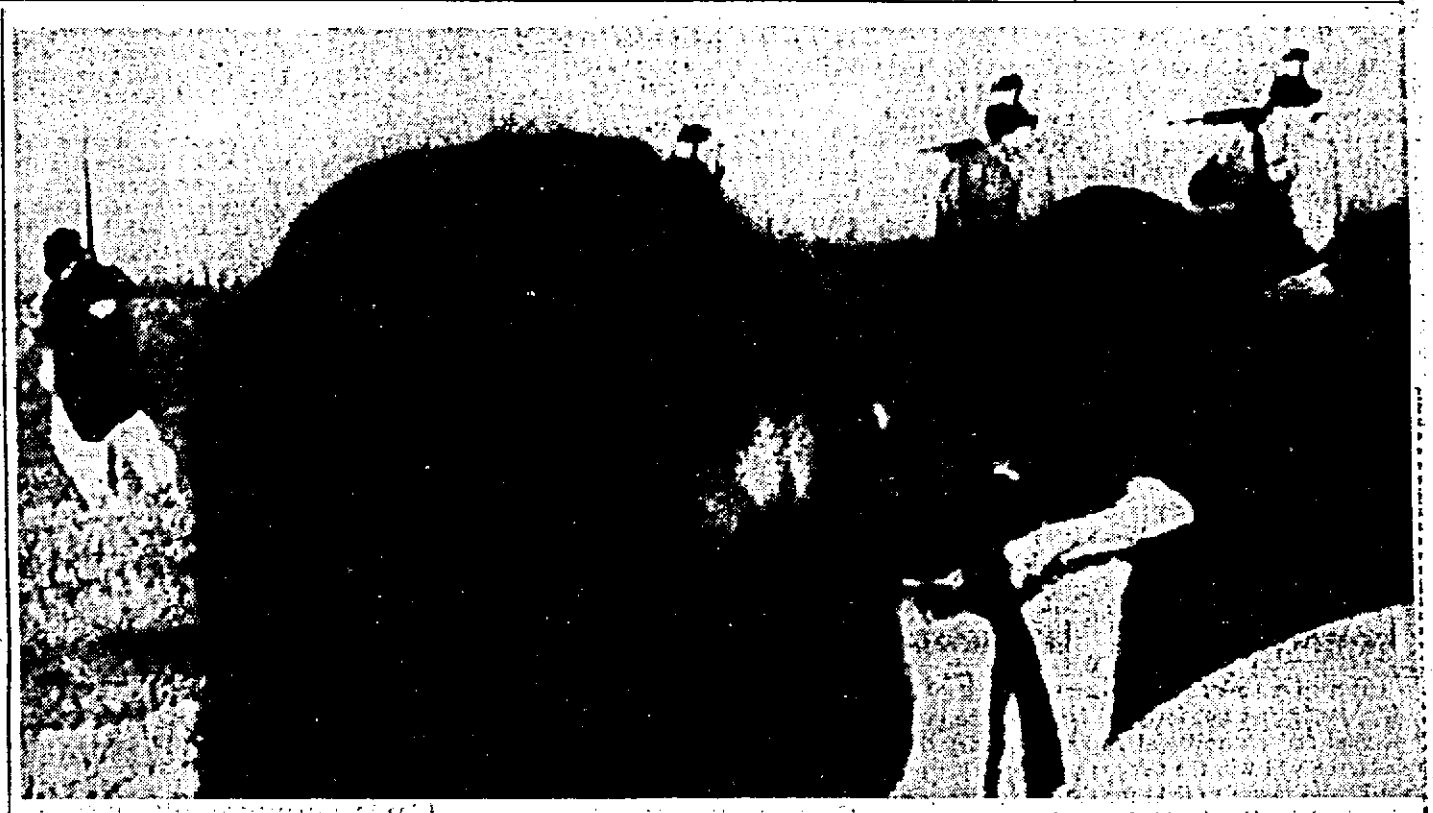

The President said at the Atlantic City scene of his party's Aug. 24 convention that he doesn't want to be partisan, because he is President of all the people, including Republicans. Then he jokingly added:

"I haven't had much political experience . . . therefore I just want to say that I hope that whatever candidate of whatever party is chosen in this hall will be successful in November."

Junior Chamber Urges Birth Curbs

By GEORGE WEEKS

The Long Beach Junior Chamber of Commerce, venturing into a warmly controversial field, has endorsed increased birth-control measures at local, state and national levels.

One proposal expected to generate immediate dispute is a recommendation that the City Council direct the Municipal Health Department to "organize a birth-control type service available to the citizens of Long Beach and publicize its availability to all of the public service agencies and groups of the city."

The Health Department thus far has shunned taking the initiative in birth-control programs.

Also on the controversial side was a Jaycee suggestion that adult-level schools supply birth-control information by way of courses.

William Hodge, Junior Chamber president, made known the organization's proposals in letters to the City Council, state and federal legislators from this area and members of civic, church and school organizations.

The Jaycee letter was approved by the board of

Air Force Stunt Team Pilot Killed

HAMILTON AIR FORCE BASE (AP) — A member of the Air Force Thunderbird precision flying team, Capt. Eugene J. Devlin, 31, was killed Saturday in the explosion of his F105 jet as his group screamed over the base in a speedy fly-by before landing.

Devlin was flying left wing position in a group of three which flew the length of a runway at about 500 feet altitude. The lead plane peeled off to the left and climbed. Devlin started to follow, and his plane exploded as it started the climb in front of the base operations tower.

Wreckage of the one-place, single-engine jet was scattered over a wide area including the flight line, the area in front of the operations tower.

Gun-Toting, Insured Cabbie Seized Boarding Airliner

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) —A cab driver was arrested at San Francisco International Airport Saturday, minutes before he was to have taken off aboard a Dallas-bound airliner with a $45,000 insurance policy and an automatic pistol in his pocket.

He was identified as L. J. Anderson, 29, a native of Dallas who has been driving a cab here since 1960.

The incident bore similarities to circumstances of the spectacular mystery crash Thursday in which 44 were killed a few miles east of here near Danville. Amid the wreckage was a revolver belonging to a passenger and it had been established that one or both of the pilots was shot seconds before the crash.

The passenger to whom the weapon belonged was heavily insured.

In Saturday's incident, police said Anderson was observed switching a 25-caliber automatic pistol from one pocket to another as he waited in line with passengers about to board the American Airlines flight.

The move was witnessed by an airline employe. He notified police who took Anderson into custody, disarmed him and emptied the weapon of a full clip of cartridges.

Anderson had purchased a $45,000 insurance policy in the airline terminal minutes earlier.

He was booked on a charge of carrying a concealed weapon and on a federal charge of attempting to board an airliner carrying a firearm.

Hours later, he was released on $550 bail.

Flying for Woman, 102, Is Delightful

SAN DIEGO (AP)—A 102-year-old grandmother enjoyed "one of the main delights of life" Saturday—an airline flight.

Mrs. Mary Phelps, who will be 103 in August, took a trip from here to Denver, Colo., as a Mother's Day gift from her three living children. Aboard with her was a daughter, Mrs. Nettie Sherman, 79, Santee, Calif.

Man, 98, Up One Day After Surgey

GARY, Ind. (AP) — A 98-year-old former steelworker is making an excellent recovery from a hernia operation, the Lake County Medical Society reported Saturday.

The report said the man, father of 12, is a welfare recipient and the local welfare office verified his age. The surgeon said the man looks to be in his 60s and was out of bed the day after surgery.

Children Survive Disaster

LIMA, Peru (AP) — An Argentine air force courier plane, wheels down, the pilot groping for a landing in dense fog, crashed into a high coastal sand dune, killing 46 of 49 persons aboard Friday night. The plane burned on impact.

The only survivors were an 8-year-old girl, Graciela Martha Castaldi, a 13-year-old boy, Jorge Enriquez and a noncommissioned member of a crew of seven, Oscar Ahumada. The children, also Argentines, were in critical condition at Lima's naval hospital.

The seared wreckage was spotted by Peruvian naval helicopters Saturday.

Doctors at the scene, 18 miles north of Lima, said only four of the bodies found could be identified.

The plane, a DC4, was trying to land at Lima's International Airport after a flight from Buenos Aires.

Yank POWs of Viet Cong Tell What It's Like

(Editor's Note — Wilfred Burchett, Australian-born newspaperman who has been Communist-oriented, has returned to Moscow after spending five months in South Viet Nam with the Viet Cong forces.

In the jungle he met four American prisoners-of-war. In the following story, written for the Associated Press, he describes their life.

Burchett, formerly a reporter for British newspapers, now lives in Moscow and writes regularly for Communist papers and some Western papers and magazines. During the Korean War, he covered the Communist side and was reported in 1953 to have helped write germ warfare "confessions" for American prisoners-of-war. He also has been seen on the Communist side in Laos.)

By W. BURCHETT

MOSCOW (AP)—In a remote corner of South Viet Nam, in a patch of jungle so dense that at midday only tiny patches of sky shine through like stars in the gloom, four American sergeants are living in individual, tiny bamboo huts, each encircled with a high palisade, each with an air-raid shelter.

They are the first inhabitants of a newly established prisoner-of-war camp, the first to be set up by those the West calls "Viet Cong" and who call themselves the "Giai Phong Quan" or liberation army, the military arm of the National Front of Liberation. Other American prisoners are plodding along jungle trails or moving by night in sampans in the general direction of this camp, now that an organization has finally been set up to deal with POWS. The four Americans are:

Staff Sgt. Kenneth Roraback of Fayetteville, N. C.; Spec. 5 Claude D. McClure of Chattanooga, Tenn.; Sgt. 1.C. Issac Camacho of El Paso, Tex., and Sgt. George E. Smith, whose mother lives in Chester, W. Va.

They were captured together when the special forces training camp to which they were attached as advisers was overrun on the night of Nov. 23-24, 1963. They have reason to consider themselves, as they themselves expressed it, "out of luck."

If the raid had taken place 10 days later, they would have been on their way home, as their six-month tour of duty was to be cut short to get them home for Christmas. McClure, a Negro, considers himself doubly unlucky because he married only a few days before leaving the United States on July 10 to go to South Viet Nam, and was count-

L.A.C. Says: The Lodge Mystery

According to the public opinion polls, Henry Cabot Lodge is the leading candidate among Republicans. Before the New Hampshire primary election he was far down the line of preferred candidates. The polls indicate he will win the May 15 Oregon primary where all the leading candidates will be on the ballot. Very few of the Republican county chairmen around the country favor him. But, still he is the leader among the rank and file voters expressing an opinion.

It is an unusual situation that puzzles the GOP leaders. They doubt he can be nominated because his standing among party leaders is not high. He is looked upon as having refused to carry on a strong campaign as vice presidential candidate in 1960. It is believed the slim margin by which Nixon and Lodge were defeated could have been reversed had Lodge done his part.

Most political observers view his present strength as being a reaction among Republicans to the Goldwater and Rockefeller campaigns. These candidates have left confusion over some vital issues. The attacks by Rockefeller on Goldwater have caused bitterness—as have the ultra-right wing supporters of Goldwater created bitterness. Out of this split it is believed the people have turned to Lodge because they know little about him.

It has been 12 years since Lodge served in the Senate—so he has no recent voting record to be attacked or praised. During his eight years as our leader in the United Nations he conducted himself in a way that brought approval from most of the people. But it is pointed out by some that in that post he was following the policies set out by President Eisenhower. Lodge was an effective spokesman—but he was not the policymaker. Few people have any idea of what Lodge stands for as concerns Cuba, labor-management issues, foreign aid, government spending, social security or many other vital issues on which a campaign must be waged. His attitude concerning such issues is more obscure than that of any other well-known candidate.

He landed in Viet Nam at the time of the execution of the Ngo administration. His administration there has been during the period of some of our greatest loss of American men. What is to be done there is still unknown to the American people. But if Lodge should return to carry on a campaign he would be faced with disclosing many things that are now obscure.

His has been a long and honorable record in public life. But it has not involved him in some of the most vital and controversial issues of the day. It is probable he will win the Oregon primary. That may cause him to return to fight for the convention nomination in July. He should do so—in my opinion—because the people have a right to know where he stands on these vital issues. Otherwise, he is supported because of what is not known about him—rather than what he should tell the people about his views. If these views are clear and agreeable to the people, he could be an effective candidate for the Republican party. But the mystery must be ended for that to be true.

Meantime on June 2, California Republicans will choose delegates to the national convention. They will be for either Rockefeller or Goldwater. No write-in names will be possible. Voters should make their decision based on the long and honorable records of these two men. Either man is deserving of the respect of all Republicans. Both are fundamentally conservative with their records well known. But of greatest importance Republicans should cast a record number of votes to demonstrate the party's strength in this key state.—L.A.C.

Masquerades Help Beatles to Anonymity

ST. THOMAS, Virgin Islands (AP)—Fans found the two vacationing beatles Ringo Starr and Paul McCartney Saturday after the entertainers had enjoyed anonymity for most of the week.

No one recognized them on shore excursions from their rented yacht because this is carnival time in the Virgin Islands and hundreds of the merrymakers were wearing beatle wigs.

GOP Bogged in Plethora of Hopefuls

By WALTER T. RIDDER
Chief L. P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — The Republican National Convention opens just nine weeks from Monday and its outlines are not much clearer today than they were several months ago.

No outstanding popular favorite has yet come to view. Henry Cabot Lodge appears to have some strong support among the rank-and-file Republican delegates to vote for him at the convention.

* * * *

THE AVERAGE delegate isn't the type to cozy to Lodge and anyway he has several objections to the tall, handsome Bostonian. He thinks he didn't work hard enough in his race for the vice presidency in 1960. He is skeptical about choosing as a standard-bearer a man so intimately associated with the unpopular war in South Viet Nam, and he never really liked Lodge in the first place.

Rightly or wrongly, Lodge has a reputation among professional politicians of being arrogant, unfriendly and hard to get at. They point out that he lost his senatorship in Massachusetts in a year when the Republican national ticket scored a smashing triumph. He lost to John F. Kennedy, a not-inconsiderable vote-getter in Massachusetts himself, but a loss, no matter to whom, never helps a man whose eyes are on the presidency.

* * * *

CONVENTION delegates will remember that Lodge lost in 1960 and will contend that his statement about placing a Negro in the cabinet caused the ticket considerable embarrassment and to do some fancy back-tracking.

How long Lodge can maintain his twin positions of ambassador and unnounced candidate for nomination is a nice political question. Sooner or later he will have to abandon one or the other. The general guess here in Washington is that he will make that decision as late as possible, thus protecting himself as long as he can from the slings and arrows of outrageous political fortune.

* * * *

EMERGENCE of Lodge since the New Hampshire primary in March as a major candidate has served merely to muddy the Republican waters, which were muddy enough to start with. The trouble with the GOP is that it has more candidates than it knows what to do with, but only one of them manages to convey a strong enthusiasm for himself to those who will do the convention selecting. That man is, of course, Barry Goldwater, whose adherents are hero-worshipers. They believe in their man, a characteristic which is not overwhelmingly noticable among the adherents of other candidates.

In politics, nine weeks can be both a long time and a short time. If nothing much does happen before the opening gavel of the Republican convention in San Francisco that meeting will start more shapeless and less discernible in result than any convention of recent memory.

MEMORIAL TO 47 DEAD

Humphrey Sees LBJ by Landslide, Midwest as Crucial Battleground

DES MOINES, Iowa (UPI)—Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey, D-Minn., Saturday night predicted a landslide victory for President Johnson this fall, and singled out the Midwest as the major battleground for control of Congress.

The Senate majority whip spoke at the Democrats' Jackson-Jefferson Day $25-a-plate fund-raising dinner climaxing a two-day Midwest Democratic Conference.

* * * *

SECRETARY of Agriculture Orville Freeman and Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz addressed enthusiastic audiences as more than 2,000 party faithful from 14 states, including several governors and congressmen, attended the sessions.

The conference was called to lay groundwork for Midwestern recommendations for party policy to be incorporated in the 1964 Democratic platform.

A resolution unanimously adopted on the opening day of the conference Friday endorsed Johnson as the Democratic presidential nominee and recommended that he be given a free hand in selecting his vice presidential running mate.

Humphrey said Johnson's popularity would have a strong effect on the entire Democratic ticket this fall and give the party an even greater control of the House and Senate.

He predicted Johnson would carry more Midwestern states that President Harry S Truman did in 1948 when he took eight of the 14 states in the Midwest conference.

Noting that the 14 states in the conference now have 80 Republicans and 56 Democrats in the House, Humphrey said the main battle for congressional seats will be fought in the Midwest this fall.

"THERE is an opportunity here to make important Democratic gains and give President Johnson the votes he needs in Congress to give a 'better deal' to the American people," the Minnesota senator said.

Warren Quiz Hears Report of Rifleman

DALLAS (AP)—A witness has told the Warren Commission that he saw a man with a rifle in a sixth floor window of the Texas School Book Repository 15 minutes before President Kennedy was assassinated.

The witness said the man was at the southwest corner window of the building.

Lee Harvey Oswald allegedly fired the assassination bullets from the southeast corner window.

David Belin, a Warren Commission employe who has interviewed some of the Dallas witnesses in connection with the assassination, took two commission members to a position Saturday from which the witness could have seen a man in the southwest corner.

Three members of the commission are in Dallas for an on-the-scene investigation.

Secret Service agents reenacted the scene the witness said he saw. An agent with a rifle in the southwest corner of the building was plainly visible to newsmen stationed where the witness said he had been.

Forrest Sorrels, Secret Service agent-in-charge of the Dallas office, confirmed that agents had questioned the witness on Nov. 22.

The witness was described as a 20-year-old part-time college student who had testified before the Warren Commission in March. No name was disclosed.

Agents quoted the witness as saying he could not identify the man with the rifle and did not immediately report what he had seen because he thought the man was a Secret Service agent guarding the presidential motorcade.

Fair Zoning Committee Plans Fete

This is the tale of a guy called Joe and how he and his band of citizens beat City Council in Los Alamitos. Now they'll have a party, then disband.

There is no local precedent for Joe Hyde's feat in guiding the Los Alamitos Citizens Committee for Fair Zoning to three election victories in the past eight months.

One election was a referendum to veto a vote by city council.

Another — the only regular election of the three — was to retain in office the mayor and a councilman who supported the views of the Fair Zoning Committee.

The last, held last week, was to recall three opposing councilmen and put into office members of the committee.

The Fair Zoning Committee raced to the three victories with little money. Today, they still owe an $86 printing bill.

The committee was so broke by the time of the third election it had to distribute 90 percent of its only mailing by hand. It couldn't afford the postage.

The 38-year-old committee chairman, a Los Angeles chemist on his off hours from local politics during the past eight months, estimates the committee spent a total of a little more than $200 for all three campaigns.

Stacked against the citizens' committee, at one time or other during the elections, were a professional public relations firm, a law firm, a wealthy land developer and a majority of the five-man city council.

JOE HYDE
Led Triple Victory

The committee faced charges hurled through sleek, multicolored literature sent to all voters—naturally through the post office.

Joe Hyde admits he admired the artistic work done on their handbills. Committee members walking from door to door last week paused to envy the passing sound trucks used by their opponents.

"Time and effort was all we could afford," said Hyde.

During the campaigns, Hyde was the target of his opponents. He was blasted in unsigned letters to the public and in anonymous phone calls to his home.

Yet, he never ran for office.

"It was a good thing they chose to hit me," he admitted. "In that way, they didn't concentrate on the candidates, the committee was trying to get into office."

Up until last August, Joe Hyde had stayed away from local politics and stayed home with his wife, Mildred, and their daughter, Debbie, 5.

Then one lazy Sunday morning during that month, Joe Hyde read in the Sunday edition of The Independent, Press-Telegram that the Navy was objecting to a proposed apartment development near its jet runway at Los Alamitos Air Station.

The Navy contended that the future residents would agitate to close the station because of jet noise and the crash hazard.

On August 27, Joe Hyde went to a regular meeting of the city council and, after listening to the pros and cons, decided the Navy was right.

Mayor James Bell and Councilman Charles Long also agreed with the Navy. But the other three councilmen—the majority—sided with the developer and the landowner and approved the condominium.

Hyde could see that most of the spectators were with him. During a recess of the meeting, a paper was circulated among the crowd and the vital contact information of names and addresses was recorded on the sheet.

Within four days, Hyde called his first meeting in Los Alamitos Firehouse. Some 50 persons attended and the Citizens Committee for Fair Zoning was born.

The committee never was a formal organization. There never were any elections. At meetings, parliamentary procedures were thrown aside if someone had to get something off his chest. Hyde served without pay as chairman just because "somebody had to." Mrs. Mary Jo Sullivan was secretary.

But work, committee members did. They went out and got 529 signatures on a petition calling for a referendum election on the city council action.

Last Dec. 17, Los Alamitos voters — in the first special election in city history—overwhelmingly went against their city council, 614-155.

But in the aftermath of that victory, "the committee saw that the three-man majority of city council would continue to go against the wishes of the people," Hyde said.

The committee was particularly incensed when one of its supporters, Donald Dodd, was replaced on the city planning commission by action of city council after the referendum.

Members of the Fair Zoning Committee went out and collected more than 447 signatures on a petition for recall of the three councilmen. The committee not only had to pay for legal publication of its recall movement, but also for the publicized answers of its three opponents.

Hyde recalled that "our adversaries were allowed 500 words each in the legal notice to answer our charges and they used almost every bit of it. Two of them wrote 497 words each and the third, 498."

In the meantime, the regular election time came around and Mayor Bell and Councilman Long, who supported the committee, were seeking office again.

Committee members went back to their word-of-mouth campaign and Bell and Long were re-elected by overwhelming majorities.

No sooner were they through with that election than committee members were back on their house-to-house campaign for recall of the three councilmen.

It all ended Tuesday when the councilmen were recalled and three committee members were voted into city council.

But it had not all ended for the Fair Zoning Committee.

"We're going to have a party to celebrate first," said Hyde, "then we are going to disband."

STARLIGHT SERENADE

Dates Set for 3 Pop Concerts

Dates for this year's Summer Pop Concerts—Starlight Serenade—to be held in Bixby Park, were announced Saturday.

Programs will be held on three Tuesday nights —June 30, July 28 and Sept. 1.

In addition the Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Lauris Jones, will play a fourth concert on Sept. 12 in the Casino at Avalon, Catalina Island. The concert is being underwritten by Phillip Wrigley.

• • • •

MRS. HERMAN H. Ridder, founder and chairman of the Long Beach Symphony Association's Summer Pop Concerts, announced that artists will be announced at a later date, but that the July 28 program will be "Long Beach Night" featuring Long Beach artists.

"The Navy League Cadet Corps will again help seat the audience which again this year will include groups of blind people whose transportation expenses are provided by the Downtown Lions Club. Escorts for the blind will be provided by the Women's Division of the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce," she said.

• • • •

FEATURE of this year's program will be that the orchestra will be playing out of a new acoustical shell, purchased by the City. The fiber glass shell has been ordered and will be delivered prior to the first concert.

Serving with Mrs. Ridder on the Starlight Serenades Committee are Wally Arntzen, William Boyd, Samuel C. Cameron, Marvin Cloyd, James Hurley, Lauris Jones, Mrs. Alex Kadvany, Dr. John Lepick, Laura Killingsworth, Mr. and Mrs. John MacDonald, Wynn Nott, Walter Polak, Mott Peek Jr., Barney Ridder, David Tallichet and Evalyn Whatley.

Joan Delays Final Hop

HONOLULU (UPI) — Joan Merriam Smith delayed until today her departure on the final leg of her solo world-circling flight.

Headwinds up to 20 knots were reported between here and Oakland, Calif., where she started her venture in mid-March.

The 2,400-mile overwater hop would take an estimated 15 hours in normal conditions.

Mechanics repaired her plane at Honolulu International Airport after her arrival from Midway Island.

The automatic pilot on her twin-engine Piper Apache had given her trouble.

Soviets Claim Bonn Making Spy Planes

MOSCOW (UPI) — The official government newspaper Izvestia Saturday night accused West Germany of secretly producing military rockets and planes similar to the American U2 reconnaissance plane.

The newspaper challenged Bonn to refute the charges by agreeing to a Kremlin proposal for international inspection of the West German arms industry.

The government organ repeated allegations made in an official Tass news agency statement March 7 which said Germany was seeking to arm itself with nuclear weapons and planning aggressive action.

Area Dairy Employes to Host Labor Association Convention

The Artesia-Dairy Valley area will become the national convention center this week for the 20,000-member Christian Labor Association, Ben Meninga, secretary-treasurer of Dairy Employes Local No. 17, an affiliate member of the national organization, announced Saturday.

The 70 official delegates from across the nation will start arriving Monday. Chartered bus tours of Southland dairies and other industries, plus a harbor cruise, have been scheduled Tuesday and Wednesday.

Wednesday, the 16-member national board of directors will meet in executive session at Dairy Employes Local No. 17 office, 11644 Artesia Blvd. Workshops for the various committee delegates will be held through Friday at the Artesia Community Center Building.

Dr. Peter Eldersveld, Chicago radio minister, will be principal speaker at dinner meetings at Disneyland Hotel, 8 p.m. Tuesday and Wednesday.

Presiding at major sessions will be Harry Vander Laan, national president, of Grandville, Mich. He will be assisted by Joseph Gritter, national secretary, from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Host will be Dairy Employes Local No. 17 which has about 875 members engaged in work in Southland dairies. Bernie Vanderweide of 6008 Eastbrook Ave., Lakewood, is local president.

The convention will close Friday night with a dinner at Knott's Berry Farm for local officers and the 70 visiting delegates.

Beauty Shows Are Nice, but Such a Bore

ON THE BEACH... Better Than Contests

By WILLIAM JONES

Bathing beauty contests are out of the swim of things as far as the public is concerned.

Experts on such well-stacked matters here say public interest in the leggy exhibitions has plunged as low as the backless swimsuit. Down to the critical point.

The guys, they say, can now plunk down a buck or two and go to a drive-in movie and see things dad never saw when the swim suit set paraded down the ramp to win the Miss Something-or-Other title.

• • • •

WILLIAM C. Boyd—who as a former public relations man for the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce produced contests and was a judge of at least 25—even blames the influence of barmaids in certain beer parlors.

"For the price of a beer, you can see more sex there than at a beauty contest," said Boyd with an appreciative nod.

He traces the beer parlor trend to the campaign of a national man's magazine, Playboy, in bringing out the fuller charms of waitresses.

• • • •

BOYD, who now promotes beautiful homes instead of beautiful girls as advertising director of the Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., is more clinical.

"Interest in beauty contests has declined because you can find beauty and sex (1) in magazines, billboards, newspaper ads, (2) on the streets because women have learned facial makeup and clothes fashion better and, (3) in those beer bars."

Another reason given is the new savvy of the contestants themselves.

• • • •

TO BECOME a successful beauty contest winner requires years of training in poise, personality, make-up, clothing, figure development, speech, talent and charm.

And no one denies that certain natural endowments are the first requirements.

Diane Olson (who had those first requirements: 38-24-36) admitted she had dreamed and planned to win the Miss Welcome to Long Beach contest from the time she was 14 years old.

• • • •

MUSIC, dancing and modeling removed her from a normal childhood. Experience came in numerous smaller contests where she was a hit as a "Miss."

The shapely beauty won more than 23 titles—everything from Miss Speedcraft to Miss Softball—before winning the Miss Welcome crown in 1962. She was 18.

But the reign of a queen can be lonely and its glamour deceptive.

• • • •

MOST beauty queens, aside from the major winners of such contests as Miss America and Miss International Beauty, find their sole rewards are the title, merchandise prizes and what the stage announcers refer to as "this gorgeous, gold trophy."

Curvy Donna Lee Kelley, another beauty contest winner here, found she needed to buy five new evening dresses—about $1,000 worth—after gaining one title.

And the girls are at the beck and call and mercy of every Tom, Dick and Zebrawski promoter of the contest.

• • • •

DIANE Olson—constantly smiling because fairy princesses are supposed to do that—found herself called out to more than 60 promotional events during one reign.

DONNA KELLEY
Titles

Last December, Diane dropped the search for the Miss and added a Mrs. title. She eloped with Orange County contractor, John L. Bruce.

Donna Lee Kelley made more than 150 public appearances during one year and found that most paid nothing.

• • • •

"IF A STORE hired a model for a groundbreaking, they'd have to pay $15 or $20," she said. "But they get Miss So-or-So free."

Diane's mother, Mrs. LaVon Olson, added that a titleholder must have "very understanding parents."

Mom is forced to take a strong hand in schedule-juggling, fitting family activities into the titleholder's busy life.

• • • •

TO HANDLE mail and phone calls, Donna's mother, Mrs. Joseph Kelley, had to work for her daughter as a part-time secretary.

Another drawback has been religion. Many girls have not entered or later have withdrawn from bathing beauty contests when their church has frowned. The Vatican newspaper, L'Osservatore Romano, once labaled such contests as "zoological market exhibits."

In 1959, when 18-year-old Mary Jean Belitz resigned as Miss Omaha because her church objected, her mother could only exclaim:

"I'm just sick. I've trained her so long."

• • • •

BUT DESPITE the diminishing returns, beauty experts insist that some contests or at least some form of them — will remain.

Boyd said waning interest does not affect the International Beauty Congress pageant here because:

"Sponsors were shrewd enough to promote it as an event for international understanding. Beauty is secondary."

• • • •

RECENTLY, the IBC has stressed professional showmanship, with the limelight on lavish production.

Last year, artist Alberto Varga called the pageant "a new departure in beauty contests . . . one that will set the standard for contests of the future."

Said director Wayne Dallard:

"Before long every beauty contest is going to have to adopt our format or go out of business."

East-West Center Financing Advised

WASHINGTON (UPI)—An annual federal appropriation of $10.5 million was proposed Saturday for the East-West Center in Hawaii, along with recommendations for a deputy chancellor with central coordinating authority and an 11-member national review board of public leaders.

President Johnson released the 43-page report by Roy E. Larson while visiting in New York. The State Department made it public here.

Larson, chairman of the executive committee of Time, Inc., and vice chairman of the U.S. Advisory Commission on International Educational and Cultural Affairs, made the survey at State Department request. He was assisted by James M. Davis, director of the University of Michigan's International Center.

• • • •

THE STUDY was designed to determine whether federal aid should be given the three-year-old center, which is aimed at promoting understanding among peoples of the Pacific area by educating them in Honolulu.

Larson's report, adopted by the advisory commission, said:

"The commission is convinced that the general objectives of the center are sound . . .

"It is also evident that the East-West Center, having demonstrated its ability to do so much in such a short time, has potentials for even greater contributions in the years ahead . . ."

The report said a careful study of criticisms of the center indicated that "the mistakes that had been made were the inevitable early mistakes in developing a new and unique institution, and that these have been, or are in the process of being, corrected."

The report recommended:

—A national advisory board to provide formal representation of the national interest in Center operations, with the 11-member board including the governor of Hawaii, the assistant secretary of State for Educational and Cultural Affairs, a member nominated by the Hawaiian governor, the U.S. commissioner of education, two U.S. senators, two U.S. representatives and three private citizens chosen by the Secretary of State.

—The chancellor of the Center should appoint a deputy chancellor to act as central coordinator of operations, with the chancellor directly under the administrative responsibility of the president of the University of Hawaii.

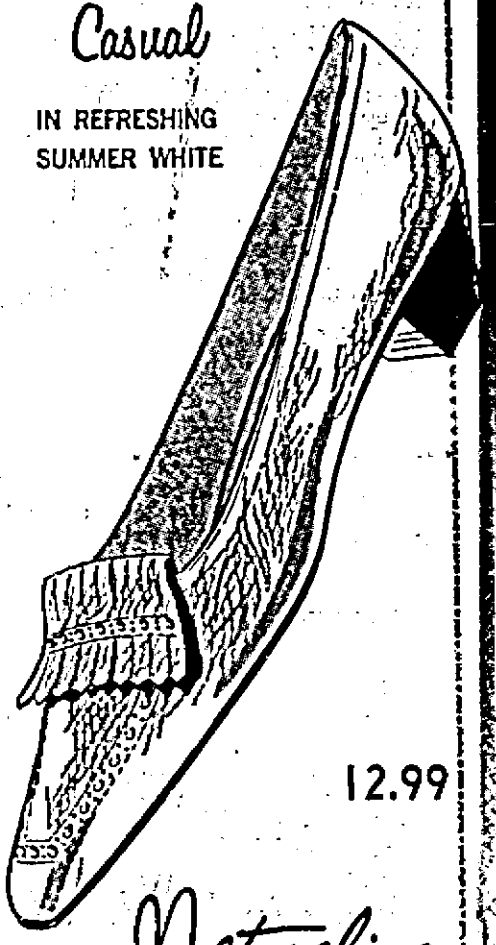

—A three-year budget program to project orderly growth, with a federal contribution climbing to $10.5 million by fiscal 1970 and that this total be the annual commitment of the U.S. government for "the foreseeable future."

Congress appropriated $5.1 million for the institution in fiscal 1964. The report rejected the Center's claim that $12 million was required for 1965, recommending instead a total of $6.3 million.

Maintain Lake Mead's Level, Asks Kuchel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel, R-Calif., has asked that water level behind Hoover Dam be maintained despite complaints against the drawing down of the reservoir behind Glen Canyon Dam farther upstream.

Kuchel made the request in a letter to Interior Secretary Stewart L. Udall.

• • • •

KUCHEL said any changes in filling criteria for Glen Canyon Dam should be made only after a year's notice to all those affected.

"Californians and all others relying on the river for their electric energy and water needs are entitled to be able to rely on your word," he said. "I hope you will not disappoint them — and me."

Udall is expected to announce a decision Monday on whether the gates of Glen Canyon Dam will be closed to permit filling of Lake Powell.

The drawing down of Lake Powell to maintain the water level in Lake Mead behind Hoover Dam has been severely criticized in the upper Colorado Basin states, especially by Republicans.

Kuchel, assistant Republican Senate leader, is the senior Republican on the Senate Interior Committee which deals with reclamation legislation.

• • • •

THE Californian expressed regret that winter runoffs in the Colorado Basin had not been sufficient to allow impounding of water in Lake Powell "as rapidly as had been hoped." He said, however, that changes in the water level of Lake Mead could cause "grave injury" to Southern California.

Kuchel also said proposals for replacing power supplies at Hoover Dam would not protect agencies using Lake Mead water.

LBJ Warns Congress on 'Must' Bills

publicized drive to keep down the White House electric bill.

"I am proud," Johnson declared, "to be a member of a party that may have turned off the lights in the White House—but has turned on the lights of hope all across this land."

The President said the three and a half years of the Kennedy-Johnson administrations "have been a time of promises that were kept, pledges that were fulfilled, projects that were begun.

"America is on the march," he said. "The last six months have been busy days on that march. We have passed 10 appropriate bills — three of the best education bills ever —the largest tax cut in peacetime history and a farm bill. Through the House we've passed a food-stamp program and the strongest civil-rights bill since the Civil War."

Johnson further credited his administration with having "turned back the spiral of spending—reduced the budget deficit—and helped settle a five-year-old rail strike which threatened to disrupt the economy of the country.

• • • •

"AND IN spare time I've visited 13 states in the last 13 days," Johnson added.

The President said he was "now completing the first peacetime administration in a hundred years without setback or recession.

"We are carrying forward the strongest economic expansion in peacetime American history," he asserted. "There were those in 1960 who said America was tired and worn out, but it couldn't do any better . . . but the record of the past three and a half years has shown the skeptics and the doubters, the weak or will and the faint of heart, that the victories of our future are only limited by the vision of our present."

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — President Johnson wasn't committing himself Saturday about running for election, but his wife indicated she expected him to be at the Democratic Party's Atlantic City convention.

She jokingly told a $100-a-plate dinner audience of party faithful that she realized this was the wrong time of the year to visit this summer resort city.

"But, I do hope you will invite me to come back this summer — Maybe I'll even bring my husband with me."

Mrs. Johnson returned to backstopping her traveling President-husband Saturday. She watched the time for him, hurried him out of a World's Fair impromptu press conference and even held his Texas hat while he spoke at one stop.

Boy Cyclist's Leg Fractured in Collision

A 14-year-old Bancroft Junior High School bicyclist suffered two breaks in his left leg and other injuries when he was struck by a car near his home Saturday.

Don W. Legitt, an eighth-grade student and son of Mr. and Mrs. Floyd C. Legitt, of 2342 McNab Ave., was in "good" condition in Community Hospital Saturday night following surgery. Doctors said the boy lost three front teeth, received seven stitches on his face and suffered multiple abrasions.

Police said the boy was riding on the wrong side of Vernon Street near Carfax Avenue, when he swerved into a car driven by Celia H. Huss, 471, of 2460 Gondar Ave.

BILLY NEVILLE, director who plays the professor in "School Days," views with alarm Mrs. Christie Akers' dropped bloomers.

HOSPITALITY NIGHT

1918 Veterans to Kick Up Heels in Whiz-Bang Show

By LEE BROWN

A lot of World War I veterans in Long Beach are out to prove the old saw that, while there may be snow on the roof there still is fire in the furnace.

Barracks 154 of the Veterans of World War I will throw what members hope will be the first annual Hospitality Night Tuesday, in the Veterans Memorial Building.

• • • •

THE 900 men and 205 women members of the Long Beach organization have invited the public as well as WWI vets to attend the 7:30 p.m. show which will combine musical comedy with accordion acts and dancing.

A cast of 25—15 women and 10 men—will perform a satire on the 1914 Broadway show, "School Days," for the finale. The youngest in the cast is 65 years young, the oldest is 80.

Although the show is not likely to put "My Fair Lady" or "Camelot" out of business, it should do well.

Take the "geography class," for instance:

Q. What is an island? A. An island is a lot of dirt that got dumped in the ocean and surrounded.

Q. What is an isthmus? A. It is a long, dirty neck.

Q. What is a mountain? A. A pimple on the face of Mother Earth.

What's more, the play, directed by Billy Neville, who played in "School Days" on Broadway in 1915, has a lot of songs, some of which are real snappers.

"What Do You Make Those Eyes at Me For?" "Lollypop," "As We Go Marching" and "I'm Forever Blowing Bubbles" are among them.

• • • •

THE SHOW-stopper of the evening, however, may be when Mrs. Christie Akers, who plays a student, looses her bloomers as she rises to leave the classroom.

And these old-timers, who have more bounce than a genuine, imported, India rubber eraser, will be joined by two vaudeville accordion acts and Marion Rankin and her dance group.

It may not replace the talkies, but the show ought to be better than Captain Billy's Whiz-Bang ever was.

Stanford Professor Forecasts Calculus in High School by 1975

By CHARLES SUTTON

A Stanford University professor predicted Saturday that 20 percent of all high school students will be taking courses in advanced mathematics by 1975.

Dr. Patrick Suppes, professor of philosophy and statistics, said automation is forcing such an acceleration of mathematics instruction that "it isn't unreasonable to believe that the top fifth of our high school populations will be studying calculus by the next decade."

• • • •

THE EDUCATOR made his observation in an interview in Lafayette Hotel, where earlier he addressed a western states conference of the National Council of Teachers of Mathematics.

Suppes said students are getting more math now than they used to, say, two decades ago, and will get increasingly more as the nation becomes more attuned to computer technology.

In the Palo Alto area, for example, fifth and sixth grade students are being introduced to symbolic logic for the first time, he said. The course, an experimental one at this time, not only makes math more comprehensible to them, he said, but also gives the youngsters a greater appreciation of the English language.

Dr. Clark Lay, who teaches mathematics to elementary and high school teachers at California State College, Fullerton, agreed that the computer age, with its need for symbols, is giving mathematics a new importance today.

Automation, said Lay, is reversing a trend that began with the Model T. "When Henry Ford started paying the unheard-of wage of $5 a day for assembly-line work, Ford said in effect that it didn't pay to be a skilled worker, because an unskilled one made more. As a result, education and intellectualism suffered. Now the opposite is true.

"Automation is displacing the unskilled worker and putting a premium on education again," Lay concluded.

• • • •

ALL THIS may be true, but it isn't helping Pat Nast teach geometry to her class at La Canada High School.

Miss Nast, one of more than 1,000 teachers at the conference, said her students still complain that they can't see why they should take geometry.

Mrs. Nhu Blames U.S. as Saigon Firing Squad Executes Relative

PARIS (AP)—Mrs. Ngo Dinh Nhu Saturday blamed the death of her executed brother-in-law Ngo Dihn Can on the United States which she called an "enemy camouflaged as allies and friends."

In an 850-word "message to the American people" handed through a crack in the doorway to telephone-summoned newsmen, Mrs. Nhu said Can, executed Saturday in Saigon, "would not allow himself to be second to his brothers in accepting in all serenity the same fate as the Christ to whom the Ngos had dedicated their lives in serving their country according to the high principles of morality He taught."

After a diatribe against the United States and praise for her late brother-in-law, Ngo Ninh Diem, the statement concluded:

"I wish that for the good of your own country you would understand that only repentance and atonement will save it from retribution without redemption."

• • • •

THE VIETNAMESE blindfolded Can with a black silk scarf, strapped him to a post in a Siagon prison football field and blasted him to death with a volley from a 10-man firing squad. The squad used U.S.-made M12 carbines.

American appeals for clemency for the diabetic, 53-year-old younger brother of the late President Diem—the last important member of that mandarin family in Viet Nam —had availed him nothing.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge declined comment.

Two hundred persons—officials and newsmen — witnessed execution of the death sentence imposed on Can April 22 by a nine-man revolutionary court that convicted him on charges of murder, extortion and misuse of power as a former overlord of central Viet Nam.

• • • •

CAN'S BODY crumpled and hung limply under the impact of the bullets. Blood spilled across his black coat and white silk pantaloons. The time was 6:22 p.m., an hour and 2 minutes behind the schedule set by Premier Gen. Nguyen Khanh's government.

About five hours earlier the chief of Can's secret police, Phan Quang Dong, was executed by a firing squad in a stadium at Hue, their old stamping ground 400 miles north of Saigon. Dong, 36, had been sentenced March 28 on charges similar to those against Can.

A silent crowd of 8,000 watched at Hue, scene of the first of the riotous Buddhist demonstrations preceding the No. 1 coup that crushed the regime of Dien, a Roman Catholic.

CAN TOO, like other members of the once powerful family, was a Roman Catholic. An official of Saigon's Chi Hoa Prison said Can received last rites in his third-floor cell, where he had a wooden crucifix. Two Roman Catholic priests accompanied him on his procession to death.

The victim of a recent heart attack as well as diabetes, Can was reported to have paled and stiffened in his cell when he was notified he had less than an hour to live. But a military spokesman said he responded, after a few moments to silence:

"I accept that."

Prison guards bore him on a stretcher to the field, then lifted him up and half-carried him across the muddy grass to the execution post. Two priests walked beside him and one, in a white pith helmet and white cloak over his black robes, talked with him as he was strapped to the post and blindfolded.

• • • •

CAN REQUESTED that the blindfold be removed but this was refused, said a spokesman for the ruling military junta, adding:

"Can told the priest, 'I forgive all my enemies.'

"Can asked the priest to pray for his forgiveness. He also asked the Vietnamese people to forget him and not talk about him anymore."

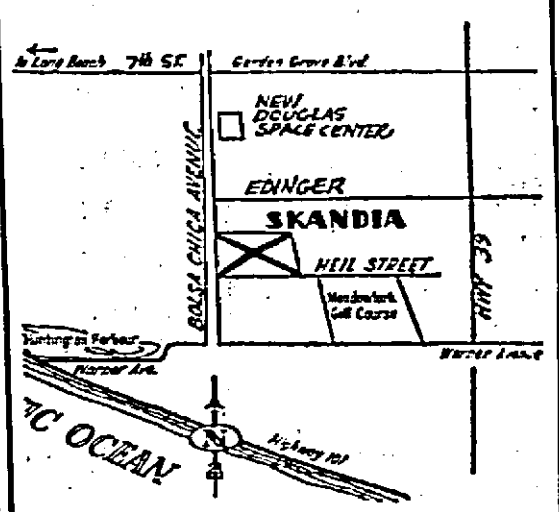

Resting on their arms 30 feet away was the firing squad, 10 Vietnamese military policemen in khaki uniforms and crash helmets of red, white and black.

Can stood immobile, with wind billowing his white pantaloons, as the commander barked out the orders that brought the squad into firing positions, with five men kneeling and five erect. The volley was ragged, but effective.

WORLD NEWS BRIEFS

At Least 4 Dead as C124 Crashes

HOBART, Okla. (UPI)—A four-engine C124 Globemaster carrying six crew members crashed and burned during a severe thunderstorm Saturday night in an isolated area near the Wichita Mountain Wildlife Refuge in southwest Oklahoma.

The highway patrol said four bodies had been recovered from the wreckage and there appeared to be no survivors.

Ambulances and fire trucks had difficulty in reaching the scene because of rough terrain and muddy roads. The plane, twisted and bent, was still burning an hour after the crash.

The C124 was bound from Clovis Air Force Base, N.M., to Dover, Del.

Restless Korea Gets New Premier

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—President Chung Hee Park reshuffled his cabinet Saturday in a move aimed at quieting unrest in both the ruling Democratic-Republican Party and the political opposition.

IL-KWON

As new anti-government demonstrations flared, Park named Foreign Minister Ching Il-kwon, a four-star army general, as premier to succeed Choi Doo-sun.

Choi declared the move would "pave the way for closer cooperation between the government and the opposition camp." He said the cabinet resigned in order "to provide a turning point for the greater development of the nation."

The new premier went into conference immediately with key political figures.

Fulbright Denies Report on Cyprus

THE HAGUE (UPI)—Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., Saturday denounced as "utterly untrue" Istanbul reports that he had proposed a solution for the Cyprus problem involving the withdrawal of all Turks from the strife-torn island.

The chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee took sharp issue with a news agency report quoting Turkish government sources that he had advanced such a solution to the Cyprus problem.

"I must say that I am mystified by the wire service report alleging that in Ankara I put formal proposals to the Turkish government for a solution of the Cyprus question," a statement issued by Fulbright said.

U.S. Sets Discussions With Romania

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Hoping to widen the cracks in the once-solid Soviet bloc, the United States agreed Saturday to hold economic and political discussions with Communist Romania.

Indicating the significance which U.S. strategists attach to the talks starting in Washington May 18, the State Department announced a top negotiator, Undersecretary W. Averell Harriman, will head the U.S. delegation.

Leading the Romanian team will be Gheorghe Gaston-Marin, vice chairman of Romania's council of ministers and chairman of its state planning committee.

Cutback in Soviet Forces Expected

LONDON (UPI)—Diplomatic sources Saturday said Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev is expected to announce a unilateral cutback in Soviet conventional armed forces this year because of heavy financial and economic pressures.

They said, however, Khrushchev probably will try to capitalize on the propaganda value of the move by presenting it as another Soviet tension-easing measure in the cold war thaw.

Khrushchev apparently plans to make the reductions chiefly to reduce the heavy arms bill in time for the new budget by year's end, the sources said.

Twister Damage May Hit $8 Million

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (UPI) — Gov. George Romney said Saturday that damage from Friday's killer tornado which devastated large areas of the Anchor Bay waterfront could run as high as $8 million.

Emerging from a meeting with state and federal officials at disaster headquarters, Romney said that because damage was mainly to homes and private property "there is no basis for declaring the area a national disaster area."

The count of known dead stood at 10 and state police said a second extensive search of the twister rubble which began at dawn Saturday revealed no further casualties.

Sing Sing Escapee Recaptured

WANTAGH, N.Y. (UPI)—Seymour S. Snyder, first convict to escape from Sing Sing Prison in more than 10 years, was captured Saturday night by state police in a shopping center in this Long Island community.

Snyder, a 48-year-old trusty serving two to five years at Sing Sing in Ossining, N.Y., for attempted grand larceny and attempted forgery, walked away from a work party outside the prison a week ago.

Rusk Raps Encouragement of Reds

BRUSSELS, Belgium (UPI)—Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday launched a diplomatic drive to prevent European "encouragement" of Cuba and Red China and to win support for keeping South Viet Nam out of the Communist orbit.

U.S. Embassy officials said these were the main themes in an intensive round of talks Rusk had with Belgian Foreign Secretary Paul-Henri Spaak and Common Market officials.

The talks were a prelude to the three-day meeting of NATO foreign ministers in The Hague, Netherlands, which opens on Monday.

The officials said Rusk was stressing that the Peking regime now tops the list of war dangers in the U.S. view. He was hoping to persuade America's European allies that Red China is likely to be "encouraged in its militant attitude" by such steps as the French recognition of Communist China last January.

On the issue of European trade with Cuba, Rusk took the line that if Britain had not broken the embargo line by agreeing to sell buses to Cuba, France might not have agreed to sell Cuba locomotives.

American officials said Belgium had turned down Cuban orders which later were picked up by Britain and France.

They said that in the U.S. view the Cuban trade issue was a security problem involving the freedom of Latin-American nations which are targets for Cuban interference and subversion.

From what the officials said, it was clear that at the NATO conference, Rusk hopes to win solidarity among the Allies on these key issues and to "stop the rot" in their attitude towards Cuba and China.

On the question of aid for Viet Nam, the officials pointed out that in his speech to a luncheon meeting of American businessmen in Brussels, the secretary of State inserted the following phrases in his prepared speech:

Since World War II, the American people have suffered 160,000 casualties all over the world in the struggle against communism and as of now we are suffering new casualties every week.

"We hope that the free nations will demonstrate their solidarity by offering South Viet Nam the varieties of help which are needed in many fields."

Air-Tragedy Gun Owner Identified

plane that the reception was garbled.

"Roger, how do you read me now?" the plane pilot replied after apparently making adjustments.

The tower said there was little improvement.

Then at 6:43 a.m. there sounded an anguished cry.

Saturday, newsmen listened to five playbacks of the recording at that point. All agreed a voice was heard saying:

"I've been shot! I've been shot! Oh, my God, help!"

Then the plane vanished off radar scanning screens.

Unable to raise the plane, the Oakland tower appealed to a nearby United Air Lines plane piloted by Capt. Henry L. Bingham.

Bingham looked out and couldn't spot the Fairchild.

"I believe there is something wrong," radioed the tower.

Back came the grim report from Bingham:

"There's a black cloud of smoke coming up through the undercast at 9 o'clock position. Right now it looks like an oil or gasoline fire."

Earlier reports had carried a slightly different version of the wounded pilot's outcry.

The FBI, pushing its search for clues, extended its operative secrecy to others who might be able to say what happened on the ill-fated flight of the two-engined turbo-prop F27 Fairchild.

Gonzalez worked in San Francisco as a warehouseman for a department store.

His estranged wife, Patricia, described him Saturday as a man with "funny habits . . . but nothing really strange."

"He was outgoing, a good mixer who enjoyed being with people," she said.

"But he didn't have any close friends . . .

"I never saw him with a gun of any kind. It's just too preposterous that he could be involved in killing anyone."

The San Francisco Examiner said a check of serial numbers led investigators to a Riverside, Calif., man who bought the gun there, then sold it to Gonzalez on the morning before he took the plane to Reno.

NEWSMAN TALKS WITH YANK P.O.W.S

Captives of Viet Cong Interviewed

ing on a reunion with his bride. He was wounded in the left army by mortar fragments during the attack, got first-aid treatment a few hours later and had the fragments removed at an emergency surgical station four days later.

Smith had been wounded in the right leg and Roraback in the shoulder in an engagement in Can Tho Province just three days after arriving in South Viet Nam.

Before a POW camp organization was set up, captured Americans had been released after several weeks, or months, during which they received what their captors term "explanations of Liberation Front policies and the nature of our just struggle."

By the new set up, I judged that in the future, POWS will be held, pending some sort of negotiations, either on a prisoner exchange issue, or to end the war.

• • • •

BUT THE authorities at the tiny camp were unable to enlighten me on this. Their orders, they said, were "to set up a camp, prepare to receive prisoners, prepare to look after them."

I was able to speak to each of the four in turn and later all of them together, during a brief visit to the "camp."

Their own uniforms have been taken away and replaced by black military-type, heavyweight cotton shirts and trousers, two sets for each man and surprisingly well-fitting. They had been allowed to keep their military boots, but when I saw them they were wearing slipper-type sandals.

• • • •

RORABACK, senior of the four with 15 years' service including the Korean War, said his captors had been "very considerate from the moment of capture."

"It was qiute a shock to me," he added.

"I had expected to be shot. When this did not happen immediately or during the first day, I thought they must be taking us a bit farther from Saigon before they shot us. But they saw I was rather anxious: they patted my back, stroked my arms and in general made signs that there was nothing to worry about.

• • • •

"AS FOR the food, it is probably as good as they can provide under the circumstances. Of course, it is nothing compared to ours. But I consider the treatment very fair so far."

McClure said:

"They treat us real well—that's the main thing. No rough stuff at all."

Smith commented:

"Treatment has been fair considering guerrillas don't have proper facilities for taking care of POWS. But food is a problem. We can't get used to eating rice three times a day. We get some sardines, an occasional bit of meat, some jungle roots and condensed milk now and again. I suppose they do the best they can under the circumstances."

• • • •

CAMACHO said he had been "treated very well but it is very difficult for them to supply us with the food we are used to."

They got supplies of tobacco and paper for "homemades"; the tobacco supply was ample but "a bit rough," as Camacho expressed it.

The jungle roots referred to by Smith are manioc, the root from which tapioca is made and widely used in Viet Nam when rice gets short.

Meat in the parts where they are held depends on the skill of the hunters and is likely to be anything from monkey or wild cat to wild pig, dog or boa constrictor, all of which, except the latter, I ate during my visit to the guerrilla areas. Each military unit has a hunting and fishing team whose job it is to supplement the staple rice diet.

• • • •

RORABACK said boredom was one of the worst features of POW life. To overcome this, he had—in his imagination—"made six model planes for the kids (he has four), built a barbecue pit, put shelves in the kitchen and built three radios."

He requested me to relay a message to his wife:

"I'm alive. I'm in the jungle. Look after the kids."

PLANE'S LAST CONTACT

'Your Transmitter Is Garbled . . .' and Then Violent Death Struck

OAKLAND (UPI)—Following are excerpts from the transcript of a tape recording of the last radio contact between the ill-fated Pacific Air Lines plane that crashed, killing 44, and the Federal Aviation Agency control tower at Oakland:

Pacific Airlines Flight 773: Oakland Approach Control this is Pacific 773, 5,000.

Oakland Tower: Pacific 773 this is Oakland Approach Control, radar contact 20 miles northeast of Oakland. Maintain 5,000. Your transmitter is garbled . . .

Pacific: Roger, how do you read now?

Tower: It still has the same. Sounds like overmodulation.

Unknown party: (Unintelligible. It was during this portion of the recording that reporters who listened at a news conference Saturday agreed they heard the words "I'm shot, I'm shot, oh, my God, help")

Tower: Say again.

(No further response from Pacific plane. Tower next gave landing instructions to United Air Lines Flight 593 in the area).

Tower: Pacific 773 Oakland Approach Control.

Tower: Pacific 773 Oakland Approach Control. Radar contact lost. Turn right heading two-seven-zero maintain 5,000.

Tower: United 593 do you still have the Pacific aircraft in sight? Over.

United: No. Where should they be?

Tower: He should be at your two o'clock position four miles westbound.

United: No. That transmission might have been them.

Tower: I believe there is something wrong.

Unknown party: (Unintelligible).

United: There's a black cloud of smoke coming up through the undercast at nine o'clock, three-thirty-four o'clock right now. Looks like oil or gasoline fire.

Tower: Roger United 593. Thank you. Turn right heading two-four-zero for vector to San Francisco. Maintain 6,000.

United: Roger. I think that transmission was them going down.

Home-Pacts Battle On in Beach City

"You should not agitate . . . it is unwise . . . I don't like pressure."

Meeting chairman George Wood, president of the McFadden Home Owners Association, took issue with Allen and said it is a public right to seek equitable home contracts.

Later, Allen interrupted the meeting to charge that Wood was "out of order . . . and trying to get me in a public debate."

Wood said the homeowners—located in the Sunkist Plaza and Springdale tracts in northwestern Huntington Beach—are not allowed trust deeds on their property under the contracts.

• • • •

HE ALSO questioned increased monthly charges to the homeowners despite the allegation that the county tax assessor's office has not yet confirmed the 1964-65 tax rolls.

Similar contracts are under fire by residents in two other Gindling tracts in the Simi Valley and Saticoy area of Ventura County.

Wood said the Venturra County Protective League and Valley Vista Homeowners Association there are uniting with the Huntington Beach group to seek concerted action on the contracts.

Gindling's lawyer told the Huntington Beach meeting that buyers "should consider themselves lucky because the contracts allowed them to move into the homes with hardly nothing down and it's cheaper than rent."

• • • •

MONTHLY payments for the homes, which are near the new Douglas Missile Center, average more than $135 with nothing down. Allen said the interest rate is 6.9 percent.

Refinancing the home contracts, according to Wood, would cost the buyer about $1,100, including a prepayment penalty to the developer.

When Wood asked if the developer would forego the penalty, Allen said, "Maybe in three or four years, but not now. It will cost you $500 each."

• • • •

A COMMITTEE from the Home Owners Association will meet soon with the developer in an attempt to amend the contracts, Wood said.

If that doesn't work out, Wood said the association "will seek legal action or bring public pressure, perhaps through picketing of the tracts."

Earlier, Huntington Beach attorney Jerry Plunkett said such a home contract does not contain "one clause in favor of the buyer."

• • • •

"I'M NOT saying it's illegal," said Plunkett, "but you could say it's strongly slanted in favor of the seller."

RIFLE HOLDS OFF GAWKER

The Bride Wore, uh, Wore, uh-h...

DELRAY BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — Sissy Dawson and Charles Morrow, standing nude under a clump of pine trees, were united in marriage Saturday while the bride's mother angrily held off a low-flying airplane with a rifle.

Sixteen-year-old Sissy was dressed in a fingertip-length lace veil and high-heeled shoes, and the bridegroom wore nothing at all.

Seventy-five naked guests watched the two-and-a-half minute ceremony.

Three naked musicians played the wedding march on a guitar, a drum and an accordion. After the ceremonies, they ground out polkas for the guests.

The only clothes in sight within the nudist camp were on the lawyer who performed the ceremony and the little figures atop the wedding cake.

• • • •

THE BLACK-HAIRED bride walked down a 30-foot flagstone path to the grassy spot where the ceremony took place, the white veil flouncing down her slim back. Morrow, a 23-year-old sailor, and eight attendants joined her.

There were three bridesmaids, and Sissy's two younger sisters were flower girls. At the end of the ceremony, Morrow kissed Sissy gently. He shook hands with the guests and several of them planted the traditional kisses on Sissy's cheek.

"I'm ecstatically happy," she cried.

Birth-Control Help Urged Upon Council

directors after lengthy exploration of the subject by the public affairs committee, according to Bruce Montoe, committee chairman.

Among those heard by the committee were three ministers, several case workers and welfare specialists and representatives of groups both for and against birth control, Monroe said.

He emphasized that all the proposed activities are predicated on voluntary rather than compulsory measures.

Besides the Health Department proposal, the Junior Chamber endorsed Assembly Bill 2310, more commonly known as the Bielenson Humane Abortion Act.

The bill provides for the formation of a committee of experts to consider cases for therapeutic abortion when certified by two medical doctors, including a specialist in the fields of psychiatry, obstetrics or internal medicine.

On the national and international levels, the Jaycee letter noted that in certain areas of the world the population explosion "is so vicious as to rival the deadliest disease in its implications," adding:

"We believe that the control of population in those areas is one of the paramount solutions to the problem of poverty."

• • • •

IT SUGGESTED that the United States, when asked by the potential recipient nation, provide financial and educational support to this end.

Although conceding that no population-explosion problem exists in the United States now, the Junior Chamber asserted that many families of marginal income would benefit through planned parenthood. Its letter continued:

"It is our opinion that many children are being deprived of educational and social as well as basic personal needs because the families in which they are being reared are too large for the income derived by the earnings of their parents or through charity from state or local assistance.

"In such cases a definite birth control program should be undertaken. Local private charitable organizations should be urged to sponsor educational programs in the use of birth preventatives, and these birth controls should not only be of the artifical type but also of the rhythm type so that certain religious groups (Roman Catholic and Mormon, for instance) would not be offended.

Hotel Alarmed, Guest Arrested

Five police cars answered an emergency call shortly after 3 p.m. Saturday at the Buffum Hotel, Third Street and Locust Avenue, regarding a man "locked in a room with a gun."

Police subdued Doyle Alan Young, 50, who said he was from South Carolina, and arrested him under a section of the state penal code pertaining to investigation of psychotic behavior.

Nikita Visit Hints New Egypt Loan

Combined Wire Services

CAIRO — A major result of Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev's current visit to the United Arab Republic is expected to be a Russian pledge of a big loan.

An authoritative Soviet source said the loan is expected to be in the neighborhood of $220 million. Details will be worked out by an Egyptian ministerial mission which will go to Moscow later, he said.

The new credit, in the form of equipment and services, will supplement the massive Soviet assistance extended to Egypt in the last nine years —$544.5 million in economic aid, including two loans for the Aswan High Dam, plus arms shipments with a value never officially disclosed but believed to be worth several hundred million dollars.

* * * *

PRESIDENT Nasser Saturday gave Khrushchev a tumultous public welcome, a royal palace to live in and sparkling medals for him and his wife.

From the moment the Soviet leader's gleaming white liner Armenia docked at Alexandria Saturday morning, with screaming Soviet-built jets overhead and whistling tugs alongside, Nasser's regime laid out the red carpet plusher than for any previous visitor.

With equal friendliness, Khrushchev glowingly praised the Egyptian leader, beamed at his side during public appearances and Saturday afternoon paid a private family call at Nasser's residence.

Later, Nasser made an unprecedented gesture, bestowing the Order of Merit on Mrs. Khrushchev.

* * * *

KHRUSHCHEV will share the spotlight with Nasser in mid-May when the U.A.R. leader presses a button to start the diversion of Nile waters south of Aswan signaling completion of the first stage of the High Dam. The Soviet premier is sure to receive a warm tribute from Nasser.

In a well-timed action, Nasser has just removed a major source of friction with the Communist world by releasing all local Communists detained in his crackdown on Red activity in Egypt since he came to power in 1952. Seven to eight hundred Communist detainees, some of whom had been behind bars in remote desert internment camps since 1949, have been released in small groups during the last few months.

The freeing of local Communists, however, does not mean that Nasser intends to tolerate Communism as a doctrine or put an end to the seemingly paradoxical situation in which the U.A.R. leader accepts Soviet aid on one hand and opposes any Communist poaching on the other.

China-Russ Conflict Topic

Young Hoon Kang, retired Korean general, will discuss "The Chinese-Russian Conflict" in a lecture at the California State, Long Beach, Soroptimist House at 7:30 p.m. Friday.

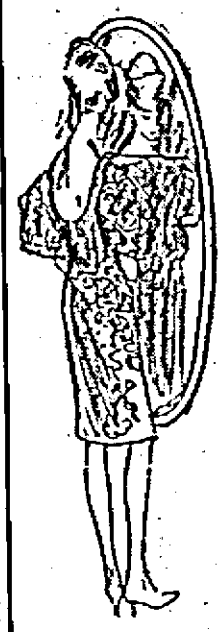

Kang currently is studying in the Research Institute on Communist Strategy and propaganda at USC. His address is sponsored by Phi chapter of Phi Delta Gamma, national scholastic organization for women graduate students.

NEW WAY TO BE SUDDENLY SLIM, COMFORTABLE, TOO

Los Angeles:—Are you a woman whose figure is on the good side but might look perfect? You'll be thrilled by the new easy way science has discovered for you to become Suddenly Slim and yet completely comfortable. If you're more than 15 pounds overweight, then this idea is not for you. If your weight problem falls within this range, then you can realize a new, smoother figure today, without diet or exercise.

Suddenly Slim is an all-new kind of 4-oz. girdle constructed of science fibers. One startling innovation is the sheer nylon front panel. This is permanently stiffened by a science process and cannot give or sag. It's surrounded by a slimming action border. A feather stitched panel down each side of this girdle will contour your hips if they are a problem.

The girdle itself is of a "wonder" Lycra® spandex blend. It's a new power net consisting of nylon, acetate and spandex. It is so comfortable, but has such slimming strength, it gives your figure everything that's possible with a foundation.

"Suddenly Slim," in both girdle and panty versions, is the peak achievement of the California designer genius, Olga.

ELECTRONIC EAVESDROPPING

New Perfection in Fine Art of 'Bugging,' 'Anti-Bugging'

By DON MEIKLE

DANBURY, Conn. (AP) — "I could plant a microphone in your living room that would pick up everything said anywhere on the first floor of your house."

The words are spoken in a Maryland drawl by an expert in the increasingly popular art of "bugging" — electronic eavesdropping.

The microphone, says Ralph V. Ward, vice president of Mosler Research Products, Inc., one of the leading manufacturers of such devices, could be hidden on the underside of a sofa, beneath a rug ("We have microphones nowadays that allow for a certain amount of muffling"), behind a drawer in a desk or end table ("there's nearly always a space behind drawers — most people don't know that"), in a lamp or a chandelier or behind a Grandma Moses on the wall.

Or there could be just a tiny pinhole in the wallboard.

"You see this hole?" Ward points to a just visible aperture in a piece of wood paneling like that which lines his office. "That's actually bigger than it has to be. But I made it that big for demonstration purposes."

He turns over the wood. Protruding from the rack is a narrow tube placed over the pinehole, and on the end of the tube is a tiny microphone.

• • • •

"THIS MICROPHONE," he says pausing impressively—"this microphone up to this hole could pick up everything I've said in this room clear as a bell."

Ward opens a plain leather carrying case and displays an arsenal of electronic eavesdropping devices.

"I would like to see the use of these things prohibited — except by police departments and other government agencies," he says. "Invasion of privacy is a problem these days."

Until last year, those were the firm's only customers except for foreign governments approved by the State Department. ("We don't want to put our own government in the position of trying to detect our own products," Ward says.)

• • • •

NOW THE company also sells to licensed investigators, but Ward says he would be willing to lose the trade if Congress and state legislatures would restrict the sales.

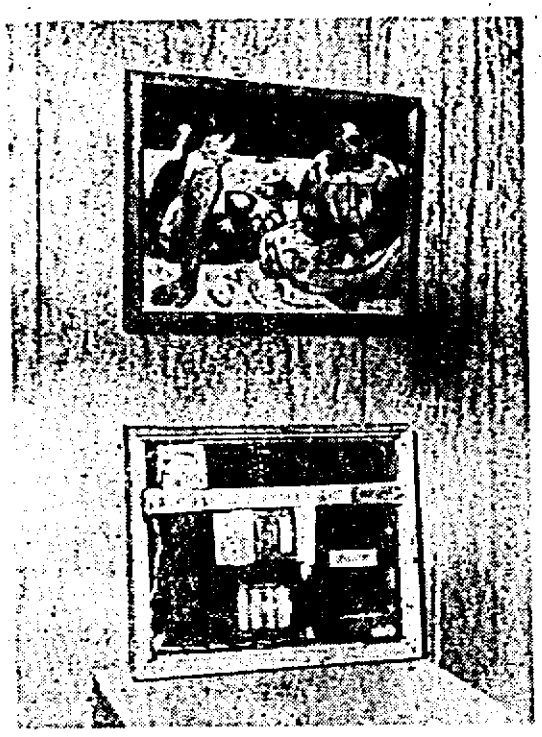

Ward opens another carrying case and shows an array of equipment capable of sniffing out the snooping devices.

"We're selling more and more of these," he says.

Anyone can buy the anti-eavesdropping devices.

Employes are busy working on such things as the model PIC-2 picture frame transmitter.

As the catalogue describes it, the picture frame transmitter "provides a swift and dependable method of concealing a microphone in a room without requiring lengthy preparation." It has no wires or switches. The space between a picture and the backing holds a sensitive microphone and a miniature battery-powered transmitter capable of sending a signal for three blocks.

BACK OF THE picture frame holds microphone (upper left corner), transmitter (lower right corner), batteries (center). It can pick up every word spoken in a room and send a signal three blocks.

Anyone with the right kind of radio and a head set can sit in a hotel room or parked car and hear everything that's said in the room decorated with the picture frame transmitter. If he has a tape recorder, he can make a permanent record.

• • • •

THE CATALOGUE also offers such items as:

The telephone tap in which the telephone itself is used as a microphone and picks up conversations in the room where it sits.

The microphone encased in a small rubber disc that can be slid under doors or through windows or pressed against the walls of telephone booths.

The spike microphone which is driven through to touch the wall of the room you're interested in. It uses the wall as a resonator, translating the vibrations into words.

• • • •

MICROPHONES without transmitters are the hardest to detect, since they send no telltale signals. But they do need wires, usually to some existing wiring like an electrical outlet, a telephone line or an intercom system.

The advantage of transmitters is that they require no wiring.

To find a transmitter, you need a broad band radio capable of picking up signals of unusual frequencies.

Locating a microphone involves, first, a search for telltale wires, and second, a metal detector.

Refinements are being made in surveillance equipment all the time. For instance, Ward says some international spies are using transmitters that can be turned on and off by a radio signal. If the user has reason to believe the bugged room is about to be searched, he can deactivate the transmitter.

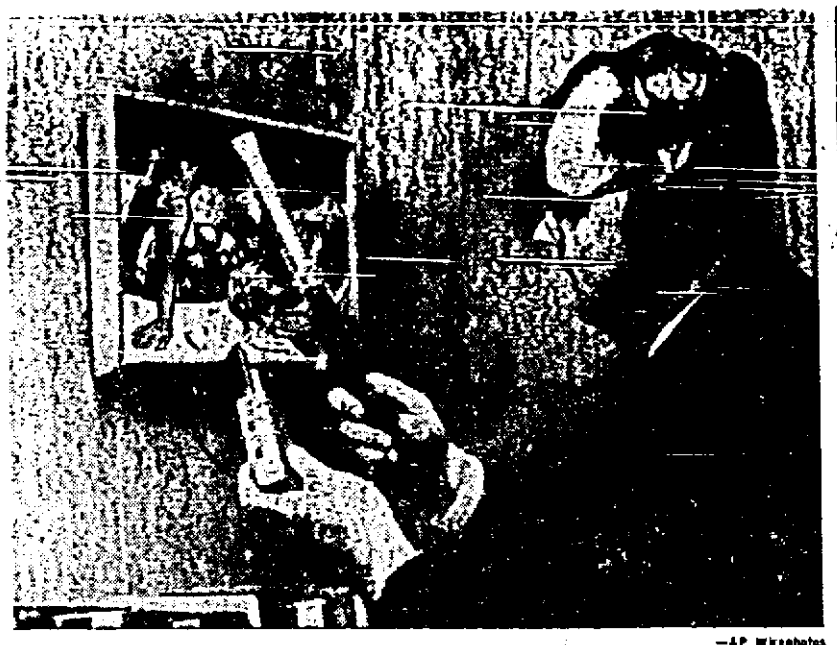

• • • •

WARD, WHO is aware of the difficulty of maintaining privacy, says police should be required to obtain a court order before they use eavesdropping devices.

He thinks evidence thus gathered should be admissible in court.

"Everyone is suspicious of the overworked, underpaid police who are trying to protect society from criminals," he says.

"The fuss over surveillance equipment is like the ruckus over the use of radar to catch speeders. People got used to that idea, and you don't hear anything anymore about its being unconstitutional. I think people will also eventually get used to the idea of police using the best, most modern methods of surveillance."

LOOKING ALL INNOCENCE, the picture of Gauguin's Tahitian girls conceals on the new hard-to-detect bugging devices. Radio detection probe tracks hidden transmitter behind picture.

Killer Retrial for Parole Mention Tuesday

SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (UPI)—Because members of a San Diego jury were told a killer eventually might go free if he wasn't sent to the gas chamber, the men on death row may never have to take the long walk there themselves.

On Jan. 7, 1964, the State Supreme Court ordered a penalty retrial for convicted double murderer Joseph Morse at whose trial the prosecutor warned: "If this defendant is sentenced to life imprisonment he may be eligible for parole at the expiration of seven calendar years."

In California the jury not only decides if the accused is guilty of murder but what his sentence will be and the prosecutor's warning was the lever that sprung Morse's cell door.

The State Supreme Court ruling, which is still resounding down the row, said: "California has set up the Adult Authority as an expert way of determining whether a prisoner can be rehabilitated. A jury can only determine whether a killer gets death or life imprisonment."

As a result, some condemned men, at least temporarily, have been taken farther from the Green Chamber in which 194 persons have died. Three months after the Morse decision the court had ordered retrials for seven men and one woman, reducing San Quentin's death row population to 47.

• • • •

MORSE, 19, of San Diego, beat his mother to death with a rock and then fatally bludgeoned his young sister with a baseball bat. His retrial comes up Tuesday.

Legal experts estimate that many of the men on Death Row can demand retrials of their penalty because the jury which convicted them was told a killer could be out after seven years.

In all the rulings following the decision the court has reaffirmed the guilt but insisted parole was none of the jury's business. On March 31, the court, in one afternoon, ordered a retrial for three persons, including Iva Kroeger, who, along with her husband, killed a man and woman to gain possession of their motel.

• • • •

WHEN informed of the decision Mrs. Kroeger said, "Well, that makes me feel better. I guess there is some justice after all."

Walter Hines, 24, of Los Angeles, who killed a Venice, Calif., liquor store owner in a robbery that netted him one pack of cigarettes, will also have another penalty trial. "Instead of sitting back and crying and losing hope, we've got to find things to look up to—and the courts are one of them," he said to a newsman.

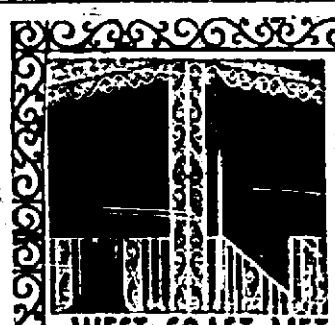

Hines added that he felt the court "didn't go far enough." But two of the justices who sat on the seven-man bench that ordered Hines' retrial thought the court went too far.

• • • •

JUSTICES Marshall McComb and B. Rey Schauer said the mentioning of parole to the panel did not constitute an error sufficient to cause a miscarriage of justice.

McComb said the Morse ruling overruled 22 prior decisions. "The people of the State of California, through the legislative branch of the government, have declined to eliminate the death penalty," he declared.

"Yet it would appear that the will of the people has been overruled by the judiciary," he added.

Beach Combing

with MALCOLM EPLEY

ANYBODY remember the New York Barber Shop and Beauty Parlor that once operated at 141 W. 4th St.? Maggie Weiss, who has a couple of boys with fast-growing hair, wishes it were still there offering services at the same prices.

In the removal of an old fireplace panel in her home, Mrs. Weiss found a yellowed card advertising the tonsorial spot. The card offered a special on haircuts at 20 cents and ladies' neck trim at 15 cents.

The bit of paper gave no date of publication. But Mrs. Weiss is quite sure it was long ago.

OUR story about Andrew Pearson, the elderly gentleman who was in jail for three days on shoplifting charges and has to get along on $40 a month, created a great sympathetic impact in the community.

These offices have received probably 50 calls and many letters from people commenting on the case. Some were sympathetic, some indignant, and several included offers to help the pensioner who got into trouble when he inadvertently dropped an extra pair of scissors in his coat while making a purchase.

Cases of this kind invariably bring up comparisons of various ways justice is meted out. This is summed up in a little jingle sent along by Lucille Southard:

Andrew Pearson goes to jail.

Finch and Thiele still out on bail.

IN CASE you've forgotten it has been so long it's hard to remember—she's referring to the two Long Beach ex-policemen, years ago convicted of extortion, who are still free on bail while their attorneys carry on a protracted appeal effort.

Whatever the merits of that effort—they lost in all state courts and are seeking aid of the U.S. courts—it can be safely said that nothing has so undermined respect for the law and confidence in the courts here as has the Finch-Thiele case.

THERE'S a Biblical quotation for every occasion and Jerry Hawkins, the insurance man, thinks he has found one that applies to an incident that got a lot of national interest last week.

Proberbs 26:17 (King James version) says:

"He that passes by and meddles with strife belonging not to him is like one who takes a dog by the ears."

THIS dept. doesn't ordinarily offer business plugs, but because of an important community interest, I'm saying something today in behalf of Western Air Lines.

My plug is for just one flight route—between Long Beach and San Francisco.

Whereas someone from this area who wants to take major passenger planes must go to L.A. International Airport, Western has been running a non-stop round-trip flight between here and San Francisco, using the Long Beach airport. The northbound flight leaves at 8:07 a.m., arrives in S.F. at 9:15. Southbound leaves S.F. at 7:40 p.m., arrives here at 8:50.

There is good reason to believe a lot of people who might use this service don't know about it or, simply through habit, keep going to L.A. for comparable service. To keep the good service, it's important that it be used.

Helpful along that line is the fact that Western has just cut the rate, effective June 12, from $17.80 to $14.10 one way.

IT'S MOTHER'S Day. And, contrary to some apparent opinions, that doesn't mean it's the day for her to prove what a good housekeeper and cook she is.

march . . . march . . . march . . . schools declare war on litter . . .

—Staff Photo by CHUCK SUNDQUIST.

Students Off to Good Clean Start

MRS. ELIZABETH HUDSON

"We're proud of the all-out support local schools are giving the city's civic beautification effort. Activities such as these, where children participate and feel personally involved, produce long-lasting attitudes that not only result in cleaner, more beautiful cities, but also produce responsible, more worthwhile citizens."

By MARY ELLIS CARLTON

They call themselves "Neatniks" at DeMille Junior High and they're producing a play titled "The Untrashables" . . .

At Birney Elementary School, they're lowering the broom for "The Charge of the Blight Brigade" to make their neighborhood "the most beautiful in the city" . . .

At Willard Elementary School, it's the "litter beatles" who are staging war on litter bugs . . .

And at the other 74 schools in the Long Beach Unified School District, young anti-litter warriors—100,000 strong—are using all manner of tactics to obliterate litter on streets and sidewalks, gutters and vacant lots, school grounds and school buildings.

• • • •

THEIR 100 PERCENT participation is in support of Paint-Up, Clean-Up, Fix-Up Week, which starts today and is sponsored by the civic beautification committee of the women's division, Long Beach Chamber of Commerce.

Much of the credit for the all-out support of local schools goes to Mrs. Elizabeth Hudson, president of the Board of Education, and Vera Johnston, assistant supervisor of physical education for the school system. Both are active members of the civic beautification committee.

They have spent untold hours distributing educational and promotional materials, suggesting projects, speaking before groups and recruiting support of the city's 3,000 teachers.

Parent groups are also cooperating.

• • • •

"THERE'S BEEN a spontaneous combustion of enthusiasm among school groups," said Mrs. Hudson, who noted that "local youngsters, more and more, are learning to take pride in their city."

Hundreds of students — at Field, Harte, King, Lincoln, Roosevelt, Bret Harte and many other elementary schools—are policing their own playgrounds to keep them clean and neat.

As part of "Operation: PUT" (Pick Up Trash) at DeMille Junior High, the word "Hungry" has been painted on trash cans.

A big "H" calls attention to trash cans at Hoover Junior High, where a year-round program includes an essay contest, a student government skit and a keep-it-clean competition among students during the school's two lunch periods. Winners will be entertained with a special assembly.

Poster contests are being conducted at Avalon, Barton, Bixby, Burcham, Burnett and many other elementary schools.

At Burroughs, where the slogan is "Make Your Yard Like a Park," sixth graders are planting an Indian Garden.

Primary age "tidy bugs" at Horace Mann have illustrated group stories; litter bags have been constructed at Los Cerritos and Riley Elementary Schools.

• • • •

HIGH SCHOOLS have launched some ambitious projects, too. At Jordan, flowers are being planted in a colorful "J", drab classrooms are in for a face-lifting, ivy is being planted on fences.

At Millikan, students have washed and scoured all outdoor benches and baseball bleachers are in for a paint job.

Students at Wilson are replanting the fish pond, painting trash cans and producing a litterbug skit. Islanders at Avalon High are staging an anti-litter dance.

"If we could stir up as much enthusiasm among adults, we'd have the cleanest city in the U.S.A.," said Mrs. George P. Taubman Jr., chairman of the city's beautification committee.

AMA President Here Tuesday

Edward R. Annis, M.D., president of the American Medical Association and one of the leading opponents of Medicare, proposed medical care of the aged through Social Security, will speak in Long Beach Tuesday and Wednesday.

DR. E. R. ANNIS
Talks Slated

He will speak at noon Tuesday in the Lafayette Hotel before a joint meeting of the Long Beach Medical Association, Chamber of Commerce and all city Kiwanis clubs.

At 2 p.m. he will attend a reception at California State College's Soroptimist House and then speak at the dedication ceremony for the college's new health service building.

He will be guest and speaker at the 16th annual Chef of the Week banquet at the Edgewater Inn, presented by the Independent, Press-Telegram.

WEDNESDAY, at 7:15 a.m., Dr. Annis will address a breakfast meeting at Memorial Hospital of Long Beach, 2801 Atlantic Ave. His audience for this speech will be interns and residents of Long Beach hospitals, student nurses from Long Beach City College and California State College, Long Beach, and vocational student nurses from Long Beach City College.

AFR Recruit Meeting at Elks May 19

The Air Force Reserve's 942nd Trooper Carrier Group of the 452nd Troop Carrier Wing, March Air Force Base, will hold a recruiting meeting at 8 p.m., May 19, in the Long Beach Elks Club, 4101 E. Willow St.

Former Armed Forces personnel, both men and women who have not retired from the service, were invited to the meeting. The group said officer and airmen positions in both flying and non-flying jobs are open.

Replacements are needed for retiring World War II veterans and non-prior servicemen completing their obligation. Such reservists, the group said, receive four days pay for each weekend of duty.

ELECTION HANDBOOK POPULAR

There has been brisk response to The Independent, Press-Telegram offer of an authoritative "Presidential Election Handbook". The supply is limited and readers who want the book should act soon.

The book, which covers mechanics of the election as well as issues and candidates for 1964, can be obtained by calling at the newspaper's front desk or by sending a request with 10 cents for mailing.

Instruction Offered in Camp-Out

L.P-T Los Angeles Bureau

Instruction in family camping will be offered in a series of three-week courses which open this week in Long Beach, Downey and Lynwood.

The free classes, presented by the county's Department of Parks and Recreation, will be as follows:

Long Beach — MacArthur Park, 1325 E. Anaheim St., beginning Monday at 7:30 p.m.

Downey — Furman Park, 10419 Rives Ave., starting Wednesday at 7:30 p.m.

Lynwood — Community Services Building, 11331 Ernestine Ave., beginning Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Tal Morash, representing the Camp Bureau of Southern California and the American Camping Association, and David G. Marqua, senior nature recreation specialist for county parks, will conduct the classes.

They will cover camping techniques, equipment, safety, nearby camping spots and ways of getting the most enjoyment out of the outdoors, Marqua said.

Watkins Heads L.B. Chapter of Negro Fund

John B. Watkins, Long Beach businessman, has been elected president of the newly-formed Long Beach chapter of the Negro General Welfare Fund.

Other officers, installed recently by the Rev. Philip A. Perry, on the NGWF board, are: B. J. Releford Crenshaw, vice presidents; Suzzetta Sam treasurer; Mrs. Flora Cason, secretary and Simon Cason, public relations.

WATKINS

The group will meet at 8 p.m. Fridays at 2017 Orange Ave.

INK SLINGERS' CLINIC OPENS THURSDAY

Successful Authors to Air Views at Sixth L.B. Writers Conference

By MARK CLUTTER

Successful authors will give their views and opinions to writers and student writers at the sixth annual Long Beach Writers Conference in the Lafayette Hotel Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

The event, sponsored by the general adult division of Long Beach City College, attracts writers from all parts of the Southland. Advance registrations indicate that more than 1,000 will attend.

The conference opens Thursday with a panel on the novel and short story. Speakers will be Richard E. Kim, English teacher at California State College at Long Beach, and author of "The Martyred," and Paul Bailey, author of "For Time and All Eternity." Alice C. Wright, previous conference director, will preside. Beth Norman of Enterprise Publications will be moderator.

• • • •

THE AFTERNOON will be devoted to poetry and lyrics. Speakers will be Elizabeth Bartlett of the University of California at Santa Barbara, and Pegasus Buchanan, author of "Kingsley Alley." William E. Keeley, dean of the liberal arts division of City College, will preside.

The Thursday evening session will be devoted to drama. Pat Brown, director of Magnolia Theater, will preside. W. David Sievers, president of the Council of the Living Theater, will serve as moderator. Speakers will be announced later.

Friday forenoon will be devoted to nonfiction. Malcolm Epley, executive editor of The Independent, Press-Telegram, will preside, and John Robert Clarke, author of "The Importance of Being Imperfect," will be moderator. Speakers will include James R. Phelan, freelance writer; Arnold T. Schwab, author of "James Gibbons Huneker: Critic of the Seven Arts," and Robert L. Webb, author of "Grammar for People Who Wouldn't Have to Worry If They Didn't Have Children."

• • • •

TEDD THOMEY, Independent, Press-Telegram staff writer and author of many novels, nonfiction books and magazine articles, and Maria Metlova, author of "Black Bread and Caviar," will speak at a writers' workshop in the afternoon.

Banquet speakers will be Ruth Waterbury, author of "Elizabeth," a book about Elizabeth Taylor; Beulah Roth, author of "Cosmopolitan Cat," and Philip Dunne, motion picture writer.

Saturday panels will include "Writing for Young People," "Publishers and Agents" and "Television and Motion Pictures."

Conference director is Eva T. Logan.

Fee for the entire three days is $1 plus the cost of meals.

TEACHING SINCE 18

Schoolmarm Wins Respect as 'No Nonsense' Teacher

By ROBERT WILCOX
L.P-T Education Editor

Mary Marutz set the tenor of her whole teaching career the very first day.

Although she was just 18 and her oldest student was 15, she hesitated only slightly when a pupil called her by her first name. "I put a stop to that right now," she remembered across 40 years.

Within days the young schoolmarm had won a reputation as a "no nonsense" teacher. When she said quiet she meant to have it.

• • • •

BY THE TIME she left her native Indiana for California three years later to add to her single year of college, she had her discipline down pat.

"It all happens in the first 10 minutes of the first day," she says. "I establish rapport. Then we start to learn."

Actually, she establishes more than that. "Mrs. Marutz is a wonderful teacher," says her Holmes School principal, Laurence Scott. "She's so dedicated that one student behind with an assignment can spoil her whole day." Often he stays after school to complete it with her looking over his shoulder.

North Long Beach was still called "Virginia City" when Mrs. Marutz started instructing sixth graders at the red-brick Addams School in 1927. Next month she is retiring after teaching 2,000 pupils.

MARY MARUTZ Retiring

• • • •

DURING THE war she had up to 50 students in her class. She helped start Barton School in 1943 and Birney School in 1951. Along the way, she won her bachelor's from San Diego State College. With few exceptions, she always by preference taught the sixth grade—the "jumping off place" for junior high school.

At each school her reputation for brooking "no nonsense" spread fast. Only recently a student was sympathizing with one of her pupils because he "had Mrs. Marutz." She was proud that her pupil replied: "Oh she's not bad at all when you get to know her."

Viet Nam Crisis

A SECOND VISIT to Viet Nam within the span of a few weeks by the American Secretary of Defense, Robert S. McNamara, suggests that the United States government is very deeply concerned about the progress—or the lack of progress—of the war against the Communist guerrillas.

Although the Defense Secretary and the Secretary of State made optimtistic forecasts about the war in Viet Nam at the beginning of the year, the South Viet Nam forces have suffered severe blows in subsequent actions and the initiative is still held by the Communists.

The 131st American has just lost his life in the Vietnamese war, and morale is reported in serious decline. A U.S. Air Force pilot recently wrote:

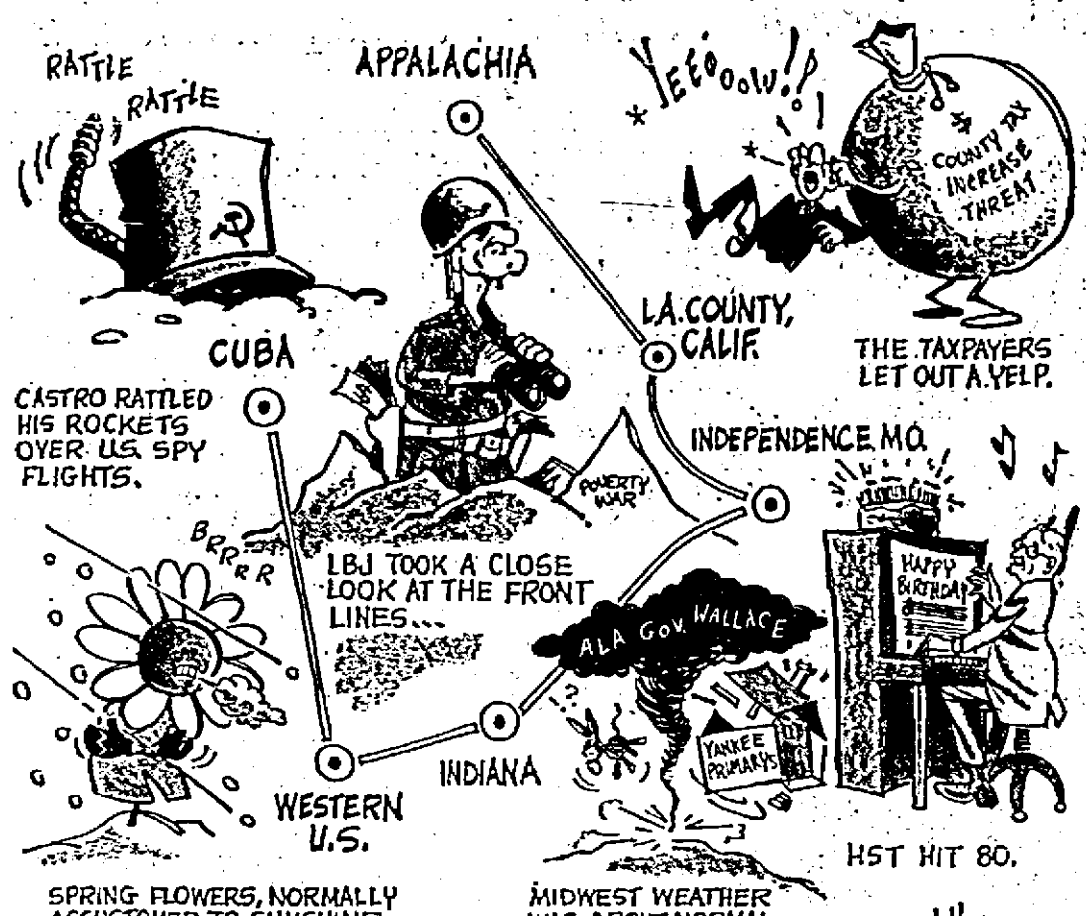

"We are getting beat. We are undermanned and undergunned. The U.S. may say they are in this, but they don't know we need help over here . . . If the U.S. would really put combat people in here we could win and win fast. It seems to be the old story of a half-hearted effort."

Against this background, Secretary McNamara returns for another look at the battleground where the fate of all Southeast Asia may be sealed.

The question he must answer, and soon, is whether to make the commitment of power required to win—or at least maintain a stalemate.

The problem is made none the easier by the fact that an American presidential election is to be held just six months from now, with foreign policy almost certainly a major issue.

'Pals' in Both Parties Show Deadly Love

BOB HOUSER
I, P-T Political Editor

HERE IN THE EYE, the hurricane around us registers as a windy huff and the occasional body zooming past becomes just another Unidentified Flying Object. Actually the UFOs are bloody politicians of both parties. And they're so gashed by their own parties that if anybody wins an election this year it will represent survival over the nastiest of accidents.

HOUSER

Senator Kuchel presided at the latest ribbon cutting, i.e. cutting to ribbons, of Barry Goldwater supporters of the extremist stripe. Kuchel is Nelson Rockefeller's state chief. Barry has called Kuchel a left-wing extremist himself. Bruce Reagan, of the unanimously pro-Goldwater United Republicans of California, calls Kuchel a Socialist. Rocky calls for debates. Barry says OK, but only against Democrats.

Former actor George Murphy and financier Leland Kaiser vie for the GOP nomination for U.S. Senate. Kaiser, asked his differences with Murphy, says, "I don't know where Murphy stands on the issues." He further scoffs at the idea of electing a "song and dance man" to the Senate. Murphy has steered pretty clear of fighting other Republicans but his platform appears to be demolition of the Democrats' platform without a specific substitute.

Senate hopefuls on the Democratic side weave an incredible web. Governor Brown, a Cranston backer, says his "good friend" Pierre Salinger is a political rookie in California. Pierre says the "good governor" doesn't own the party and his friends must be embarrassed at Pat's efforts to become a political dictator.

Cranston says the only boss in California is Jesse Unruh, who is "secretly supporting" Salinger. L.A. Mayor Sam Yorty supports pension advocate George McLain. McLain is a member of Brown's presidential delegation. Mark Morris, Demo Senate candidate and member of Yorty's presidential delegation, got sore over Yorty's McClain endorsement and says he'll seek control of the delegation.

THE YOUNG DEMOCRATS in weekend convention challenged Salinger to "publicly accept or repudiate" their old foe Unruh. They also hit Salinger's professed liberalism at the same time he picks a crusty old conservative Democrat like State Sen. Hugh Burns as his campaign co-chairman.

Young Republicans, locked in tight for Barry long ago, were invaded in L.A. last week by a group motoring from Long Beach who carried placards for Rockefeller, Nixon, Lodge, Scranton (even a couple for Barry). The "moderates" were repelled by the YRs. Some were cut, scratched and shoved. There was vile profanity, one moderate charged. "Cursing? What cursing?" said a YR, "Yes, I might have called them 'yellow bellies' but cursing? Not at all!"

The California Democratic Council, Big Daddy of volunteer political groups, which cordially dislikes Unruh, whom they insist on calling Big Daddy with sinister overtones of bossism, is in the thick of the melee. They endorsed Cranston. They dislike Salinger, Hugh Burns and conservatives.

WELL, NOT EXACTLY. Some good friends in CDC have taken separate paths over CDC courses and endorsements and are (horrors) carping at CDC president Tom Carvey.

It goes on and on like this. The most fitting theme song for this year's political campaign is, "You always hurt the one you love." And the best epitaph for all the losers-to-be: "He was good-friended to death!"

Don't Blame All

WHEN ONE MEMBER of an organization, such as a police force, makes a mistake, every other member suffers.

Horseplay by two police officers resulted in the death of a reporter in the press room of the Long Beach Public Safety Building.

Understandably shocked and angered by the tragic incident, many persons were inclined to accuse every man in a police uniform of being immature and irresponsible.

None, except Bill Hunter's immediate family, have been touched more closely by that sad episode than the people of this newspaper. We deplore and seek correction of every condition which may have contributed to the tragedy, and yet we recognize the injustice of putting the blame on all policemen for what was done by one or two. We urge the public to avoid such rash generalizations.

Meanwhile, the public tendency toward such generalizations puts a special responsibility on individual members of any group. More is at stake than the individual's own reputation. The prestige and good reputation of his fellows is involved in his every act. He is, in a very real sense, his brother's keeper.

Still an Issue

IT HASN'T BEEN on the surface of the news recently, but the question of the future of the nation's Naval shipyards continues to be very much an issue.

No definite decisions have been made to close down shipyards, but the possibility of several closings remains.

Long Beach leaders and groups interested in the local Navy shipyard should realize that the battle is by no means won.

They must continue to emphasize the value of the Naval shipyards to a strong and mobile national defense.

Primaries Reveal Protest Vote

WASHINGTON — In the news reports of Tuesday's primaries as reflected in some of the headlines and dispatches, the least attention apparently was given to the item that really carries the most political significance.

For it doesn't matter very much that Gov. Wallace of Alabama got 32 per cent of the Democratic presidential preference primary vote in Indiana instead of the 35 per cent that somebody else thought he was going to get. Nor is it of political importance that Gov. Wallace got 34 per cent of the Democratic primary vote in Wisconsin and only 32 per cent in Indiana.

LAWRENCE

What stands out as significant in all the political news of last Tuesday's various elections is that the state of Alabama repudiated the Democratic national ticket by an overwhelming majority and turned down electors pledged to vote for President Johnson in the electoral college.

This is reminiscent of what some of the southern states have done in other presidential years. But it is particularly relevant this time because in recent months it has been widely assumed that President Johnson would carry the South next November without any difficulty.

Gov. Wallace is not, of course, a real contender for the Democratic presidential nomination, and about all he can accomplish in primaries —already in Wisconsin and Indiana and on May 19 in Maryland — is to give those who are protesting the "civil rights" bill a chance to record themselves. The fact remains that more than 170,000 people went to the polls in Indiana — a nothern state — and voted for Gov. Wallace of Alabama. It is similarly worth noting that 266,000 voted for Gov. Wallace in the Wisconsin primary.

But what is the true significance even of such numbers? It doesn't mean that the Democratic party in either of those states is necessarily going to be defeated in the autumn electitons, but it does mean that a protest vote exists. Some newspaper reports indicate that the Republicans "crossed over" for the purpose of voting in the Democratic primary in Indiana and registered their opposition. This happened also in the Wisconsin primary recently.

But when voters begin to "cross over," they can do so in the final elections as well as in primaries. The "civil rights" issue may bring about a lot of switching of votes when Republicans vote the Democratic ticket and the Democrats vote the Republican ticket. Based upon their own convictions on this particular issue.

Protest votes in primary elections, moreover, often have very little to do with the individaul whose name is on the ballot. Thus, former Gov. Stassen of Minnesota was pitted against Sen. Goldwater in the Republican presidential primary in Indiana, and he got 29 per cent of the vote. This will be regarded by Stassen's friends and supporters as substantial, although he was the only other Republican on the ballot and, in a sense, mobilized all the anti-Goldwater sentiment.

Yet everybody knows that former Gov. Stassen is not likely to have much of a chance in the Republican nominating convention—any more than Gov. Wallace will be a contender for the Democratic nomination.

So all that the primaries thus far have done is to afford an opportunity for a protest vote to be emphasized. There is no doubt that Sen. Goldwater's large vote in many states and his lead at the present time for the presidential nomination are due almost entirely to disapproval of the Democratic administration on the part of Republican voters who feel very deeply on this subject. In fact, the Goldwater strength may, to a large extent, be attributed to the desire of many Republicans to express unequivocally their opposition to the Kennedy-Johnson administrations.

In the South, the reasons for voting for an unpledged set of electors are not related in any way to ambitions or efforts of any particular Democratic candidate to win the nomination as against Lyndon Johnson. It is taken for granted the President will be the nominee of the Democratic party, and the main purpose of the protest vote is to assemble enough unpledged electors so that, if by any chance the election is a close one, the unpledged electors may hold the balance of power.

• • • •

THE SOUTHERN states were able to make the 1948 election relatively close because, with Strom Thurmond as a candidate of the states rights party, 39 votes were cast for him, and this cut down Mr. Truman's majority in the electoral college. Had there been a small shift of votes in one or two of the populous states in the North, Mr. Truman might have been defeated. Yet if the southern states had voted as they customarily did in previous years, Mr. Truman would never have been in danger of losing the election in 1948.

So since the state of Alabama has voted for unpledged electors in a Democratic primary, there is a possibility that in the final election in November the same thing may happen in other states.

Slum Mansion Always Has Tenant

I, P-T Sacramento Bureau

SACRAMENTO—If you lived in a 76-year-old firetrap in a commercial area where the roar of trucks shattered your sleep nightly, you might expect to have a problem unloading it.

But, that isn't the plight of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown, present tenants at the 18-room Victorian governor's mansion.

M'Cauley

The two-story mansion, looking ing like something left over from a horror movie, has been slated for the scrap heap for 35 years. But the state never could agree on a new governor's residence plan.

A 1964-ruckus whether the mansion should be rebuilt in the Capitol Building area or in suburban Sacramento is likely once again to postpone a decision on where future California governors are to live.

But other landlords should have the same luck as California in keeping tenants in rundown dwellings.

Gov. Brown, now midway in his second term, shows no signs of wanting to move out. Though, he hopes the state builds a new mansion.

The prospect of living in slum-type mansion offers no deterrent to a growing list of would-be governors. Lt. Gov. Glenn M. Anderson has made it plain he would be willing to make the residential sacrifice if Gov. Brown should step aside to become Vice President or a federal Supreme Court justice.

And there is a long waiting list of tenants who want to live in the governor's mansion if Brown vacates it. In fact, maybe the quarters still are too plush.

Perhaps the state would have to quarter its governors in pup tents to cut down the roster of candidates.

On the Democratic side, the speculation is that the list of future willing tenants probably would include: State Finance Director Hale Champion, Assembly Speaker Jesse M. Unruh, Senate President Pro Tempore Hugh M. Burns, Atty. Gen. Stanley Mosk, Controller Alan Cranston, Los Angeles Mayor Sam Yorty, Democratic Floor Leader Jerome Waldie, Assemblyman James Mills of San Diego, Assemblyman Robert Crown of Oakland, Rep. James Roosevelt, etc.

There's no shortage either of possible Republican tenants. Among those mentioned as possibly willing someday to live in poverty in the governor's mansion are these GOP comers: State Superintendent of Public Instruction Max Rafferty, Joe Shell, ex-Sen. William Knowland, Sen. Thomas Kuchel, Rep. Craig Hosmer, Senate Minority Leader John McCarthy, Assembly GOP Caucus Leader Don Mulford, Assembly Floor Leader Charles Conrad, ex-Gov. Goodwin Knight, ex-Mayor George Christopher of San Francisco, etc.

At one time, the state talked of spending $575,000 for a new capitol-area mansion. That would have included facilities for state entertaining and an ornamental swimming pool.

Budget slashers hacked away at that scheme, saying the state dining room was an unnecessary fringe. And the latest-model mansion under consideration involves a stripped-down $650,000 mansion — just the bare essentials for the governor of the nation's largest state.

And though the betting is that the 1964 legislature may not solve the mansion problem, don't fret about it. The state will find a tenant for the present crumbling mansion. It always has.

EDITOR:

I wish to make the Independent, Press-Telegram aware of my cognizance of the high quality of your newspaper. Your editorials are always written in a manner that should produce calm and rational thoughts from the reader. You often take an unpopular viewpoint on a particular subject and attempt to disclose both sides of the situation covered.

In the recent tragic death of a member of your staff you simply reported the facts as they occurred and did not resort to emotional outrage. You could possibly have created a chaotic condition for the Long Beach Police Department and the citizens of Long Beach by letting your personal feelings go unchecked while reporting this tragedy.

Also recently during the Steven Anthony eviction your newspaper was one of the few in this area which reported the facts without biased comments. You attempted to explain the position of the Los Angeles Sheriff's Department—a position that was very unpopular at the time. In my opinion the Independent, Press-Telegram constantly adheres to the highest standards of the newspaper industry.

Police Virtues Not Hard to Find

EDITOR:

When a policeman does something wrong he gets lots of notoriety and condemnation but when one of these men does a good deed he seldom gets any boquets for doing same.

Let us not condemn the whole Police Department for what one man does. I understand the police force was actually sick and felt so bad they felt like going home because of that unfortunate incident that happened the other day in our city. Believe me, they all felt worse than the average person did.

We hear of brutality but we never hear of the many kind acts they do. How many of our officers have been shot up, cut up and even killed in the past year for our protection? Don't we owe them any debt of gratitude? No amount of salary could pay for the risks they take every day of their lives for us.

WALTER T. RIDDER

Walkie-Talkie Press Session Covers Ground—Little Else

L P-T Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON — To use a popular word of the day, "style," President Johnson is sure exhibiting a new and fascinating style towards the press. It is almost as if he intended to stuff press conferences down the throats of the reporters until they can't stand anymore. He had three or four of them the other week and heaven knows how many he will have this week.

RIDDER

It's not only that he has press conferences. He is having press conferences that no one ever thought of before. He is having them in his living quarters; he is having them over cups of coffee in a good old-fashioned "kaffeeklatsch"; he is having them sitting down and he is having them on the run. He had one the other day which some mathematician figured out covered some two-and-a-half miles. The day previous, he had had one that covered only two miles. These peripetetic news conferences leave the reporters limp and gasping for it is only the ones near the President who can hear or ask questions and the jockeying for position is therefore hot and heavy.

• • • •

THE CLIMAX—or on second thought maybe it isn't, there may be more to come—was reached the other afternoon when the President expansively invited not only the Washington press corps to a press conference in the White House rose garden, but included wives and children in the invitation. So, on a beautiful May afternoon, something like a family party took place on the White House lawn and if the affair was not entirely business at least a good time was had by all.

Just how relations between the President and the press will eventually evolve is difficult to forsee. It is well known that Johnson has particularly sensitive ears in regard to criticism and he has long displayed his dislike for the press in general. However, he is a canny politician and he knows full well that a favorable or a neutralized press can be of considerable help to him.

Yet it is obvious that he is going to meet the press on his terms—not its. The flamboyant manner in which he is holding his press conferences manages to catch the headlines. The substance of what he is saying is overshadowed by the way in which he says it—and this may be precisely what he has in mind.

• • • •

TRYING TO KEEP up with the President as he lopes around the White House lawn, pausing every now and then to shake hands through the iron fence with passers-by is not exactly the best way in which to ask a serious, well-thought out question nor to get a very reasoned or meaningful answer, but it looks as though that's the way press conferences will be conducted for the nonce—unless of course the President can think of some even more bizarre setting for his talks with reporters.

Washington Souvenir Racket Bilks School-Kid Tourists

Independent, Press-Telegram Washington Bureau

WASHINGTON—A nasty little racket involving drivers of tour buses into Washington and a few greedy businessmen here is victimizing school children, here to visit the seat of government—and buy souvenirs.

These drivers—no one seems to know just how many are involved—"steer" the kids to certain stores here in return for payoffs from the stores. To handle this extra business expense, the merchants naturally charge the kids more.

One reporter here watched a busload of high school students from North Carolina taken to the cleaners this week. The kids—some of them obviously from poor families—trooped into a downtown drug-souvenir store.

"Best place in town for souvenirs," the kindly bus driver said sweeping them in the place. The students had cut grass and washed cars all year to pay for the big bus trip, and eagerly grabbed up sleezy souvenirs hiked in price by as much as 100 percent.

• • • •

ABOUT HALF of the junk had no price tags on it, letting the enterprising storekeeper get just about the the traffic would bear.

When the kids had gone back to the bus, the driver slipped back into the store and—in full view—received a $20 bill from the store owner.

Managers of several restaurants told the reporter that bus drivers had attempted to pressure them for payola. He noted that some souvenir stores—whose owners refused to bribe drivers—were fairly empty.

Not just the charter bus drivers are involved in this sordid business. Some of the licensed guides seek deals as well.

"Not all the guides or out-of-town drivers pressure you for a payoff," one store owner said. "But plenty of them do. Everybody knows it. There's a lot of talk about getting tourists to come here. So why gouge 'em?

"A driver said he makes $50 to $75 extra a week bringing loads of kids in. Tax free, too. Just look around and see how some buses block traffic near stores that are are nowhere near any sightseeing points."

• • • •

THE GOING IS getting rougher for Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace, the man on muleback who's whipping up racial unrest in Democratic presidential primaries. Wallace got through the Wisconsin primary relatively unmarked, because no one took him seriously. In Indiana, Gov. Matthew Welsh gave him a thorough going-over. As the Maryland campaign begins, Gov. Wallace finds himself under some large-caliber oratorical artillery. Such forensic giants from the U.S. Senate as Birch Bayh (Ind.), Eugene J. McCarthy (Minn.), Hubert Humphrey (Minn.), Ted Kennedy (Mass.), and Abe Ribicoff (Conn.), will take to the hustings in nearby Maryland to campaign against Wallace.

• • • •

FOR SENATOR HUMPHREY, it has been a week to remember. On Monday night, he heard the president of the Minnesota Bankers Association, of all persons, describe him in a banquet introduction as "one of America's most powerful men." Hubert took those words to heart Wednesday night. The National Capital Democratic Club threw a reception in his honor (for meritorious duty on the civil rights bill), and the President of the United States showed up to join in the praise. Hubert didn't. The Senate stayed in session on the bill and he couldn't get away. Still in his Senate warpaint, Humphrey appeared Saturday as keynote speaker at the American Indian Capital Conference on poverty. That was a week that was.

There is ample reason for such a conference. As President Johnson pointed out a few months ago, Indian people suffer more from poverty than any other group in America. The President called it "a shameful fact." Family income of Indians on reservations is less than one-third the average family income in America.

White House Home Sweet Home to LBJ

WASHINGTON — President Johnson has been quite busy settling the Washington debate as to whether the White House is a museum or a home.

In the old days there was no question about it: The White House was a home. Presidents not only lived in the stately mansion but seemed to enjoy it. Its lower floor was not only open to the public at stated hours and intervals, but on New Year's Day the President stood in the East Room to receive anyone who wanted to come in off the street to shake hands and wish him a happy New Year.

PEARSON

This home-like atmosphere continued pretty much through the Truman Administration, though Franklin Roosevelt did spend quite a few weekends in Hyde Park and also established Shangri-La, renamed Camp David for Ike's grandson, in the Catoctin Mountains of Maryland.

Earlier, Herbert Hoover had set a precedent for weekending by establishing a fishing lodge on the Rapidan River in Virginia.

Nevertheless, during all this period the White House continued to be a home. The Hoover grandchildren enjoyed seeing Larry Ritchie, dressed as Santa Claus, come down the chimney of the East Room—though he actually jumped out from behind a screen. And Truman enjoyed his "back porch" on the southern exposure of the White House, which to him made it more home-like.

Came President Eisenhower and the White House ceased to be a home. Ike did not spend a single Christmas in the White House—until has last years in office. He enjoyed long weekends at Gettysburg, at the Augusta National Golf Club in the "cottage" built for him through W. Alton Jones of Cities Service; at the George Humphrey plantation in Georgia; at Palm Springs, and various other recreation spots.

President Kennedy followed somewhat the same pattern, though he favored Palm Beach and Hyannisport, in addition to his own weekend retreat in Virginia and the Presidential retreat at Camp David. Almost never was a weekend spent in the White House. And with Jackie Kennedy concentrating on the historical aspects of the presidential mansion, the traditional home of presidents became more and more a museum.

President Johnson has changed all this. He definitely enjoys living in the White House, likes to take visitors through the upstairs living quarters off limits to everyone except members of the family.

Obviously the new President also enjoys the White House grounds. They are beautiful grounds and cost the taxpayers a modest sum for upkeep. Not since the days of Calvin Coolidge, who loved to stroll over the south grounds of the White Hopse, has a President really relaxed in his own backyard. The Kennedy children and Jackie enjoyed the huge lawn, and Ike did a little putting on the lawn.

But LBJ takes almost every visitor out into the rose garden, tells how Mrs. Paul Mellon contributed the flowering crab apple trees and the spring flowers, goes for a stroll across the grass for exercise.

The truth is that Johnson just likes to be right in the center of Pennsylvania Avenue. It's the busiest avenue in town, but he enjoys being busy on a busy thoroughfare. No one could tempt him up to the lonely heights of Camp David. It's too far, and besides the ex-Senator couldn't stretch out his legs with present members of the Senate and talk about the state of the world at Camp David as he can in the White House.

No question about it, the White House is now a home.

FBI FILES suggest that Charles English, the mental patient who barged into Michigan Gov. George Romney's office with a loaded revolver and a pocket knife, may have been a potential Lee Oswald.

Like the accused slayer of President Kennedy, English has a history of supporting Cuba's Dictator Fidel Castro. At one time, English ran a Miami air taxi service which smuggled arms to Castro.

One reliable report claims English actually served for a while on a secret council of twelve, which advised Castro. English's mental record began when he committed himself to an asylum in an attempt to escape payment of a $3,500 debt.

ILLINOIS SEN. Everett Dirksen, the Senate Republican leader, never uses a short, simple word where a multi-syllable one will do.

He interrupted Sen. George Smathers, D-Fla., on the Senate floor the other day with this saccharin-sweet remark: "Knowing the mental agility and the cerebral dexterity of the distinguished senator from Florida . . ."

"A parliamentary inquiry!" cried Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., in mock horror.

"It has been stated," said Aiken, "that the able Senator from Florida is suffering from Cerebral Dexterity. I believe it was called. In view of the fact that this attack has come upon him, is there nothing in the rules which permits the Senate to extend consideration to him in view of that affliction?"

"In some circles," allowed Smathers, "it is considered an affliction."

THE WEEK IN REVIEW

Johnson Prods Congress

By SAM FOGG
United Press International

After 49 days of debate, the Senate took its first vote on the civil rights bill last week and then went back to talking.

The slow pace on the legislation drew from President Johnson a sharp warning that it need be he would summon Congress back into special session later this election year to pass other legislation he has deemed a must.

He specifically mentioned his anti-poverty program, the medicare bill and a pay raise for federal officials.

• • • •

"THE PEOPLE'S business must come first," Johnson told a news conference. "I think that the people of this country are entitled to have a vote on these important measures, this administration is entitled to have a vote on them, and I am going to ask the Congress to vote them up and down."

It was the sharpest prod the President has given since the Senate took up the House-passed civil rights bill two months ago.

The first vote was on a jury trial amendment by Sen. Thurston B. Morton, R-Ky., which was opposed by the Senate leaders of both parties. It was rejected late Wednesday by the narrow margin of 46 to 45.

At that point, both sides called a truce on further voting until probably this coming Wednesday, leaving the jury trial issue still undecided. Yet to be voted upon are a leadership-backed amendment and another by Sen. Herman Talmadge, D-Ga., which is favored by Southern foes of the bill.

Johnson himself carried an appeal for a solution to the civil rights question into the South's heartland last week when at the end of a second tour of the poverty-stricken Appalachia area he spoke to the state legislators of Georgia at an integrated breakfast.

• • • •

HE DREW cheers when he predicted that the South may settle its racial problems before the North does.

"Heed not those who come waving the tattered and discredited banners of the past—who seem to stir old hostilities and kindle old hatreds — who preach battle between neighbors and bitterness between states," Johnson said.

The Texas-born President also said at Gainesvillet, Ga., that "full participation in our society can no longer be denied to men because of their race, religion or region."

SEN. TALMADGE
Proposes Amendment

In his six-state, two-day tour of the Appalachia, Johnson chatted with sharecroppers and unemployed workers about their problems and hammered home this theme: "We came because we care."

There were civil rights repercussions in the north as well. In Indiana, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace ran in the Democratic presidential primary against an administration stalking horse, Indiana Gov. Matthew E. Welsh and collected approximately 30 percent of the votes.

WHETHER his showing was a major portent of white "backlash" resentment against Negro civil rights demonstrations was in dispute.

The segregationist Southern governor noted that he had polled 33.7 percent of the primary vote in Wisconsin and declared:

"We shook the eyeteeth of those people in Wisconsin and those noises you hear now are the teeth falling out in Indiana. We're going on to Maryland from here."

But Johnson told his news conference he didn't think the total polled by Wallace in the Hoosier state was "any strong endorsement of a man's record."

In his home state of Alabama, Wallace scored a clear-cut victory when the voters supported him by choosing an unpledged slate of presidential electors. This gives him the authority to withhold the state's votes from Johnson if the governor sees fit.

Other primary results:

Rep. Robert Taft, son of the late Ohio Republican leader, won the GOP nomination for the Senate seat his father once held. He will oppose incumbent Sen. Stephen M. Young, D-Ohio, in November.

• • • •

FORMER Oklahoma University football coach Bud Wilkinson swept to an easy victory as Oklahoma's Republican Senate nominee. His November opponent will be either incumbent Sen. J. Howard Edmonson or State Sen. Fred Harris, who were forced into a runoff.

Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., won Indiana's convention votes in the Tuesday primary, but encountered a strong showing there by former Minnesota Gov. Harold Stassen.

Other developments of the week:

—Johnson dispatched Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara on another trip to South Viet Nam to check up on the progress of the fighting against Red guerrillas in the vital Southeast Asian country.

—U.S. Army Captain Alfred Svenson returned from behind the Iron Curtain after having defected more than a year ago to East Germany. The prospect of a court martial for desertion and possibly betraying secrets faced the Scranton, Pa., soldier.

—Harry S. Truman celebrated his 80th birthday in jaunty fashion in Washington Friday. He quipped and joked in high good humor with old political friends and foes. Upon being referred to as an octogenarian, the former President laughingly commented: "That sounds like an insult to me."

FOREIGN PRESS VIEWS

U.S.-Cuban Relations Pondered in Europe

By United Press International

European newspapers focused on U.S. relations with Cuba in their editorial comments about American affairs during the past week.

The Socialist newspaper Arbeiter-Zeitung in Vienna suggested that Cuba might allow the United Nations to conduct inspections on its soil if the United States was willing to guarantee Premier Fidel Castro against another Bay of Pigs invasion.

The United States is conducting reconnaissance flights over Cuba to make sure long-range missiles are not installed there by the Soviet Union. Cuba has protested bitterly against the overflights.

"(U.N. inspections) would be the best and only solution to carry out the regular international controls which had been agreed upon," Arbeiter-Zeitung said.

In Copenhagen, the conservative newspaper Berlingske Tidende commented on the U.S. protest against French sales of locomotives to Cuba.

"The American government is in its full right to follow the political line it regards the right and the effective one, and it is only reasonable that it tries to persuade its allies to support it," the newspaper said.

"But it cannot be their duty as allies to take part in a blockade in which they do not believe."

In Vienna, the conservative newspaper Suedost Tagespost charged that the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) is "sick."

"The countries of the free world, and those of Western Europe in particular, have grown much stronger economically and want their increased contributions to Western defense prepardness to be requited with more voice in the Western defense concept," the newspaper said.

"Bluntly put, these countries are no longer willing to obey the Americans in NATO," it added.

The Guardian of London observed that "The (British) government's main arguments for keeping the independent (nuclear) deterrent is that it gives us influence — particularly on the United States — which we would not otherwise possess." It continued:

"On the contrary, . . . Britain can often exert great influence in Washington not by the strength of her nuclear right arm but by giving sensible advice."

In East Berlin, the Communist Party newspaper Neues Deutschland said the Johnson administration "still is following a reactionary policy in South Viet Nam."

"The American extremists even have the insane goal of an extension of the war to North Viet Nam," the Communist newspaper claimed.

The influential Paris newspaper Le Monde charged there were "divergent views among the democrats after President Kennedy's death regarding U.S. policy toward Latin America."

MARCH OF DIMES DINNER

Polio Fighters to Observe Salk Vaccine's 10th Year

Long Beach chapter of the March of Dimes will celebrate the 10th anniversary of the discovery of Salk polio vaccine at its annual dinner Wednesday at 6:30 p.m. in the Lafayette Hotel.

Tickets for the public event are available at the chapter's office, 3230 E. Broadway.

Actress Beatrice Fuerst, who was stricken with polio while entertaining in a Detroit children's hospital, will be featured speaker. She will represent the Salk Institute of Biological Research.

Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick will be master of ceremonies.

Postmaster David Selcer, Long Beach March of Dimes chairman, pointing out the fund drive's accomplishments, said 10 years ago there were 40,000 polio cases in the United States. In 1962 there were 910 and in 1963 the figure dropped to 431.

Harvey Freeman, 1964 campaign chairman, will present awards to outstanding March of Dimes campaign workers.

BEATRICE W. FUERST
Polio Drive Speaker

Members of the executive board for 1964-65 are Vern J. Brustkern, co-chairman; Raymond J. Moore, treasurer; Mrs. Don R. Crosby, secretary; Dr. Arthur E. De Nio, medical advisory committee chairman; Ed. Purnell, campaign chairman.

L.B. Police HQ Opens Displays

Observance of the second annual Police Week begins today in Long Beach and will continue through next Sunday.

During an around-the-clock open house at police headquarters, 400 W. Broadway, various professional exhibits will be available to the public, Police Chief William J. Mooney said Saturday.

* * * *

THE OBSERVANCE, first suggested by President Kennedy, is designed to call attention to the work of police departments throughout the nation in upholding law and order.

Displays in the Long Beach headquarters building include pictures of the department in action, various types of guns and ballistic materials, a large collection of badges from police agencies throughout the world and a display of narcotics and harmful drugs.

AGILE HIGH-SCHOOLERS

Fingers Blur, Typewriters Whirr in Contest

Jordan High School's John Roberts averaged 82 words a minute in the best individual showing of the fourth annual typing contest sponsored Saturday by the Administrative Management Society.

Twenty-four high school teams competed in the afternoon at Long Beach City College's business and technology division.

Jordan High took the team prize in the open contest. Lakewood High won the contest for first-year typists using manual typewriters and Millikan High won the first-year competition for electric machines.

Fastest typist in each of the three contests will receive a portable typewriter at the society's meeting May 26 in Lafayette Hotel. Roberts, Ann Werner of Lakewood and Mary Compton of Millikan won typewriters.

Other members of the winning teams receive $50 savings bonds or $50 gift certificates. They are Julie Ford, Ann Brown and Pat Hernandez of Jordan; Julia Greenwood, Tom Miller and Marlena Sly of Lakewood; Sue Townsend, Beverly Wilson and Judy May of Millikan.

In the open contest Jordan's team average was 66 words a minute. Honorson High with a 63-w.p.m. average.

This was the first year an electric typewriter team has entered and Lakewood's team averaged 58 words per minute, three words faster than Millikan's team average for the first-year manual typing championship. Stanford Junior High School took honorable mention for first-year typists.

The contest was conducted by Prof. Darrell Y. Burras of California State College at Long Beach. able mention went to Wil-

FASTEST OF THE hundred typists competing in Administrative Management Society contest Saturday was John Roberts, who zipped along at an average of 82 words a minute. Julie Ford is one of his teammates on the open-contest championship team from Jordan High School.

POLITICS

Major Talk Slated Here by Murphy

By BOB HOUSER
Political Editor

George Murphy, Republican candidate for U.S. Senate in California, will give a major political address at 8 p.m. May 18 in the Lafayette Hotel International Ball Room, under auspices of the Long Beach Surburban Republicans.

A no-host social is scheduled then for 7:15 p.m. Tickets may be obtained from Stan Thomson, 4150 Annapolis Rd., Lakewood, or Mrs. Willard M. Drowne, 1681 College Circle, Long Beach. Thomson will preside at the meeting.

Murphy was 1953 chairman of the Republican State Central Committee and was a GOP convention delegate in 1948, 1952 and 1956. The local club notes he has been a grass-roots worker and fund-raiser for the party in almost every county in California over the past 25 years.

FRONTIER DEMOS

Superior Judge Vincent S. Dalsimer, candidate for district attorney of Los Angeles County, will speak at the Tuesday luncheon meeting of the New Frontier Democratic Club at Apple Valley Steak House, 733 E. Broadway. The club convenes for business sessions at 10:30 a.m.

* * * *

DALSIMER COFFEE

A group of Long Beach businessmen will attend a public coffee hour for district attorney candidate Dalsimer from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Tuesday in Andy's Restaurant, 643 Pine Ave. Topic: organization of the candidate's local campaign.

* * * *

BAY DEMOCRATS

Alamitos Bay Democratic Club will see a film review of the recent Long Beach convention of the California Democratic Council and hear an analysis of voting trends in the Long Beach area's 32nd Congressional District at its meeting at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in Bayshore Library.

* * * *

PIERRE COFFEE

A "coffee" for Democratic U.S. Senate candidate Pierre Salinger will be held at 11 a.m. Tuesday in the residence of Mrs. Joan Martinez, 10961 Marion Dr., Garden Grove. Attorney William R. Butler of Los Angeles will speak on behalf of the candidate.

Those Texas Dogies Just Strayed

Seven Texas youngsters who showed up in Hawaiian Gardens three days ago — without escort, without food and without funds—were just runaways, not kidnap victims.

So, at least, Texas authorities told Lakewood sheriff's station juvenile officers Saturday night.

Two of the youngsters, sisters, were put aboard a Texas-bound bus with tickets supplied by their father.

The other five wait in McClaren Hall for transportation home, while juvenile authorities continue an investigation of their stories.

"All seven were bathed, fed, dressed in clean clothing, and generally checked over for medical needs" Dep. Robert Lee, Lakewood juvenile officer, said Saturday night.

Lee said he and Dep. Marie Walter were told by one of the older girls in the group that the trip to California was a spur-of-the-moment idea which came while the older girls were baby-sitting.

"That's why we couldn't leave the little kids home" the older girls told officers here.

The youngsters' story was that they were brought west by a 20-year-old man who abandoned them in Hawaiian Gardens. Their plight was learned when one of the girls asked to phone home, collect, from a Hawaiian Gardens residence, and the householder notified authorities.

In the group were Linda Aldridge, 16, and her sister, Janet, 6, who are en route home to Ft. Worth by bus; Geraldine Newberry, 18, Ray Wilburn Hicks, 17, Joy Posey, 14, Darla Butler, 8, and her sister, Sharon Butler, 3.

Lee said Fort Worth police listed the children as "missing" and "runaways" but that Texas had not classified the case as a kidnap.

"We do not even know, for sure, that the man named by the kids exists, or that the story was true," Lee said. "The story is being checked."

SAFETY TALKER

Nabs 4 Armed Men, Now His Pupils Listen

In Downey the kids know him as "Mr. Vance." He's the motor cop who gives school talks on bicycle safety.

In full daylight, officer Robert Vance, 35, who has a wife and two children, wheeled his motor in a fast U-turn behind a car, stopped it while pointing his revolver at four black-clad men and kept them waiting "hands up" until help came Friday.

* * * *

THE FOUR were jailed. In the car police found three loaded pistols — and $2,793 taken moments before from a nearby market at 12270 Paramount Blvd. Police found $4,600 in rooms used by the men.

Detectives said the arrests would clear 16 market holdups with loot totaling $170,000.

* * * *

IN DOWNEY jail, awaiting a court hearing Monday, are the four, identified as Raymond Grant Edington, 32, of 15345 Paramount Blvd., Paramount, John Anthony Hochenauer, 28, Milan (Mike) Rajkow, 35, and George Lee Howell, 24, all of Gardena.

The motor cop called Mr. Vance, a qualified pistol expert who plans some interesting talks on bicycle safety, captured the four bandit suspects without firing a shot.

AMERICA'S 375-MILLION-DOLLAR NEW WAY OF LIFE

THE BUSINESS WEEK

Market Makes Progress Before Selling Off at End

By C. J. PARNOW

NEW YORK (UPI)—The stock market made good progress last week and moved to two consecutive highs before selling off in the closing session.

Prices opened the week on a strong upsurge as traders followed through on a week ago Friday's late rally. An easier trend set in during the first hours Tuesday, but buyers took the upper hand late in the session and pushed prices still further.

• • • •

THE MARKET finally crossed into new high ground late Wednesday when the Dow-Jones Industrial average rose 1.55 to a record high of 828.18—ending the long downward slide which began after it reached its earlier peak on April 17. Enthusiasm carried into Thursday and another new peak was reached.

Most of the buyers' attention was concentrated in the blue chips and a few well known specialites. While most brokers consider this a good sign in itself, they were a little cautious about calling the new advance a continuation of the bull market, since the widespread advance which normally characterizes the bull market seemed lacking.

Many Wall Street diagnosticians attributed the change in direction to Federal Reserve Board Chairman William McChesney Martin's statement that demand for credit does not appear strong enough to warrant a boost in interest rates. Others felt it is merely the normal course of events.

• • • •

CORPORATE news continued to be favorable and about the only sour note heard on Wall Street last week was American Motors report of lower sales and earnings in the first quarter. However, even this was taken in stride.

Most economic indicators continue to present a good picture.

Dow-Jones Industrial averages climbed 11.47 to 828.57. Rails gained 2.65 to 199.35 and Utilities rose 1.35 to 140.98. Standard & Poor's 500 stock index rose 0.83 to 81.00.

Volume shrank to 26,762,310 shares from 27,746,760 shares the previous week and compared with 24,281,148 shares in the same week last year.

Texas Gulf Sulphur topped the most active roster with a gain of 1¼ to 54¼ on a turnover of 1,590,200 shares.

• • • •

CHRYSLER took second place with a gain of 4½ to new high of 51¼ on 1,268,300 shares. Brokers said the company's report of an 18 percent gain in April provided much of the initial boost and, when the stock hit a new high of 50 Thursday, chartists scrambled to get aboard. They also pointed out that there had been some short covering in the stock.

Curtis Publishing was third with a loss of 2½ to 15 on 841,400 shares. The stock enjoyed a big runup the previous week and traders were apparently reaping profits.

American Motors also was among the most active. It dropped 1⅛ to ⅝ on news of lower sales and earnings for the first quarter and six months.

General Motors advanced 2 points, but Ford shed 1. Mack Truck continued on the upswing in response to news of a merger bid from Chrysler. It jumped 3⅛.

• • • •

STEELS were a strong spot with Lukens up 4½, Jones & Laughlin 4, Youngstown Sheet 2⅛, Bethlehem 1½, Republic 1¾ and U.S. Steel 1.

Oils also were strong. Standard Oil of Indiana rose 2⅛ on higher earnings. Standard Oil (N.J.) improved 1¼ on news it plans to enter the auto rental field on an experimental basis.

Barber Oil, which holds about 300,000 shares of Texas Gulf, climbed 2¾. Standard Oil of Ohio jumped 3⅛. Continental Oil 2¾, Gulf Oil 3⅛, Pennzoil 4⅞, Pure Oil 5½ and Sinclair 2¾.

IBM jumped 5 while its "when issued" shares soared 7. Honeywell pushed ahead 8¼, Motorola 1½, Control Data 4¼, Foxboro 2⅜ and Litton and Beckman Instruments 1 each.

• • • •

RAILS showed a number of substantial gains including New York Central up 2, Chicago Great Western 2¾, Chesapeake & Ohio 2⅜, Louisville & Nashville 1, Nickel Plate 1⅛ and Chicago & Northwestern ¾. Canadian Pacific retreated 1⅛.

The ranks of the fast moving airline shares were thinned out somewhat as a number of issues failed to keep pace. However, Northwest Airlines soared 9¾, Western 6½, Pan American 3⅝ and Trans World 2. Eastern Airlines dropped 2.

Boeing Aircraft rose 2¼, McDonnell 2⅜ and Piper 2⅝. Alcoa rose 2½ in the metals where Cerro picked up 1⅜ and U.S. Smelting racked up a gain of 7¼.

Store shares benefited from forecasts of stronger sales in the second half. Sears Roebuck jumped 2½, Marshall Field 1⅜, Korvette 2½, Interstate Department Stores 1, May Department Stores 3⅛.

• • • •

GERBER Products rose 5⅛ in response to news of an increased dividend and a proposed 2 for 1 stock split. Armour rose 2, Swift 2⅜, General Foods 2⅛, and Morrell 2. Royal Crown Cola advanced 3½.

Drugs were firm with G. D. Searle up 3½, Bristol-Myers 2½, Abbott Labs 1, Johnson & Johnson 1 and Merck 1½.

Consolidated Cigar climbed 3⅜, General Cigar 2⅛, Liggett & Myers 1⅛ and Reynolds Tobacco 1.

Polaroid rose 2½ but Xerox dropped 1⅝ despite reports of record April sales. American Enka jumped 5⅛. American Export rose 2½. Cleanese picked up 2⅜. International Harvester rose 3¼. Hertz dropped 3⅜.

Samarkand Threat Over

MOSCOW (AP)—The Zeravshan River has begun to flow again past the shimmering blue mosques and fabled walls of Samarkand, the ancient capital of a Mongol empire.

The first trickle reached the city in Soviet Central Asia from the canal opened Wednesday in a landslide that blocked the river. The landslide occurred April 24 in mountains 100 miles upstream from the city.

TREAT YOURSELF to unexcelled cuisine, impeccable service, in a delightful atmosphere of sophisticated elegance. Cafe Lafayette not only serves the finest to the finest by the finest but does it with memorable style, the elegance of which inspires the diner.

Cafe Lafayette Debuts to L.B., So. Cal., Nation

Serve Gourmet Food in Continental Decor

Among the gourmets and those who enjoy gourmet food exquisitely served in sophisticated atmosphere, the Cafe Lafayette is fast becoming the most talked about restaurant in the industry. With quiet elegance, masterful service, and unexcelled cuisine, it has won public acceptance for that "extra something special."

Says John E. McKennon, "When our guests dine at the Cafe Lafayette it must be a memorable experience; both from service and food."

The concept was the brain child of McKennon who wanted a unique restaurant to replace the old hotel dining room.

How did it all come about?

The Cafe Lafayette, salon d'elegance, was designed and decorated by Glenn Petri and John Nicholson, (AID). McKennon asked for a smart and elegant dining room, sincerely sophisticated.

By using his guideline and screening traits of the outstanding dining rooms throughout the Continent, Petri and Nicholson met McKennon's request so well that Cafe Lafayette has become a conversation piece in the over-all feeling of quiet French Provincial elegance.

• • • •

TWO SIX-FOOT Eighteenth Century Flemish tapestries add a deft touch of character. Five 18-branch gold leaf candlelit chandeliers grace the room.

Comfortable banquettes at the perimeter, together with Louis XVI fruitwood tables and chairs upholstered in the room color scheme of gold, white, red, and blue, tie the entire space into the period.

The piece de resistance is the circular La Ronde board in the center from which hors d'oeuvres are served.

SOME OF the gourmet specials at the Cafe include Chateaubriand Des Rois. "A Double Tenderloin of Prime Beef covred with Marrow in a Blanket of Hickory Smoked Bacon, Alumette Potatoes, Jardiniere of Vegetables, Perigeux Sauce;" Beef Fondue Bourguignone, "Tender Strips of choice Tenderloin that you cook yourself in a Casserole at your table.

Long Branch Potatoes, Sauce Bearnaise, Bordelaise, Horseradish preceded by an exquisite Salad of Boston Lettuce and Sliced Tomato, Beefsteak Tartar, A Raw Ground Sirloin is expertly prepared at your table with oil-vinegar, anchovies, capers, minced onions, ketchup, worchestershire sauce, egg yolk, lemon, brandy, served with assorted breads."

• • • •

ENTREES include Rack of Lamb Persille Bouquetiere; Double Entrecote Jardiniere.

"Our chef," says McKennon, "will be pleased to prepare any specialty you desire."

A prime example of Cafe Lafayette cuisine is the use of hot sauerkraut around a bottle of champagne (Pheasant Alsace Lorraine.) While diners watch, the heat pops the cork and champagne cascades down on the roast pheasant.

TEAM EFFORT

McKennon Has Broad, Rich Hotel Experience

John McKennon, manager of the Lafayette, is the son of a dentist.

Born March 30, 1917 in Clarksville, Ark., he is a graduate of Fort Smith Junior College.

JOHN McKENNON

McKennon entered the hotel field in 1937 as a frontdesk cashier at the Majestic Hotel, Hot Springs, Ark.

Nine years later, after service in four more hotels, he was maitre d' in the Continental Hotel, Kansas City, Mo.

There, he worked with Victor Manske, now his resident manager at the Lafayette. In 1948, McKennon joined the Albert Pick chain in food training at the Heidelberg Hotel, Baton Rouge, La.

After other hotel jobs, he ventured into advertising in 1952, then in 1956, became manager of the Lafayette Hotel in San Diego. The same year he became manager of the Lafayette in Long Beach.

McKennon has a wife, Pat, sons John Jr., 14, and James 9. He is active in community life.

"Yes," he says, "we have faith in our community and also a responsibility. We must create a warm and friendly atmosphere and provide our guests with the ultimate in food and lodging."

VALET PARKING

George and Betsy Taubman's pet Cadillac is carefully parked by Richard Thompson, valet parking attendent. The Cafe Lafayette offers free valet parking. Just drive your car to the Broadway entrance of the Cafe Lafayette and the courteous parking attendant will do the rest.

Hotel Chef Alphonse Has Served World Notables

Alphonse J. G. Thomas is executive chef at the Lafayette Hotel. He directs the preparation of cuisine for its top restaurants and banquet rooms.

Alphonse has cooked for many international leaders, including former President Eisenhower and the King of Cambodia who dined on his cuisine while he was top chef at the French embassy in Ottawa, Canada.

A native of Belgium, he has cooked in top restaurants throughout the world and is a member of the Chaine des Rotisseurs, and international organization of chefs which originated in France in 1700.

Since his arrival at the Lafayette last year, Thomas has added many glamorous continental dishes to the menus of the hotel's posh new Cafe Lafayette.

Remodel Program Sparkles

When John McKennon took over management of the Lafayette about four years ago, he looked the hotel over carefully and decided that—if it were to maintain its standards, an extensive remodeling job was in order.

By the time his schedule is completed in Dec., 1965, all the public rooms in the hotel will have been refurbished.

At a cost of $450,000 all of the public rooms were included in the remodeling. All were renamed to suit the decor. The schedule also calls for all guest rooms to be completed by 1965.

One of the first rooms to be remodeled and renovated was the Red Velvet Room. It emerged as the Sans Souci Lounge.

WHEN ONE enters, through a new street entrance, attention is focused on a huge crystal chandelier imported from France suspended above an oval bar which features Tru-Measur drinks.

Primarily a show room, the Lounge was designed with a three tier seating area facing the stage. A compact dance floor is also provided. It has the over-all feeling of high style and good taste in the blending of striking color combinations of red, deep purple, antique white and pasel pink together with an added touch of old world charm.

The Cavalier Room became the French Room—with sophistication embodied in 16 crystal wall scounces and five crystal chandeliers.

WOVEN tapestry-like panels, the use of mirrors well placed throughout the room, together with mustard, gold and green worked into the color scheme also emphasize the French decor.

Cafe Lafayette's Serving Schedule

The Cafe Lafayette serves luncheon from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and dinner from 6 to 11 p.m. daily. It is closed Sundays.

Complete Evening at Hotel Is Special Treat

For a special anniversary, birthday, out of town guest, or the something special treat for yourself. Plan a complete evening's entertainment at the Lafayette Hotel.

Enjoy the sophisticated atmosphere and out of this world foods of the Cafe Lafayette and then see the show and dancing at the smart Sans Souci show lounge.

The maitre d' will arrange special reserved seating for you at the Sans Souci lounge where you will be entertained by some of America's finest entertainers.

In addition to the entertainment that appears in the room, the Sans Souci Adorables, clad in especially designed leotards, which have just the right abreviation, serve drinks promptly.

BELLFLOWER BLVD AT STEARNS Long Beach

FRESNO FALLS TWICE

49ERS' FINEST HOUR

L.B. State Wins 1st Baseball Title

By AL LARSON

Long Beach State experienced its finest baseball hour Saturday.

The 49ers completed their miracle comeback story by polishing off Fresno State, 5-4 and 11-1, to lock up their first CCAA championship. It was just one year ago that Long Beach finished dead last.

Needing only a split, coach Bob Wuesthoff's charges rallied for two runs in the eighth inning of the opener to clinch the title, then bombed five Fresno hurlers in the nightcap to wind up sweeping all three games in the winner-take-all series.

LBSC's dressing room was sheer bedlam after the first game. Wuesthoff told his boys "My hat's off to you. You're the champions. You've come back when you're down every weekend.

"Kissler (Adrian) made the play that won the game. All I can say is 'nice going gang'."

Moments later Wuesthoff explained what he called the turning point. "I put Kissler in as a pinch runner to give us some speed in the eighth inning. He took out Williams at second to break up a double play and force the error which gave us the game. The only play Kissler gets to make in the series and he comes through. All of the boys have done this right along all year though," Bob added.

"I'm sure glad we didn't have to go into the second game with everything riding on it. Anderson (Don), Wallace (Barry) and Lowell (Bruce) all had injuries and could hardly run.

"I debated all night whether to start Hoffman (Jack) or Perry (Ed). Hoffman pulled a muscle in a gym class Thursday and also had a badly bruised heel. I had Perry ready to go anytime so when Jack started favoring his leg and I saw the chance to pinch hit early, I went with Ed."

Perry came on in the fifth inning with the score 3-all. Fresno jumped ahead, 4-3, but Perry settled down and slammed the door shut from the sixth on.

LBSC fashioned its tying and winning runs in the eighth on two hits and three errors. With one out, John Gonsalves was safe on shortstop Jim Williams' error. Steve Ramirez beat out a sacrifice bunt.

'Dial Scores Big Upset; Goetta Last

By DON HARDIN

In one of the major upsets in quarter horse racing, a mare by the name of Anna Dial scored an impressive victory in Saturday's $25,000 Quarter Horse Championship at Los Alamitos Race Course.

The odds-on favorite and the world's leading money winner among the swifties, Goetta, finished last beaten by 2½ lengths.

Jockey Charlie Smith, aboard the favorite Hugh Huntley colorbearer, said after the race that, "My horse reared up as the gate opened and I could never straighten him out."

Most of Goetta's admirers saw the mishap but the fact is, the winner turned in the fastest time of the meeting for 440 yards — 21.9 — along with Goetta's earlier clocking and won by a head over Tidy's Pleasure, the previous winner over Goetta.

• • • •

ANNA DIAL, with Robert Adair aboard, returned $16.60, $6.80 and $5. Tidy's Pleasure paid $6.20 and $4 and Scooper Chick returned $4 for show.

Scooper Chick got out in front of Tidy's Pleasure was pressured from the start and the favored Goetta was left wanting. The two raced head and head most of the way until Anna Dial, making her third start at the meeting, came on with a rush in the final yards to win by a head.

This was Adair's first win of the meet since Monday.

Although Goetta lost face in this particular race, she still maintained her leadership in money won at $206,375.

A fine crowd of 12,193 turned out for the afternoon's nine-race program and wa-

Angels' Bats Come Alive, Chisox Fall

Belinsky, Chance Pitch Win, 7-4

By ROSS NEWHAN

The Angels' Kiddie Korps, currently interested only in raising its batting averages not its bank accounts, provided Bo Belinsky with a future bargaining point Saturday night and even invited the boy orator, Dean Chance, to share in the rewards.

Belinsky returned to the winner's circle for the first time since last Sept. 19 as 19-year-old Ed Kirkpatrick, 23-year-old Tom Satriano and 22-year-old Jim Fregosi powered a 7-4 victory over the Chicago White Sox.

• • • •

INSPIRED by a ladies night crowd of 9,893, Belinsky levelled his season record at 1-1 with help from Chance and Danny Osinski, who was credited with his first save.

Kirkpatrick was the fodder in an 11-hit Angels explosion which demolished the 2.3 runs-per-game Dodger Stadium average the Cherubs brought into the contest.

Spanky slammed a triple, double and single as he drove in three runs to raise his average 44 points to .264. Satriano, batting .400, drove home two runs with a single and sacrifice fly while Fregosi, swatting at a .393 pace, scored twice and drove home a run with a double and walk.

After stumbling through a grip of early wildness, Belinsky pitched effectively until the sixth when the White Sox threatened to erase a 5-1 Angel advantage.

• • • •

MANAGER Bill Rigney then called for Chance, who was planning his strategy for a scheduled starting assignment today and outlining his next financial address to be delivered to Fred Haney.

Dino stemmed the Sox' fire in the sixth only to ignite one of his own in the eighth. Osinski doused the blaze, however, and the Angels climbed into a tie for sixth—still only three and one-half games out of first despite their early-season batting anemia.

The Angels ran roughshod through four Chicago hurlers to hand Chicago only its third loss in its last 14 games.

STARTER John Buzhardt lasted but one inning as Albie Pearson and Billy Moran laced back-to-back singles and Fregosi followed with a double. An intentional walk to Buck

DODGERS WASTE PITCHING AGAIN

Sandy Learns Hard KO Facts

By GEORGE LEDERER
L. P-T Staff Writer

SAN FRANCISCO — Another better-than-average pitching performance went down the Dodger drain Saturday because the offense remained clogged.

Obviously, the Dodgers need more than a plumber to fix this peculiar type of sink.

The plunging world champions fell eight games behind the league-leading Giants, 10 on the losing side, as Bob Hendley overcame seven walks and went the distance for a 3-2 victory.

Sandy Koufax, not nearly as sharp as in his 10-inning, 2-1 conquest of the Cubs last Monday, was the loser. Koufax gave up the three runs in the fifth inning and was the victim of some questionable fielding besides his own.

The Dodger runs came on home runs by Tommy Davis and Frank Howard, who didn't have an opportunity to swing with men on bases. The Dodgers stranded nine, making a total of 28 during their current three-game losing streak.

The Dodgers filled the bases in the first two innings, but Hendley recovered both times and went on to strike out 12. John Roseboro was a four-time victim. Willie Davis, Jim Gilliam and Ken McMullen failed to hit a ball out of the infield.

Hendley (2-2) made 156 pitches, 100 in the first five innings. At least another 100 pitches were made in the Giants' bullpen, but Al Dark refused to panic. He did, however, contribute some weird strategy in the first inning.

With two out, Maury Wills on third and T. Davis on first base, Hendley's first two pitches to Howard were wide. Dark then ordered an intentional walk to Howard, which worked when McMullen grounded into a force play, at third.

Howard didn't renew his attack against Hendley until the eighth inning when he lined his ninth home run into the left field seats. It was Howard's seventh home run in his last 11 times up against the slim lefthander.

T. Davis hit home run No. 2, a line drive over the 410-foot mark in center and into the orchestra, to start the third inning.

The remainder of the five Dodger hits were singles by Maury Wills, who managed to keep the crowd from the exits until the final out. Wills' third hit came with two out in the ninth and his 10th steal followed. Gilliam grounded out to preserve the Giants' fourth successive win over the champions.

Koufax (2-3) didn't allow a hit and had retired 11 in a row until Jim Davenport opened the fifth inning with a ground single past Wills. Del Crandall followed with a line single to right, setting up a gift first run that also allowed Hendley to bat.

Davenport managed to score after Dick Tracewski gloved Jose Pagan's pop-up, just behind the grass in right-center. Having staggered under the wind-blown pop, Tracewski was in poor position to throw to the plate. Roseboro also dropped the ball, but Davenport had arrived in time.

W. Davis, running in, had a better chance to make the throw that would have left Koufax in front, 1-0.

With the score tied, Dark allowed Hendley to sacrifice, and Hendley himself was safe when Koufax muffed the bunt. Jesus Alou singled home the go-ahead run and Willie Mays furnished the eventual margin with a ground-rule double that bounced over the center field fence.

Mays' slugging average was reduced from 1.000 to .995 and his batting average from .486 to .481, which shows that the Dodgers did accomplish something.

Mays carries a 16-game hitting streak into this afternoon's finale against Don Drysdale (3-1). Jack Sanford (3-2) will be pitching for the Giants.

Saturday's crowd was a capacity 42,316 bringing the two-games total to 82,863. Another full house is expected today.

Tickets are so scarce that one person had the gall to call the Giants' office and requested two tickets purchased by a party that perished in Thursday's air crash. The request was denied.

Jesus Alou, youngest of the three NL outstanding outfielding brothers, drew his first major league walk in the first inning when Koufax was wild and high. Jesus had been to bat 64 times.

Wills ran his hitting streak to nine games with a bunt single in the first inning.

Orlando Cepeda made his first start for the Giants since a leg injury forced him out April 25.

The Giants entered Saturday's game with a .247 team average, but 32 of the points belonged to Mays. Without Willie's effort, the Giants' team average is .215. The Dodgers are batting .232.

T. Davis's home run was the Dodgers' first over-the-fence hit of the week. W. Davis hit an inside-the-park homer against Juan Marichal last Sunday.

Mays, playing Wills shallow as usual, had to backpedal in a hurry to make a one-hand stab of Maury's wind-aided liner in the seventh. Mays fell after making the catch, but held onto the ball.

Chisox Fighting Friction

Pearls from the Sunday pulpit:

. . . Despite their fast break from the American League gate, the Chicago White Sox are fighting friction. The boys in the powder blue travelling uniforms are getting along nicely with Manager Al Lopez, but they're still sore at the front office over contract problems. Aware of the ticklish situation, Lopez was forced to call a meeting recently and advise the athletes not to discuss their dissatisfaction in public. However, one disgruntled player whispered at Chavez Ravine that a teammate was cut $6,000 because he didn't produce last year. The irony: The man was out three months with a broken collar bone!

AL LOPEZ
He's Now a Referee

. . . Guess who's the leading hitter on the Trojan baseball club? Why, none other than ex-Poly star Harvey Crow, who has a sparkling 1.000 average. That is, one-for-one.

. . . Of the other Long Beachers on Rod Dedeaux's club, Bud Hollowell is .330, Willie Brown .259 and Walt Peterson .200. St. Anthony's Walt is far-and-away the leading moundsman with a 12-3 mark and a nifty 1.79 ERA. Of extreme interest to pro scouts is that Peterson has fanned 90 and walked only 23 in 110 innings.

. . . Brown leads the club in stolen bases (9), but the scouts are losing their enthusiasm over Willie as a baseball prospect. (And aren't the Rams turning handsprings over the happy—for them—turn of events?)

. . . Did you get the impact of those strong words by Buzzie Bavasi on his erstwhile ace lefthander Johnny Podres? When questioned on the future of Podres by our George Lederer, the Dodger g.m. barked: "I haven't talked to him since I returned from Vero Beach. As far as I'm concerned, he's through." (That's torrid language from Bavasi, who used to regard Podres almost as a son. In fact, not too long ago Podres simply signed his contract and then let Bavasi fill in the sum.)

. . . Doesn't anyone want to pitch against the Giants' brilliant Juan Marichal? (I can't say I blame them.) First, Podres bowed out of a duel last Sunday with the Latin flinger, then Sandy Koufax asked to be excused Friday night. Sandy's absence was OK'd by medics because of a slightly sore back, however. (The Marichal infection isn't confined to the Dodgers. In respect to Juan's ability, just about every National League manager bypasses his top hurlers when Marichal is scheduled as the opposition.)

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY wants to return to the football scene and, consequently, officials are studying the possibility of enrolling the Lions in the play-for-fun Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Conference. The primarily academic league now boasts six schools: Claremont-Harvey Mudd, Caltech, Redlands, Occidental, Whittier and Pomona. One catch in the Loyola scheme: The SCIAC thinks the Lions are much too strong in basketball, after years in fast WCAC company, for the Harvey-Mudd group. (Thus, the Lions are caught on a treadmill, i.e., drop the caliber of its basketball in order to play football. Everyone seems to have headaches these days.)

. . . Even though he has a tremendous offer (which includes off-season executive employment) from the Phillips Oilers, UCLA's Walt Hazzard is bent at this time on joining the Lakers. The decision is a matter of pride with the nation's No. 1 basketball collegian. "I didn't like those stories I read that the Lakers and other pro teams thought I was too small and a poor defensive player to make it in the NBA," commented Hazzard a few days ago. "Now, I want to show them all." Another factor in Hazzard's present thinking: He likes the way Jerry West performs and believes he can team perfectly with the Laker guard. So do I.

. . . Even though it's spring, fall football echoes and both the USC and UCLA campuses sound the same warning: Beware of Washington. Football people at both schools are afraid that the Huskies just might have their best squad in 10 years . . . and that's quite an achievement.

THE TROJANS might prove to be the real "sleeper" this fall, even though Mike Giers is only one of two returning lettermen among last season's first six guards. Troy also loses its three best linebackers, but the Figueroa St. school's strong jaycee crop is making even John McKay smile. Loss of Willie Brown has been taken in stride because McKay has a soph named Ray Cahill who'll come close to filling Willie's brogans.

. . . The Trojans were thinking ahead a few years ago when they lined up future schedules. Even though the slates are completed through 1971, the Trojans (who must have known something) included ALL the current AAWU schools on their '67 grid schedule. Yep, including newcomers Oregon and Oregon State, too.

. . . Houston Colt general manager Paul Richards is nobody's fool. Texas writers accompanying the Colts to Dodger Stadium last week declared emphatically that the strict disciplinarian intends to return to the field again as dugout boss. The date, however, is not certain because Richards won't assign himself to field duties until the Colts can come up with a respectable team. Mr. Richards has been around a little.

49ers Stage Comeback to Snare Crown

'Kissler Made Key Play'—Wuesthoff

Lowell's single chased Gonsalves across with the tying run. Kessler went in to run for Lowell. Doug Meyer then forced Kissler at second, but the 49er reserve shortstop ploughed into Williams and forced him to throw wildly to first allowing Ramirez to charge home with the winning tally.

Minutes later Perry was mobbed by his teammates when he fanned Bill Himes for the game's final out.

Although one 49er player was ready to uncork his bottle of champagne immediately, he was persuaded to wait until after the nightcap. This turned out to be tasty one, too.

Long Beach wracked starter Buz Stephen for four runs in the third inning en route to its 11th conference victory of the year against only four setbacks. Fresno, which entered the three-game series tied with the 49ers with an 8-4 record, finished 8-7.

Poly's Earl McCullough breezes to national record—tying 18.3 in low hurdles

Poly's McCullough Ties Nat'l Hurdle Mark With 18.3 but . . .

By DOUG IVES

Jet-propelled Earl McCullough of Poly High equalled the national record of 18.3 in the low hurdles at the Moore League track finals Saturday, but his mark never will go up for recognition.

Not two hours after the smooth-striding Rabbit raced to this record-tying effort on a fast Wilson track did the news come that his chief nemesis, Steve Caminiti, was even more sensational.

The high-stepping strutter from little-known Crespi High in Encino clocked a sizzling 18.1 in the Camino Real League finals, and he did it with only a 2.9-mph wind—safely under the allowable 4.4.

The McCullough-Caminiti duel has been long awaited, even moreso now, but they won't meet until the night of May 29 in the CIF finals. Neither are headed for the same quarter or semifinal meet.

There was one major upset, one big heartbreak and five varsity records broken in the Moore League finals, which were contested on a beautifully sunny and wind-free day.

McCullough not only knocked down the low hurdle standard, he also ran the highs in 14 flat, bettering his own mark of 14.4, and anchored his 880 relay team to a record-smashing 1:28.3 clocking.

Onother Rabbit, erractic Al Nichols, turned in the most surprising performance by handily beating Millikan's Ralph Spicer in the 880 with a 1:54.7 effort—four seconds better than his previous '64 best.

As expected, Poly dominated the varsity division, qualifying 16, but among the missing was CIF long jump champion Marv Motley, whose badly bruised heel was too much to overcome.

Motley got off a 22-6¾ jump on his first try, but couldn't better that and had to scratch on his last three leaps. Teammate Manuel Murrell was an impressive winner at 23-8.

Poly's Larry Freeman high jumped 6-2½ and Wilson's Bob Deeds ran 22.3 around the curve in the 220 for the other records.

Millikan's dandy miler, Charles Webb, got a push from Poly's Tom Halpin (4:26.4) but couldn't crack the mile standard. The willowly Ram senior ran 4:24.2.

Deeds joined McCullough as a double winner, taking the 100 in 9.9; Poly's Ron Sommer won the 440 in 49.8; Wilson's Larry Laufenberg vaulted 13 feet and Poly soph John Hubbell won the shotput.

A sophomore, Hubbell had a spectacular day for a lad of his age. He heaved the 12-pound ball over 55 feet five times and wound up with a winning toss of 56-7¼—a season best.

In the lightweights, Millikan's Cee Greg Ward stunned the crowd with super-duper clockings of 9.8 and 17.4 in the sprints to easily shatter league records.

For the little soph motor scooter, the 100 time equalled the CIF record and the 180 mark was just off the 17.3 standard. His century clocking was better than the varsity time.

Poly sprinter Percy Johnson tied the Bee 100 record (10.) and broke the mark for a 220 around a curve (22.5), while Wilson's Skip McDowell and Millikan's Don Blair vaulted a record 12-6. McDowell was a winner on fewer misses.

Another Millikan runner, Jim Busher, broke the Cee 1320 record in (3:15.4), helping the Rams dominate the lower division. The Millikan 440 relay team also tied a record, running 45.1.

Fresno State Sprinter Clocks 9.2

FRESNO (UPI) — Dallas Long, 250-pound weight man for Los Angeles, got off three of the greatest heaves in the history of shotputting Saturday night — one of them a world's record toss of 66 feet, 7½ inches — in the West Coast Relays.

Long, who already holds the listed world mark of 65 feet, 10¼ inches, and a pending record of 65 feet, 11¼ inches, retired after three putts.

His tosses were 65 feet, 3 inches on his first effort; the world record on his second; and 64 feet, 11 inches on the third.

It was the highlight of a record-smashing night in the 38th annual relays which also saw Darel Newman, a bald-headed, 20-year-old lad from Fresno State run one heat in the 100-yard dash in 9.2 then come back to capture the finals in 9.3.

• • • •

FRESNO State, coached by the immortal Dutch Warmerdam of pole vault fame, finished one-two-three in the 100-yard dash with Sam Workman clocked in 9.4 and Marv Bryant in 9.5.

Charles Craig, a Fresno State athlete, broke the NCAA mark in the triple jump with a leap of 52 feet, 4 inches.

Southern California's 18-year team victory streak ended as San Jose won with 34 points to Stanford's 33. But the Trojans did not enter any relays because of injuries.

• • • •

LONG BEACH State's John Rambo won the college-open division high jump at 6-10, while the mile relay team clocked 3:12.0 to win its section and was second to Cal (3:08.9) in the overall placing.

Long Beach City College's Jeff Smith won the shotput with a school record toss of 57-8½. The two-mile relay team was timed in 7:38.3 in third spot behind Santa Ana's National JC record-breaking 7:32.7.

PERRY'S SHINING HOUR

Pitcher Ed Perry (center) is mobbed by teammates after beating Fresno State in first game of doubleheader, 5-4, at Blair Field Saturday. Victory earned Long Beach State its first CAAA baseball title.

SAN DIEGO WINS TITLE

LBCC Sweeps Cerritos

By GARY RAUSCH

Metropolitan Conference baseball champions they are not, but the Vikings of Long Beach City College will always be a group of spoilers in the eyes of Cerritos.

Dennis Busch, the forgotten man on the Viking pitching staff, came on in relief twice Saturday to preserve 4-2 and 5-3 victories for Jim Parks and Mike Linck and give San Diego the title.

In both games LBCC beat the Falcons to the punch with first-inning explosions. Singles by Rick Hayes and Barney Scholl, successive steals of second, Hayes' theft of home and a throwing error allowing Scholl to score got the Vikes started in the opener.

Angels' Bats Come Alive, Chisox Fall

Belinsky, Chance Pitch Victory, 7-4

Rodgers filled the bases for Satriano's sacrifice fly, Kirkpatrick rifled a single to center, giving the Angels a 3-1 first frame advantage.

Bobby Knoop's single and a poor fielding play by third-sacker Don Buford provided the Angels with their fourth run off Frank Kreutzer in the fourth while a double by Kirkpatrick, which bad-bounced over first baseman Joe Cunningham's head, scored a fifth run in the fifth.

Satriano found that same rock in the seventh, lacing a run-scoring single past Cunningham and Kirkpatrick followed with a triple down the rightfield line, providing another important insurance run.

Chance relieved Belinsky after a walk and singles by Dave Nicholson and Cunningham reduced the Angels' edge to 5-2 in the sixth. Chance

ANGEL OF DAY

ED KIRKPATRICK singled, doubled, tripled, walked and drove in 3 runs in Angels 7-4 win over the White Sox.

then appeared to aide his fellow midnight marauder, but first dispatched a run-scoring single to Al Weis.

THAT WAS the last activity off Chance until the eighth when a walk and singles by J. C. Martin and Gene Stephens ended Dino's shutout innings in relief string at 14.2.

Osinski then returned the smile to Rigney's face and Belinsky to the win column. Chance will now have the day free to filibuster Haney for more money. One must assume he found some way to afford a present for his mother out of his $18,000 salary.

ANGEL ANGELS: Chicago pitcher Gary Peters became the first man to hit a baseball completely out of Dodger Stadium Saturday night . . . prior to the game. Peters used a fungo and orbited a baseball over the roof of the general admission section five levels above the field. . . . Coach Don Gutteridge put a quick halt to the frivolity. Peters (3-1) and Bob Lee (1-0) will be the pitchers this afternoon . . . All mothers will receive an orchid . . . Pinky Woods and the Hyatt House on Century Blvd. will host Angels, wives, mothers and press at a party following the game. The Angels have completed the conditional purchase of Bob Lee by dispatching a check for $25,000 to Pittsburgh. . . . Fregosi reaped two pre-game honors. . . . He was selected April's athlete of the month by Snyder and Son Clothiers and Alpha Beta markets. Pete Ward, who led the White Sox in five batting departments last season and is termed by manager Al Lopez "my best hitter," may return to the starting lineup this afternoon. . . . Ward has been sidelined by a damaged sacroilliac which the White Sox first feared might require an operation. Look for the Angel cut to be made Tuesday with Art Fowler and Paul Foytack, as first reported by the I. P-T early last week, definitely feeling the ax. . . . Completing the "in jeopardy" list are Jack Spring, Hank Foiles and Felix Torres. . . . The I. P-T has learned the Angels offered Dan Lee to virtually every club in the league without success.

Yanks 'Ready to Roll'

CLEVELAND (AP)—Note to other American League baseball clubs: Manager Yogi Berra thinks his New York Yankees, victorious in five of their last six games, may now be ready to roll.

"Maybe we started the last few days," the squat catcher-turned-manager said after the Yanks trounced Cleveland 10-3 Friday night and 6-2 Saturday and toppled the Indians from first place. "I hope so."

Yogi had several things to be happy about.

Four home runs, including two in the first inning by Tony Kubek and Mickey Mantle, powered the Yankees Saturday.

Joe Pepitone led off the fifth inning with a home run, and Hector Lopez connected following Bobby Richardson's single in the sixth.

The American League champs had hit only nine homers in 17 previous games. All four Saturday were off Pedro Ramos.

It was the fourth homer this year for Mantle and his second in as many days against Cleveland pitching.

Yankee southpaw Whitey Ford got credit for the victory, scattering seven singles and a double over six innings.

"I can't complain," Berra replied when asked if he was satisfied with the Yanks performance so far. "If it hadn't been for all the rainouts, we'd be in much better shape."

The Yanks haven't played all the teams yet, Berra said, so he can't tell which teams will battle it out for the pennant. He added:

"Those Senators are going to fool some people."

Phils Reach Purkey to Beat Reds, 5-4

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Philadelphia Phillies rallied for three runs with two out in the seventh on Johnny Callison's double and singles by rookie Richie Allen and Tony Gonzalez for a 5-4 victory Saturday over the Cincinnati Reds.

The Phillies had managed to score single runs only on a passed ball and a wild pitch before loser Bob Purkey faltered in the seventh.

Gordy Coleman scored two Reds with a triple against the right field fence in the third.

BUC COMEBACK

Law Handcuffs Milwaukee, 10-0

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Vernon Law, backed by lusty hitting, pitched a nifty five-hitter against Milwaukee Saturday for his first victory of the season as Pittsburgh downed the Braves, 10-0.

Law, who is attempting a comeback this season after being voluntarily retired part of last year, allowed only a double to Lee Maye and four singles.

The big right-hander, who has lost twice, collected two singles himself.

Fishin' Around

By DONNELL CULPEPPER

Whoops! Another Whooping Crane!

Another whooping crane has been born in Louisiana, and while this doesn't come under fishing or hunting topics, certainly the way this whooper came out of the egg deserves a story.

The Department of Interior's Wildlife Research substation at Lafayette, La., started the ambitious project last month with a pair of Japanese Silkie Bantam hens.

George Douglass, superintendent of the Audubon Park Zoo at New Orleans, took two eggs laid by Josephine (Crip is her mate) to the substation where specially prepared nests had been made ready for the Batams.

The Bantams, incidentally, were named Patience and Petulance. It was quite a chore for the tiny hens. A Bantam weighs about one pound. A whooping crane egg weighs half a pound, is four inches long and 2½ inches in diameter.

But anybody has been around chickens knows very well that a Bantam will tackle anything, and the hens will try to mother anything. I remember back to my own boyhood when I placed several china eggs in one nest. The Bantam tried to hatch those eggs for weeks until my mother found out about it. I got a good scolding and the eggs were taken from the Bantam.

PATIENCE AND PETULANCE went about their task just as though those large eggs were their own. They were selected for the task because of their light weight. The Fish and Wildlife Service thought that it could achieve better temperature and humidity control by using natural hatching.

Officials had seven backup Bantams just in case Patience and Petulance decided to quit the job.

The eggs hatched about a week ago. One of the whooper babies didn't survive, but the other did. At first, it was believed that the live baby had a defective leg and that they might have to operate. However, the defect straightened out and that makes 40 whooping cranes in existence.

There are 32 wild whooping cranes that winter at the Arkansas National Wildlife Refuge in Texas. They have begun their migration to the breeding grounds in Canada.

Seven whoopers are in the New Orleans Zoo. Superintendent Douglass started with Josephine and Crip and this new baby makes their fifth offspring. Another whooper, Rosie, recently was transferred from San Antonio, Texas, Zoo to New Orleans where Douglass hopes she will mate with one of the male birds.

The Bantam that hatched the whooper in days to come may be pardoned for a bit of motherly pride. A whooper reaches a height of five feet and weighs about 15 pounds.

JACK MAGOFIN, SHERWOOD LAKE operator reports a pickup in fishing for crappie and bluegill, with anglers taking many limits. They also are catching many bass, but some are too small to keep. However, an eight-year-old boy, Ricky Parks, Reseda, caught a 4-pound, 12-ounce bass, and Bob Grill, Santa Monica, got one weighing 7-4.

Bass fishing is picking up at Irvine Lake with some 3- and 4-pounders being taken on surface plugs. Anglers also continue to catch crappie—big ones up to 2½ pounds. Trout plants continue twice weekly, Monday and Friday.

Railroad Canyon reports 2- and 3-pound bass rising to surface lures. Good reports also come from Henshaw and Wohlford Lakes (San Diego County).

Barbara O'Donnell writes from Kernville that Sierra Way running along the Kern River north of the city looked like the Harbor Freeway on opening weekend, but there were some splendid catches made. And not all the fish were planted trout. There were numbers of lunkers up to 5 and 6 pounds.

Big trout and bass were active in Isabella Lake, into which the Kern flows and the great numbers of crappie continued to come in from the boats. The taking of a hundreds of crappie by a single angler caused me to write Walter Shannon, director of the DG. There is no crappie limit at Isabella.

SHANNON, IN HIS REPLY, said that there is yet no indication that the lake is being overharvested. He said that the department is making a survey and that, if at any time, wardens feel that too many fish are being taken, the department will recommend appropriate restrictions.

In explaining the Isabella situation, Shannon said:

"In many bodies of water a large part of the warm-water fish crop remains unharvested, and the fish population becomes stunted. Such a lake contains small, old fish that provide little sport for the anglers. The remedy is to remove the bag limits.

"Isabella Lake is a very productive body of water capable of withstanding an enormous fish harvest. If those fish were not harvested, the problems associated with overpopulation soon would arise and the fishery would decline.

"It is unfortunate that not all fishermen are sportsmen. Your column is of prime importance in discouraging the wanton waste which accompanies the excessive catches you have cited in your letter."

In my letter to Shannon, and in a previously written column, I had pointed out that there were anglers who bragged of catching 300 to 400 fish a day—and keeping them. One man even said he took 800 fish in two days. What in the name of heaven would a man do with 800 crappie?

Let's hope that the DFG does keep a close watch on Isabella.

Casper Tied With Jacobs at Ft. Worth

Player Slips to 4 Strokes Behind

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—Young Tommy Jacobs and Bill Casper took rare liberties with the treacherous Colonial course Saturday and shared the 54-hole lead in the national Invitation golf tournament.

Jacobs could have seized the lead outright, but he bogeyed the final hole when a putt slid to the cup and refused to drop.

CASPER

The 29-year-old California sharpshooter circled the par 70 layout in rounds of 69 and 71 for a total of 209. Casper, admitting that his putter performed miracles, shot a 67 and a 70.

The 36-hole scramble was ordered Saturday after a thunder-storm washed out Friday's round.

• • • •

FORMER U.S. Open Champion Gene Littler closed with a 68 after a 71 in the morning. His 210 total was just one stroke away from the leaders.

Gary Player, the South African who held the lead after 18 holes, lost his touch in the afternoon and stumbled to a 74. It left him trailing by four strokes at 213.

Casper was jubilant about his putting. He needed only 56 putts for the two rounds, part of which was due to a 50-yard chip-in on the third hole.

"I can't play this game at all," Casper grinned. "All I can do it putt."

Near the leaders were Art Wall Jr. and George Knudson at 214. One stroke back were Mason Rudolph, Kel Nagle, Billy Maxwell, Gay Brewer and Arnold Palmer.

Palmer broke par for the first time Saturday afternoon, carding a 69 after earlier rounds of 75 and 71.

Jack Nicklaus shot a 72 and a 71 Saturday and was 10 shots out of the lead.

Leaders at the end of three rounds:

Tommy Jacobs	69-71-71	209

Mickey Has 5-Shot Edge at St. Louis

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Mickey Wright increased her lead to five strokes in the $12,500 Ladies St. Louis Open Intivational golf tournament Saturday by shooting a one-over-par 72 for a 142 total.

Joann Prentice, tied with Beth Stone for second after the opening round Friday, had a 75 for a 147 to remain runner-up. Marlene Hagge fired a 73 to go with an opening round of 76. Kathy Whitworth reversed those two rounds with 73-76 for a third place tie with 149.

In what she called the finest putting round she could remember, Miss Wright took only 25 putts.

Second round leaders:

Mickey Wright	70-72	142

RAM DEFENSE AHEAD OF OFFENSE—IN GOLF

Two defensive halfbacks took top honors in the first Ram football team golf tournament at Heartwell Park Saturday.

Capt. Ed Meador shot a 63 to win low gross and Lindon Crow teamed with his wife, Maureen, to win the husband-wife title at 142. Lindon shot 67, Maureen 75.

Public relations director Jack Teele and I, P-T Ram writer Jerry Wynn tied Meador at 63 but were ineligible for awards. The tourney was co-sponsored by Heartwell Park and the Independent, Press-Telegram.

Indy Near Miss for Rodriguez

Compiled from Wire Reports

Pedro Rodriguez, 24, Mexico City, was injured Saturday when his rear-engine car crashed into a wall on the southwest turn at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway as he practiced for the Memorial Day 500-mile race.

Rodriguez was taken to the field hospital for treatment of minor contusions on the chest and burns to his mouth and elbow.

The car spun halfway around and hit the wall backwards as Rodriguez sped around the oval at about 145 miles per hour. The impact tore off the left rear wheel.

The car slid more than 600 feet before it stopped and burst into flames. Firemen quickly extinguished the blaze but the car was damaged extensively.

Earlier in the day, Paul Russo, veteran driver at the track, spun in the northeast turn when his car went out of control. It skidded into the infield, barely missing a wall, and was not damaged. Russo was not injured.

Strong, gusty winds interfered with practice activity.

Tickets for the telecast of the Indianapolis 500-mile race into the Long Beach Arena are being sold at several locations in the area for $4, $5, $6 and $7.

The race is scheduled for 9 a.m. (PDT) Memorial Day with the telecast starting at 8:30.

Tickets may be purchased at the West Coast, Imperial, Belmont and Crest theaters, at the Arena box office and at Wallichs Music City in Lakewood and Torrance.

Penhall Enters Regatta

National champion Leroy Penhall of Anaheim tops the popular Crackerbox class in the 16th Belmont Shore Lions Club Memorial Day all-in-board speedboat regatta at Marine Stadium.

Penhall, vice-commodore of the Southern California Speedboat Club, will defend the crown he won last Memorial Day. He will drive his Chevrolet-powered "Hot Cinders" which he won with at last week's Parker, Ariz., regatta.

The Crackerboxes are the only class on the nine-event card that use a riding mechanic. The Crackers, with pump gasoline, will face the E Racing Runabouts, which use either gas or fuel, in a special grudge match.

• • • •

JOE POTY of Whittier, piloting "Dady's Baby," won last year's grudge race. He repeated last week when his big Runabout streaked across the finish line a couple of lengths ahead of Leroy, who went too high into the final turn.

Other entries in the Cracker class include: Bill Vlacich (Hot Mama), Roger Stull (Rinky-Dink), Dean Murry (Berzerk), Rocky Stone (Hot Dam), Ted Brown (Suddenly) and Don West (Big Deal).

Decision for Ramos... Title to Robertson

ACCRA, Ghana (UPI)—The Ghana Boxing Authority nullified a judges' verdict in favor of world champion Sugar Ramos Saturday night and was expected to declare Ghana's Floyd Robertson the new featherweight king.

The boxing authority called the fight "no contest" after Ramos, a Cuban now living in Mexico, gained a split decision in the 15-round bout when judges Ed Lassman of Miami Beach, Fla., and Ramon Valezquez of Mexico ruled in his favor.

Referee Jack Hart of London scored the fight for the 27-year-old Robertson, British Empire champion.

The Ghana Boxing Authority claimed the majority verdict "unfair" and the announcement was cheered by the crowd of 40,000 who jammed the Accra Stadium.

The boxing authority, co-promoters of the fight with Britain's Jack Solomons, was expected to meet through the night to reverse the decision and name Robertson the champion.

• • • •

HART, a London bookmaker who has awarded some controversial decisions in Britain, said after the fight: "The judges are mad. I feel sorry for Robertson, who fought like a real world champion."

Solomons agreed, saying: "Robertson won all right, and won well." Nigeria's Joe Rafiu King, who lost a decision to Ramos in a title bout, said, "Floyd won all right."

Ghana sports director Obene Djan called the verdict "wicked," but former world middleweight champion Dick Tiger went along with the judges saying: "The verdict was good. Robertson did not do sufficient attacking."

Robertson was strangely calm. He said: "What can I say? Everyone says I won, and that's enough for me."

Ramos refused to speak to sports writers.

Billie Jean Plays for Title Today

By BOB MARTIN

Defending champion Billie Jean Moffitt of Long Beach moved into the finals of the 78th Southern California Sectional Tennis Championships with a 6-2, 6-4 victory Saturday over 17-year-old Kathy Harter of Seal Beach.

Miss Moffitt will face Carole Caldwell of Santa Monica for the women's singles championship at 2:30 today at the Los Angeles Tennis Club. Billie Jean, 20-year-old Los Angeles State College coed, is ranked No. 2 in the nation among women players and Miss Caldwell is No. 4.

Mimi Arnold, who won an unusually long three-set match late Friday against Kathy Blake, had little left Saturday and bowed to Miss Caldwell, 6-1, 6-0, in the other women's semifinal. Mimi beat Carole in the recent Ojai women's final.

DAVIS CUP star Dennis Ralston of USC and Arthur Ashe of UCLA will clash for the men's singles title at 1 in today's first center court match.

Ralston, seeded first, had to go five sets to beat Allen Fox Saturday, 9-7, 6-4, 4-6, 3-6, 6-3. Ashe, seeded second, defeated Bruin teammate Dave Sanderlin, 10-8, 6-1, 6-2.

Today's action will begin at 11 with finals in men's 21 and under, junior veterans and senior singles slated at that time. The women's 21 and under finals will be at noon.

Other results Saturday included:

Women's doubles semi-finals — Mortimer-Behrmer def. Yeomans-Prentiss, 6-1, 6-3; Harter-Blake def. Caldwell-Arnold, 3-6, 6-4, 7-5.

Men's 21 and under semi-finals — Stan Smith def. Bob Lutz, 6-1, 6-2; Jim Robinson def. Dave Renner, 6-3, 7-5, 6-3.

Richey 'Rooked' in Italian Net Loss to Osuna

ROME (AP)—Schoolboy Cliff Richey of Dallas won the first two sets and led 4-1 in the third before dropping a controversial five-set match to Mexico's top-seeded Rafael Osuna Saturday in the Rome international tennis tournament.

"They rooked me out of the match," the fiery, 17-year-old American junior champion said after bowing in the fourth round 3-6, 3-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-3. He protested an umpire's call in the eighth game of the final set.

The only other remaining American in the singles competition, Roger Werksman of Los Angeles, also was eliminated. He lost to Jan Erik Lundquist of Sweden.

Fred Stolle of Australia and Sergio Tacchini of Italy joined Osuna and Lundquist in the quarter-finals.

More Celebs Join Golf Field Here

Lawrence Welk, one of the most devoted golfers in show business, has joined the field for the sixth World Entertainment Golf Championship at Recreation Park, Saturday and Sunday, May 23-24.

Also filing entries Saturday were singer Curt Massey and actors Dennis Morgan and Johnny (Farzan) Weismuller.

WELK

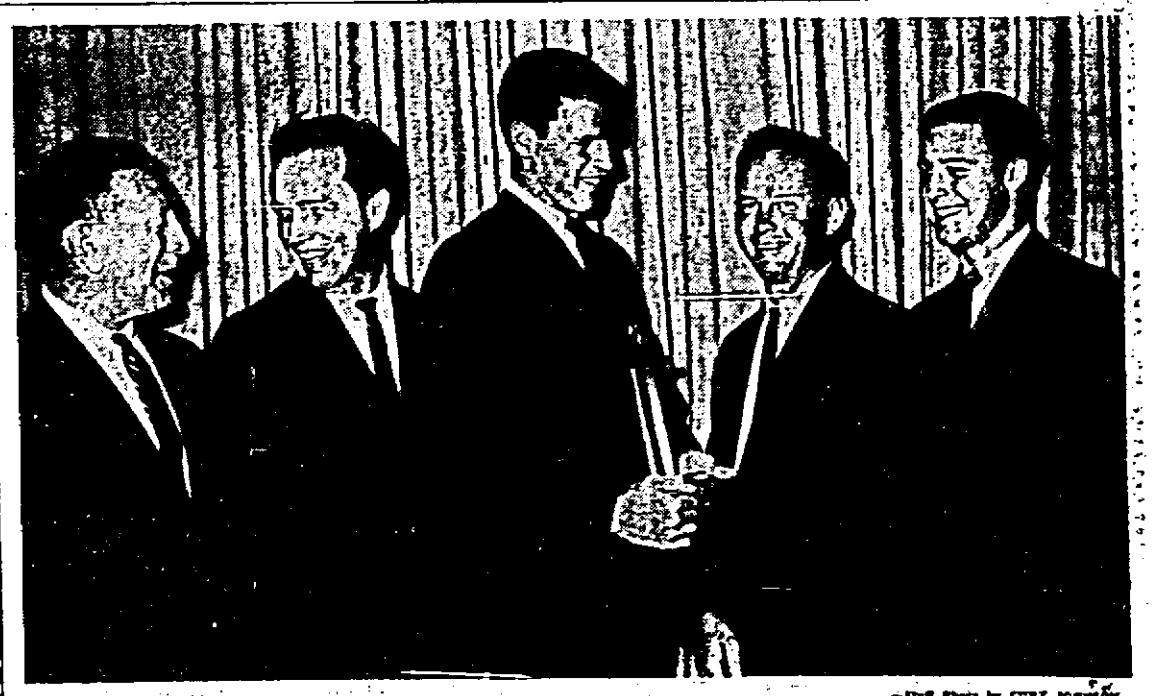

Among those already entered are Vic Damone, Jim Backus, Jack Kelly, Mickey Rooney, Phil Crosby, Pat Harrington Jr., Gary Morton, Jim Davis, Jack Ging and defending champion Bob Wilke.

Special pre-tournament tickets, priced at $3 for both days now are on sale at the Recreation Park Golf Shop and at 205 E. Broadway, room 204. Net proceeds from the tournament go to the Children's Orthopedic Hospital.

McKAY LIKES NEW SUB RULE

Sherman, Ex-Uclan, Shines for USC

By JEROME HALL

The new college football substitution rule got its first workout Saturday and USC coach John McKay, who suffered the tortures of the damned with last year's rule, likes it.

It is nearly the same as the one that paved the way for the Trojans' national championship season of two years ago.

And the assortment of grid talent that McKay put on display Saturday in a formal intra-squad scrimmage that closed out four weeks of spring practice was mindful of that undefeated bunch of two years ago, too.

The name of Rod Sherman emerged from the two-hour joust that saw the Reds beat the Whites 30-22 in a game that came an inch from ending in a 30-30 tie—one of football's rarities.

Sherman, the lad who walked out of UCLA where he was star frosh QB in '62 ("I like the kind of offense at USC better") passed for one touchdown and ran for another in accounting for 50 per cent of the winning team's scores.

While his passing wasn't sharp, Sherman lived up to his reputation as an exceptional runner. He carried eight times for 50 yards. He completed three of six including a PAT 2-pointer in addition to his 12-yard touchdown toss to end John Thomas.

Sherman also showed off his defensive ability several times. He "saved his own game," as they say around the baseball field, by batting a pass out of Dave Moton's hands in the end zone on the game's final play. A TD and 2-point conversion would have tied the game.

Craig Fertig, last year's understudy to graduated QB Pete Beathard, was injured late in the first quarter and will wear a full-leg cast for the next three weeks. He has a pulled knee ligament.

The same injury was suffered by sophomore halfback Ray Cahill, the replacement for Willie Brown. Cahill, who runs, walks and looks for all the world like a double for Willie (and the Trojan coaches say he's just as good a pass receiver) will wear the famed USC No. 26.

Cahill turned in some outstanding plays.

McKay used the scrimmage as a final trial for his new offense plan. He's going to turn upside down his 1962 pattern. Instead of his first-stringers playing both offense and defense with two specialist platoons behind them, the '64 Trojans will have a first-string offensive platoon, a first-string defensive platoon and a two-way team made up of the best that's left over.

* * * *

THE SCRIMMAGE performances, before a crowd of about 3,000 at Troy's Cromwell Field, were "just about what I expected," said McKay.

"I enjoyed the game," he said from his spectator seat where he watched his assistants run the show. "I think we're going to have a pretty good football team."

Halfback Mike Garrett, the AAWU's ball-carrying champion last season as a sophomore, did not play because of a sore shoulder. Neither did a couple of other key men — middle lineman Jeff Smith and fullback Homer Williams—both still at Long Beach City College.

THIS IS PRACTICE . . .?

Spring football practice ended in rough climax for USC players Saturday. Ray Cahill (right) wound up with knee in cast and (left) impromptu shower was welcomed by Mike Giers, Long Beach tackle.

Bruins Improved on Ground

The UCLA Bruins, testing what they hope will be a strong ground threat to go with proven aerial combinations, scored a victory over an all-star alumni team Saturday in the finale of spring football practice.

Coach Bill Barnes unleashed a pair of scatbacks—neither weighing more than 165 pounds—and a rejuvenated veteran in defeating the old grads, 20-8, before a Spaulding Field crowd of more than 3,000.

Mike Haffner, the AAWU ground-gaining champion in 1961 but bothered by injuries in recent seasons, turned in an impressive showing both running with the ball and catching it.

* * * *

HE HAD four carries for 40 yards and made three receptions. "I'm very encouraged by his showing," said Barnes. "And I think those two little fellows did a great job."

The little fellows are left halfbacks Steve Durbin and Ray Armstrong. "They look like they'll give us the breakaway threat we've been looking for," said Barnes. Durbin carried 20 times for 90 yards.

Steve Sindell, handling most of the quarterback duties in the absence of Larry Zeno (playing baseball), completed 8 of 15 passes for 97 yards and 1 touchdown. Fullback Paul Horgan scored two touchdowns on short power bursts.

L.B. Musial Entry Debuts Against USC

Long Beach's entry in the new Stan Musial League, Salta Pontiac, makes its debut Tuesday when it plays Long Beach State and USC in a doubleheader at Blair Field. The 49er contest starts at 4:30 and the Trojan game gets under way at 8.

Coach Joe Hicks has lined up some of the area's top college talent, including Terry Richards, Jim Parks, Mike Linck and Dennis Busch.

Infielders include Al Coutts, Jim Vickers, John Kalench, Bob Cooper, Don Anderson and Gary Brown; the outfield will center around Rick Hayes, Chuck Williamson, Al Goldberg, Barney Scholl and Gary Korsmeier. Catchers are Bob Larson and Ron Johnston.

Hawks Bag First WSC Victory, 1-0

By CHUCK MEDICK

Back-to-back doubles by Bob Bomar and Eddie Waymire in the eighth inning gave the Long Beach Nitehawks a 1-0 win over the Downey Impalas in a Western Softball Congress game Saturday night at Imperial Park.

The victory was the first in three starts for the Hawks.

Joe Lynch, who has gone to the hill three times seeking his first win as a Hawk, pitched brilliantly, scattering four hits and fanning 13.

Roger Hull, Bomar and Waymire accounted for the five hits garnered by the Hawks off loser Don Sarno.

Lancers Top Los Alamitos for Third Win

By FRANK WHITNEY

George Pearson and Art Bungee combined pitching talents to rout Los Alamitos, 6-0, in a Western Softball Congress game Saturday night at Byous Field.

Pearson's third win matched that of his team's and it left the Lancers in second place, one-half game behind Gardena.

Ben Souders' triple and a fly out in the first inning, and Pearson's homer in the second made it a 2-0 game before Lakewood wrapped it up with a four-run third frame, highlighted by Dale Leach's two-run single.

PROBATION FOR GRID CHAMPS

Conference Slaps Texas, SMU

LUBBOCK, Tex. (AP)—Texas, the nation's collegiate football king, and Southern Methodist were placed on probation Saturday by the Southwest Conference for violations of recruiting rules.

In the case of Texas, there was little pain since the school won't have to forego post-season play, but for Southern Methodist, it was a deep and bitter blow.

Southern Methodist was put on probation for two years and can not participate in bowl games. It can, however, compete for the Southwest Conference championship.

Texas and Southern Methodist were two of four schools penalized for recruiting violations as the conference ended one of its stormiest meetings in history. A record number of complaints had been filed by the schools against each other.

Baylor and Texas Tech were reprimanded for exceeding the limit of two visits to prospective athletes, but there was no curtailment of either's athletic activities.

This also may not be the end of the conference's troubles. The NCAA may step in and impose stiffer penalties.

Southern Methodist was penalized for violating the rule prohibiting excessive financial inducements to athletes, financial aid to athletes already in school and the offer of financial aid to prospective athletes beyond what is permitted.

The charge against Southern Methodist reportedly involved the offer of an automobile by an alumnus to an athlete.

Coach-athletic director Darrell Royal of Texas said the charges against his school, which consisted of an alumnus not accompanying a prospective athlete to the campus and excessive entertainment, were inadvertent.

Ongais Retains Top Gas Dragster Rating

Danny Ongais of Carlsbad retained his No. 1 United States gas dragster title with two wins over Pete Robinson of Atlanta, Ga., before 4,200 spectators at Lions Drag Strip Saturday night.

A national super-charged gas roadster record of 9.77 seconds made at Bakersfield last week was backed up by Bones Barlow in the Mazmanian entry in a Lion's strip record of 9.84 seconds.

Best elapsed time fuel—Shubert-Herbert, 8.02 seconds. Top speed, fuel — Paul Sutherland, Long Beach, 191 mph. Top fuel eliminator — Shubert-Herbert 8.20 seconds, 187 mph.

Rams, Cowboys Set for Aug. 8 Opener

The Rams will entertain the Dallas Cowboys Saturday night, Aug. 8, to open their 1964 pre-season schedule.

The annual charity clash, first of two 1964 meetings between the Rams and Cowboys, will be the first pro game to be played in the "new" Coliseum and the initial appearance by star NFL ends Tommy McDonald and Buddy Dial as Dallas players.

The Rams' 1964 pre-season schedule:

August 8—Dallas Cowboys at Coliseum; August 15—Cleveland Browns at Coliseum; August 22—Dallas Cowboys at Portland; August 29—Minnesota Vikings at Coliseum; Sept. 5—San Francisco 49ers at Coliseum.

gered $567,068. Neither the attendance nor the betting were records, but the bulge in both cases continued to push the track toward all-time betting and crowd records.

Longshot bettors had more emotional problems when Jim Sweazea popped home first for a $52 payoff in the first race and combined with Myrt's Request ($6.60) for a bountiful $279.20 return, one of many daily doubles in the higher brackets during the meeting.

In the second race Smith equalled his own all-time win mark as he was aboard Myrt's Request. It was Smith's 39th win of the meeting. Then he came right back in the fifth to set a new record while booting Trouble Bars home.

THE LOS Alamitos racing will conclude on Tuesday with the running of "The Juvenile Championship" which pits 10 top 2-year-olds in the $10,000 gross purse. There also will be racing on Monday.

Several members of the Rams football team were in the winner's circle Saturday to congratulate the winner of the supporting feature won by Dariman at a payoff of $10.60. Pokey Chargette, who has been chasing Goetta earlier, finished out of the money, after getting off to a bad start.

ANNA DIAL(S) RIGHT NUMBER
Anna Dial, with Robert Adair aboard, holds off Tidy's Pleasure (outside) and Scooper Chick (on rail) to capture $25,000 Los Alamitos Championship Saturday. Goetta, the 4-5 favorite, finished last in field of seven. Anna Dial ran 21.9 to equal fastest clocking of meeting.

Derby's First Five Set for Preakness

BALTIMORE (AP) — The first five finishers in the Kentucky Derby will go another round at Pimlico next Saturday in a Preakness filled with exciting ingredients matching any of the past 87 races.

Jockey personalities are playing a heavy role in what is billed in many minds as a rematch between Northern Dancer, the compact Canadian colt, and Hill Rise, the California challenger, for 3-year-old honors of 1964.

After they wound up a neck apart at the end of 1¼ miles last Saturday in Louisville, there was widespread feeling that riders made the difference. Bill Hartack had done a flawless job on Northern Dancer, was the consensus. That Willie Shoemaker had done less for Hill Rise also was heard.

Trainer Mesh Tenney has listed Henry Moreno as tentative rider for Rex Ellsworth's The Scoundrel, who was third in the Derby under Manuel Ycaza.

Northern Dancer faces tremendous odds in tacking the Preakness on to the Derby and keeping alive the Triple Crown hopes for owner E. P. Taylor.

In the 15 chances since 1948 when Citation was the eighth and last to score the triple only two 3-year-olds have won the first two before tripping up in the Belmont.

RACING ROUNDUP

Mr. Brick Has Easy Victory in Withers

Mr. Brick, who faded to sixth after setting the early pace in the Kentucky Derby, found the one mile of the $61,700 Withers more to his liking Saturday and posted an easy victory over 12 other 3-year-olds at Aqueduct.

As the favorite to earn the winner's purse of $40,105, Mr. Brick paid $5.30, $3.20 and $2.60. National, one-half of an entry which included Traffic, paid $3.40 and $3. Alphabet returned $5.60.

Family Preview for Opening of Hollypark Meet

Hollywood Park kicks off its summer race meeting Wednesday, but hoofs fly, bands play and a steam-powerew fire engine rolls in the annual family-style gathering this weekend.

Vice President James D. Stewart invites family groups to bring their picnic spreads for dining in the grandstand for the all-free program.

There are morning workouts for the horses training for the 55-day meeting, then a 2½-hour show on the main track.

BOUT SLATED 'TO DEATH'

Freddie Blassie and Nikita Mulkovich will stage a battle to the death Tuesday night at Municipal Auditorium.

Well, almost to the death. Loser must suffer the greatest humiliation that can come to a wrestler —he will be buried in a pine-box coffin at ringside and carried out in total disgrace.

Smart, Sophisticated and Elegant

that's the description of the Cafe Lafayette. Read in detail about this delightful restaurant on page B-11.

Shopping the Classified Section first saves so much time and effort. You just settle back, put your feet up and decide where you'll get the best value by reading through the wide selections offered to you in Classified. Shopping this easy, modern way saves you hours —And, saves your disposition, too—because when you leave the house to buy something you found in a Classified Ad, you don't come back empty handed!

You'll be amazed at the values offered every single day in the Classified pages. And, it's fun to browse through the ads. You never know what you'll find. Everything from monkeys to mink turns up in these fantastic columns . . . Very often at really big savings to you.

So save your valuable time, effort and money, too. Don't make a move until you read the Independent, Press-Telegram Classified Ads. It's smart, it's easy . . . and it's fun.

This 8 yr. young modern home is too dusty. It just isn't inviting. BUT BOY WHATTA BUY!
Imagine this dilapated Rancho setting well back on its large fenced lot among many high & thriving weeds. We find a drive which leads to a 2 car garage for Pop & look at these broken windows. This thing is so bad our salesmen are ashamed to show it.
BUT BOY WHATTA BUY
Spacious bright living room, dressed with wall to wall carpets, step over old bottles & look out thru spattered floor to ceiling sliding glass doors to debris filled, pool sized rear grounds.
3 dirty King sized bdrms., roomy closets and storage, serviced by 2 baths.
WOW, Mom will surely like this farm style kitchen. Oh soo huge, like a banquet room, walls of cabinets, double sinks & disposal. Yes, there is even a serving bar, which separates the family room. Folks, basically this big lumbo is in fine condition. Sure it needs paint & cleaning, but you do the work & you can save not dollars but Hundreds here.

A SUNDAY CARSIDE CHAT from RIDINGS CADILLAC

Long Beach's Only Authorized Cadillac Dealer

Vacation time is just around the corner and many of you are beginning to get that certain feeling of anticipation. An important part of the preparation for this happy occasion is to be "car ready." Quite often you will find it more practical to buy a later model car than to put more money into your present car.

In shopping for another car be sure to keep this in mind: DON'T BUY just a "USED" car, but DO BUY a thoroughly "RECONDITIONED" car. We have a choice selection of the finest reconditioned "Customer Ready" cars to be found anywhere. We urge you to carefully inspect our cars and to compare them with others . . . THERE IS A DIFFERENCE.

We are closed on Sundays. However, we cordially invite you to visit our lot today and look over our fine RECONDITIONED cars. All are clearly described as to equipment and price.

DICK BROWNING OLDS
Introduces A New Program for Automobile Buying

COME IN TODAY AND GET A FREE BOOKLET ON AUTO BUYING
(Expert Advice on How to Select, Finance and Insure a Used Car)

Dick Browning Oldsmobile is now attaching a new, comprehensive warranty to every used car he sells. This warranty is patterned after those offered on the new General Motors automobiles.

This new coverage extends beyond any previous dbo agreement and far outdistances guarantees made by other dealers. It is 100% in writing and is signed by both the buyer and the seller.

Minimum term of coverage is for 1 year or 12,000 miles, with substantial discounts on the replacement of parts and labor required for repairs within the term of the warranty. Additional consideration is given for the exceptionally fine used car. Ask your sales representative for further details.

ROME (AP)—Diletta D'Andrea, a trim signorina who is rising rapidly in the Italian movie world, doesn't think there is anything wrong with appearing nude on the screen.

DILETTA D'ANDREA

But she has lost five movie roles because she refuses to show too much of the assets given her by nature.

"It's not a question of morality," says Diletta. "The truth of the matter is I'm just shy." Diletta adds: "Perhaps other girls could do it. But I know I would die of embarrassment if I had to appear nude in a film."

The trim brunette actress is being seen by American audiences for the first time in "Crazy Desire."

AN ASSISTANT director of famed Italian film-maker Federico Fellini got her a start in films. Turning 18 she made her debut in "I Nuovi Angeli" (The New Angels).

Then came "Crazy Desire," in which she played the best friend of actress Catherine Spaak.

"It was marvelous," recalls Diletta. "It was more fun than work, and we were getting paid for enjoying ourselves."

Nu-Pike Beauty Contest Opens

Leading Southland newspaper editors and two of its top legislators will combine their talents to select Miss Press Day at the Long Beach Nu-Pike's third annual salute to the Fourth Estate June 20.

Sterling J. Bemis, assistant managing editor of the Long Beach Independent, Press-Telegram; William E. Totten, managing editor of the Huntington Park Daily Signal; Jim Graeme, editor of the Wilmington Press Journal, and Don Bazemore, publisher of the Long Beach News, will be assisted in their task by Congressman Craig Hosmer, 32nd District, and Assemblyman Joseph M. Kennick, 44th District.

Winner of the contest will receive a surf and sand wardrobe and reign over special events during the coming year at the eight-block family amusement zone on the ocean front.

Girls 17 and over may enter the contest by writing the Long Beach Amusement League or by submitting their names in person at the league's office in the Nu-Pike plunge building, 201 W. Pike.

Entrants in the contest will represent various rides in the amusement park.

5 Big Bands for Disneyland

Five exciting nights with five of the nation's greatest dance bands will inaugurate "Disneyland After Dark—1964" beginning June 13.

With the big bands of Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Wayne King, Count Basie and the Elliott Brothers playing each night throughout the Magic Kingdom, the five-night premiere will be the greatest collection of big bands in history.

UNDER THE YUM YUM TREE'

Odd Sounds at Magnolia

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

For the next few weekends lots of strange animal noises will be emanating from around the Magnolia Theater box-office.

Don't call the police.

The mmmmmmmm sounds you hear will simply be coming from delighted theatergoers clamoring for yum-yum, or rather gathering in large numbers around or "Under the Yum Yum Tree."

Not that this latest Magnolia offering is any stage masterpiece or its writer, Lawrence Roman, any wonder boy. Roman drops literary names — e.e. cummings and Samuel Butler—but he's more sexwright than playwright who uses the teasing libido-and-the-stick technique.

After two hours of teasing, this technique sends audiences out in the streets happily murmuring: Isn't sex nice clean fun—when it is smart enough to 'happen' only in one's mind.

• • • •

SLICK AUTHOR Roman does not waste time sending his characters up a sex-tree. He has the young college girl, Robin Austin (Judith McCall) and her youthful lawyer boyfriend, Dave Manning (Gil De Rush) set up premarital joint housekeeping on a "connubial, but non-conjugal basis." Fellow occupants in this weird sex-tree are Robin's protecting angel, Irene Wilson (Pat Brown) and her "eternal" boyfriend, landlord Hogan.

By act two the sexwright is shaking up everybody in his tree with Hogan "yumming after" the college girl and the the college girl teasing the young lawyer, Dave, to the point of no platonic return.

Using every available "crevice" of her tiny theater as playing space, director Pat Brown and cast score individually well in the early scenes and even better as a team in act two. If director Brown will have the temerity to tell actress Brown that she has the rest of the cast "by the ears" until the closing scenes, the production will swing even better. Right now it suffers from a broad Shakespearean "hangover" and actress Brown has not yet shaken off the ghost of domineering Kate.

Accordingly, the other three main characters stand in trembling awe of her, yelping to be put down, but the high-powered Texas-born actress keeps driving.

• • • •

UNLIKE THE movie built up for Jack Lemmon, the 'big' character in the play is the girl, Robin. Youthful Judith McCall scrambles some of her lines by over-eagerly thinking them out loud before feeling them. Yet she gamely battles the part and the experienced "heavies" on-stage with her. She has the misfortune (for this gamey, beddybye play) of looking too angelic for the part. In short, her body does not contradict the words she is saying, thus depriving the absurd role of the sexual teasing it needs to stimulate the men. Even in Hogan, well-played by Logan Field, she seemed to arouse a refugee from Father's Day rather than "the fugitive from Kraft-Ebbing."

Field is a quaint comedian, getting terrific laughs when he says: nothing, but just walks around with the sexual 'd.t.'s." Speaking with a sort of Sen. Dirksen mellifluousness, he could use a dash of Jack Lemmon to lighten the speaking part of his role and thus produce more a steady flow of humor. Irene's underplaying will also help.

Bred on stronger stuff, Gil De Rush takes a long time warming up to the lawyer role. He gets better as the situations start coming thick and fast. But there is still too much Hamletting when he debates whether to do or not to do. . . But as the author might say, all that "nekking" who has time for character analysis—or Hamletting?

Thomas Golden doubles as milkman and cab driver. This is an audience show.

Hormones to Sex Play

LONDON (UPI)—Joe Orton, 31-year-old author of the sex-laden play "Entertaining Mr. Sloane," which opened at the New Arts Theater here on Wednesday, once had a job making sex hormones for a drug company.

Five exciting nights with five of the nation's greatest dance bands will inaugurate "Disneyland After Dark—1964" beginning June 13.

With the big bands of Duke Ellington, Benny Goodman, Wayne King, Count Basie and the Elliott Brothers playing each night throughout the Magic Kingdom, the five-night premiere will be the greatest collection of big bands in history.

'UNDER THE YUM YUM TREE'

Odd Sounds at Magnolia

By SAMUEL A. BOYEA

For the next few weekends lots of strange animal noises will be emanating from around the Magnolia Theater box-office.

Don't call the police.

The mmmmmmmmm sounds you hear will simply be coming from delighted theatergoers clamoring for yum-yum, or rather gathering in large numbers around or "Under the Yum Yum Tree."

Not that this latest Magnolia offering is any stage masterpiece or its writer, Lawrence Roman, any wonder boy. Roman drops literary names — e.e. cummings and Samuel Butler—but he's more sexwright than playwright who uses the teasing libido-and-the-stick technique.

After two hours of teasing, this technique sends audiences out in the streets happily murmuring: Isn't sex nice clean fun—when it is smart enough to 'happen' only in one's mind.

* * * *

SLICK AUTHOR Roman does not waste time sending his characters up a sex-tree. He has the young college girl, Robin Austin (Judith McCall) and her youthful lawyer boyfriend, Dave Manning (Gil De Rush) set up premarital joint housekeeping on a "connubial, but non-conjugal basis." Fellow occupants in this weird sex-tree are Robin's protecting angel, Irene Wilson (Pat Brown) and her "eternal" boyfriend, landlord Hogan.

By act two the sexwright is shaking up everybody in his tree with Hogan "yumming after" the college girl and the the college girl teasing the young lawyer, Dave, to the point of no platonic return.

Using every available "crevice" of her tiny theater as playing space, director Pat Brown and cast score individually well in the early scenes and even better as a team in act two. If director Brown will have the temerity to tell actress Brown that she has the rest of the cast "by the ears" until the closing scenes, the production will swing even better. Right now it suffers from a broad Shakespearean "hangover" and actress Brown has not yet shaken off the ghost of domineering Kate.

Accordingly, the other three main characters stand in trembling awe of her, yelping to be put down, but the high-powered Texas-born actress keeps driving.

* * * *

UNLIKE THE movie built up for Jack Lemmon, the 'big' character in the play is the girl, Robin. Youthful Judith McCall scrambles some of her lines by over-eagerly thinking them out loud before feeling them. Yet she gamely battles the part and the experienced "heavies" on-stage with her. She has the misfortune (for this gamey, beddybye play) of looking too angelic for the part. In short, her body does not contradict the words she is saying, thus depriving the absurd role of the sexual teasing it needs to stimulate the men. Even in Hogan, well-played by Logan Field, she seemed to arouse a refugee from Father's Day rather than "the fugitive from Kraft-Ebbing."

Field is a quaint comedian, getting terrific laughs when he says nothing, but just walks around with the sexual 'd.t.'s." Speaking with a sort of Sen. Dirksen mellifluousness, he could use a dash of Jack Lemmon to lighten the speaking part of his role and thus produce more a steady flow of humor. Irene's underplaying will also help.

Bred on stronger stuff, Gil De Rush takes a long time warming up to the lawyer role. He gets better as the situations start coming thick and fast. But there is still too much Hamletting when he debates whether to do or not to do... But as the author might say, all that "nekking" who has time for character analysis—or Hamletting?

Thomas Golden doubles as milkman and cab driver.

Hormones to Sex Play

LONDON (UPI)—Joe Orton, 31-year-old author of the sex-laden play "Entertaining Mr. Sloane," which opened at the New Arts Theater here on Wednesday, once had a job making sex hormones for a drug company.

BIRTH of a BILLION DOLLAR BABY

Twin-Jet DC9, Douglas Entry in World Jet Race, Will Fly in 1965

By LEE CRAIG
I, P-T Aviation Editor

The blunt-nosed shape of America's newest jet-age transport —destined for its first flight in less than a year—is slowly taking form at Douglas Aircraft Company's Long Beach plant.

And Douglas officials, despite their baby jet's late start in the highly competitive world market, still are confident that the DC9 eventually will be as great a success as its popular big brother, the DC8.

Of an estimated 1,000-plane market for short-haul jet transports, Douglas spokesmen anticipate 400 of these will be built in Long Beach.

At the basic price of slightly over $3 million per airplane, this means an addition to Douglas coffers of about $1.2 billion over the next 10 to 15 years.

THUS FAR, HOWEVER, potential airline purchasers have not exactly beaten down Douglas' doors to place orders for the sleek twin-jet craft.

To date, the company has a total of 24 orders and the same number of options from three carriers, plus a letter of intent to buy six more by another line.

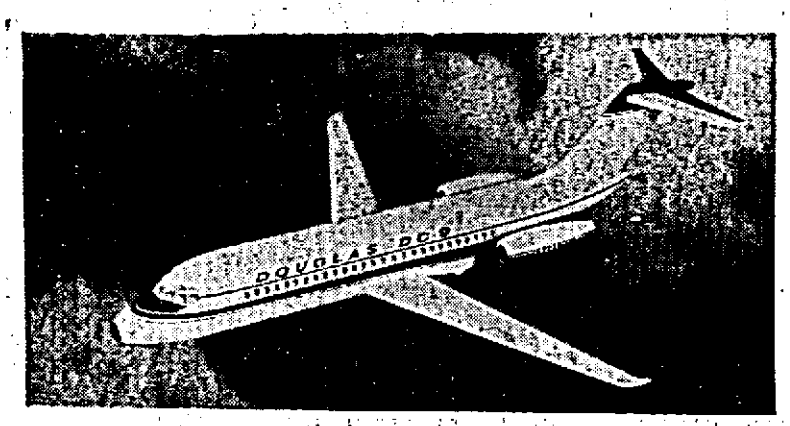

The DC9's British rival, the BAC-111, has received more than 40 orders from American carriers alone. And the European craft will begin deliveries even before the D9C's first flight next March.

BASIS FOR DOUGLAS optimism is the airlines' financial picture. Most lines, local officials say, are only now recovering from their heavy investments of a few years ago in their first jet equipment.

They'll be ready to buy, Douglas believes, just about the time DC9 deliveries begin in 1966.

Assembly of the first DC9 began here March 6. The upper and lower nose sub-assemblies are now nearly completed and ready for joining. The first ship will receive its wings next October.

ARTIST'S RENDERING of DC9 shows similarity with the Douglas jet's rival, the British BAC-111, shown below on its maiden flight last August. Two of British jets have since crashed.

Nearby Cities to Be Represented at L.B. Meeting

Glendale, San Diego, San Bernardino, Santa Ana and Lakewood are among a number of cities from which retailers will come to Long Beach to hear two top officials of the National Retail Merchants Association speak at a luncheon meeting Tuesday at the Lafayette Hotel, according to Harry Buffum, chairman for the event.

Carl N. Schmalz and J. Gordon Dakins, president and executive vice president, respectively, of N.R.M.A., will be featured speakers at the luncheon sponsored by the Downtown Long Beach Associates with Joe Shuff, president of DLBA, acting as presiding officer.

• • • •

THE N.R.M.A. officials will be on an eight-city national speaking tour which will end in Houston, Tex., at the end of this month.

The representation from Belmont Shore for the meeting will be led by Phil Hahn, from Los Altos by Martin Schurr and Bob Graham; from North Long Beach by Charles Dooley; and from Lakewood by Fred Sanchez.

Most of the members of the Long Beach City Council, V. Dovey, secretary to the mayor, as well as John Mansell, city manager, and Bob Creighton, assistant city manager, will be present to hear Schmalz and Dakins discuss the retail outlook for the second half of 1964.

• • • •

AFTER THE luncheon, Buffum, Shuff and Ike Sukman will accompany Schmalz and Dakins on a tour of the Long Beach harbor and points of interest in the city before they are taken to International Airport, Los Angeles, for their flight to Houston.

Bob Irvin, a public relations expert and member of DLBA, will act as guide on the tour.

Reservations for the no-host luncheon may be made by dialing the letters "H-E-L-P-E-R-S" for Downtown Long Beach Associates.

Management Systems Symposium All Set

"Management Plus System Equals Profit" is the theme of the first annual Management Systems Symposium to be held Friday at the Long Beach City College Business and Technology Division, 1305 E. Pacific Coast Hwy.

Opening at 9 a.m., in the campus Horseshoe Theater, the program will include three general sessions in the morning and three afternoon workshop groups.

Management specialists from many business firms in the greater Long Beach area are expected to attend, and registration will be limited to 150 persons.

• • • •

PRINCIPAL speakers at the general sessions will be J.W. Leisner, in charge of West Coast Operations, and George Ott, management controls specialist, both of Peat, Marwick, Mitchell & Co; Raymond B. Lake Jr., assistant administrator of Memorial Hospital of Long Beach; and David Gindoff of the accounting firm of Gindoff & Schwartz.

J.W. LEISNER — GEORGE OTT

R.B. LAKE JR. — DAVID GINDOFF

Topics will be "The Systems Approach to Better Management," "The Use of Systems in Decision Making" and "Automated Accounting for the Small Business."

Moderators for the afternoon workshops will be Robert Ankerman, Benjamin Breslauer, and Millard Cover, all management controls specialists.

• • • •

WORKSHOPS will deal with management systems for building contractors, small manufacturers and retail and service businesses.

Delegates to the one-day symposium will be welcomed by Clifton N. Patterson, dean of the Business and Technology Division, and Dr. Keith James, general coordinator for the program. Assisting will be members of the Paciolian Society, an organization of BTD students preparing for careers in accounting, data processing and business administration.

FHA Survey Yields Grove Housing Data

The Santa Ana Insuring Office of the Federal Housing Administration has surveyed all subdivisions in the Anaheim-Santa Ana-Garden Grove areas with five or more houses completed in 1963, according to Charles P. Deibel, director.

In the 383 subdivisions that met this criterion 16,846 houses had been completed during 1963 in price ranges from $10,000 to $35,000. The majority of the completed houses were in the $17,500 to $30,000 sale price range.

There were 2,473 houses sold before construction had started and 14,373 were built speculatively. Of those built speculatively, 11,265 were sold and 3,108 remained unsold on Jan. 1, 1964.

• • • •

OF THE 3,108 houses unsold available as of the survey date, 563 had been completed less than one month, 784 between two and three months, 941 between four and six months, and 820 between seven and 12 months.

The FHA office also reported 264 unsold houses that had been completed prior to 1963. These houses were in the $17,500 to $30,000 price range.

Builders reported 7,164 houses under construction in the 383 subdivisions canvassed on Jan. 1, 1964, according to Deibel; 4,822 of these had not been sold.

Printing Exhibit Set for June 7-13

The largest graphic arts display ever held in the United States will be staged June 7-13 at the Great Western Exhibit Center, Los Angeles.

Every important manufacturer of printing machinery in the country will have exhibits at the big WESTPRINT 64 show, according to Robert Black, director.

MISSING THE BOAT?

Opportunities Seen for Huntington Beach in Coastal Development

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Immense potentials in development of ocean frontage at Huntington Beach are seen by officials of the Stanford Research Institute.

In fact, they feel the city has somewhat 'missed the boat' in taking full advantage of tourist trade as its "biggest potential industry."

Stanford and city representatives discussed this and other aspects of future development recently at a luncheon meeting at the Huntington Beach Country Club.

• • • •

IN ATTENDANCE were Jack Higley, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce Industrial Committee; Ralph C. Kiser, industrial consultant and vice president; and William Gallienne, chamber manager, for the city; and E.L. Perkins and William T. Kopp, Institute officials.

While the conference was aimed primarily at how to set a better climate for industry in Huntington Beach, it was recognized that cutbacks in defense and military spending could hurt industry committed to government projects. Thus, it was deemed necessary to woo other industries not so affected by any declines in government spending.

GALLIENE pointed out that the city is fortunate to have two established industrial parks amounting to a thousand acres.

The Stanford men were enthusiastic about beach development possibilities and the proposed Huntington Beach Co. projects. They said the city has failed to take full advantage of the ocean frontage and urged a master plan program.

In their opinion:

Much more parking could be provided on the beach. City buildings could be put to a better evaluated use by the proper leasing.

The Municipal Pier could attract thousands of persons if private enterprise could develop attractions that would produce revenue.

• • • •

NO LONGER should the beach strand be used to satisfy a few concessionaires. Attractions that bring people to spend their vacations who in turn spend money for lodging, pleasure and entertainment soon create lease rentals, sales tax and put the beach area in a position to become a park of attractiveness.

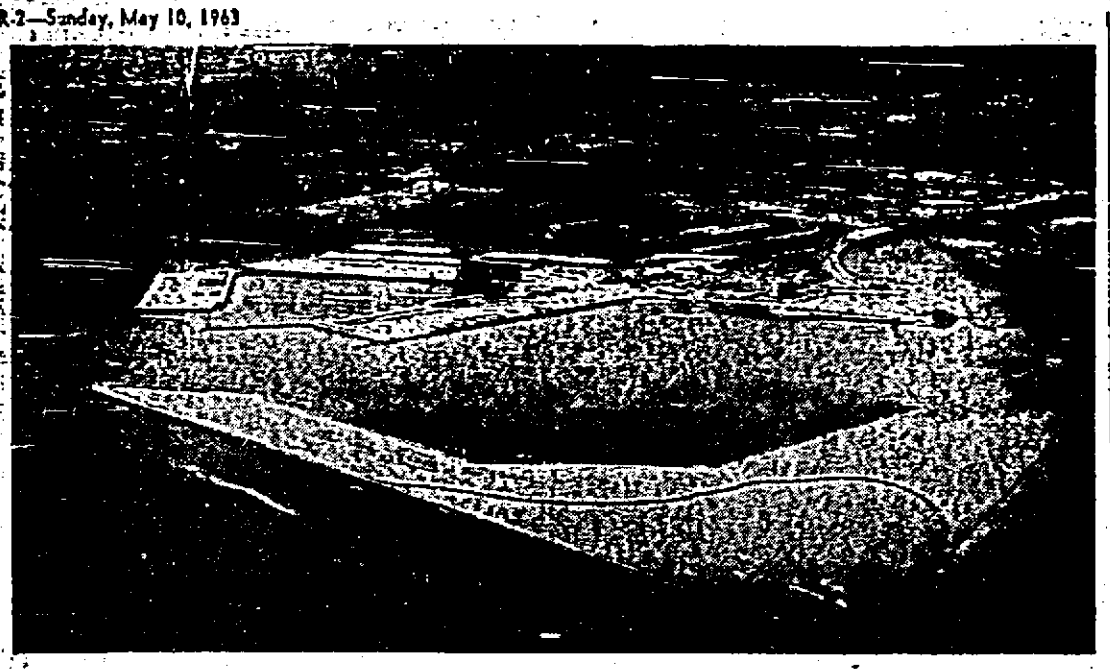

Huntington Beach must make up its mind, said the Stanford men, to launch a program of raising its standard of recreation and to produce the highest revenue from a commodity that everyone wants to partake of and enjoy.

Mechanic's Lien Law to Be Aired

A panel discussion on "Mechanic's Lien Law" will highlight the Monday night meeting of the Long Beach Builders' Exchange.

Preceded by a social hour, dinner will begin at 7 p.m. in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel, to be followed by the program.

Panel speakers will include Attorney Ven Fahrney; Jack Horner, Exchange manager; and Virgil E. Sewell, executive officer of the Belmont Savings & Loan Association.

PIER J 'SHAPING UP'
Aerial photograph made last week shows progress to date on 311-acre Pier J in the Port of Long Beach. Outline of the $20 million man-made peninsula is clearly visible (lighter area) extending across the photograph from left to right. All of the pier's land surface, composed of 33 million cubic yards of fill and three million tons of rock, will be out of the water by December, port officials report. Curving line in the foreground is dredge line. Pier is to be site of California World's Fair in 1967 or 1968.

$32 MILLION WORTH

West for Vacation, Meredith Stayed to Build Homes

By VERN ANTHONY
Southland Progress Editor

Opportunity really banged on the door for builder Eddy Meredith about 10 years ago when he came to California from New York City for a vacation.

Visiting in Orange County, he at once saw the area's growth potential. Fortune already had smiled on him as a builder of more than a thousand homes in suburban New York, but he gave up thoughts of retirement.

EDDY MEREDITH

He used personal funds to erect two split - level houses—first of such to be built in Orange County, records say.

These houses sold fast, convincing Meredith, and other builders, too, that the split-level concept would be popular with Southland home buyers.

Now, Meredith has sold some $32 million worth of houses in Orange County.

In rapid succession and with amazing success, Meredith, as sole owner of The Meredith Co., produced and sold out one development after another—the most recent ones being the $6 million Meredith Village and the $3.5 million Meredith Manor apartments in Fullerton.

He is opening in the Villa Park area on the outskirts of the City of Orange, known as Meredith Acres, another $6 million development.

Meredith Village is a community of 155 split-level and two-story homes located in Orange adjoining Santa Ana and Tustin and is practically sold out, having been opened in the summer of 1962.

He then developed and designed his luxury Meredith Manor Apartments in Fullerton—160 units.

This apartment community is located on 11 acres of completely landscaped park styled with four courts, each with a large heated pool.

MEREDITH MOVED IN $70,000 worth of 85-year-old Mission olive trees for shade and decorated the private patios and balconies with New Orleans style ornamental wrought iron. The courtyards are planted with lush grass and hundreds of flowering shrubs and plantings.

Meredith's latest and finest residential development, Meredith Acres, is another split-level and two-story community of approximately 150 homes ranging in price from $36,500 to $42,000. This is located in the Villa Park area but within the city limits of Orange.

"WE HAVE HAD on the drawing boards for some time now," Eddy Meredith stated, "another development with a brand new idea for the Huntington Beach area which will be in the neighborhood of a $13 million project."

When Meredith started building he was paying $6,000 per acre and he admits he is now paying as high as $23,500 an acre. "We believe that a prime location justifies the price and is essential to its success," Meredith stated.

One of Meredith's familiar statements is "We don't live with mistakes," so if he sees something in a Meredith project he thinks unsuitable he very often orders it ripped out. He says it is sometimes costly but he feels he would rather make less profit than sell what inevitably would bring his firm ill will.

IN ALL HIS DEVELOPMENTS Meredith insists on eye-appeal, quality, and livability.

A short review of Meredith's background includes his being a Wall Street brokerage house runner; schools through earning a law degree from New York University; service in the infantry in World War II; and in 1944 he established a chain of real estate and insurance agencies.

In 1945 he became a builder of homes in the suburban New York area and for 10 years he built hundreds of homes until he moved to California after the afore-mentioned vacation.

HE NOW LIVES in the Tustin area with his wife Violet and son Craig, who attends Tustin High School.

Meredith is a director and stockholder in a number of corporations including three savings and loan companies.

The one-time New Yorker no longer is thinking of retiring and has become one of Orange County's strongest boosters.

Says he: "There's a lot of building to be done yet to house the millions of future homebuyers in Orange County."

Oil Firm to Test Car-Rental Field

Humble Oil & Refining Co. has announced it will enter the car-rental field in the next few weeks in cooperation with a group of service-station dealers in five Eastern cities.

Humble's Eastern Region will provide the fleet of compact and standard cars to be used in the program. Rentals may be charged to Humble credit cards, or paid in cash, with no deposit required by a credit-card customer.

Humble said the project is an experiment. It will be launched by the oil company and dealers in the western suburbs of Boston, the Camden (New Jersey) area, and the combined Allentown-Bethlehem - Easton (Pennsylvania) areas.

TOM WARBURTON
BEST FOR APRIL

Born in Belfast, Ireland, and arrived on the shores of little old New York in 1926. Completed grade and high school education on Staten Island in 1937.

Worked in the construction business until entering the armed forces in 1942. Served with the Air Force for 4 years, 27 months of which was in the European area of operations. After his discharge, he purchased a restaurant and cocktail lounge on Staten Island which he operated successfully for 2 years until the call of the west got to him. Came to Long Beach in 1955 with his lovely wife, Libby, and now resides in the Wrigley District of Long Beach.

Tom says, "In my career in real estate I have met many wonderful people and believe my success in the business is attributed to the excellent training and sales aids provided by Walker & Lee. I am striving to personalize my dealings with my clients and at the close of a transaction have a new friendship and a satisfied client."

He tries to relax in his spare time by playing a bad game of golf and loves to putter around in the garden.

BILL WRAY
District Ad Club Head

Wray Heads Area Clubs

Bill Wray, manager of the Advertising Plans department of the Independent, Press-Telegram, was elected vice president of the Fifth District of the Advertising Association of the West at the annual conference at the Continental Hotel in Hollywood. He will be installed at the AAW Convention in Sun Valley, Idaho, in July.

For the next two years, Wray will represent the 1500 members of the 11 fifth district advertising clubs in Long Beach, Los Angeles, Hollywood, Pasadena, Orange County, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Bakersfield and Las Vegas.

Wray is a past president of the Advertising Club of Long Beach, and is also active in the American Academy of Advertising and Alpha Delta Sigma advertising fraternity.

Children Will Vie in Realtor Poster Contest

The Long Beach District Board of Realtors, in conjunction with Realtor Week which will be May 24-30, is sponsoring a poster contest.

All children ages 6 to 12 are welcome to enter. The theme is "What My Home Will Be Like."

Posters must be drawn with the theme in mind, on 12" x 18" paper and should be made with crayons, colored chalk, water paint or oil paint. The name, age and address should be on the back of each poster.

The contest began May 1, and all posters must be in by 5 p.m., May 18. Contestants may take their completed posters to their nearest Realtor or deliver them to the 3747 Long Beach Blvd. Twenty-seven awards will be made.

All posters will be on display at the board office at "open house" on May 30.

Start Trade Mission to Six Nations

Five members of the Society of Industrial Realtors departed last week from [illegible] where they will conduct a unique trade mission to six countries under official sponsorship of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

They have assembled a giant portfolio of 200 investment properties in the United States totaling about $500 million which will be offered to leading European investors.

J. D. Sawyer, Middletown, Ohio, is mission chairman. He was appointed to replace C. Pat Lumpkin, Houston, who died on April 18.

★ ★ ★ ★

OTHER MEMBERS of the mission—all members of the Society and the American Chapter, International Real Estate Federation — are A. Kyle Bettilyon, Salt Lake City; James Q. Brett, San Francisco; J. J. Harrington Jr., Chicago; and Harold B. Hess, Philadelphia.

This will be the first mission of its kind under the industry - sponsored, government-approved trade mission program conducted by the Department of Commerce to expand foreign markets through increased sales of U.S. goods and services and established agencies of representation abroad.

Plan State Convention

Plans for the state convention of the California Employment Agencies Association, to be held at Long Beach in September, are being coordinated by the local South Coast Chapter.

Nearly 400 persons are expected at the four-day convention. Headquarters will be at the Edgewater Marina Inn.

Program details were discussed at a recent meeting called by Sally Haines, convention chairman. Committee heads include Claire Comody, chairman of publicity and hotel arrangements; James Hackfield, entertainment; and Laura Glascock, hospitality.

Cooperating in the planning is Kathy Milbrand of the Long Beach Convention Bureau. George Amey is chapter president.

Moon Program to Need Workers

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —In March 1964, the working population at this missile and space center was about 29,000. Experts forecast it will increase to 48,000 by 1966 as the Apollo man-to-the-moon program enters its early test launching phase.

More Tobacco Raised Per Acre

ATHENS, GA. (AP) — For the first time in history, Georgia farmers have produced more than a ton of tobacco per acre.

The Crop Reporting Service of the University of Georgia says farmers passed the one-ton-an-acre mark in 1963 with a yield of 2,003 pounds —503 pounds above the goal set for 1965.

Loan Firm Building at Costa Mesa

First Federal Savings & Loan Association of Alhambra has started construction of a $300,000, two-story building to house its Costa Mesa staff and office facilities on the northeast corner of Harbor Boulevard and Palm Drive, adjacent to the Orange Coast College.

Completion is planned for early fall of the 10,000-square-foot building featuring a community room with accommodations for more than 100 persons, according to First Federal president, A. G. Kruse.

The building, designed by the firm of Thomas & Richardson of Santa Ana, will be of contemporary construction with an accent on Spanish styling. Including a mission tile roof as the dominant feature of the design, Kruse noted.

First Federal Savings of Alhambra will construct the $300,000 new building pictured above in artist's sketch for its Costa Mesa office staff and facilities. Location is at northeast corner of Harbor Boulevard, Palm Drive.

Using water on wood floors is the quickest way to ruin their natural beauty and reduce their useful life, warns the National Association of Home Builders.

Caddy Reports

SHELBYVILLE, Ky. (AP)—It was a nip and tuck golf match between W. W. Curtis and Jim Fulton.

As they prepared to tee off at one hole, the pro, Evan Settle, walked up to Curtis' caddy and asked: "How do they stand?"

The caddy, a newcomer to golf, threw back his shoulders and replied, "Why, they stands up straight, like this."

Announce Winners in Contest

BELLFLOWER—Dan Keulen, chairman of the high school essay contest of the Bellflower District Board of Realtors, has announced that school winners have been notified and invited to receive their awards of $25 U.S. Savings Bonds at the breakfast meeting of the board to be held Thursday at the Student Center, Cerritos College, beginning at 7:30 a.m.

Writing on the subject of, "The Home is the Heart and Hope of the Nation," the following students were judged to have submitted the best essay from their respective schools: Mayfair High, Sylvia Keulen, age 14 and a ninth grade student; Bellflower High, Craig Pottenger, 16, in the 11th grade; Artesia High, Don Burnett; Paramount Junior High, Patricia Cannon; Valley Christian High, Nita De Velder, 16, an 11th grade student; and Paramount High, Linda Rude, 16, and in the 11th grade.

• • • •

THESE SIX students will compete for the additional $100 bond that will be awarded for the best overall essay. Winner of the $100 bond will be announced at the breakfast meeting, also.

The essay of the overall winner then will be submitted in the statewide competition of the California Real Estate Association.

May Co. Reports on Finances

ST. LOUIS — The annual report of The May Department Stores Co., recently mailed to stockholders, reports capital expenditures during 1963 of $35,200,000 including $3,400,000 net advances to partially owned partnerships for shopping center construction. Capital expenditures in 1962 were $17,600,000.

The May company's record sales and earnings for the fiscal year ended Jan. 31, 1964, were made public earlier this month. Net sales were $723,714,000, 2 percent above the previous record of $709,652,000 established in the year ended Jan. 31, 1963.

• • • •

NET EARNINGS amounted to $30,663,000, or $4.23 per share of common stock, compared with $24,790,000, or $3.40 per share, in the previous year.

Working capital at Jan. 31, 1964 amounted to $214,887,000 compared with $222,426,000 a year earlier.

The May Company report comments that the reduction "reflects the expenditure for new stores and other facilities of funds accumulated for that purpose."

The ratio of current assets to current liabilities was 3.5 to 1 at Jan. 31, 1964 compared with 3.9 to 1 at Jan. 31, 1963.

Mould Named to National Institute

Melvin L. Mould, past president of the Long Beach District Board of Realtors, has been appointed local representative of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, the headquarters office in Chicago announced last week.

M. L. MOULD

The Institute—comprised of 17,000 Realtors—is the largest affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards and has as its main objective of education of its members to serve the public better.

One of Mould's most important duties will be to stimulate panel discussions on brokerage problems at real estate board meetings and during the state conventions.

Mould is the owner of Mould Realty, which consists of four offices located at 5541 E. Spring St. and 6251 Cherry Ave., Long Beach, and at 5786 South St. and 4523 Paramount Blvd., both in Lakewood.

The average American house is bombarded with 100,000 pounds of rain and snow a year.

Downtown Apartment Opening Set

Grand opening will be held May 17 for the new four-story Linden Towers condominium apartment building at 250 Linden Ave. in downtown Long Beach, it has been announced by Russell Mangum Co., owner.

The 25 unit building has been subdivided as a genuine condominium, according to Mangum, and buyers will receive grant deeds as with a conventional house.

The building is all-electric and there are one and two-bedroom units.

Special eye-catcher is the glassed-in four-story stairway at the northwest corner, with the stairs visible to passersby. There is elevator service and garages on the first floor.

Condominium units are bought, mortgaged, sold and taxed individually, with common ownership of various facilities in the building.

Sign May Help Residents Sleep

LAKE HELEN, Fla. (AP)—A new crossroads sign pointing to Interstate Highway 4 is helping Lake Helen folk catch up on their sleep.

Residents of the area, southwest of Daytona Beach, complained to officials that motorists were waking them up at all hours to ask directions to I-4.

WORLD MOTOR CENSUS

Vehicle Registration Up 12,205,500 Last Year

Last year saw the greatest 12-month increase in world motor registration since the invention of the automobile, reports Automobile International in its annual World Motor Census.

Between Jan. 1, 1963 and Jan. 1, 1964, the number of cars, trucks and buses in operation around the world increased by 12,205,500 to a total of 158,395,700.

Largest concentration of vehicle registrations is in the United States. At the beginning of 1964, the total was 83,500,000, an increase of 4,477,100 over the 1963 figure.

Western Europe has the second largest vehicle registration with 41,561,600; third is Asia with 7,286,900, followed by Canada, 6,252,900; Other Americas, 6,180,700; Communist Bloc, 6,165,500; Oceania, 4,212,800, and Africa, 3,205,300.

During 1963, two more nations joined the million-and-over ranks—Mexico and the Netherlands — bringing this group to a total of 16.

Record 1,723 Attend Housing Conference

Largest conference of its kind in the history of the housing industry was held last week at the Palladium in Hollywood, with 1,723 in attendance.

Need for new concepts including planned developments and condominiums was emphasized by a parade of speakers, many rated as national authorities.

Occasion was the First Regional Conference on Planned Developments, Condominiums and Cluster Housing for the West.

• • • •

DISCUSSIONS centered on ways to house the 150 million new population expected in this country by the year 2000.

Speakers viewed planned developments and condominiums as among the best new solutions in major metropolitan areas, but they stressed the need for new concepts and new ingenuity in creating better ways to use land and better ways to building housing units.

Thirty-eight leaders in the home building industry, and allied activities, presented talks and answered questions at the one-day meeting sponsored by the Home Builders Association of Los Angeles, Orange and Ventura Counties.

A total of 1,723 home builders, lenders, planners, state, county and city officials, and title executives from 14 western and mid-western states attended.

This was the largest conference of its kind in the history of the home building industry, said Robert A. Olin, president of the Home Builders Association, exceeding the previous record set by the HBA at its 1963 condominium conference at Disneyland Hotel with an attendance of 1,200.

• • • •

MAJOR controversial problems of jurisdiction and procedure in California were aired, with the three California commissioners involved meeting head-on the complaints of home builders in a tension-packed morning session. This long expected duel ended in a draw with each group in the same position as at the beginning of the conference.

The commissioners were Milton G. Gordon, California real estate commissioner; Charles E. Rickershauser, corporations commissioner; and Frederick E. Balderston, savings and loan commissioner.

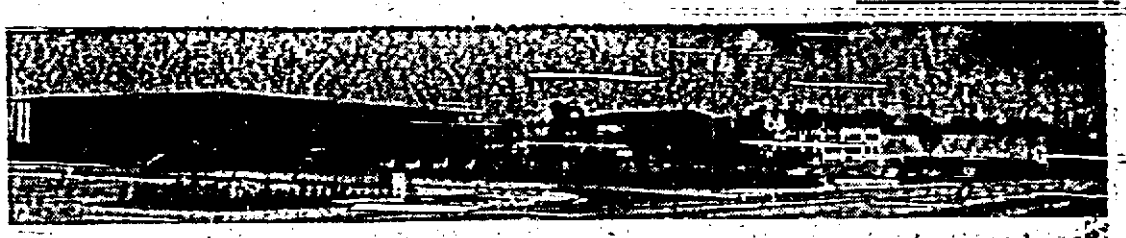

The commissioners committed their organizations to simplification of procedures and forms and extensive clarification of rules and regulations.

Artesia Boy Wins CBA Certificate

Bill Lanting, 17, a senior at Artesia High School, has been awarded the California Bankers Association's Certificate of Merit for being selected as the school's outstanding Future Farmer of America for 1963-64.

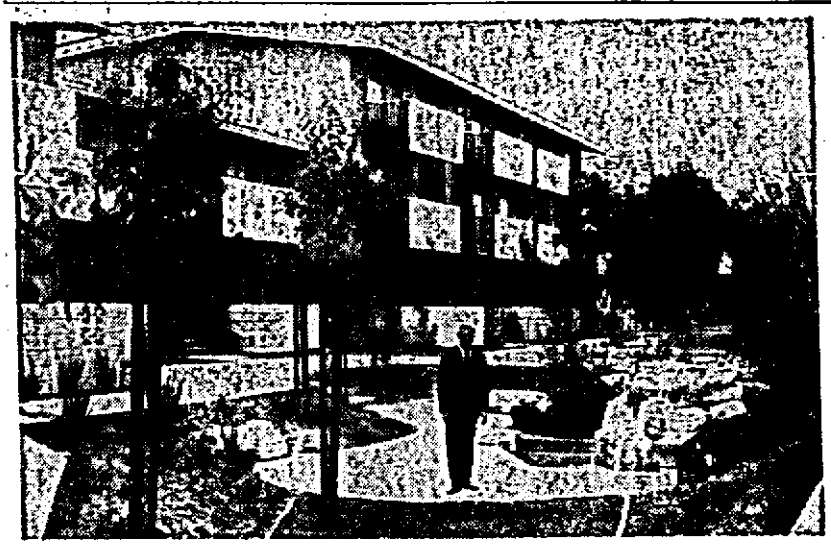

The presentation was made by Don M. Kruse, CBA representative and assistant vice president of Security First National Bank, at the annual Parent-Son Banquet held at Knott's Berry Farm.

Lanting is the son of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Lanting of 12321 East 166th St., Artesia.

NEW $7 MILLION JET OVERHAUL BASE FOR PAN AM AT MIAMI

Here is the sprawling, modern industrial complex that makes up Pan American Airways' new $7 million jet maintenance and overhaul facility in Miami, Fla. It will be dedicated Saturday. Extreme left is the administration building, headquarters for the worldwide airline's Latin-American Division. At extreme right is the two-block-long maintenance building, housing shops, supply warehouse, engineering and production offices and other facilities. In center are previously existing hangars, with which the new maintenance plant has been consolidated. The maintenance-hangar complex contains 660,000 square feet, the equivalent of 14 football fields.

AT GARDEN GROVE

New Malabar Garden Apartments, 9777 Bixby Ave., Garden Grove, will have grand opening May 17. Co-owner Dana Andrews, actor, stands in foreground. Complex has 126 units, cost $2.5 million.

Actor Will Open New Apartment Complex May 17

Actor Dan Andrews, whose $2.5-million Malabar Garden Apartments complex in Garden Grove opens May 17, went into the real estate development business four years ago "almost in self-defense."

And today his new-found enterprise bids fair to transcend his 24-year career as a stage and film star.

"I need tax deductions," he explained, simply.

But Andrews, who lives in Palos Verdes, didn't merely invest his money and let others do the spadework. He burrowed into his new field avidly, taking UCLA real estate courses at night while making movies by day.

• • • •

IT STARTED in 1960 after he completed a long stage run in a play. He picked up a copy of a book on success in real estate, and soon became engrossed in it.

"It was explicit, written for the inexperienced," he said. "I studied the formula—take the money you have as a down payment on property, double the value by fixing it up, then trade up for a down payment on another.

"Suddenly everything became clear. I studied more and learned how to appraise property and how to use other people's money."

• • • •

HE TERRIFIED his wife, Mary, when, proudly clutching his UCLA certificates, he mortgaged their home to put $50,000 down on a $300,000 North Hollywood apartment building.

He disposed of it recently for a $150,000 net profit. He converted his Toluca Lake estate to income property and sold that. He began buying apartments until he had 15 in operation.

Now he is branching into office buildings and shopping centers. The Malabar is his biggest project to date, and it is the realization of a four-year dream to join the Orange County business community.

• • • •

"I'VE LONG FELT that Orange County was going to explode like a firecracker," he said. "I'm just sorry it has taken me so long to hop on the bandwagon."

Malabar 12 building apartment complex is located on 5½ acre parcel at 9777 Bixby Ave. It cost $2.5 million and contains 126 rental units with from one to three bedrooms. Jack M. Okean, Hollywood builder, is partner with Andrews in the development.

Andrews, who was on hand for a recent press preview, later went to Spain to do a movie.

Walker & Lee Promotes Mangan

Thomas J. Mangan Jr., of Anaheim has been promoted to district managership of the Lakewood-Long Beach area for Walker & Lee, Inc. The appointment covers management of the offices at Carson Street, Dutch Village, Los Altos, Los Alamitos, Park Estates and Woodruff Center.

Mangan recently was named "Manager of the Year," winning the company's 1963 management efficiency award.

He leaves his position as manager of the real estate sales agency's Euclid-Katella office, Anaheim, to take over the post vacated by the recent resignation of Oliver Speraw.

WOMAN WINS TRIP TO WORLD'S FAIR

Mrs. Irene Gatewood of 2061 Daisy Ave. was winner of grand prize awarded during opening of City National Bank at Fourth Street and Long Beach Boulevard. She won trip for two to New York World's Fair. At left is David G. Becker, bank vice president and manager. At right is Mrs. Gatewood's husband, Jack, who plans to accompany her to fair late next month. More than 3,000 persons visited bank on opening day.

MUSHROOMS GROW IN DARKENED HOTHOUSE

SOUTHLAND'S LARGEST MUSHROOM 'PAD'

This is an exclusive aerial view of Huntington Beach's mushroom farm that "grew like Topsy." The 24 shed-like "houses" are each divided into two growing sections in which plants are seeded, nurtured to maturity and harvested. (Photo was snapped by a passing aviator.)

BUSINESS PROFILE

Orange County Has One of Largest Mushroom Farms

By BOB BAUGHEY

Mushrooms are NOT parasol-shaped clouds that appear after a nuclear bomb explosion.

They are delectable vegetables which, when introduced to meats and salads, add a special "oomph" to good dining.

When you buy a small package of mushrooms at your local market the chances are overwhelming that they were grown in Orange County.

To be more specific, they could be the succulent produce of one of the largest mushroom farms in the country, Ocean View Mushroom Growers, Inc., of Huntington Beach.

• • • •

FOUNDED 10 years ago by Victor Emanuel Di Steffano, the farm occupies 15 company-owned acres on Golden West Street south of Talbert Avenue.

Utilizing more than 150,000 square feet of hothouse and other structural space, the farm produces and markets approximately 1,250,000 pounds of mushrooms per year.

Vic Di Steffano, whose father's 40 years in the mushroom growing business near Philadelphia (the American industry was founded there in 1904) gave him "the idea" after his return from World War II.

In the then unincorporated areas of Hawthorne he made a back yard start in the spring of 1946.

• • • •

THREE YEARS later he moved to Whittier, winding up there with 150,000 square feet (a little under three and one-half acres) of leased land. His present company, of which he is president, has two other stockholders, Morris B. Pendleton of San Marino and Miss Evelyn Andra of Los Angeles.

Mushrooms, a food delicacy discovered during Roman times, are really a fungus of which the spores, or seeds, are a botanical element known as mycelium.

They are grown in hotbeds of composte made of straw "seasoned" with gypsum, "brewer's grain" and sometimes a dash of peat.

• • • •

THE HOTHOUSES are kept in complete darkness except when workmen wearing battery operated miners' headlamps enter to harvest the adult plants.

A fixed hothouse temperature and humidity are "musts" in mushroom growing.

When full-grown plants are picked (they are not plucked from the bed, but twisted off of the secondary root section) they are taken to a packaging room where they are sorted for size, cleaned and boxed.

• • • •

THE COMPANY'S largest account is Safeway Stores, Inc., which operates approximately 250 markets in Southern California between Santa Maria and the Mexican border.

Approximately 75 per cent of the farm's output goes to the food chain. The balance is sold by brokers to other markets and to restaurants.

The company does not engage in retail sales.

FLAVOR NO PROBLEM

All mushrooms, regardless of size, have the same epicurean taste. Vic Di Steffano tilts up a box in the "cold room" awaiting shipment.

Geis Named as Branch Manager

Rex L. Hodges Realty Co. has appointed Joseph F. Geis as branch manager for the company's Eastside Sales Center, according to Robert C. Westmyer, firm president.

JOSEPH GEIS

Geis joined the firm in 1961 as a sales associate with the North Long Beach office and in 1963 became assistant manager of the Eastside branch. He has served on the board of directors of Long Beach District Board of Realtors and is on the membership and attendance committee.

bank. Hunter succeeds William H. McGinnis, who died recently. A bank officer for seven years, Hunter comes to his new post from Encinitas, where he was assistant manager.

ADVICE on how to use "leverage" (other people's money) to build a personal financial empire has generat- appearances by Long Beach ed popular demand for public real estate man Robert Westmyer. President of Rex L. Hodges Realty Co., Westmyer has appeared before more than 20 California groups to give his formula on how to develop "real estate investment opportunities."

OMER D. AKIN last week marked his 35th year with Bank of America. Akin is assistant cashier in the lending department at the bank's Belmont Shore branch, a post he has held since 1951. A bank officer for nearly 17 years, Akin began his career in Long Beach.

JOHN ADAM GIBSON has occupied a suite of offices in the 10-story, all-electric Long Beach Edison Building at 100 Long Beach Blvd. Gibson's activities are concentrated in the shopping center development field, and to some extent in general real estate development and leasing.

CHARLES B. WATSON has joined Kit Manufacturing Co., Inc., as a mobilehome sales representative for the Kit/Pacific Division, according to W. W. Walther, sales manager for the Long Beach plant.

Indian Village Restaurant Will Open Soon at Torrance

MILLION-DOLLAR TORRANCE PROJECT
Scale model of million-dollar dining-commercial complex, the Smith Bros. Indian Village, is inspected by designer Lyle Wheeler, Mrs. Virginia Smith Haack (center) and Miss Evelyn Smith, president of project being built by Smith Bros. Fish Shanty Inc. Indian Village Restaurant, initial phase of six-acre development to be managed by Mrs. Haack, opens late this month at 4020 Pacific Coast Hwy., Torrance.

TORRANCE—Nearing completion is the initial phase of a three-part dining-commercial complex, the Indian Village in Torrance, according to the Smith Bros. Fish Shanty, Inc., of Port Washington, Wis., and Southern California, which also revealed master plans for the $1 million program.

The six-acre site for the development is located at 4020 Pacific Coast Hwy.

First phase of the project is the Smith Bros. Indian Village Restaurant, whose construction is progressing rapidly, and its opening at the end of May is anticipated.

• • • •

GENERAL design and decorative scheme of the complex will be American Indian, an original motif to which the two-story restaurant's interior and exterior also will conform.

Architect on the project is Carrington H. Lewis, AIA, of Torrance, while the contractor is Sherman Johnson of El Monte.

The sprawling complex is a project of a long-range program, discloses Mrs. Virginia Smith Haack, a prominent member of the Smith family and manager of the restaurant in the past and the future.

• • • •

PRESIDENT of the Indian Village is Miss Evelyn Smith, founder of the restaurant corporation. In 1947, she opened the Smith Bros. Fish Shanty in Torrance on whose foundation now rises the Indian Village Restaurant, anad she still is active in the business that also includes Fish Shanty restaurants on La Cienega Blvd., Los Angeles, and in Port Washington, Wis. These operations are branches of the Smiths' commercial fisheries.

Phases one and two for commercial units in Torrance still are on the drawing boards, but plans are being stepped up to meet the needs of prospective tenants and those already accommodated in existing buildings.

• • • •

MEANWHILE, the restaurant has been under construction during the past seven months, moving swiftly over the site where the Fish Shanty was razed last September.

NO TWO-STORY RESIDENCES

'Live Low and Like It' Is Theme of Somerset Homes

A Southland builder is challenging the eastern invasion of two-story homes!

"Our western way of life still is preferred by many people—and that means we should continue to build a good percentage of one-story homes," declares a spokesman for the Twaits-Wittenberg Co., a noted California construction firm.

At their Somerset home development in the western Orange County community of Cypress, TW is showing a blended-with-the-land, one-story home with four bedrooms and two baths priced at $27,000 with excellent terms.

"We are using the slogan, 'Live low and like it'," the company representative declared. ". . . and you'd be surprised how many people do prefer one-floor living. There are no stairs, no upstairs cleaning, no heights to pose a threat to youngsters."

• • • •

IN THEIR attractive 1650 square foot home, the builders have included wall-to-wall carpet with a striking tile entry.

Directly opposite the front door, the visitor encounters an "atrium," one of the unique aspects of this cleverly designed home. The "atrium" is a glass-walled section of the outdoors that penetrates into the center of the home with rich green plantings to lighten up the interior.

Completely equipped kitchens feature built-in range and oven with automatic clock and rotisserie, dishwasher and disposer. The living room is spacious, the bedrooms spotted so that adults can entertain friends without disturbing sleeping children.

• • • •

LOCATED in a pleasantly rural area that is surrounded by Long Beach, Lakewood and Los Angeles, the Somerset development offers a life of relaxation within the busy metropolis.

To visit the Somerset homes take Lakewood Blvd., to Carson, turn right to Moody and right again to the attractive models.

Future Construction Still 'Firm' in U.S.

Contracts for future construction in the United States in March totaled $4,214,545,000, an increase of 18 per cent compared to the like 1963 month, F. W. Dodge Co., a division of McGraw-Hill Inc., reported last week.

The Dodge Index (1957-59 equals 100) for March was 140, down three index points from the February value.

• • • •

"CONTRACT totals are continuing to show very large percentage gains over year-ago levels," declared George A. Christie, Dodge senior economist.

Big Treasure Trove Homes Have Appeal

Featuring extra-large rooms and a host of built-in features, Treasure Trove Homes in Fountain Valley are moderately priced from $26,475, which includes full title to the land, not a leasehold and Sam A. Brown, sales agent for the homes, stresses the many varied stylings provided which offer up to 2331 square feet. Living rooms as big as 22' by 16' have great appeal and in some models there is a "growing room" 25' by 29'.

• • • •

THE PEARL, a two-story model, has three bedrooms, two baths, a family room and the growing room. The Sapphire has four bedrooms, two baths, and full dining room. The Ruby, a rambling design, has five bedrooms, two baths and a family/dining room. The Emerald, another two-story model has four bedrooms, three baths and family room while the Diamond model has four bedrooms, three baths, master bedroom, dining room and den.

Found at the homes are such features as Bigelow carpeting, concrete patios and drives, dishwasher and disposal, extra-large entry halls, forced-air heating, large two-car garage with extra work space, fireplace, rear yard is fenced with gate and the kitchens have top quality Tappan built-ins including roomy wall oven.

From Long Beach drive east on Seventh St. to Brookhurst St., then south to Ellis Ave., and the homes. Or drive Pacific Coast Hwy., through Huntington Beach to Brookhurst St., and north to Ellis.

NLB Realty Club Plans Open Forum

The North Long Beach Real Estate Club meeting Thursday will be an open forum with Alice Hodick, owner of Jerry's Realty, as program chairman.

Salesmen and brokers are invited to bring up their problems and complaints, to make any suggestions and to encourage frank discussion among the club members.

The meeting starts at 8 a.m. at the Midnight Sun Restaurant, 5925 Cherry Ave.

Single Payment Plans OK'd for Growth Fund

Single Payment Plans for accumulation of shares of Keystone Growth Fund have been cleared for sale in California by the State Commissioner of Corporations.

The plans are sponsored by Keystone Accumulation Plans, Inc., and investments will be supervised by Keystone Custodian Funds, Inc., 32-year-old investment organization which now manages more than $840,000,000 for 230,000 mutual fund shareholders.

Keystone economists, it was said, feel that the business outlook for the rest of this year is good. The tax cut, which applies to both individuals and corporations, is a big factor in this optimism. Reduction in corporate taxes carries the implication of special benefits for the stock market. Latest encouraging development is the progress made toward settling the railroad issues.

• • • •

CALIFORNIANS already are the largest holders of Keystone Funds in the nation. At the latest tabulation, 54,318 California residents owned Keystone shares valued at $142,314,698.

Key benefits offered by the new single payment plans were outlined recently by Peter B. Sholley of Boston, executive vice president of the sponsoring company, at a Stock Exchange Club luncheon in Los Angeles.

Louis A. Vachon Jr., vice president and west coast manager of Keystone, introduced Sholley.

All distributions may be reinvested without sales charge for not less than 30 years, Sholley said. If financial emergencies arise, up to 90 per cent of the investor's accumulated shares may be withdrawn or redeemed in cash and replaced later without sales charge.

• • • •

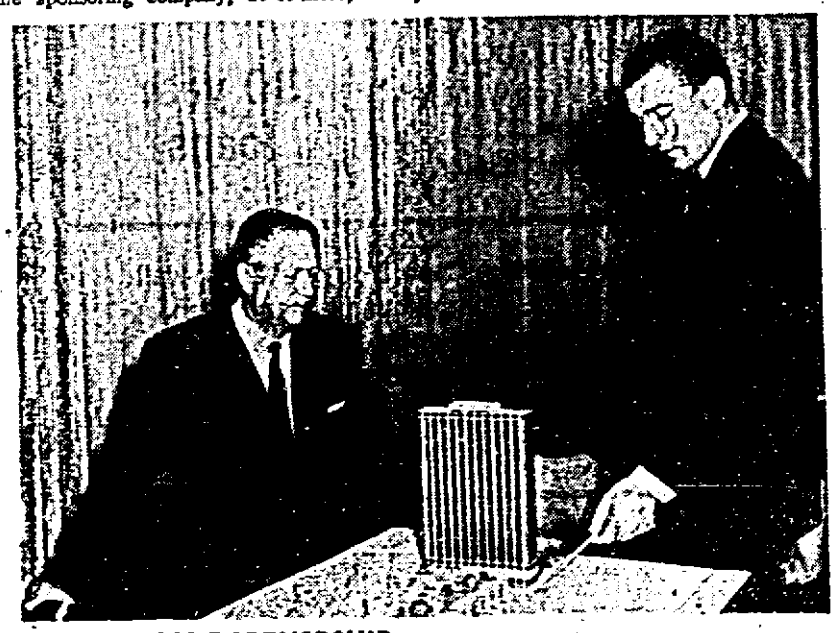

THERE IS no maximum to the plan program, and under a combined purchase privilege the sales charge on additional Single Payment Plan purchases will be reduced when the total market value of the previously purchased plans and the face value of the new plan reaches or exceeds $25,000.

A special conversion privilege will permit an investor to convert from Keystone Growth Fund to Keystone Income Fund for a $5 service fee should his investment objective change at some future time.

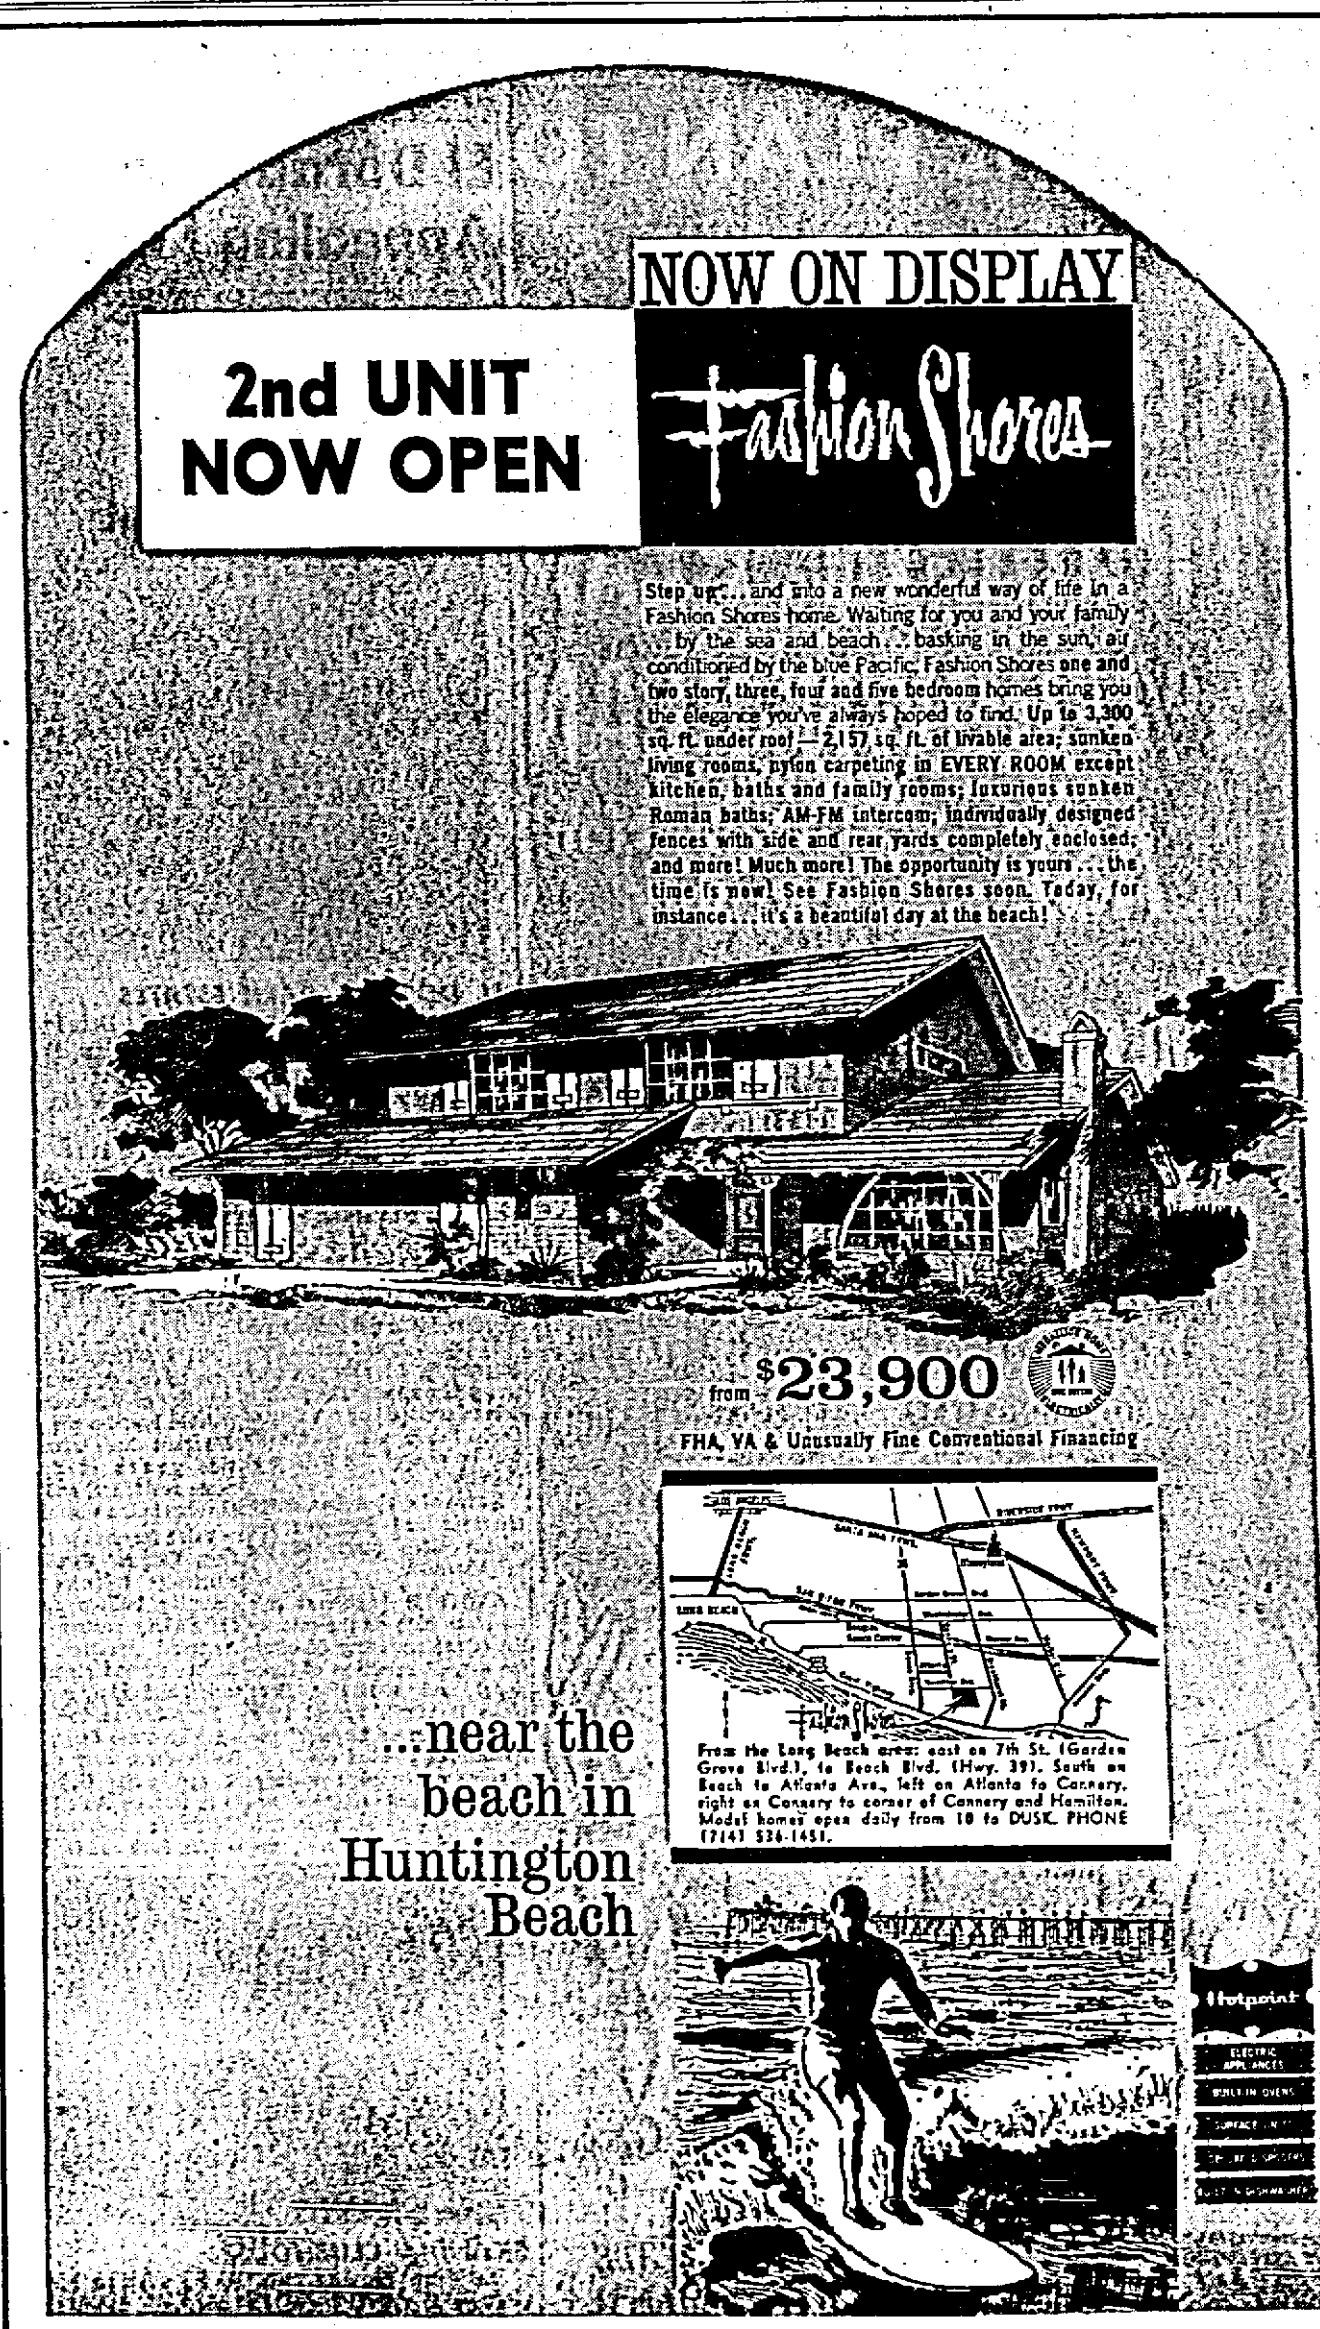

Keystone also has a systematic withdrawal plan which provides a check each month from Single Payment Plans whose value is $5,000 or more, Sholley said.

FATHER, SON PARTNERSHIP
Architect Hugh Gibbs (left) has announced that his son Donald (right) has become a partner in the Long Beach firm founded by the father in 1932. Photo shows them examining model of 38-story Taper Tower apartment project they have designed. Ground-breaking for Tower on Ocean Boulevard site is scheduled for this fall. It would be tallest building in the Southland. Donald Gibbs is a graduate of USC's School of Architecture and worked for a number of architectural organizations in Southern California and Hawaii prior to joining his father's firm three years ago.

Royal Coachline Big Homes Draw

The two-story home has proven its popularity in the new King Edward Series of Royal Coachline Homes, states Mark Pitman, developer of the new Anaheim community. "Many of our associates were skeptical about building a subdivision consisting of nothing but two-story homes. However, the excellent response to the new King Edward Series has proven our judgment to be correct," added Pitman.

Offering 17 exterior designs and four spacious floor plans, the new Royal Coachline Homes are two-story three and four bedrooms, all with large family rooms and two baths.

The homes are priced from $26,500 to $28,900 and can be purchased on terms on conventional financing. FHA and Cal-Vet terms are also available.

• • • •

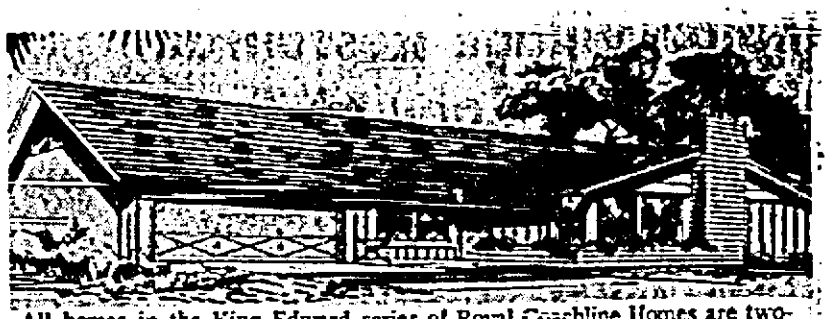

AMONG outstanding features in the new King Edward Series is wall-to-wall carpeting of 100% nylon in the living rooms, dining rooms, bedrooms, halls and stairways, custom block wall completely fenced rear yard with gate and lawns planted front and sides.

The luxury kitchens of the new series feature built-in gas range and oven with triple rotisserie and exhaust fan over range and are already piped for gas refrigeration, gas dryer and gas log-lighter. These kitchens also include dishwasher and disposal. The large cabinets offer a choice of driftwood, provincial, walnut or birch woods. The bar and sink tops are of self-edged Formica and the flooring is of all-new metallic vinyl asbestos tile.

• • • •

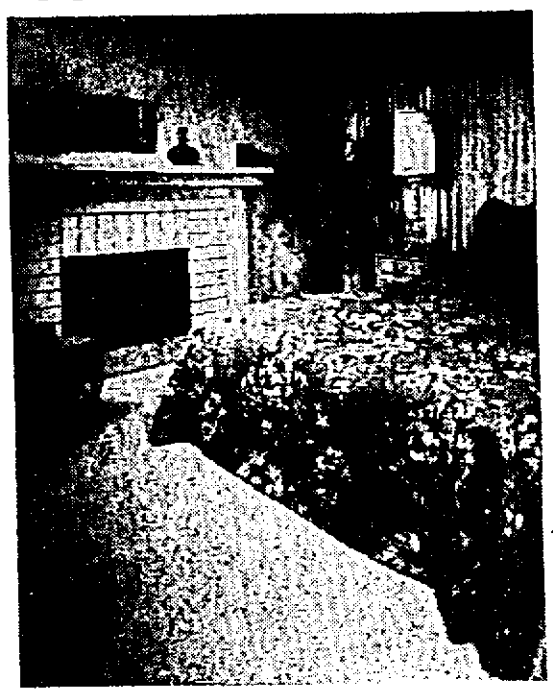

OTHER FEATURES include large pool-size lots, oversize garages with plenty of storage space. Baths are roomy, with marble-topped Pullmans, vanity and dressing tables, Mr. and Mrs. sinks with Dreslyn basins. There are entry halls, hardwood paneling, custom made light fixtures and hardware, forced air heating, glass sliding doors, hand print wallpapers by Van Luit and others and quality paints by W. P. Fuller.

From Santa Ana Freeway, interested viewers may drive on Ball Road to State College Blvd., turn left (north) to Lincoln Avenue, then right on Lincoln to Sunkist and left (north) to furnished models. Visitors driving from the Riverside Freeway turn off on State College Blvd. to Lincoln (south) and left to Sunkist then left again to models.

All homes in the King Edward series of Royal Coachline Homes are two-story models. Here is one of the homes in Anaheim which are offered by developer Mark Pitman.

El Dorado Homes in Appealing Location

EL DORADO PARK ESTATES
Master bedroom in plan 202 at El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach is shown here. Room's focal point is natural wood-burning fireplace. Living room in this plan has another fireplace.

Successful residential development is the result of the builder's application of several important rules, pointed out an official of El Dorado Park Estates in Long Beach.

"The first rule should be the selection of a desirable location," said the spokesman.

El Dorado Park Estates are adjacent to a lovely city park and golf course. "The park is being developed by the City of Long Beach and eventually will be one of the largest in the city."

Schools, churches, entertainment and shopping are within close reach of the neighborhood.

• • • •

ANOTHER important rule we place high on the priority list is the necessity of offering a wide selection of functional and attractive floor plans that will appeal to a cross-section of buyers," the spokesman pointed out.

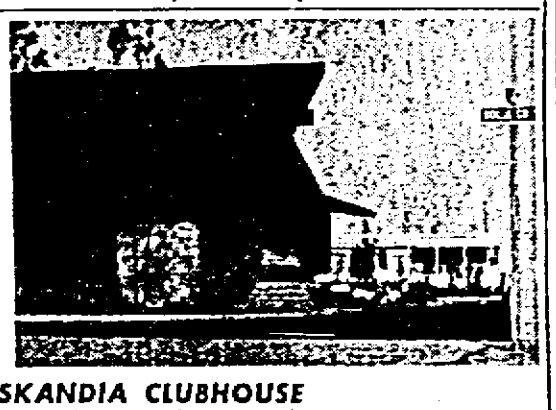

Large one-story, two-story, split-level and tri-level designs, with three, four and five bedrooms comprise the outstanding selection and some are built with a formal dining room and large family rumpus room or both. In the family room is included a handy wet-bar, making it an ideal entertainment center in the home.

• • • •

"IT'S AXIOMATIC we adhere to top quality," he said, "quality of workmanship and reliable brand-name products. We want these homes to provide years of meaningful home residence, and increase in value in the ensuing years."

Value features in El Dorado Park Estates' dwellings are efficiency kitchens with gleaming built-in appliances, stunning custom-designed electrical fixtures, genuine marble topped pullman lavatories, and many more.

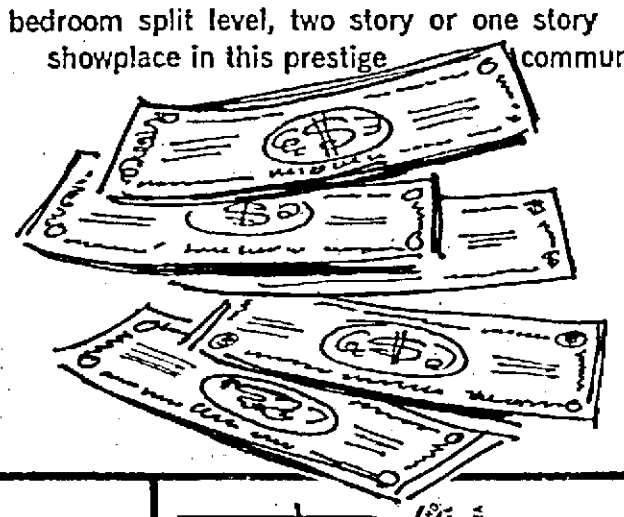

Furnished models are open for inspection daily. In Long Beach drive east on Spring St. across San Gabriel River to El Dorado Park Estates at Claremore, just east of El Dorado Park and Golf Course.

VA Financing Offered at Dutch Haven Units

HOMES WITH APPEAL
Dutch Haven is offering four new communities in Orange County. Attractive interiors have been a trademark in all Dutch Haven developments. Here is a view in one of the homes offered in Sunny Hills West.

Dutch Haven's four newest communities in Orange County—the Dutch Haven Marina Series, Newport-West, Sunny Hills West and the Dutch Haven College Series—are all offering homebuyers the desirable interest rates and down payment regulations available with VA Financing.

Especially remarkable for its inclusion of VA no down terms among its available forms of financing is Sunny Hills West, Dutch Haven's exclusive community in the fashionable hillside area overlooking the Fullerton and La Habra Valleys. According to Tom Rochelle, Dutch Haven sales manager, no down payment terms are rarely available in homes of this particular price range. Prices at Sunny Hills West begin at $29,950. FHA and attractive long-term conventional financing are also available.

• • • •

HOMES AT Sunny Hills West are 3 to 5 bedrooms, with family room, dining room and up to 3 full baths. Floor plans include split level, double level and single level designs.

An outstanding advantage is exclusive use of underground utilities designed to preserve its natural beauty and scenic vistas. Other luxury-inspired features include massive two-way fireplaces with log lighters, complete Medallion kitchens, oversized view lots, sunken living rooms, formal dining areas, imported parquet floors in foyers and up to 2400 sq. ft. of living area.

• • • •

NEWPORT-WEST located near the intersection of Pacific Coast Hwy. and Brookhurst also offers VA no down financing, as well as conventional financing with 10% down payments and 30-year loans.

Priced from $19,750, these homes are three and four bedrooms with family room and 2 baths. Single and double level floor plans are available, all including an exceptionally large master bedroom suite with adjoining dressing area.

• • • •

DUTCH Haven's College Series, located on Edinger Avenue in fast-growing Huntington Beach, also offers a wide selection of financing. Prices start at $20,950, with homes available on VA no down, FHA or Cal-Vet terms.

Homes are three to four bedrooms in size, with family room and up to three baths. Purchasers may select from single or double level plans and from a wide choice of exteriors varying from Tahitian Modern to California Conventional.

Also located in Huntington Beach, the newly opened Dutch Haven Marina Series features a move-in cost of $95 to Vets. Cal-Vet and FHA financing are available in addition to VA terms.

• • • •

PRICES AT the Dutch Haven Marina Series start at $18,950. Homes are three to four bedrooms with up to two baths.

To visit Sunny Hills West: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Riverside Fwy., then east to Euclid, and left to models.

To visit Newport-West: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst Turn-off, south on Brookhurst to models. Or, go south on Pacific Coast Hwy to Brookhurst, left on Brookhurst to models.

To visit the Dutch Haven College Series: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Beach, then south to Edinger, and right to models.

To visit the Dutch Haven Marina Series: Drive south on Santa Ana Freeway to Beach Blvd. Turnoff, then south to Warner, right to Edwards, left on Edwards to homes.

'Bonus' of Extras in Wakefield Home

A $1500 package of bonus extras is part of the deal at Wakefield, prestige community of three and four-bedroom, two story, split level and single-story homes in the Fullerton-Placentia hills.

Wall-to-wall carpeting of 100% continuous filament nylon, front lawn and shrubs, rear yard fencing — $1500 worth of necessities you'd have to find cash for if you bought a home elsewhere — are included with each home, according to the management of the Wakefield development.

• • • •

IN ADDITION, a highly flexible program lets the buyer decide whether to put in a pool now $13 a month) or later.

Homes are priced from $24,795 to $27,995. Financing is most attractive: 5% down, 30-year terms; no second trust deeds; no balloon payments.

Features include: Slate entry halls, floor to ceiling Palos Verdes Stone or used brick fireplace, forced-air heating, extra spacious wardrobe closets, heavy shake roofs, concrete driveways and walkways, oversize double garage.

To reach Wakefield, take the Riverside Freeway to State College Blvd. North to Pioneer, jog right one block, then left on Associated to Bastanchury to model homes.

DISCUSSING HOME
Senora Julia de Ghenis, Buenos Aires designer and decorator, discusses their new Scandia home at Sol-Vista International Home Fair with Mr. and Mrs. Ben Westerbach, formerly of Culver City. Left to right: Senora de Ghenis, Mrs. Westerbach, Ben Westerbach and friends, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Sharp, West Covina. Senora de Ghenis will conduct Sunday interior design clinics through May, 2-5 p. m., at the International Home Fair.

Among the many visitors last Sunday to the Sol-Vista International Home Fair, in Westminster, were Mr. and Mrs. Ben Westerbach, who recently purchased a Scandia home at the development.

"We are delighted that the International Home Fair builders presented the Buenos Aires interior decorator, Senora Julia de Ghenis, as their guest expert for Sunday interior design clinics," said Mrs. Westerbach. "We talked with her and she was perfectly charming, and answered every question we had about the decorating and furniture arrangement of our wonderful new Scandia home."

Senora de Ghenis, noted Buenos Aires interior designer and decorator, will conduct informal design clinics each Sunday, from 2-5 p.m. through the month of May, a special event presented by the Alco-Pacific Company at the International Home Fair sales pavilion, at Bolsa Chica and Westminster Ave., in Westminster.

Model homes presented at the Sol-Vista development are famous for exotic design themes drawn from around the world — Scandinavian, Oriental, South Seas, Mediterranean, Continental, and The Americas. The one and two-story homes provide three, four and five bedrooms, two and two-and-one-half baths, family rooms, sunken living rooms in some plans, handsome raised hearth fireplaces, indoor gardens in entry halls, and built-in Caloric kitchens.

• • • •

AT THE 160-ACRE residential development there are still selections of the unusual one and two-story homes, but Sales Director Baxter Caterson urges interested home-seekers to make selections soon, as the development is rapidly approaching sell-out.

Prices are from $25,350 to $29,600 with FHA, Cal-Vet and conventional financing offered.

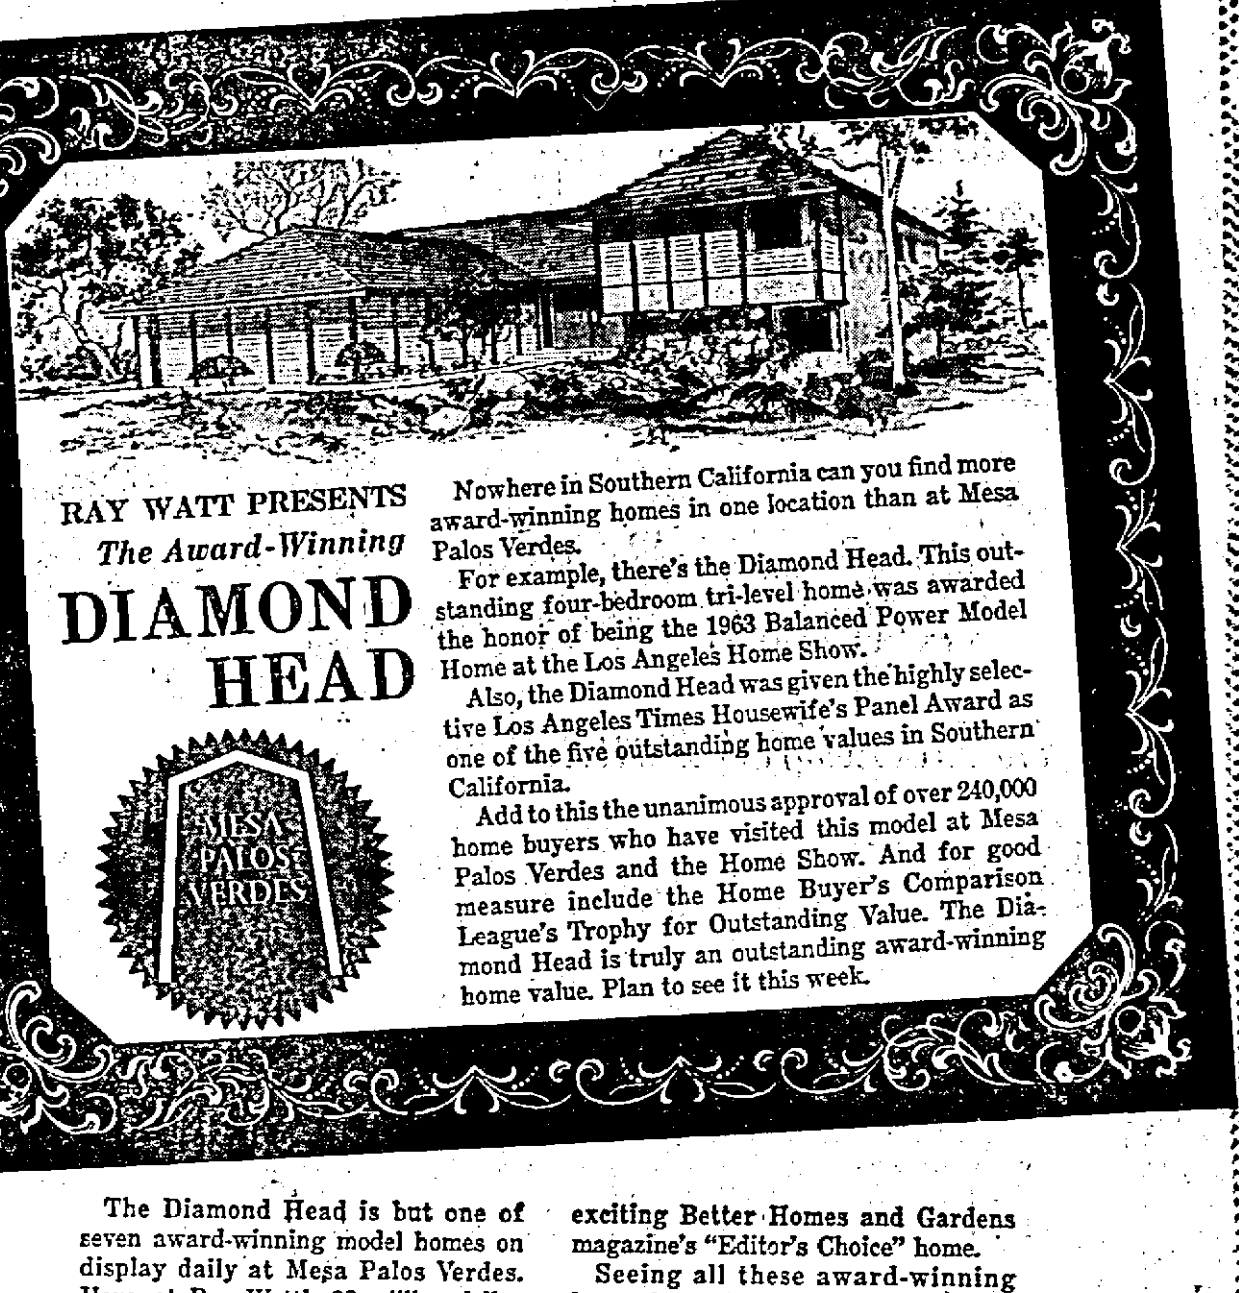

The public is invited to visit the Sol-Vista International Home Fair to discuss interior design and decorating questions with Senora de Ghenis Sundays. Model homes are open daily at Bolsa Chica and Westminster Ave., in Westminster.

Big Luxury Residences Open Today

Ray Clark, president of Clark Realty Co. announced a special showing today of two custom designed homes located at 3620 and 3626 Country Club Drive, Lakewood Estates. These two luxurious homes are priced at $74,500 and $75,950 and are the last word in modern day living.

Furnished and color coordinated by Lloyds of Long Beach they are fully carpeted and custom draped, landscaped, fenced, and have complete sprinkler system. These homes are described by the Southern California Edison Co. as "Total Electric" which includes thermostatically controlled heat.

Clark also announced that there are just 16 lots still available on the "Island" that is completely surrounded by the fairways and greens of the Lakewood Country Club for custom designed homes and these lots range in price from $16,000 to $35,000.

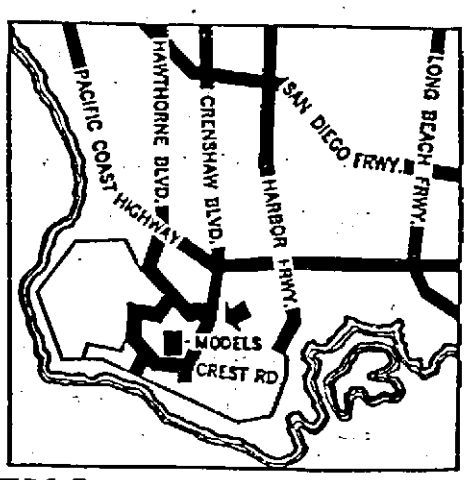

The Diamond Head is but one of seven award-winning model homes on display daily at Mesa Palos Verdes. Here, at Ray Watt's 38 million dollar country estate community, you will also see a premiere showing of The Hillhaven — selected as the 1964 Los Angeles Home Show Balanced Power Model Home. There's the House Beautiful magazine's much publicized "Home designed by 75 women" model and the exciting Better Homes and Gardens magazine's "Editor's Choice" home.

Seeing all these award-winning homes in one location is a must to anyone planning to buy a home in Southern California. Visit Mesa Palos Verdes. It will be a rewarding experience.

Mesa Palos Verdes is located high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula. The seven furnished models are open daily —10 A.M. 'til dark. Telephone 377-6575

Lucky Store Earnings Up

Lucky Stores' earnings for the first quarter, ended March 29, 1964, were 61.3 per cent above earnings for the comparable period of 1963, on a 14.7 per cent increase in sales, it has been announced by Gerald A. Awes, president.

W. H. FISHER JR.

Consolidated earnings amounted to $826,000, compared to $512,000 in 1963. This is equivalent to 37 cents per share on 2,203,038 shares of common stock outstanding at the end of the quarter, as compared to 2 cents per share for the first quarter of 1963 (after adjustment for a 3 per cent stock dividend).

Consolidated sales for the quarter were $69,081,000, as compared to $60,203,000 last year—an increase of 14.7 per cent.

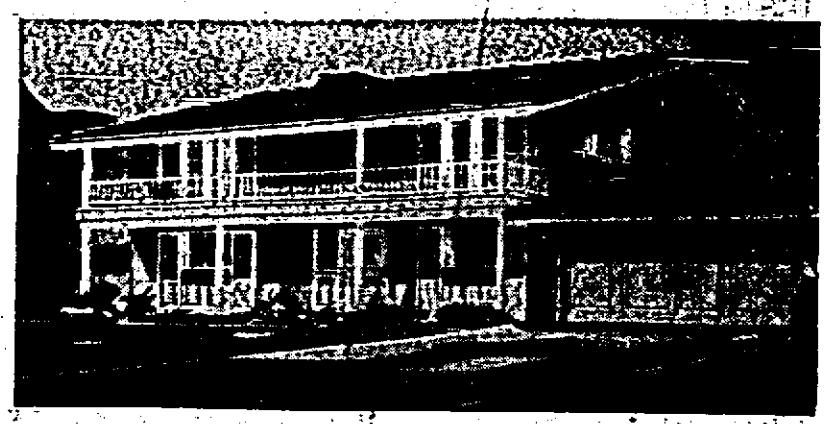

During the quarter, Lucky neither opened nor closed any stores. At the end of the quarter it had 144 stores in operation.

Classes to Help New Contractors

A fourth series of classes dealing with the basic essentials of contracting for newly licensed California building contractors will begin Wednesday with approximately 50 registrants, according to the Building Contractors Association of California, sponsor of the special five-week course.

The free school for new contractors held at the BCA headquarters in Los Angeles, 1571 Beverly Blvd., was begun in January to afford persons just entering the contracting field with a perspective on the problems commonly encountered so that they are better equipped for their new business venture, Rodney J. Hansen, BCA president, declared.

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley Selling at Fast Pace

BIG HOME ON LITTLE DOWN

Cardinal Homes in Fountain Valley offer homes such as this at moderate prices with as little as $395 down plus costs. It is a Charles W. Hester development.

Excellent sales continue at Cardinal Homes, states Charles W. Hester, developer of the popular Fountain Valley subdivision. According to Hester all models are selling equally good.

Cardinal Homes offer one and two-story dwellings of three, four and five bedrooms with two and three baths.

Among the features of the homes are kitchens with famous Medallion standards including built-in electrical Westinghouse range and double oven, hood and fan, Westinghouse dishwasher, disposal, ash cabinets with raised panel doors and Formica-topped kitchen cabinets.

• • • •

SOME MODELS have a completely finished bonus room of 580 square feet including a bath and shower. This upper story is adaptable to the uses and needs of the buyer and can be two or even three bedrooms, a guest apartment, studio, sewing, recreation or storage room. Some models have fireplaces in the bonus rooms, it was noted.

Other features of Cardinal Homes are block walls affording privacy at the rear and side returns, landscaped front and rear yards with six large shrubs, one six-foot tree and full coverage underground sprinklers installed. This represents an important savings to the new homeowner, it was stated.

• • • •

FIREPLACES are of used brick veneer with ash paneling and mantles, nylon carpeting and brick veneer exteriors are other appointments of Cardinal Homes. Built on pool-size lots, the dwellings can accommodate a variety of recreational and gardening interests as well as swimming pools.

Priced from $23,900 to $28,900, Cardinal Homes are available for as little as $395 down, plus costs. Located in peaceful Fountain Valley, the development is conveniently close to metropolitan advantages of both Orange and Los Angeles counties.

To reach the homes, located on the southwest corner of Cannery and Slater, drive out Santa Ana Freeway to Brookhurst, south to Warner, right to Cannery then left on Cannery to Slater and furnished models. From Long Beach, drive out Seventh Street (Garden Grove Blvd.) to Brookhurst and follow directions above.

Hails Growth of Air-Vent

Air-Vent Aluminum Co., west's largest manufacturer of patio covers, screened-in patios and trailer shades, has announced its 750,000th installation, according to Pat Donohue, Long Beach branch manager, 5333 Long Beach Blvd.

This milestone in the company's history occurs in its 18th year. The company was founded in 1946 by Olin Stapp. He, and his associates starting from scratch have grown to an organization that did more than $4 million in volume during 1963.

Air-Vent has participated in such important projects as Rossmoor Leisure World, Seal Beach, and is developing custom designed patios and shades for another large senior citizens housing project.

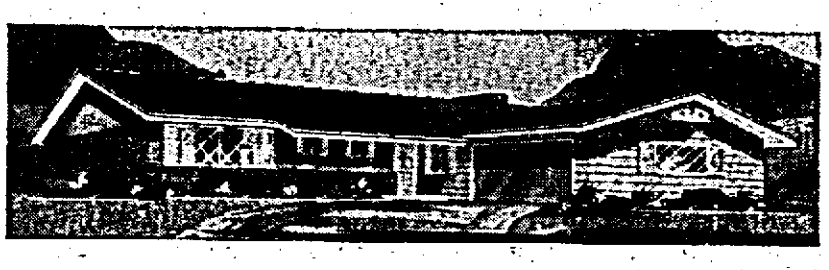

It designed a prize winning screened-in patio for the 1963 Los Angeles Flower Show.

Olin predicted the firm would do a $6 million volume this year.

Dana Point Knolls Has Trade-in Plan

HOME IN CAPISTRANO HILLS
Here is one of various attractive models offered at Dana Point Knolls where veterans may buy for nothing down. The homes are located in Capistrano Hills overlooking the Mission.

A unique trade-in program has been initiated at Dana Point Knolls, Butler-Harbour's new Valley View community, reports Mrs. Gene Harding of Walker & Lee, Inc., sales agents.

"Here, where land values are increasing constantly, one can select the home of his dreams," continued Mrs. Harding. "Then Walker & Lee will appraise their present home and through the real estate firm's 19 offices throughout the Orange County-Long Beach area, save them all the nuisance involved in selling their home."

Dana Point Knolls is situated in smog free Capistrano Hills, overlooking the historic San Juan Capistrano Mission, the view dwellings are classically California in architecture, Mrs. Harding said.

• • • •

THE balanced-power three and four-bedroom homes feature two or more pullman baths with wall-to-wall mirrors; complete kitchens with built-in ranges, ovens, dishwashers and disposals; oversized garages with boat doors; customized fireplaces with gas log lighters; and separate family rooms.

Their research-proven floor plans assure individual family members privacy-space, a necessity in today's living, Mrs. Harding noted.

No down, costs or impounds are required of veterans. FHA and conventional terms with minimum down are offered.

To visit the models open from 10 a.m. until dusk, take the Pacific Coast Hwy. to Del Obispo Rd. and left to the site.

100 Per Cent Sales Gain for Farrow

Farrow Realty Corp., Garden Grove-based general brokerage firm, has recorded $12 million in home sales during the first three months of 1964, Jerry Farrow, owner, announces.

The volume represents an increase of 100 per cent over the same period in 1963 by the eight offices and new home sales division of the 22-year-old firm.

Farrow said the record increase in sales is a direct result of a professionally-trained management team working together.

"Each of the managers in our offices are thoroughly trained real estate specialists, capable of serving buyers in all kinds of real estate transactions," he said.

• • • •

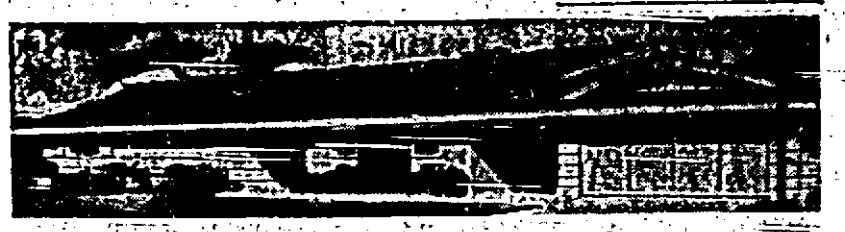

OPERATING in several rapidly expanding Orange County communities, Farrow Realty has an office in Garden Grove managed by Skeets Renner, one in East Anaheim managed by Frank Rohm, one in Santa Ana managed by Mark Corcoran, one in Costa Mesa managed by Russ O'Buch and one each in Fullerton and Buena Park, both managed by Dave Rams. Dick Murray is new home sales director for the firm.

"All offices are connected by teletype machines providing our personnel with a high-speed, direct communications system at all times for new listings, sales reports, and other information vital to our business," Farrow explained.

Farrow plans to open two new offices in the immediate future.

OFFERED IN CORONA
Homes such as this are offered in Corona de Oro, new subdivision at Corona. The developer says land prices there are $3,000 under similar ones in Orange County.

Low Cost Stressed for Corona de Oro

Many buyers from Orange County have bought in Corona de Oro, new Corona subdivision, states Leroy V. Williams, developer. Possibly the biggest reason for this sales activity is that these buyers realize that while Corona is only 20 minutes from Orange County, land prices there are much lower and a buyer actually gets about $3,000 more house for his money in Corona, Williams added.

Corona de Oro offers dwellings of three and four bedrooms, family room and two baths. Outstanding features include built-in range, oven and dishwasher, refrigerated air conditioning and forced air heating, built-in snack bar, shake roofs, wood-burning fireplaces with log-lighter, double front doors and slate entry ways. All streets, sewers and street lights are in and paid for, Williams states.

The homes are priced from $22,500 to $24,150. The development features "tailored financing" to the buyers needs offering FHA, VA and Conventional Financing. The monthly payments are from $108.89 which includes principal and interest.

Visitors from Orange County are directed to go out the Riverside Freeway and take the Sixth Street entry into Corona, turn right on Main Street to Hacienda and right again to furnished models.

Plan More Sun City Shopping Facilities

SUN CITY — Business, as well as population, is swelling at Del Webb's Sun City.

With almost 4,000 home-owning residents now living on land that produced farm crops less than two years ago, demands for more goods and services have resulted in plans for nearly tripling present shopping and service facilities in this over-50 retirement community.

The present shopping center with 11 businesses including a nursery and service station has grossed two and one-half million dollars since it was opened in November of 1962, when fewer than 100 residents were living here.

• • • •

BASED ON first quarter gross figures, 1964 is expected to see the Sun City merchants ring up more than $2,000,000 this year. This does not include postal receipts, although Sun City has its own post office in the shopping center.

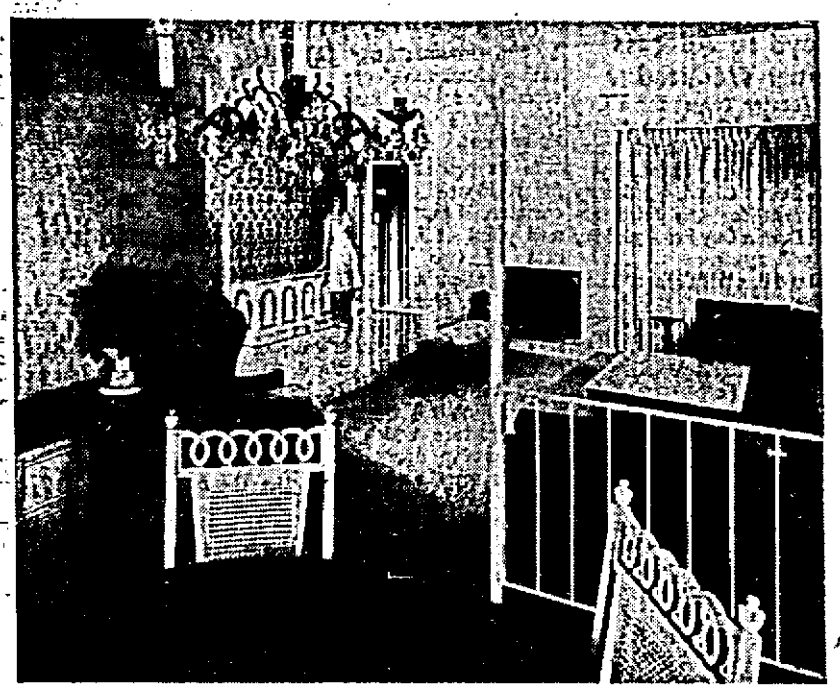

The rapid influx of retirees to Sun City has brought about the need for additional shopping facilities and plans to enlarge the shopping center from a single building of 34,000 square feet to a complex with 78,000 square feet under cover have been announced by the developing Del E. Webb Corporation.

• • • •

IN ADDITION to the enlarged center, Security First National Bank has outgrown its leased facilities in the present structure, has purchased ground adjacent to the center and is in the process of constructing a bank building.

The Webb long range general plan calls for development of the more than 14,000 acres into a population near 100,000 in the next 10 to 20 years and calls for the development of commercial facilities to keep pace with the anticipated growth.

Varied Financing Plans on Fashion Shores Home

MOTHER WOULD LOVE THIS
Sunken living rooms and a formal dining area are just two of the many features of Fashion Shores homes in Huntington Beach. The very large one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes are priced from $23,900. What better gift for Mother's Day?

The many new owners in Fashion Shores Homes, located within walking distance of Huntington Beach State Park in the city of Huntington Beach, have been able to purchase a new home by taking advantage of the many forms of financing made available to them by the builder-developer, Marvin B. Johnson.

Johnson pointed out that the major forms of financing: No down VA, low FHA terms, and conventional, were all available; but, in many cases, potential buyers were able to purchase a Fashion Shores Home because he was able to put together a financial package that could meet the individual requirements of each buyer.

"We have had buyers who could not qualify for a government loan," Johnson continued, "yet have made down payments of anywhere from $10,000 to the full purchase price. At the other end of the scale, we've had young couples who could not meet the down payment figure yet their credit standing was so good we were able to work out the financial arrangement needed to allow them to purchase the home they wanted—a Fashion Shores Home."

• • • •

THE VERY big one and two-story, three, four and five-bedroom homes with up to 3,157 sq. ft. under roof, are priced from $23,900. Major features include a formal dining area and sunken living room in the two-story homes; side and rear yard fencing; nylon wall-to-wall carpeting in all bedrooms, living room, halls and stairways; among many others.

The beautifully furnished model homes, four in all, are open daily from 10 a.m., to dusk. From the Long Beach area, drive east on Seventh St., to Beach Blvd. (Hwy. 39). Turn right to Atlantic Ave., left on Atlanta to Cannery, right to the corner of Cannery and Hamilton and the homes.

L.B. Building Pace Slows

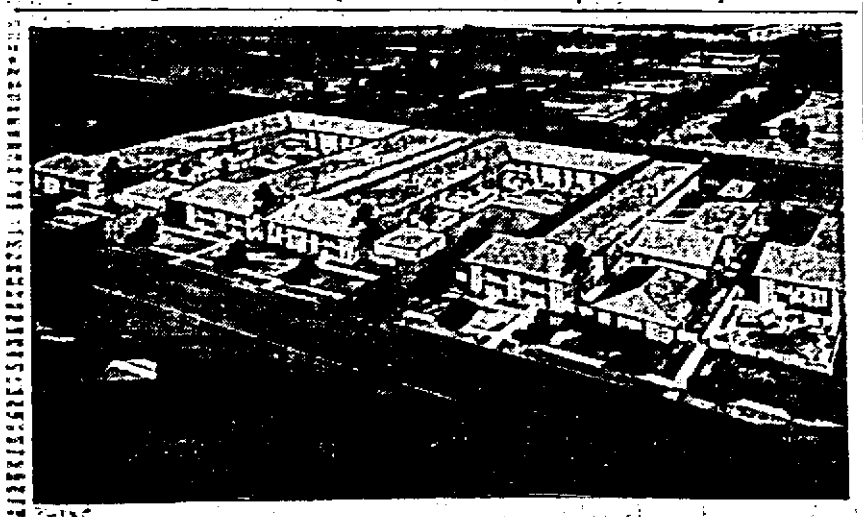

New building activity in Long Beach reached a valuation of $5,141,540 for 2,183 projects in April, city building officials have disclosed.

Last month's volume was down 17 per cent from the March figure of $6,164,157 for 2,229 permits. It represented a decrease of 21 per cent from April, 1963, when the record was $6,508,560 for 2,324 projects.

Residential construction in April was within one per cent of the March level—$2,266,495 for 90 family units as compared with $2,254,700 for 178 units. Last month's home construction, however, was a 35 per cent drop from the $3,446,375 recorded for 562 units in April, 1963.

The over-all building total this year, $33,048,219 for 8,780 permits, is a 5 per cent slump from the first four months of last year, which produced $34,937,610 for 8,793 projects.

Award Winning Homes Offered in Mesa Palos Verdes Project

IN HOME WITH VIEW
Here is an interior picture of a Mesa Palos Verdes home in the new Ray Watt development high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula where wonderful views are provided.

Nowhere in Southern California can home buyers find more award-winning homes in one location than at Mesa Palos Verdes, Developer Ray Watt's new $38,000,000 prestige project high atop the Palos Verdes Peninsula.

Custom three, four and five-bedroom award-winning model homes are available in Mesa Palos Verdes in single, two-story, split-level and tri-level plans. A total of 30 different exteriors give infinite variety to the seven different plans.

For example, there's The Diamond Head. This outstanding four-bedroom tri-level home was awarded the honor of being the 1963 Balanced Power Model Home at the Los Angeles Home Show. Also, the Diamond Head was named by the Los Angeles Times Housewives' Panel as one of the five outstanding home values in Southern California.

• • • •

ADDED TO this is the unanimous approval of over 240,000 home buyers who have visited this model at Mesa Palos Verdes and the Home Show. The Diamond Head also won the Home Buyers' Comparison League's Trophy for Outstanding Value. The Diamond Head is truly an outstanding award-winning home value.

The Mesa Palos Verdes development was planned to appeal to discriminating tastes. All utilities are underground, and a curved street pattern with "child-safe" cul-de-sacs is featured. All these fully-carpeted homes have O'Keefe and Merritt color- coordinated built-ins, oversized closets, forced-aid and fireplace with gas log lighters.

Seven furnished models are at the corner of Crenshaw Blvd., and Crest Road, open daily from 10 a.m., until dark.

Cloyd to Address Forum Wednesday

"Theater Target for a City on the Grow" will be discussed at the Long Beach Community Forum Wednesday.

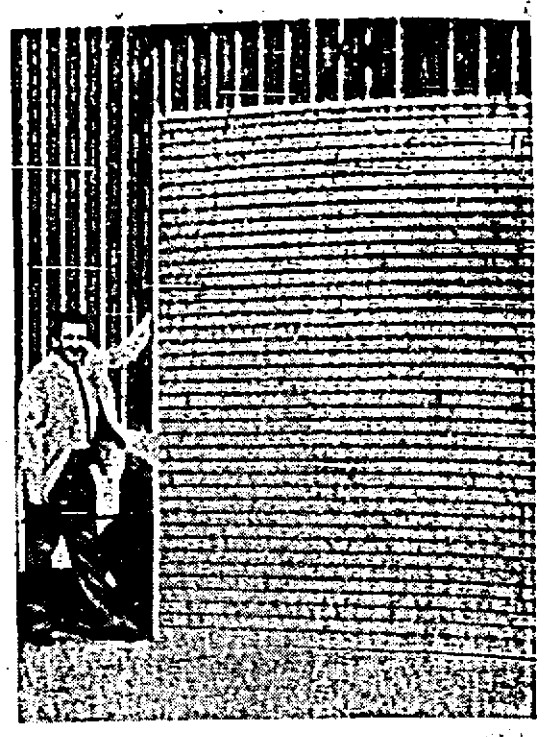

Marvin Cloyd, publicity chairman for the third annual Drama Day Festival, May 23, will speak.

Cloyd has been one of Long Beach's busiest and most distinguished actors, having appeared in more than 20 plays at the Community Playhouse. He also has starred at the Magnolia Theater and in Civic Light Opera Association productions.

MARVIN CLOYD

Sponsored weekly by the Long Beach Chamber of Commerce, the Forum is conducted in the Crown Cafeteria, First Street and Alamitos Avenue, beginning at 7:15 a.m.

NEW PLANT OPEN
Jim Orman stands beside a section of a large fabricated aluminum door which his new firm in Paramount is producing, using products of two other Paramount firms.

Firm in Paramount Fabricating Doors

Orman Door Co., headed by Jim Orman, is now fabricating aluminum doors at its recently acquired new location, 15732 Vermont Ave., Paramount.

In its processing of doors for residential, industrial or commercial purposes, the Orman plant utilizes the products of two other Paramount manufacturing concerns. The aluminum extrusions (a processed aluminum which gives this otherwise soft metal the strength of steel) are made locally by the Jay Woods Aluminum Co. The hardware which makes even massive doors easy to open, is supplied by the nationally known Tavart Co. of Paramount.

The central location of the Orman plant, accessible by numerous freeways serving Long Beach area and Orange Counties, is expected to be an important factor in the growth and development of the new enterprise.

The plant has facilities for immediate expansion to meet growing demands.

Orman, a state licensed door contractor since 1956, has long been active in Paramount and Long Beach civic and business affairs.

Appraiser to Talk on Condemnations

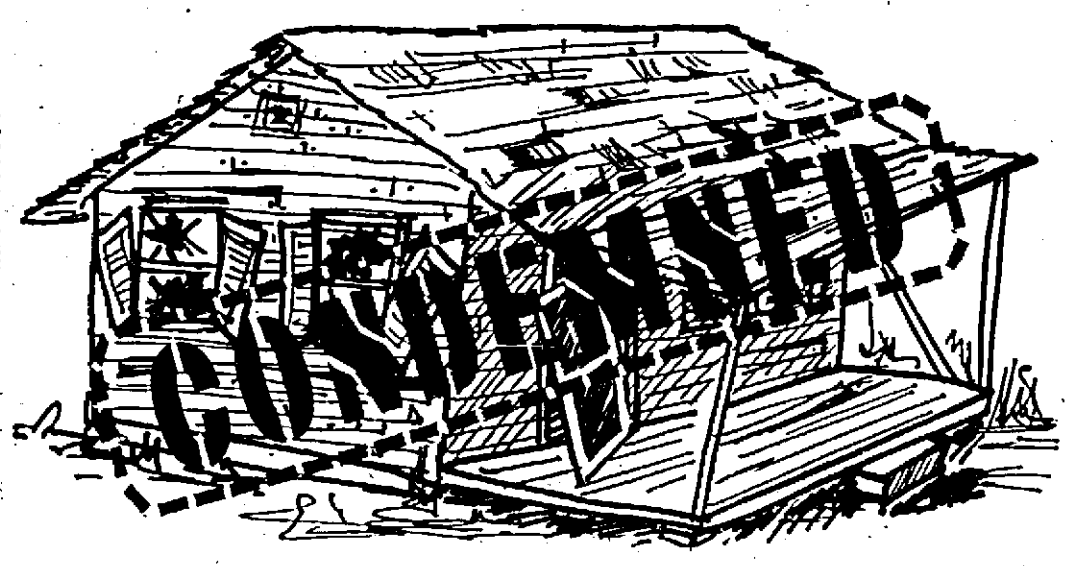

"The Condemnation Appraisal" will be discussed at the Wednesday dinner meeting of Long Beach Chapter 94, Society of Real Estate Appraisers, at the Captain's Inn.

GEO. FISHER

Speaker will be George Fisher, S.R.-E.A., according to James Hoffman Jr., program chairman. Fisher has specialized in condemnation appraisals since 1955. He has made appraisals for numerous government agencies and private corporations.

Long Beach Chapter 94 has 146 members.

Construction is Speeded in Laguna Leisure World

JUST TRY AND COUNT 'EM
One thousand and 18 luxury share-ownership manors, comprising the first two units of Rossmoor Leisure World at Laguna Hills, are under construction. Move-in date for owners is set for Sept. 1 at Ross W. Cortese's $375 million luxury country club community. There will be 18,000 manors built when the "people-over-52" community is completed.

Construction is proceeding at a fast pace at Ross W. Cortese's luxury country club "People-Over-52" community, Rossmoor Leisure World at Laguna Hills.

Building of the first unit of 1018 share-ownership manors is progressing at the rate of 12 foundations and wall-framing installations a day, William G. Brangham, national sales manager, announced.

Target move-in dates for the owners of these manors is Sept. 1, Brangham said. "More than 100,000 persons have visited the $375 million community since last December, he said.

• • • •

NEW RECREATION facilities completed, aside from the first of seven clubhouses at cost of $750,000 and the first of two $125,000 swimming pools, are the extensive stables and golf courses.

Landscaping of trails leading from the stables is now underway.

Unit Three will go on sale in the immediate future.

The completed California mission style clubhouse contains lavish sitting-and-dining room area equipped with kitchen for serving over 100 persons.

Seven clubhouses will be built for the community, the others to be constructed as soon as various mutual corporations are sold and occupied.

• • • •

SINCE RECREATION forms a major part of the Cortese retirement concept, these clubhouses will contain shuffleboard and roque courts, lawn bowling installations, card rooms, libraries, tour excursion headquarters, dancing areas, classrooms for adult education courses and dining rooms for family occasions.

A nominal monthly payment includes principal, interest, taxes, insurance, complete exterior maintenance of house, lawns, gardens, sidewalks and streets; an intra-community transportation system, a 24-hour security guard; 80 per cent of costs at the community's Medical Center and an $12,000,000 hospital when completed, including all prescription drugs; enjoyment of all recreation facilities, and an all-electric kitchen.

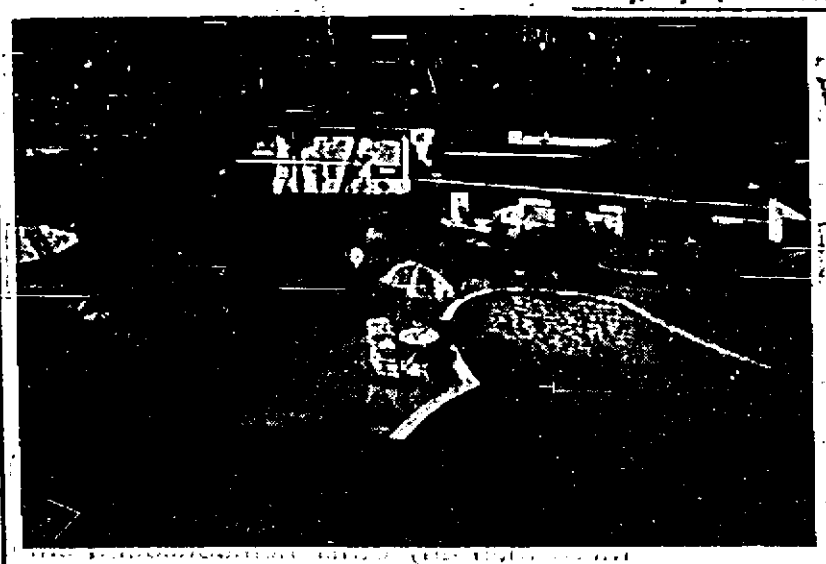

• • • •

ONE-BEDROOM manors start at $11,095, with total down payments beginning at $1187. A portion of this down payment, $335 to $347, represents the cost of a share of stock in a mutual corporation, which, together with the execution of an occupancy agreement, entitles the buyer to occupy the one-bedroom share-ownership manor of his choice in purchases.

Initial monthly payments for one-bedroom manors start at $145, subject to possible modifications. Prices for two-bedroom manors start at $13,795, with total down payments beginning at $1360. A portion of the down payment, $416 to $497, represents the cost of a share of stock in a mutual corporation.

Purchasers must be 52 years or older. No physical examination is required prior to purchase.

Rossmoor Leisure World at Laguna Hills is located adjacent to the Santa Ana Freeway at the El Toro Road off-ramp, just 45 minutes driving from downtown Los Angeles, and a little over an hour from the San Diego Jolla area.

RECREATION AREA FOR RESIDENTS
One of the two swimming pools offered residents of New Horizons-South Bay is shown here while at the left is a section of the golf course also provided by the builder.

First Families Are Occupying New Horizons-South Bay Units

The first two of several hundred couples who have purchased homes in New Horizons-South Bay moved in this past week, Bob Norton, Sales Director, announced.

"This milestone in New Horizons development marks the realization of dreams of engineers, architects, designers, land-planners and developers — the development in fact of New Horizons-South Bay—going back for almost five years," Norton explained.

• • • •

NEW HORIZONS - South Bay originally was the adult recreation concept of one man —Ray Watt—one of the Southland's leading builder-developers, who placed the creative, financial and practical resources of one of the nation's largest home-building organizations to work in the design, construction and execution of what is regarded as one of Southern California's most advanced development of its kind.

Norton said that the new all-underground electric system, one of the first to be installed in the Southland, is particularly effective because of the project's land plan, resulting in no interior streets and with homes grouped in clusters about landscaped malls.

Norton also said that all utilities underground had proved to be a strong point in the sale of more than 250 garden homes in 10 weeks.

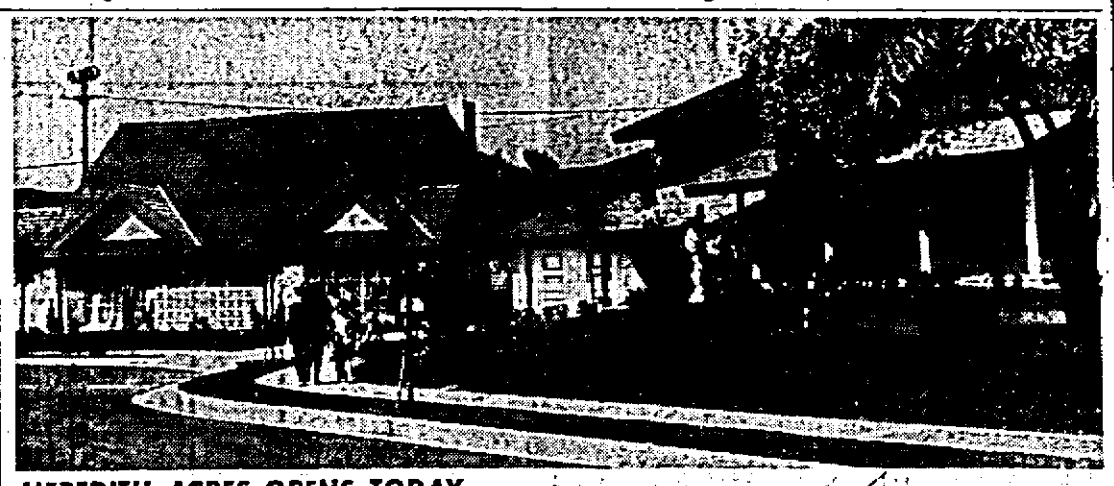

• • • •

WHEN COMPLETED, New Horizons will include 600 Gold Medallion garden homes, in addition to the extensive recreation and meeting facilities represented by the Town Hall. Home buyers have a share in their own nine-hole golf course and the Town Hall, which includes a lounge, assembly room, billiard room, golf shop and photo lab.

Other facilities include two swimming pools, horseshoe pits, badminton, paddle and regular tennis courts, barbeque rings and shuffleboard decks.

Residency, according to Norton, is limited to families in which one spouse must be 35 or older, single persons must be at least 35, and no children under 18 may be permanent residents.

Furnished models are open daily on Sepulveda between Crenshaw and Hawthorne Blvds. in Torrance.

Music for the Merry Month of May

By ELISE EMERY

For its festive May concert, Long Beach Symphony Orchestra will perform Smetana's gay, lively opera, "The Bartered Bride," next Sunday at 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

No ordinary concert, this will be the orchestra's most ambitious undertaking and will combine the talents of vocalists, dancers and musicians.

The opera in concert form uses a chorus of 225 voices, outstanding soloists, and a company of 20 dancers.

Lauris Jones will conduct the full orchestra—not the usually smaller opera orchestra—and John Ingle will serve as both narrator and stage director.

The principal roles will be sung by four professional musicians, Grace Lynne Martin, Richard Riffell, Richard Robinson and William Vennard. Each has had extensive experience in opera and is well-known to Southern California audiences.

ON STAGE, the large chorus—the combined choruses of Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach—will sing and, in a spotlighted area, the principals will perform with simple action. The orchestra will be seated on the floor of the auditorium in front of the stage.

Although there will not be an attempt to stage the opera, there will be some stage "decorations" and the colorfully costumed dancers will enhance the performance.

Stanley Hall has done fresh, new choreography for the full ballet, the fair scene and incidental dances which Audrey Share will direct.

Even before the audience enters the auditorium, the happy mood of the evening will be set, for this will be the orchestra's annual Flower Night. Each person who renews his ticket subscription will be asked to "Pick a Posy." Long Beach Symphony Guild will supply the flowers.

Tickets are on sale at Long Beach Symphony Association, 1935 E. Seventh St., and at Humphreys Music Co., 135 E. Third St.

LAURIS JONES conducts Long Beach Symphony Orchestra in rehearsal of "The Bartered Bride." When he composed the work in 1866, Smetana drew on the melodies of his beloved homeland, Bohemia, for inspiration.

Photos by Curt Johnson

SEVEN DANCES, including a full ballet and a spirited fair scene complete with acrobats, will enliven the concert program. Combining laughter and lovely music, "The Bartered Bride" is considered masterpiece of comic opera.

"... It's nearly a half-year since that tragic day in Dallas but an admiring public is still eager to keep track of the former First Lady ..."

Jackie's Famous Smile Again Charms a Nation

By FRANCES LEWINE

WASHINGTON (AP)—It is late spring now and the tourists are coming in increasing numbers for a look at the stately Georgetown home of Mrs. John F. Kennedy.

Police try to keep the traffic moving, but the narrow street is almost always congested—day and night.

It's nearly a half-year since that tragic day in Dallas but an admiring and adoring public is still eager to keep track of the former First Lady. The 34-year-old widow has retained some of the formal trappings of mourning, but has begun to resume her own life.

She looks her old self when seen in public. Her smile is there again, the photogenic one that looked out from so many happy pictures in White House days.

Friends say Mrs. Kennedy is fine. She has been dining out with friends, has taken skiing and Caribbean vacations and even enjoyed an afternoon at the circus with her children.

Mrs. Kennedy has been devoting her time mainly to Caroline, 6, and John Jr., 3, and to memorials for her husband.

SHE HAS MUCH of the privacy she yearned for. Her travels are unannounced. She frequently goes unrecognized. On one recent trip, she went unreported for four days in New York City. But, the former First Lady can never be just a private citizen.

Police have posted "emergency, no parking anytime" signs to keep space for six cars in front of Mrs. Kennedy's house.

Many limousines drive up there. It has become something of protocol for famous women to call on the President's widow. The visitors have included the wife of Italy's President Antonio Segni, Queen Frederika of Greece, and the wife of Britain's Prime Minister, Lady Douglas-Home.

Perhaps the most frequent caller is Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, 38-year-old brother of the President, who pops in many an afternoon when he thinks Mrs. Kennedy's spirits may need bolstering.

He and Mrs. Kennedy's 30-year-old sister, Lee Radziwill of London, have been constant companions of Mrs. Kennedy since the tragedy.

Dave Powers, a friend and assistant to Kennedy, still turns up every day to lunch with John Jr.

FIRST MAJOR decision after she left the White House was to find a permanent home. In the only private interview she gave after the assassination, she said: "I'm going to live in the places I lived with Jack—in Georgetown and with the Kennedys at the Cape. They're my family."

In early December, Mrs. Kennedy purchased a 170-year-old federal-style, three-story brick house on "N" Street in Georgetown, the same street where she and Kennedy lived when he was a senator.

She is only around the corner, too, from the recently purchased and refurbished big yellow-painted brick house of her mother, Mrs. Hugh D. Auchincloss.

Mrs. Kennedy still makes frequent visits to her husband's grave in Arlington National Cemetery. She also has met frequently with the architect, John Warneke, whom she has asked to design a permanent memorial at the grave.

HUNDREDS of letters continue to come to Mrs. Kennedy daily. Dozens of nations have invited her to visit. But so far she has accepted none of the offers. She did accept the gift of a palace in Morocco from the king, whom she had met on vacation there last fall.

Mrs. Kennedy's major efforts have been in behalf of the Kennedy Memorial Library to be built on the campus of Harvard University. She has been working to help raise $8 million to build the library, has met with architects and designers and has joined with the Kennedy family in working out details of the library.

One of the building's unusual features is an oral history section, which will have tape-recorded interviews with persons who took part in major events and decisions of Kennedy's career. All of the Kennedy family, friends and staff plan to help provide this unique record for the library.

Mrs. Kennedy already has started sessions with the interviewer she selected, Arthur Schlesinger Jr., the historian who was friend and advisor to Kennedy. Together they are talking for posterity about the late President.

MRS. KENNEDY has no money worries. The late President was reported to have had holdings amounting to some $10 million. His will provided that one-half of the estate be held in trust for Mrs. Kennedy, and the other half go into a trust for the children.

The only home Mrs. Kennedy had of her

Trails, Travels, Trials and Tra La Las

"I'd love to go, fellas—but couldn't we make it some other weekend?

By Iola Masterson
I, P-T Women's Editor

"AW, COME ON, LADY, it won't be that tough," said Ben Knight (right, above) to his horse, pretty good horse with, for that moment, at least, an unsyncopated gait, as Bob McNulty tried to convince her it was time to go.

Men and horse were in process of leaving for this past week's hoity toity Los Ranchros Visitadores traditional horsemen's trek from Santa Barbara to Santa Ynez. In one of the most exciting mass horseback rides in the country, the Visitadores, about 500 strong, rode, as they have for years, through the rolling hills and back country.

Considering the weather, perhaps Lady's ". . . but I don't WANT to go to Santa Barbara" expression was as prophetic for equines as Omarr's is for people.

Others from Long Beach on the ride this year were Hal Haney, Frank Vessels Jr., Fred Dean, Jim Bragg and Ed Edmundson.

They rode about 20 miles each day, as is the custom. At the end of every junket a very well stocked chuck wagon, with full camp crew on the ready to serve them, awaited. The trick of setting up the elaborate camp each night is one of the marvels of this journey.

The men should all be home today to spin stories of what happened around the campfires.

To give you some idea of how popular the journey is, about 1,000 horsemen, from all over the country, have their names on the waiting list, champing at the bit to be accepted.

Wild Waves Say...

FOOT LOOSE and fancy free traveling is in progress for Janie and Gil Brown, now driving leisurely to New York. They stopped in Denver to visit friends, paused in St. Paul, Minn., to relish reunionizing with daughter and son-in-law, Sally and Hunt McCaulley. After they've completed touring the fair, they may—or may not—decide to go to Europe. Decisions, decisions!

THE BEST STOCK is blue chip. In the case of Salvation Army Auxiliary members, the best is Blue Chip Stamp books—stacks 'n stacks of 'em.

Auxiliary live wires met at Jean (Mrs. Russell) Johnson's home in Rossmoor Tuesday to plan some more for annual big fund raiser, their Bonnet Tea, to take place May 26. "Price" of admittance at Jean's was blue chip stamps. Books assembled will be used to purchase the main door award for the tea, a portable television.

Among those chipping in, generously, were Willa Gilmore, Hilma Greenberg, Gladdie Jewett, Jean Hodge, June Cox, Marge (Mrs. Bob) Young and Joan Forman to name some of the book collectors.

WALKING AT A merry clip can sometimes cause a nasty slip. Margaret (Mrs. Phil) Clark stepped on slate entry flooring, in vigorous approach for visit with daughter. Whoops! Cracked a bone in her arm—her right one at that. Now she wears it (since accident last Sunday) in cast and sling and will continue to do so for a total of five weeks. Can't drive, worst of all, can't play bridge. BEST of all, can't do housework, cook. Almost everything has its compensations.

JUST THE RIGHT informal and chatty mood prevailed at Ann and Chet Yunker's cocktail buffet last weekend when they entertained for 150 friends in their home to honor son Don's fiancee, Margo Metzler.

Not just parties make news at the Yunkers. Chet had an operation Monday and on Tuesday, the Yunker's daughter, Barbara, underwent surgery in St. Louis.

JUGGLING HAT, cane and costume, USC coed Brenda Broz of Long Beach (below, left) discusses just one of the problems of USC's annual Songfest with Mrs. John Basler, Palos Verdes Estates, and Melinda Macrate, Dorothy and Bill's daughter, also an SCer.

Songfest, to take place at Hollywood Bowl next Saturday, will feature lots of costume juggling as well as people juggling. No wonder. More than 1,000 students, from 20 singing groups, will engage in the yearly "sound warfare," as they call it, before a crowd of at least 14,000.

Brenda and Melinda's "juggling" chores are behind scenes committee work maneuvering while Mrs. Basler is among those keeping ball bouncing as member of alum coordinating council.

Songfest is country's largest college musicale and is, I'm assured, great fun to hear. Tickets are now available at USC's ticket office and will be on sale at Bowl's box office Saturday prior to musicale's 8 p.m. starting time.

Lots to juggle before big USC Songfest is over.

Eleanor Peterson Engaged

Dr. P. Victor Peterson, president emeritus of California State College at Long Beach, and Mrs. Peterson, are announcing the engagement of their daughter, Eleanor Marie, to Ryland D. Johnson, son of Mrs. Warren D. Johnson of Long Beach and the late Mr. Johnson.

The bride-elect and her fiance were graduated from UCLA. She received her M.A. from Stanford University and did additional graduate work at Cornell University.

Miss Peterson was affiliated with Alpha Phi and is currently national field secretary for the sorority. She was also on Mortar Board and is a member of Cal Club, Bachelorettes and Junior League of Long Beach. She is a counselor and instructor at Orange Coast College.

THE FUTURE bridegroom received his M.A. and did graduate work at California Institute of Technology. He was a member of Sigma Xi, Professional Engineers and other scientific societies. He is also a Mason and member of Long Beach Yacht Club. The wedding will take place in August.

Reception to Honor OES Grand Officers

Southern California reception for Grand Officers of the Grand Chapter, State of California, Order of Eastern Star, will take place Saturday, at 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

The annual reception will be given by the seven associations of Southern California in honor of Esther Sandman, worthy grand matron, and William P. Wilson, worthy grand patron, and all grand officers of the state.

Theme of the evening will be "Dreams of Tomorrow." The 1964 Worthy Matron's Drill Team will participate in the program.

ACE BLOWOUT

Blowing up balloons for the May 16 breakfast of the Association for Childhood Education at the Elk's Club are Steve Smith, chairman, fashion models Sandra Janich and Carol Chase (from left). The 9:15 a.m. event is open to the public. "Fashions Under the Big Top" will be the theme of a fashion show. The association will present three scholarships to students at California State College at Long Beach. Tickets may be purchased from ACE representatives at any Long Beach elementary school or at the door on the morning of the breakfast.

John Wagners Note Golden Date Today

Mr. and Mrs. John Jacob Wagner will celebrate their golden wedding anniversary today at their home, 741 E. Seventh St. at an open house from 2 to 5 p.m.

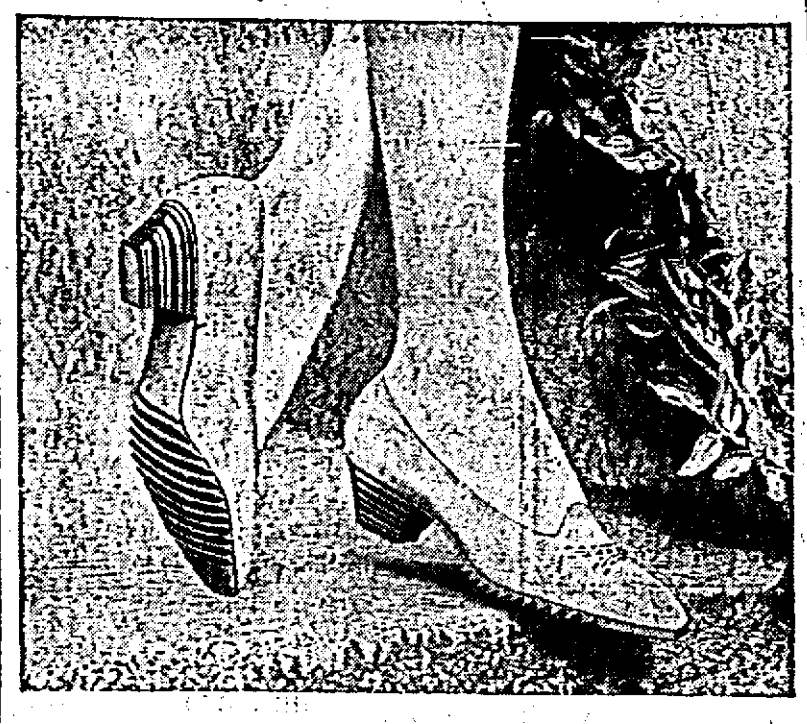

Their daughters, Mrs. Mike Reyes of Catalina Island and Miss Lavonia Gay, of Long Beach, as well as their niece, Mrs. Westly Hite, will be hostesses for the milestone event. Their only grandchild, Sgt. Donald L. Wright of the Army Air Force, his wife and their three children, will be unable to be present since they are in Seville, Spain, where Sgt. Wright is stationed.

The Wagners were married in Manhattan, Kan., in 1914, and made their home in Hayes, Kan., until they moved to Long Beach in 1926. He was employed by the Pacific Coast Borax Company until his retirement in 1954.

• • • •

MRS. WAGNER is a past noble grand of Rebekah Lodge and was active in Royal Neighbors of America for many years. Mr. Wagner has been a member of Masonic Lodge since 1916 and is a past member of Odd Fellows Lodge. Both are members of Trinity Lutheran Church.

Anouilh Comedy at LBCC

"Time Remembered," a romantic comedy by Jean Anouilh, will be the final Long Beach City College "Evenings at Eight" program of the year. Curtain time will be 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday in the LBCC Auditorium, Harvey Way near Clark Ave.

General admission tickets will be available both nights, along with the final public presale of 1964-65 "Evenings at Eight" season tickets.

Produced by the City College Theater Arts department, under the direction of David Emmes, "Time Remembered" involves a slightly mad duchess, a melancholy prince, and a simple young milliner who resembles the prince's lost love (an eccentric, orchid-eating ballerina).

• • • •

• • • •

PROGRAMS announced for the 1964-65 season include the Duke Ellington Band, Emlyn Williams in his impersonation of Charles Dickens, the Varel and Bailly Chanteurs de Paris and the guitar duo of Presti and Lagoya.

The "Evenings at Eight Extra," available to season subscribers at reduced rates, will be the original London company of "Beyond the Fringe," satirical revue, on Nov. 17.

Concert, Lecture at CSLB

Today at 4 p.m., the California State College at Long Beach department of music will present a symphony concert directed by Bertram McGarrity. Works by Handel, Beethoven, Tschaikowsky and Copland are scheduled.

A reception at the Soroptimist House will be hostessed by SPURS following the concert. The public is invited; there is no admission charge.

• • • •

LECTURES and forums committee of CSLB announces a talk by Dr. Gerald Strang, professor of music, Thursday at 4 p.m. on the subject "Electronic and Computer Music."

Dr. Strang will discuss in detail the production of synthetic sound and its use in composition. He worked last summer at the Bell Telephone Laboratory in New Jersey in programming a digital computer. He is a consultant in acoustics for music buildings and is a teacher and composer.

Conductor Will Speak at Preview

The public is invited to hear Lauris Jones preview Smetana's "The Bartered Bride" Tuesday at 10:30 a.m. in Virginia Country Club. There will be no admission charge.

Jones is conductor of Long Beach Symphony Orchestra which will present the opera in concert form next Sunday at 8 p.m. in Municipal Auditorium.

The preview is sponsored by Long Beach Symphony Guild and Junior League of Long Beach. Those who wish to stay for luncheon after the program may make reservations with Mrs. Walter Gray, 5540 Las Lomas St.

To Present Music Bill

"The World of Contemporary Piano Music," an admission-free program sponsored by the Long Beach City College General Adult Division, will be presented at 7:30 p.m. Thursday in Studio C of the LBCC music building, Clark Ave. and Harvey Way.

Lecturer will be Duane Gurnee, chairman of the City College music department. Performer will be Joanna Hodges, Long Beach pianist who has attained an international reputation during four extensive concert tours of Europe and the U.S.

MAJOR & MINOR NOTES

Civic Light Opera Grows Steadily

By RACHEL MORTON
L. P-T Music Critic

Long Beach Civic Light Opera Company, has just finished its 40th production of light opera in Long Beach with 11 highly successful performances of "Song of Norway."

In viewing a recent presentation of "Song of Norway," I realized that in the 15 years of its existence this company has gone a long way in cultural achievement for Long Beach.

The growth and accomplishment of the Long Beach Civic Light Opera Company has been steadily improving so that now, as in "Song of Norway," although the singers are amateurs, the shows themselves are on a high, professional level.

I looked to the general manager, Harvey Waggoner, for information on those facts and in a most interesting interview with him I gleaned some informative truths.

• • • •

IT WOULD appear that "all is not gold that glitters," and that the picture seen in front of the footlights is not as golden when viewed from the managerial standpoint.

It cost in the neighborhood of $30,000 to produce "Song of Norway" for 11 nights, and although the attendance was excellent and the public most responsive, it appears there may be a loss of approximately $9,000. The services on stage are largely gratuitous, but there are administrative overhead expenses totaling $2,500 a month. Since four productions a year are given, a quarterly total of $7,500 is expended in overhead; the production itself costs $30,000, making a grand total of $37,500 outlay. The average production intake is $32,500, which leaves a possible deficit of $5,000 quarterly.

"How then do you keep solvent and carry on?" I anxiously inquired.

• • • •

"WE ARE fortunate in having some outside revenue," replied Waggoner. "The City of Long Beach has given us $5,000 for the past two years and we have contributing members who this year have given us $12,000 (we hope for more next year). So the net loss this year could be about $3,000."

"Our real purpose," said Waggoner, "is first to serve and enhance the cultural life of the community through the production of first class theater on a non-professional basis and, second, to provide a vehicle for the talents of those who are interested in participation in musical theater."

Other valuable assistance given the company comes from the Independent, Press-Telegram; free advertising services are given by Sarver and Witzerman advertising agency; public service radio spots are donated; valuable publicity is given by Mountain View Dairy, and General Telephone Company; inserts are given by Soft Water Laundry, Nu-Way Laundry and Foasberg Laundry; free billboard space is given, as are discounts on printing, etc.

In congratulating Harvey Waggoner, I asked him what his hopes are for the future.

"I hope for continued success and growth," he answered, "and for more financial support. And most of all, I hope for a suitable music center for the performing arts."

For the privilege of such a cultural influence in our midst, we in Long Beach should support the efforts of this company 100 percent. The City of Long Beach should exert itself more generously for this organization, and also for our Long Beach Symphony Orchestra, considering the enormous amount given by the city each year to the Long Beach Municipal Band.

'Gold' Stays at L.A. Museum

By ELISE EMERY
Arts Page Editor

The "Gold Before Columbus" exhibition at Los Angeles County Museum, originally scheduled to close next Sunday, has been continued through June 28.

More than 250 examples of the art of ancient New World Indian goldsmiths are on display.

On view are priceless golden pieces representing Indian craftsmanship in Peru, Ecuador, Panama, Colombia, Mexico and Costa Rica from 800 B.C. to 1500 A.D. The exhibit is the first of its kind to be shown on the West Coast and will be on display only at the County Museum.

Exhibition hours are 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. Fridays, closed Mondays, and from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the rest of the week. There is a small admission fee.

• • • •

GARDENA HERITAGE Foundation is conducting a contest to select the most appropriate over-all design for a mosaic mural.

• • • •

The mural, which will measure approximately 7 feet high by 16 feet long, will be installed in the City Council chambers and will portray the growth of Gardena. The winner will receive a cash award of $250.

Following selection of the design, a recognized mosaicist will be commissioned to construct the award winning concept on the south wall of the council chambers.

Artists from throughout Los Angeles County are invited to participate. Entries must be received by June 1. A fee of $2.50 will be charged for each entry. Application blanks may be obtained by writing to Betty Donahue, 2624 W. 155 St., Gardena, or to William Gerber, 2927 W. 139 St., Gardena.

The mural will be presented to the city in commemoration of the late Paul A. Rowley, Gardena's first administrative officer.

• • • •

WATER COLORS by Harold Scott will go on display Monday at North Branch Library, 5571 Orange Ave.

Scott is a member of Long Beach Art Association and of Laguna Beach Art Association. He has studied locally with Keith Finch, Arthur Beaumont and Rex Brandt.

His extensive travels have furnished subjects for many of his works. A continuing exhibition of his paintings is on view at 266 Alamitos Ave.

• • • •

TUESDAY, Helen E. Wilson, 156 Granada Ave., will go to Wichita Falls, Tex., to exhibit 25 of her paintings.

Mrs. Wilson has exhibited at Long Beach Museum of Art, Long Beach Art Association, Pacific Coast Club, Seal Beach Artists League and has been represented in many other shows.

• • • •

PAINTINGS, drawings and sculpture by Seena and Harry Futoran will hang through May at Dana Branch Library, 3680 Atlantic Ave.

Futoran, a teacher at Hosler Junior High School in Lynwood for 13 years, has studied with Ben Messick and Ken Glenn. Both Mr. and Mrs. Futoran have had instruction in life drawing from James Congell and Robert Lincoln.

EDNA SCHMERLER, 4147 Fleethaven Road, Lakewood, has a display of oil paintings at W & J Sloane's in Beverly Hills. The works will hang through May 30.

Mrs. Schmerler, wife of a physician and mother of four children, has studied at Long Beach City College and California State College at Long Beach.

She has exhibited locally and is represented in private collections.

Spike Jones

L.B.'s Own Spike Jones to Head Arena Show

Spike Jones, that master musical satirist, will come home to the city of his birth when he plays Saturday night in Long Beach Arena.

Concerts, Inc. has put the show together for people who like country music. Co-starring with Spike and his City Slickers will be Irene Ryan, Donna Douglas and Max Baer Jr. of the Beverly Hillbillies, Helen Grayco, The Good Time Singers, the Larry Maldanado Dancers, Homer and Jethro and Yonely, musical comic.

• • • •

SPIKE FIRST made his mark as star drummer with the late Victor Young's recording orchestra and with John Scott Trotter's band. He played drums on nearly all recording orchestras under Victor, Columbia and Decca labels and accompanied recording artists from Bobby Breen and Martha Raye to John Charles Thomas and Lily Pons.

Spike always was fascinated by odd and unusual noises and when he heard Igor Stravinsky's shoes squeaking in cadence at a performance of "Firebird Suite," his unusual brand of music was born.

• • • •

USING DOG barks, bird whistles, hiccoughs, sneezes and even belches, he began a recording career which made him famous on network television and rich through the sale of more than 40 million recordings.

Tickets for the show with plenty of corn, country music and folk tunes, are on sale at all Mutual Agencies.

'Tosca' Slated

Greek Theater's annual summer season will open June 27 with Puccini's "Tosca". Dorothy Kirsten will star with Barry Morell as co-star.

La Cienega Galleries Gala for Promenade

By VIRGINIA LADDEY

Anyone who missed last Sunday's Gallery Promenade on La Cienega Blvd., sponsored by the Art Museum Council of the Los Angeles County Museum, should heap upon his head coals of remorse.

Aside from the gala and enchanting social details (which included a Lucullan offering of food and drink), the event provided an excellent opportunity to see the 25 galleries with their brilliant and appropriate offerings.

• • • •

COMARA commissioned the members of its stable to do works referring to an original Haiku verse (Japanese poetic form of immense succinctness). Of these, the most compelling is Ward Kimball's "Night Train." The artist, also the leader of the "Fire House Five" (which cruised up and down the boulevard on a fire engine), did an interesting rendering of an old sleeping car; in each of its six black windows a glass eyeball winks disconcertingly.

Felix Landau offered a major show of the works of John Paul Jones — mysterious personages in the landscape of far away. Another important one-man show, that of Balcolm Greene, is a first good look at this stellar New York artist, and is found at Feingarten Galleries.

• • • •

IT IS IMPOSSIBLE to cite all the shows; among the most unusual were the collection of Cecil Beaton originals for "My Fair Lady" at Rex Evans, the widely sinister "Pop Art" parodies of advertising by Herb Hazelton at Ceeje and those at the David Stuart Gallery. Ferus shows Streeter Blair primitive painting . . . sort of Grandma Moses paeans to the agriculture of several states.

Esther Robles is presenting Stanton MacDonald Wright, whose "synchronist" works are cubistic color harmonies.

How to Be Seaworthy AND See-Worthy

Turns and pivots—whether on a slow boat to China or a fast boat to Catalina—become quite a navigation problem for mannequins who ride the waves.

Just ask any of the models who lurch through fashion showings of nautical-inspired resort wear every Saturday morning aboard the Big White Steamer to Catalina. Staged in the S.S. Catalina's ballroom, the show is produced by local fashion authority Elda Barry and her Vogue Agency mannequins.

● Red-haired Gail Stewart checks over wardrobe, seeing her costume changes for first time. (Fashions are brought over on boat from Catalina . . . models have no fittings beforehand . . . AND there's no mirror to check the fit.)

● Commentator Elda Barry (dressed in Spanish costume for Catalina's Fiesta de Oro celebration) reads script written hurriedly while boat travels from shoreline to breakwater. . . .

● Small-fry model Janise Borner, 9, like older models, uses center posts in ballroom to anchor model turns. . . .

● And Jo Marie Gaskill, modeling blouson swimsuit, hangs on for dear life as deck makes like a roller coaster.

Like she said: "Sometimes it's pretty difficult to be seaworthy and look ship shape at the same time."

Onlookers had no complaints. Jo Marie—and the show—shaped up beautifully . . . as they no doubt will every Saturday hence on the Great White Steamer to Catalina.

Decision to Divorce Not Easily Reached

Dear Molly Mayfield

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have been married eight years and have three small children. Keeping house and caring for the children has kept me pretty busy and close to home most of the eight years.

A few weeks ago I found out my husband hasn't been spending his evenings where he told me he was spending them. I checked around and found foolproof evidence that he has been cheating for the past six months. I also found out that my neighbors knew about it long before I did. I finally faced him with my evidence and he stated flatly that he wanted a divorce so he could marry the girl.

I am angry, hurt and not sure what I should do—give him a divorce or make him suffer along with me. What do you think?

—UNDECIDED

DEAR UNDECIDED:

Pretty lousy husband you have and you would probably be better off without him. Not much of a father, either.

You could refuse to divorce him but I wonder who would be the more miserable—you or he. On the other hand, if you divorce him, he gets the gal he wants and you are left to raise the three children. If you do let him go, be sure to get a good lawyer and see that you get ample support for you and the children. Keeping up two households is going to be rough on him unless he makes a lot of money.

Really, I think I'd get rid of him — sure wouldn't be any fun having him around the house, and I don't think the atmosphere would be good for the children, either.

I really hesitate to advise strongly either way—I can only tell you what I think I would do. Do whatever gives you the most satisfaction and peace of mind.

—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have a party-line phone (not by choice but by necessity) and I have one heck of a time trying to use it for necessary calls — let alone any other kind. It is bad enough, waiting a half-hour to 45 minutes to get to use the phone, but it is worse to have someone listening in on my conversation. I have reported this to the phone company (no results) and finally reached the point of becoming nasty to the listeners. Listening in on someone's conversation is, to me, like going through their purse — it just isn't done. Another thing, when my phone rings someone other than myself invariably picks it up and tells the caller they have the wrong number! Honestly, my phone has become a necessary evil and about to make a nasty woman of me.

I know you can't do anything about this but maybe some of the party-liners will read this and take heed.

—OUTRAGED

DEAR OUTRAGED:

I know what you mean, Outraged, and I don't blame you for feeling the way you do. I guess there are a lot of busybodies who can't think of anything to do but poke their noses in other people's business, and a lot of housewives who would rather gab on the phone for the better part of the day than do anything else.

Frankly, I think there should be a law against "visiting" on the phone for more than 15 minutes (an automatic cut-off would be fine). Listening in on another's conversation is small and petty—something sane, mature people wouldn't think of doing.

I have no remedy for you—just sympathy. The world is full of "little" people who never grew up.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

What do you think about a man who tells you he loves you more than anything in the world — and then when the holidays come doesn't once contact you?

He is a widower, professes to be lonely, says he adores me—but has never given me a gift, nor mentioned the word marriage.

I honestly don't know what to think. He is very persuasive when I'm with him.—SOFTHEARTED

DEAR SOFTHEARTED:

Or — and really, I don't mean this cruelly—perhaps we should say you're "softheaded." This man isn't in love with you or he would most certainly pay you more attention. He'd try to win you with little gifts and by planning special treats for you.

Don't you see, he gives exactly zero as a lover? And I think it's quite too bad that you've gone on settling for so little.—M.M.

• • • •

DEAR MRS. MAYFIELD:

I have quite a problem with heavy legs and a big "seat." I've tritd exercises, dieting, and even special girdles but nothing helps.

I am wondering if there is any place I can go to have the weight removed or any weight-reducing machines that will do the job.

I also blush easily and over nothing! Could that be all nerves?—BULGY

DEAR BULGY:

I don't put much stock in reducing "gadgets," and girdles don't take off weight—just push it around.

I would imagine there is a good slenderizing school in your city (check, to be sure it is reliable) that specializes in reducing certain parts of the body.

Actually, I would suggest you talk with your doctor about both your problems; he could soon tell you about the blushes and also recommend a way to slenderize your legs and "seat."—M.M.

Reception to Honor Democrats May 17

LOOKING FORWARD to a reception given by Democratic Women's Club of Long Beach for distinguished women leaders of the Democratic Party May 17 at Ebell Clubhouse are (from left) Mmes. Kit Cullen, Flora Dell Thompson, Mila Hastings and Ruth Kennick. Mrs. Cullen amuses her fellow Democrats with a rendition of "Donkey Serenade."

More than 1,000 invitations are in the mail for a reception May 17 from 3 to 6 p.m. at Ebell Clubhouse honoring women leaders of the Democratic Party from throughout the State of California.

Among those attending the event sponsored by Democratic Women's Study Club of Long Beach will be Elizabeth Smith Gatov, Democratic national committee woman and former treasurer of the United States; Jane Morrison, state women's chairman; Dianne McGinness, state vice-chairman; Ann Alanson, women's chairman, north; Carmen H. Warschaw, women's chairman, south, and chairman of the California Fair Practices Commission; and Trudy Owens, state secretary.

• • • •

HONORARY chairmen of the event will be Mmes. Clyde Doyle, Carl Fletcher, Joseph Kennick, Michael Cullen, Willard Hastings, Angelo Icaboni and Thomas Moore.

Mrs. Clarence Wright is club chairman.

Mrs. Flora Dell Thompson, club chaplain, who was among the founders of the club in 1932, and is the only charter member still active said, "Never before has a club been so honored by the presence of all state and national women officials."

Invitations have also been extended to Mrs. Pat Brown and Mrs. Alan Cranston.

• • • •

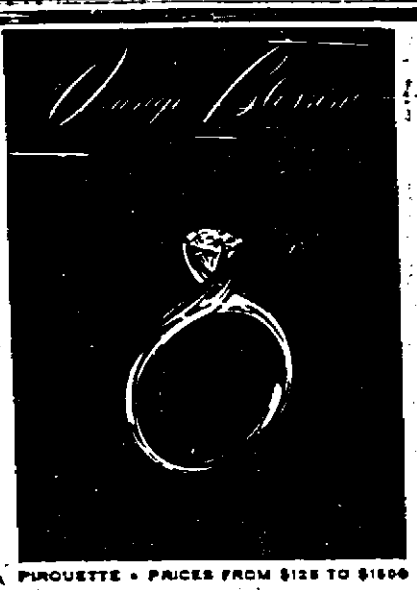

COMMITTEE members in charge of arrangements include Mmes. Maurice Patchett, Arlo Wieding, J. N. Waters, Guy Shane, Lloyd Seeliger, A. N. Tilston, Raymond Simpson, Carl Prough, L. M. Arbuckle and Russell Cocks.

Others are Doris Rumsey, Winifred Alan and Rose Mountain.

The reception is open to the public. For further information call Mrs. Wright, 231 Obispo Ave.

OPEN FRIDAY EVENINGS

Enrollment Is Now Open for YWCA's Summer Classes for 'Tiny Teens'

Long Beach YWCA, 550 Pacific Ave., is taking enrollments for its summer "Tiny Teens" program for girls from 7 to 11 years of age.

Classes are offered in swimming, baton twirling, crafts, modern dance, little theater, tumbling and reporting.

Swimming instruction is most popular with the girls and gives them an opportunity to earn their Red Cross Swim cards.

Girls also publish a weekly paper, "The Newsreel," which tells of program activities and contests.

• • • •

QUALIFIED instructors teach all classes and teenage girls assist as aides with small groups. Girls come twice a week for four weeks; they may enroll for the July or the August term.

Transportation from designated areas throughout Long Beach and Lakewood will bring girls to the downtown building where complete gym and pool facilities are available.

• • • •

THE SUMMER program will be climaxed with a carnival party in August at which parents will watch their daughters perform their new skills.

Information on other programs and registration can be obtained at the YWCA Mondays through Saturdays.

Spring Party to Be Friday

Dr. and Mrs. James Magnall will be host to members of the Auxiliary to the Long Beach District of the 41st Medical Society and their husbands at a spring dinner dance at Long Beach Yacht Club Friday night at 7 p.m.

Assisting will be Dr. and Mrs. Nelson Mathison and Dr. and Mrs. Willis E. Tunnell.

The auxiliary's major project for the year is giving financial support to the American Medical Education Research Foundation. Funds raised have been alloted to the California College of Medicine in Los Angeles.

German-American Club Dance Set

German American Club Fidelitas of Long Beach will have a Crazy Hat dance Saturday at 8 p.m. at 516 W. Esther St. Mrs. William Hendler, 1980 Chestnut Ave., is in charge of reservations.

Franz Bahl, Los Angeles, and his five-piece band will play modern and folk dances. Prizes will be awarded to members with winning hats. Highlight of the evening will be the visit of a German soccerball team from Hamburg, Germany. The team, here for six weeks, is guest playing in Los Angeles.

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

It's a Day of Remembering

DEAR ABBY: My mother gave me her annual warning speech again this year prior to Mother's Day. It always starts out, "Please don't buy me anything. There's nothing I need." Abby, this hurts me. I KNOW my mother doesn't "need" anything, but it takes the pleasure out of it for me when she is so ungracious as to reject my gift before she even gets it. Please put a word or two in your column letting mothers know that their children enjoy buying Mother's Day gifts, and they should not be discouraged from doing so.—LOVES TO GIVE

ABBY

DEAR LOVES: Most mothers are fearful that their children will deny themselves something in order to buy a Mother's Day gift. An original poem or letter doesn't cost anything, and is the most cherished of all gifts. When I was a child, my own mother used to say, "Don't buy me anything. I have everything I need." So I would write little poems and verses telling her how much I appreciated her. Only after she passed away did I realize how much they meant to her. She had saved every one.

• • • •

DEAR ABBY: Maybe I'm wrong, but I always thought that Mother's Day was a day to remember one's OWN mother. I am my husband's sweetheart, companion, partner and lover but, by Jove, I am NOT his mother! I hope that Bill and I never start calling each other "Mother" and "Dad" like some couples we know. And we certainly don't intend to exchange gifts on "Mother's Day" and "Father's Day."—MY MOTHER'S DAUGHTER

Dear Readers: In my files is this letter, written on Mother's Day by a young prisoner who was awaiting execution in San Quintin prison:

"A crime was committed. There was an arrest. And a boy was thrown into a cell. The crime was great, the boy was young and the cell was dark. Life seemed at an end, and hell became a living thing.

"Then one day, as the boy sat weeping, he looked up to see his mother. She was smiling. She opened her arms and said, 'My son, did you think I would not come to you?' Suddenly the boy forgot his terror and found comfort in the magic circle of his mother's arms.

"Through the dark that shrouded the hill of Calvary, a voice cried, 'Son, behold thy mother!' And Mary knelt at the foot of the cross.

"For every son who crucifies himself on pillars of hate, weakness and greed, there at the foot of the cross you will find his mother. Your mother and mine. God bless them, here and beyond. They have known so much pain."

CHEF OF THE WEEK

His Hobby--Horses

By MILDRED K. FLANARY
L-P-T Food Editor

It all sounds a bit ambiguous. He's president of the Cutting Horse Association, yet he's in the tuna business. Apparently he's a master at both, for today's Chef of the Week, Glenn H. Copeland, is executive vice president of Chicken of the Sea, Inc., and has a room full of ribbons for knowing his horses.

And—now, for you ladies — here's what a "cutting horse" is. You may be sure that we're quoting: "The Cutting horse is a stock horse with a high economic value; he can earn his keep at home and then go to a contest and put on a splendid and entertaining performance to the spectator by presenting a colorful picture of ranch work at its best. Performance regardless of color, sex or breed, is the sole guide to his value; that is, the ability to enter a herd of cattle, cut an animal out of the herd for shipment to market, doctoring or moving to another pasture; and prevent this animal from returning to the herd. . .

"Cow sense in its highest degree is shown as this horse anticipates every movement of the animal and does his own thinking and acting with little help from the rider. . ."

• • • •

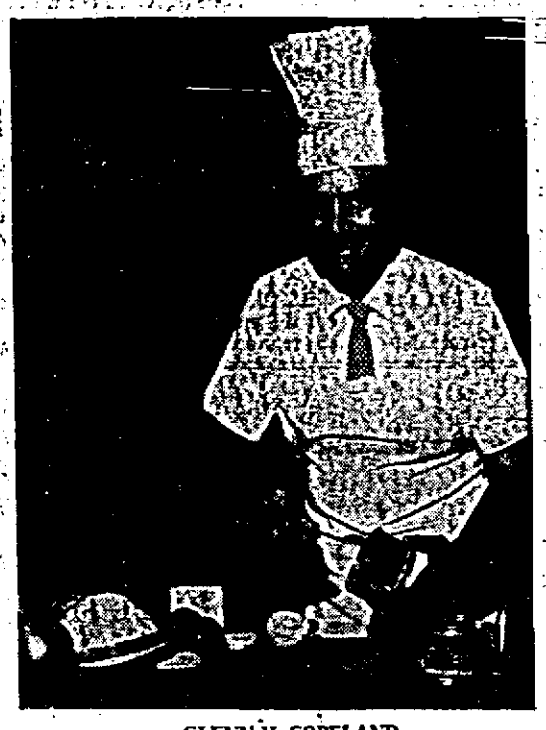

NOW, YOU, too, know that a cutting horse isn't a toy horse cut out of anything.

To get back to our "Chef" . . . he was born in Waynesboro, Tenn., way down near the Alabama border. At the age of six, however, he left his southern drawl and moved with his family to Imperial Valley where his father became a cotton farmer.

He says there wasn't much to write about that era. When he was in the eighth grade, however, his family moved to San Diego. It was during summer vacations, when he went to work for a grocery store, that the groundwork for his present vocation was laid.

He had climbed from stock clerk to checker by the time he had finished school, so he went to work full-time for the (late) Humpty-Dumpty chain of stores. It was through a mutual friend that he met the Van Camp Seafood's management; and in 1937 joined their San Diego plant as timekeeper. He learned all facets of the business while serving as superintendent, assistant manager and then manager.

Eight years ago he came to the Long Beach office as purchasing agent. Presently he is the executive "veep."

GLENN H. COPELAND

WHILE COPELAND was, is and always has been, vitally interested in the tuna, he still had the yearnings of a rancher. So, in 1944, he and his family purchased 11 acres in La Mesa, where he raises oranges, avocados, doing his own tree grafting. He also, at one time, boasted the presence of 20 sheep. The sheep have since departed, but he still has two horses of his own.

He and Mrs. Copeland (Luelle) have two sons, Robert, a law student at USC, and John, a 9th grade student at Rogers.

By the way, he gives credit to the grocery business, also, for his having met Luelle. He explains: "I was her groceryman in San Diego."

Copeland is actively interested in Boy Scout work and in the Red Cross. He also spends much time atop that cutting horse. Just last week he journeyed to Lompoc to ride in a cutting horse race.

Our "Chef's" cooking abilities didn't develop until the "later" years — that is, not until the advent of the chicken and the barbecue. But he can think of more ways to eat tuna than you can ever imagine—and believes there is no better combination than tuna and avocado. He has a rather special interest in both, you see.

His recipe today, however, is for Tuna Pizza. And it is NOT a business secret.

- 1 cup pitted sliced ripe olives
- 1 can (6½-oz) tuna
- 1 can (8-oz) drained mushrooms
- ¼ cup chopped onion
- 1 minced garlic clove
- 1¾ cups (15-oz) can tomato sauce.

Season with salt and pepper. Spread on toasted French or sour dough bread slices. Sprinkle with 2½ cups grated Cheddar cheese and 1 teaspoon oregano. Bake in hot oven (425°) 15-20 minutes or until brown. Serves 6.

Mrs. Frankenburger Heads State TTT for Second Term

Mrs. H. L. Frankenburger, 2140 E. First St., will be installed for her second term as state president of the National TTT Society during the state convention at Mira Mar Hotel, Santa Monica, May 15 and 16.

California Chapter B, Los Angeles, is in charge of convention plans.

Mrs. Frankenburger has served on the board of directors of Long Beach Ebell Club. She is a past president of TTT Society's Chapter E in Long Beach and is now a member of Long Beach Chapter L. She originated the plan for TTT Society to sponsor a foster home pilot project in this city.

• • • •

FOR SOME MONTHS, one child has been cared for in a foster home, and a second child soon may be placed.

The National TTT Society, founded 53 years ago in Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, now has 6,000 members in chapters across the country. The main project is the support of two summer camps for girls 10 to 11 years of age.

• • • •

IN ADDITION, each chapter supports its own local philanthropy.

Among TTT members in Long Beach who will attend the convention are Mmes. E. T. Beckman, P. L. Roberts, U. B. Killingsworth and E. Ralph Clarke.

Honored guests will include the national president, Mrs. Paul R. Fry of Omaha, Neb., and other national officers.

List School Menus

The following menus will be served in Long Beach elementary schools in the week of May 11-15:

MONDAY: Hot dog, Spanish coleslaw, fruit cup supreme, olive-cheese treat and milk.

TUESDAY: Italian spaghetti, buttered carrots, strawberry sauce, hot buttered French bread and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Pizza, garden salad, sliced peaches, homemade peanut butter cookie and milk.

THURSDAY: Meat loaf, mashed potatoes-gravy, apricot halves, raisin bread and butter and milk.

FRIDAY: Baked fish, buttered green beans, fruit gelatin, orange juice bar, whole wheat and butter and milk.

The above items make up the elementary children's lunch 30c. Soup and salad from the junior-senior high school a la carte menu are sold in the elementary schools, but they may be purchased by the children only after they have purchased the tray lunch.

JUNIOR-SENIOR HIGH

MONDAY: Lasagne, buttered green beans, applesauce, hot buttered French bread and milk.

TUESDAY: Hamburger, potato salad, sliced peaches, olives and milk.

WEDNESDAY: Chopped steak on mashed potatoes, buttered peas, chocolate pudding, raisin bread and butter and milk.

THURSDAY: Pizza, garden salad, cherry sauce, oatmeal cookie and milk.

FRIDAY: Tuna-noodle casserole or Mexicali pie, buttered whole kernel corn, fruit cup supreme, peanut butter sandwich and milk.

McLain Speaks

A talk on politics will be given by George McLain at the meeting of National League of Senior Citizens Club on Monday at 1:30 p.m. in Machinists Hall, 728 Elm Ave. A noon dessert luncheon will precede the talk.

East-West Must Beat

One reason why bridge columns rarely show part-score hands is because they are likely to be far more difficult than the more sensational game and slam holdings.

North has a doubtful one-spade response and when South jumps to three hearts North should pass and let him struggle with that contract.

Of course, the North-South par on this hand at the Intercollegiate Bridge Tournament was easy. All they had to do was to play the hand below game in hearts.

East-West had a much tougher par. They had to beat the three heart contract.

West made his normal lead of the king of diamonds and it was up to East to drop the queen. This is a conventional play that shows the jack. West then must take advantage of this information and lead his ten of diamonds.

AFTER THIS nice start, East should have no trouble overtaking with the jack and leading back a trump.

South's best play will be to win the trick and lead a club toward dummy's queen. East will win with the king and lead a second trump, whereupon South will be held to eight tricks.

With Calm Resolve, She Faces Future

own during her 10 years of marriage was the one built in 1963 at Rattlesnake Mountain in Atoka, Va., 45 miles from Washington.

When Kennedy died, Mrs. Kennedy went there as her first place of retreat with her children. The ranch-style five-bedroom house on a 39-acre tract has a magnificent view of the Blue Ridge Mountains.

Mrs. Kennedy has dined out at several fashionable restaurants around town with small parties, usually dining late. One night, with Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara in her party at the Rive Gauche, she gave an autograph to the chef and told him she liked his French cuisine.

Mrs. Kennedy has given some private dinners and has been a dinner guest at the home of friends. She has dined out with the British Ambassador and Lady Harlech and dropped in on a gay party given by Schlesinger's friends.

Instead of an Easter trek to Palm Beach this year, Mrs. Kennedy joined other Kennedys at a ski resort in Stowe, Vt. She launched into lessons in skiing, taking a few spills as she was tutored in the basics. Caroline had trouble keeping upright at first, too, and little John gleefully tried the sport on a pair of bright red skis.

BEFORE SHE LEFT, Mrs. Kennedy tried out the more difficult intermediate trail. As she returned from the steeper slope at Spruce Peak, her face rosy in the crisp weather, she said "It was perfectly wonderful."

Late on Easter Sunday, Mrs. Kennedy left her children with other Kennedy cousins and flew to Antigua, in the British West Indies. She traveled by commercial plane accompanied by the Attorney General and her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Stanislas Radziwill.

They were guests at the seaside mansion of banker Paul Mellon, who is a Virginia hunt country neighbor and friend of Mrs. Kennedy.

These holidays indicated that Mrs. Kennedy was not only in good spirits, but had returned to the more normal pursuits of life.

INCREASING number of tourists find way to the Georgetown home of Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy.

Durand-Wood Betrothal Told

June 13 has been selected as their wedding date by Sarah Kemper Durand and Kerry Michael Wood, according to an announcement by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Durand of Palo Alto.

Miss Durand is a graduate of Stanford University.

Her fiance, son of Mr. and Mrs. Homer A. Wood, Long Beach, was graduated from St. Anthony's High School and Yale University where he affiliated with the St. Elmo Society. He also is a graduate of the Army Language School at Monterey.

WHY GROW OLD?

Reducing Diets Must Include Essential Foods

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Those of you who have been following my 9-Day Reducing Diet must be feeling pretty proud of yourselves about now if you began the menus last Tuesday. That bulge above the waist is going, going, and will soon be gone! Your belts are treating you to the wonderful loose feeling, and you can see your insteps without half trying!

There are only three days to go. Don't stop just short of the finish line! Another two or three pounds may be hanging by an ounce, ready to drop away, if you provide that last little three-day shove.

I publish this diet each year in the spring because so many women have just a few pounds to lose and are anxious to do so before summer sports and play clothes roll around. Five to 10 pounds make such a great difference in the way a woman looks and in the way she feels.

• • • •

IF YOU have more weight to lose, use this rapid diet as an encouraging start. Then count calories, holding your daily intake to 1200 a day. Every few weeks repeat the 9-Day Diet.

When planning your own low-calorie meals, be sure that you obtain all of the essential food elements. Be certain that your menus are high in proteins, minerals and vitamins. The important protein foods are meats, fowl, eggs, seafoods, cheese and milk. You will have plenty of minerals and vitamins if you use the above foods and add generous amounts of fruits and vegetables.

You need some whole grain foods. You can get these in bread or cereal. If you have cereal use only a moderate amount of sugar or one of the artificial sweeteners and skim milk.

Take smaller servings than usual and use lean meat, skim milk and broil or bake foods rather than frying or creaming them. Cut down on carbohydrates and fats.

Here are the menus for Monday:

BREAKFAST
One-half grapefruit
One boiled egg
One thin dry slice of whole wheat toast
Black coffee

LUNCHEON
Chicken sandwich (no butter—thin slices of whole wheat bread)
Sliced tomatoes or canned tomatoes
One glass skimmed milk

DINNER
Minute steak or chops
Salad of shredded cabbage and carrots
One-half cup spinach-greens or broccoli
One-half grapefruit
One glass skimmed milk

If you would like to have the complete 9-Day Reducing Diet, which gives you substitute foods, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Mrs. Wells Takes Helm for Council

Mrs. Tracy Wells will be installed as the new president of Long Beach Area Council of Beta Sigma Phi on Tuesday in the French Room of the Lafayette Hotel. Dinner will be served at 7 p.m.

Also installed by the past president, Mrs. Carl B. Hensley, will be Mmes. William E. Gough, Xi Delta Xi; Rodger Hulette, Xi Theta Phi; William J. Vadalma, Iota; Dorothy Abshere, Gamma Rho; and Lou Bowman, Xi Alpha Kappa.

The new top officer has been president of her chapter, Nu Mu, and has been directory chairman of the council during the past year. She lives in Seal Beach with her husband and two children.

• • • •

LOS ANGELES Statler Hilton will be setting for the 24th annual California state convention of Beta Sigma Phi on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Representatives of local chapters wil attend, and, at the closing event, four state area council philanthropic chairmen will present donations to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation.

New Group Organizing

A tea will be held Wednesday at 10:30 a.m. at the home of Mrs. Harold Stein, 63 Rivo Alto Canal, to organize a new chapter of Women's American Organization for Rehabilitation through Training.

The group is a fast growing Jewish women's organization. It now has 60,000 members in 450 chapters throughout the nation and is the largest non-governmental vocational training agency in the world.

Over 600 technical and vocational training agencies in 22 countries are maintained by ORT.

BERT'S EYE VIEW

Long Beach Dancers Draw Top Mail

By BERT RESNIK
TV and Radio Editor

Three years ago a young dancing couple from Long Beach made their debut on "The Lawrence Welk Show."

If they were nervous, Barbara Boylan and Bob Burgess, the dancing couple, didn't show it.

The couple brought new life to the program and Welk, an old pro, recognized it. He kept the Long Beach dancers on as regulars.

In a recent interview—not with this reporter—Welk said he felt the youngsters were his No. 1 attraction.

Eight secretaries, who keep count of the mail for Welk, agree. The Long Beach dancers get the most letters.

* * * *

BARBARA AND Bob don't agree. It could be true that they get more mail, they acquiesce, but don't forget they're a combined entry. It is "together" that the postal tally makes them No. 1.

If that attitude indicates to you that the Boylan-Burgess combo hasn't yet gone Hollywood, go to the head of the viewing class.

They haven't gone Hollywood literally or figuratively.

Both still live in Long Beach, which frequently necessitates commuting to Hollywood back and forth twice a day.

"It is harder to live in Hollywood," said Barbara, "than drive back and forth.

"There's something about Hollywood — sometimes you lose a sense of reality.

"In Long Beach you can forget about Hollywood. It's a different life."

* * * *

IT IS ALSO a "different life" which Bob prefers.

"My best friends are in Long Beach," he said. "I can go to the beach when I feel like it."

Bob, 22, a graduate of Poly High, and Barbara, "about the same age," a graduate of Millikan, both attend California State College at Long Beach.

Neither is ready for marriage.

"I think you have to devote quite a bit of time to marriage," said Barbara, "and we don't have that time right now.

"When I do get married, I want to have enough time to devote to my husband.

"I couldn't marry anybody else and work. I'm with Bob so much more time than I would be at home."

As for Bob:

"I'm determined to get my college degree before I get married. A bachelor of arts degree to me will represent security."

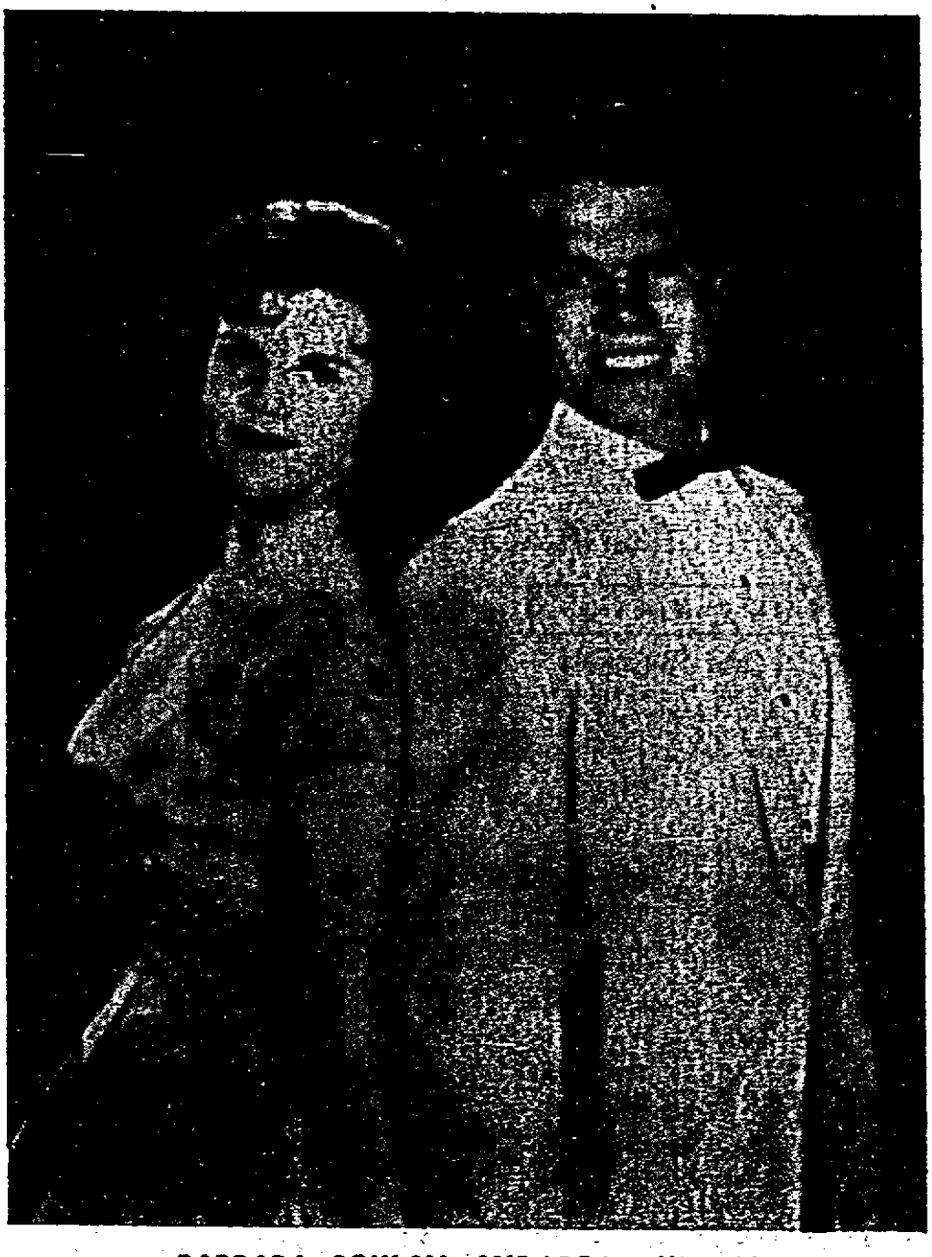

NEITHER dates anyone else at the moment. Their dates are mailmen's holidays. They go see a movie where there's dancing or to a club where there are dancers.

When they go on tour, as they currently are, the couple is accompanied by Barbara's mother, Mrs. Ruby Boylan, or Bob's grandmother, Mrs. Sadie Thompson, or one of Bob's sisters.

On tour and off tour, one thing is becoming increasingly more evident.

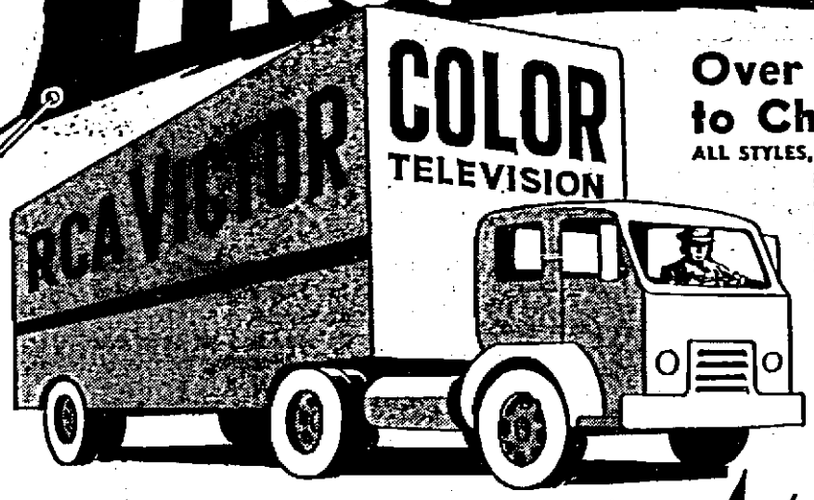

"People are really beginning to recognize us now,"

TRADER TUCKER

The Sharpest Pencil in the Swimming Pool Business!

The man from FIESTA knows so much about pools that we permit him to give you a firm estimate on your swimming pool (any size, any shape) the first time he calls on you!

THAT TAKES A REAL EXPERT! Because if he estimates your pool too high, we'll lose the job. And if he estimates your pool too low, we'll lose money on it. More than 10,000 Fiesta Pool owners have said that the man from Fiesta is right—that he does indeed have the sharpest pencil in the swimming pool business! We know he's right, or Fiesta couldn't be the world's largest privately owned pool company, and the only pool builder in Southern California that uses no subcontractors to build your swimming pool! That's what makes his pencil so sharp!

If you can afford $21 A MONTH for a swimming pool (from $1688 COMPLETE*) with a lifetime structural guarantee, call the man from Fiesta. With any Fiesta Pool he will give you all these Fiesta exclusives for a limited time only: A built-in Barbecue Fire-Pit (illustrated)—FREE! An automatic pool cleaner—for only $135.00! Custom landscaping service! And a 10-Point Pool Service Program—FREE! So call the man who knows most about swimming pools—the man with the lowest price, the sharpest pencil, and the best bonus offer—the man from Fiesta! Call him at the number nearest you, listed below. Sports Today

BASEBALL, 10:25 a.m., ch. 8 (San Diego), has the Phillies hosting the Cincinnati Reds at Connie Mack.

BASEBALL, 11 a.m., ch. 10 (San Diego), with the Yankees - Indians game from Cleveland Stadium.

BASEBALL, 12:55 p.m., ch. 11, with the wind-up of the 3-game Dodgers - Giant series from Candlestick Park.

COLONIAL OPEN golf tournament, 3:30 p.m., ch. 9, is the 19th annual PGA tourney from Fort Worth (Tex.), as Julius Boros defends his title in the final round.

SPORTS SPECTACULAR, 5 p.m., ch. 2, has tapes of Saturday's sixth annual Syracuse University varsity-alumni football game at Archbald Stadium.

SPECIAL

ARMED FORCES PARADE—One-time KTLA star Ken Graue is behind the ch. 11 microphones at 10:40 a.m. with 90-min. tapes of Saturday's San Pedro parade kicking off Armed Forces Week.

ARREST & TRIAL—The single segment which won three Emmy nominations for the defunct series is repeated at 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, as a young man's secret gloating over his "perfect" murder prompts him to strike up an acquaintance with the investigating detective. Featured, in nomination-winning roles, are Roddy McDowall, Anjanette Comer and Martine Bartlett.

BRENNER—The father-son police drama series, starring Edward Binns and James Broderick, returns with 10 new and 10 repeat segments at 9:30 p.m., ch. 2, replacing the ill-fated "Made in America" until Joey Bishop's debut next fall. Opener deals with a "stoolie" who sells tips to the police.

THE SENSUALISTS—George Mathews, R. A. Jordan, Peter Brandon and Mark Leonard star in a Robert Herridge adaptation of Destoevski's novel "The Brothers Karamazov" at 9 p.m., ch. 11. Capturing the heart of the novel through a segment exposing its principal characters, show is the second in six Herridge-produced hours.

AMERICAN SPECTACLE—Van Heflin is guide on a tour of the great natural wonders of America, from the rugged shores of Capes Cod and Hatteras, across the land to Hawaii, in a repeat hour at 10 p.m., in color, ch. 4. Produced and written by Lou Hazam, show visits Niagara Falls, the bayous, Petrified Forest, Monument Valley, Yellowstone, Grand Tetons, etc.

Pan and Fan Mail

Why, oh why, do so many TV announcers ruin the viewer's enjoyment of a movie by spilling the entire plot ahead of time?

One of the most exasperating emcees is Ted Meyers of Channel Nine's Million Dollar Movie. We can understand the desire of the announcer to whet the viewer's appetite so he won't switch channels as a movie is about to come on, but is it necessary to go into such detail?

Here's a typical example of Meyer's pre-movie commentary:

"Tonight's thrilling mystery concerns a millionaire heiress who is killed in a fall from a horse but is later discovered to have been killed by a poison dart from a blow gun at first thought to have been used by the butler who is not really the butler at all but the girl's half-brother. A gardner who is actually an FBI agent saves the brother-butler from being lynched by a mob whose leader is a Nazi spy who is dragged into the alligator infested waters when the rope with which he was going to hang the innocent brother gets tangled in the propeller of a swampboat. Now stay tuned for the suspenseful opening scenes of tonight's mystery."

By this time the movie has about as much intrigue as a marshmallow.

We are not blessed at our house with a remote control shut-off so when the announcer starts to spill the beans we beat pie tins, begin a hottenanny, rattle the potato chip bag—anything to drown-out the tattletale until he shuts up so we can find out for ourselves that it was the butler after all who really dun-it!

Jack Baldwin, Long Beach

You're wrong, Jack. It was the maid.

What happened to Miss Barbara on channel 5's "Romper Room?" Our children miss her.

Chickie Drestick, Long Beach

"Romper Room" operations are controlled on a semi-syndicated basis from headquarters in Baltimore, Md.

Baltimore headquarters, which a year or so back had approved Miss Barbara (Bellino), suddenly decided to un-approve her. The basis, according to what they told KTLA management, is that Miss Barbara doesn't have a college education, although she holds a nurse's certificate.

KTLA (channel 5) was happy with Miss Barbara and sorry to see her go.

Her replacement, Miss Sally (McCrae), has a masters degree in education.

Could you tell me if the gentleman who sings the advertisement for Gallo Wine is one of the male singers who sings with Lawrence Welk's show. We enjoy his singing and all of Welk's.

Mrs. Lena A. Blair, Long Beach

Personally, I prefer the way Welk blows bubbles.

FRED MacMURRAY, star of "My Three Sons," switches roles to guest-host "The Hollywood Palace" at 9:30 p. m. Saturday, channel 7.

★ SPECIAL

CHAD MITCHELL TRIO—Hour-long folk singing special, filmed on location in Chicago, Lake Michigan, area colleges, and originally planned as pilot for proposed series, is repeated at 8 p.m., ch. 13. Joining the roster are Josh White, The Weavers, Kathleen O'Grady and the Second City Players.

BREAKING POINT—ABC continues its 3-day rescreening of Emmy-nominated segments at 10 p.m., ch. 7, with the critically-acclaimed story of a schizophrenic child and the therapist dedicated to finding the key to communicating with him. Eddie Rossen plays the child, with Martine Bartlett, Emmy-nominated for her "Arrest & Trial" role re-shown Sunday, as the therapist, in episode which won writing nomination for Allan Sloane. Entered in the Cannes Film Festival, segment lost out to ABC's 4-Emmy - nominations special, "Making of the President 1960," which copped the Grand Prize, and will be re-screened June 11. ("Breaking Point," incidentally, cancelled by ABC, will be repeated next season on KTTV.)

★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★ ★

Salary Halved from $10,000 to $5,000 an Appearance

By JOSEPH FINNIGAN

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — High-salaried television actors are being hit with a pay cut, slashes which might cost them each $5,000 a week.

The salary scale for most video actors, under terms of the Screen Actors Guild contract with producers, is $100 a day. However, well-known stars can command much more than that. At one time they were getting $10,000 or more for a guest-star appearance on a television series episode—one week's work.

Top salaries for guest stars are now in the neighborhood of $5,000 per segment, and less. Such series as "Breaking Point," "Eleventh Hour," "Dr. Kildare," "Greatest Show on Earth" and "Ben Casey" are trying to hold the line at $5,000. "Route 66," before it was canceled, dropped its top price from $7,500 to $5,000.

Richard Wookey, head of casting for NBC-TV here, said he believed that guest stars have been "grossly overpaid."

"What I have to say is based on previous years of experience," he said. "I do strongly feel that the tops of these shows have been abused. I think it was the industry's own fault in the first instance, we allowed it to happen."

WOOKEY BLAMES much of the trouble on agents who get 10 per cent of their actor client's salary.

"I think the major fault lies with the agents who have misguided their performers to a point where they've given them delusions of grandeur,' he said. "It's hard for the actor's ego to pull back on that. I've been an actor, I've been an agent and a casting director."

Wookey said he was not speaking for NBC. But it was apparent from comments of others in Hollywood that television producers are setting ceilings on salaries.

"I think definitely that tops will be imposed on the major burden of the television filmed shows and actors will either have to subscribe to it or find their work in some other area," Wookey said. "They're certainly not going to get it on stage."

HE ALSO SAID actors who work for $5,000 a show in Hollywood will fly to New York and act in an episode of a series emanating from that city for $1,500.

Dana Andrews, president of the Screen Actors Guild, said there was little his organization could do about top salaries in television.

"This has been going on for a year," he said. "It's been slowly sneaking up on us. It started out with shows that said they couldn't pay more than a certain figure."

Andrews, who believes that pay-television would result in more money for actors, said he doesn't blame producers for cutting guest star salaries.

"They have to work within the limits of the television industry as it is today," he said.

MARY TYLER MOORE, who normally plays a housewife on "The Dick Van Dyke Show," displays other facets of her versatile talent when she sings and dances on "The Ed Sullivan Show" at 8 p. m. today (Sunday), channel 2.

Sports Today

ROLLER SKATING championship, 9 p.m., ch. 5, with Dick Layne at the Olympic

SPECIAL

TODAY — Actor Maurice Evans is guide for a 2-hour tour of the American Shakespeare Festival Theater and Academy at Stratford, Conn., seen by tape at 7 a.m., ch. 4. A scene from "Hamlet" is preceded by a discussion of the play by members of the theatre's repertory company.

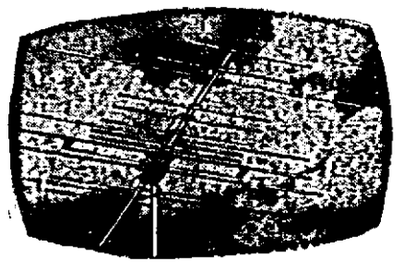

COMBAT! — Conlan Carter is seen in his Emmy-nominated performance as Doc, the medic, during the repeat segment at 7:30 p.m., ch. 7. Mark Richman guestars as a German officer who has captured Saunders, Caje and Doc, intending to use them for safe passage back to the German lines, with a stolen ambulance for transportation.

OREGON PRIMARY Preview — Frank McGee is anchor man for a half-hour report on the final campaign activity in the only primary election (to be held Friday) in which the names of Lodge, Nixon and Scranton appear on the ballot (in addition to Goldwater, Rockefeller and Mrs. Smith). David Brinkley evaluates the candidates' chances (polls have it another Lodge sweep) during the 8:30 p.m., ch. 4, special.

ANDY WILLIAMS — Joey Bishop repays Andy's recent visit to his Sat. night show by guesting at 10 p.m., ch. 4, in color. The comedian almost sings and almost plays the mandolin, but is playfully upstaged by Andy, the Osmond Brothers and the Good Time Singers. For his close, Williams sings the complete lyrics to "May Each Day."

AFTER TEN YEARS: The Court and the Schools—Attorney General Robert F. Kennedy, Georgia's Governor Carl E. Sanders and NAACP's executive secretary Roy Wilkins, in RFK's Justice Dept. office, participate in a taped discussion of the status of school desegregation of the 10th anniversary of the Supreme Court decision outlawing segregated public schools. Preceding this, at 7:30 p.m., ch. 2, is an hour-long report, anchored by Harry Reasoner, of the progress in key cities affected, with Charles Kuralt in Topeka, Reasoner in Little Rock, Dan Rather in Nashville, Martin Agronsky in Prince Edward County (Va.), Mike Wallace in New Rochelle (N.Y.), and Kuralt, Nelson Benton and Lew Wood in New Orleans.

SEN. BARRY GOLDWATER—A political first is this half-hour prime-time network talk two months before the nominating convention, and with only three primaries to go, as the Arizona conservative talks with some of his friends at 8:30 p.m., ch. 2. Chatting informally with two of his campaign leaders, Goldwater airs his views on civil rights, foreign and economic policy and morality in government. (Goldwater also is interviewed in Washington by Robert MacNeil on "Today," 8:30 a.m., ch. 4)

"The Little Things in Life . . ." goes the old refrain. To those of us at CHERRY AVE. FOOD & LIQUOR MART (1429 Cherry Ave.), the so-called "Little Things" are BIG things . . . and we believe they are to you. Maybe that's why we see the same folks again and again in our cheery store on Cherry Avenue, along with lots of new faces. Several of these new customers have mentioned hearing about us through friends.

Naturally it make us feel pretty good to be told we have the reputation of being "THE" place in town to get the finest meats, the freshest fruits and vegetables, and the friendliest service. . . . but it also gives us a responsibility to live up to. . . . it means we can't get "lazy" . . . we have to continue to offer prices as low or lower than supermarkets, and to be always on our toes to please you with the highest quality and best value obtainable. This gets back to the "little things" like the special way we trim our meats of every bit of waste possible . . . of going into the fields to get plump choice strawberries and get them to you faster! . . . and lots, lots more.

VIDEO COWBOYS BITE DUST

East Gunning Old West Off TV

By VERNON SCOTT

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — It's a darned good thing the men of the old west were more durable than the shows that have chronicled their exploits on television, or everything west of St. Louis would still be sagebrush and Indians.

From a peak of more than 20 prime-time horse-operas three years ago, television is down to a puny five for next season.

Boots and saddles haven't been this empty since Custer's last stand.

The dearth of westerns elicits cheers from some sectors and tears from others. No matter. There must be a reason for the fading thunder of hoofbeats in television.

There is. And the man with the answer is David Dortort, producer of "Bonanza," one of the five survivors on the air.

"The mortality rate for westerns is due to the provincialism of New York television executives who are out of touch with 99 per cent of the country," he said.

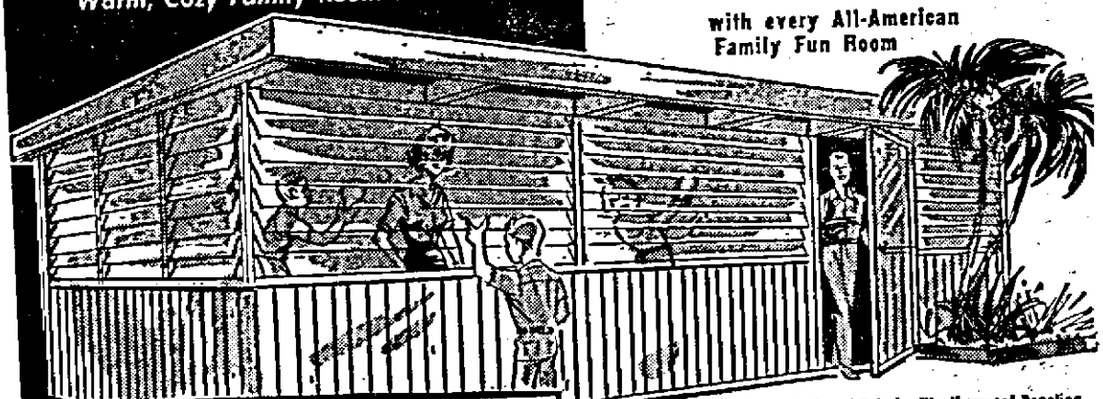

* * * *

DORTORTS "Bonanza," running neck and neck with "The Beverly Hillbillies" for top rating honors, has one thing in common with other westerns still on the air. It is an hour show.

The others, "Gunsmoke," "Rawhide," "The Virginian" and "Wagon Train," are also an hour longer. "Wagon Train" pares down from 90 minutes to 60 next fall, but "The Virginian" will stay with its hour-and-half format.

"The public will always want to see westerns. And I'll tell you why. Because 75 per cent of the American people are only a generation or two away from the pioneers who built the west—or at least of the same stock."

MY THREE SONS — Don Grady, who at one time had his own 8-piece band, and who plays clarinet, drums, ukulele, bass, accordion and piano, draws two credits during the 8:30 p.m., ch. 7, segment today. The 20-year-old actor, in addition to his regular billing as Robbie Douglas, racks up his second tunesmith credit for his latest song, "A Broken Heart Knows Better," recently recorded by Capitol. Show finds Mike and Robbie, following Bub's outdated recommendations, in New York to audition songs they hope will win them showbiz fame and fortune. J. Pat O'Malley and Joe Mantell are featured. (Series, incidentally, retains its same slot for its 5th season come fall.)

Comic Carter Seeks Change of Pace -- By Jove! -- in Merry Old England

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI) — Comedian Jack Carter, who would prefer to be called an entertainer these days, couldn't resist the typical comic's quip when asked why he is going to Britain to do some television.

"I am going to England as America's answer to the Beatles," he said, referring to the rock-'n'-roll quartet that appeared here recently.

"But seriously, the English audiences, both in clubs and for television, are very, very good. I enjoy working in England because it provides a change of pace and helps keep me sharp.

"I don't do the same things there that I do here. I try to localize my act. I base my material on what is happening as reported in the British press and on the activities of British personalities.

• • • •

"I WISH ALL of those American performers who don't change a line in their

JACK CARTER

acts well, but I feel that an entertainer has a certain responsibility to his audiences to give the material that is topical and familiar to them.

"A performer such as myself must always search for new outlets and new audiences. You get stale doing the same things for the same people continually."

Carter will tape two programs for a new British broadcasting corporation series called "International Cabaret."

Carter, of course, has been appearing on television here almost since the home screen became a fact.

"I never worry about overexposure," he said, "since I only do guest shots on variety shows or an occasional dramatic role. If I had my own show, or were a regular guest on a program, I would have cause to be concerned about over-exposure.

• • • •

THE STAR turned to a general discussion of the comic art, saying that one thing that bugs him is the perennial question as to whether all funny men aren't really sad underneath.

"It isn't a question of the 'Hamlet complex,'" Carter said. "I mean, wanting to play a tragic character, which is what most people who ask the question are driving at. But there can be times when you feel low.

"If you don't go over big in a play, for example, you can kid yourself that the author didn't know his business. You can blame the writer or composer if the audience fails to come through with the applause you think you should get for a certain bit.

"But a comedian doing a solo routine iis selling himself—personality, style, attitude. I'm offering you me when I try to make you laugh, and if you don't laugh, it's like a stab right in the heart because that is personal rejection. That hurts, and that's why clowns must be the saddest people on earth."

Like many entertainers, Carter worries about not making sufficiient contribution as a human being.

Double Dose

Although Jack Benny is moving to NBC-TV in the fall, re-runs of his old programs will be aired by CBS-TV on Sunday afternoons.

The latter network, in an unusual move, will provide a double dose of "The Andy Griffith Show" for its viewers.

It will daily repeat Andy's old programs at 11 a.m. In addition, new programs will air Monday night.

The couple hopes to stay with Welk as long as he's on television.

"He's always trying to improve," said Bob.

So are Barbara and Bob.

IN THREE years' of appearances on the network program, the Long Beach couple has yet to repeat any of their dance numbers.

"Our goal is to try and do all new steps each week," said Bob.

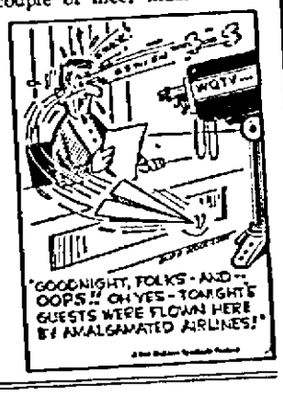

Welk has been on television for 13 consecutive years. Every indication, including ratings and sponsorship interest, indicates that his longevity record will continue.

That means that Barbara and Bob are going to wear out a lot of shoe leather with new stepping, not to mention piling up the freeway mileage.

It couldn't happen to a couple of nicer kids.

THICKER HAIR A HEALTHIER SCALP

GUARANTEED BY AMAZING NEW HOLLYWOOD METHODS

S. L. Turoff, well-known scalp authority, opens a 6-day hair clinic to demonstrate remarkable new scientific methods, that stop hair loss, eliminate dandruff and help grow stronger, thicker hair; offer complete introductory hair and scalp treatment for $2 during Clinic Week—next 6 days.

S. L. TUROFF
Director 18 California
TUROFF CLINICS

QUESTION: IS BALDNESS INHERITED?
ANSWER: Definitely NOT. WE MAY INHERIT A TENDENCY to baldness, not baldness itself.

QUESTION: WHAT CAUSES BALDNESS?
ANSWER: Many things, among them excessive dandruff, poor circulation, neglect. It takes a professional to determine the factors in each individual case.

QUESTION: WHAT CAN BE DONE ABOUT BALDNESS?
ANSWER: No matter WHAT stage of baldness you have reached, your hair can be regrown with proper treatments, if the roots are alive.

FIRST REMARKABLE TREATMENT TO NEW CLIENTS $2.00 NEXT 6 DAYS

What ARE the Danger Signals

There are definite warnings and everyone can recognize them. DANDRUFF means there are bacteria at work. If they are not removed, they choke off the hair roots, a bald spot soon appears, and baldness spreads until you are completely bald. The same is true of EXCESS FALLING HAIR and ITCHY SCALP. In fact, anything but a healthy, good-looking head of hair means something is wrong and you MAY BE ON THE WAY TO BALDNESS. The longer one waits, the more advanced the condition.

AMAZING NEW METHODS MUST BE EXPERIENCED TO BE APPRECIATED

$2 is the complete charge for your first remarkable TUROFF treatment during this SPECIAL CLINIC, for the next 6 days. IF YOUR HAIR is thinning, over dry or over oily — if you are troubled with dandruff, increasing hair loss, come in and see us during this special clinic, for the next 6 days. If the FREE examination shows we can help you, your very first TUROFF treatment will cost you just $2.00. Our guarantee: YOU MUST BE SATISFIED WITH THE WONDERFUL RESULTS WITHIN 4 TREATMENTS OR YOUR MONEY BACK. Find out why thousands of happy Californians have made us California's biggest, with 10 offices.

OUR COVER

Faced with an exploding world population and with an expanding science and technology at hand, mankind is looking more and more toward the seas for solutions to his problems of tomorrow. The seas, scientists believe, may provide food, raw materials and even additional living space for man. "It is our greatest frontier," says one oceanographer, "and it is about time we took to taming and settling it." How will this be done? Marine writer Lou Jobst and artists for the Martin Company take a look at a tomorrow which envisions unmanned cargo ships directed by navigation satellites and subsurface factories (cover pictures) in the "Seas of the Seventies" on Page 7.

School for the Mask and Fin Set

By George Eres

THE Southland's beaches are the skin and SCUBA capital of the world, with an estimated 250,000 persons venturing into the ocean's depths.

Year-around temperate weather and the topography of the local coast region beckon the ever-increasing number of mask and fin buffs.

Morgan "Clint" Degn, who heads the County of Los Angeles Department of Parks and Recreation's underwater unit, commenting on the increasing enthusiasm of the underwater venturers, notes:

"The sensations a diver has underwater must be similar to those experienced by solo space fliers. These impressions are compounded when you realize the area you are exploring underwater has very likely never before been seen by human eyes."

IN LONG BEACH alone, where the Neptunes are one of the oldest diving clubs in the nation, there are an estimated 25,000 persons participating in the sport, according to James Christensen, 540 Santiago Ave., who captained the U. S. Olympic Spearfishing team in 1960. Christensen, now engaged in the research and development phase of underwater activity, was one of the first in the county's instructor trainer's program.

The county's basic interest in the program is keeping divers safe. They have set up an extensive program for making the sport safe and in the past decade have trained and certified 125,000 underwater enthusiasts.

"Not one of the skin and SCUBA divers completing county-sanctioned courses has suffered a fatal injury," said Degn.

THE COUNTY'S figure of the number of persons involved in the sport includes everybody from those with a mask and fins to those with the most sophisticated diving equipment.

Christensen said for about $20 you can get outfitted with mask, fins and snorkel for free-diving.

SCUBA equipment including tank, regulator and backpack can be obtained for about $100, he said.

"If you want to go into it in a big way," he said, "you can spend thousands of dollars and get outfitted with everything from a wet suit to one of those two-man submarines. Then, of course, there are four-man submarines that can take you into the hundreds of thousands of dollars investment."

THE TWO-MAN sub which sells for about $2,500, called a "wet sub" is manfactured in Gardena. It has a two hour cruising range with a top speed of five knots. It has a

The Incredible Ginger Rogers

—CBS-TV Photo.

Ginger Rogers has capped a long career on stage and in films with TV appearances. Above, in a recent TV show.

By Aubrey B. Haines

THOUGH she has been a dancing star in many films, Ginger Rogers confesses, "I never took a dancing lesson in my life." This seems incredible when one recalls her co-starring films with Fred Astaire and her more recent CBS television network appearances as guest star. Last spring she performed, in a half-hour program, a history of dance steps over the years. "I don't consider myself primarily a dancer," she adds. "I regard myself as an actress. Dancing and singing have been a part of my acting career."

Strangely, though Ginger Rogers became a dancing star on her own, she never looked forward to a dancing or even a theatrical career. "Like Topsy," she says, "my career as an actress just grew. Actually I always wanted to become a school teacher."

Born Virginia Katherine McMath in Independence, Mo., in 1911, the girl's talent first became apparent at an early age. While just a child Ginger appeared in two Charleston contests: A city contest in Fort Worth and a state contest at Dallas. She won them both. These amateur contests were a springboard to vaudeville appearances in the act of her own called "Ginger Rogers and the Red Heads." From there she went to a singing-and-dancing engagement at Chicago's Oriental Theater at the age of 14.

PAUL ASH, the Oriental's band leader, was so impressed with her talent that, when he went to Brooklyn's Paramount Theater, he called her to join him. "Eddie Cantor saw me at the Paramount," Ginger recalls. "He was unsuccessful in getting me a part in 'Whoopee,' produced by Florenz Ziegfeld, but this contact finally resulted in my getting the comedy lead role of 'Top Speed'."

Her first film opportunity was at the Paramount Long Island studios in "Young Man of Manhattan." So pleased was Paramount with her work that the studio offered her a contract and asked her to leave for Hollywood immediately. At the same time she was also offered the lead role in "Girl Crazy" on Broadway. Her success in this musical comedy solidly established her status as an entertainer.

Ginger's big film opportunity came when she danced with Fred Astaire in "Flying Down to Rio." In that picture the "Carioca" number created a public demand for more teamwork from them. Then came "Gay Divorcee," "Roberta," "Top Hat," "Fol-

Outside House Painting Now Eliminated

Another boon of the space age has been accomplished for the homeowner . . . an exterior wall coating so tough and durable that it is guaranteed to totally eliminate exterior house painting for over 10 years. This remarkable textured coating is fiberglass FLEXON.

BEST IN NATION

Homeowners are requested not to spend a single penny on painting their residence until they hear the FLEXON STORY. This remarkable material insulates, waterproofs and beautifies, and every Fiberglass FLEXON job is factory guaranteed for 10 full years against chipping, flaking, or peeling.

Fiberglass brings to FLEXON its great strength, its wonderful insulating properties, its resistance to time, weather, and chemical attack.

PROVEN OVER MANY YEARS

FLEXON is one of the oldest, tried and true coatings now being marketed and has been applied on thousands of homes and commercial buildings. These buildings have remained in perfect condition after more than 10 years exposure in all types of weather.

SHOT FROM A GUN

FLEXON is applied with special heavy duty spray equipment and is actually "shot from a gun" without muss, fuss or odor. FLEXON fuses itself to the wall and fills holes, cracks and covers building defects.

LA REINA RULE

WHAT YOUR NAME MEANS

Send your name to La Reina Rule in care of Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach, Calif. 90813, for origin, meaning and brief genealogy. For reply only in this column.

DEAR MISS RULE: May we learn about our name SPEIGHT?—J.C., Lakewood.

J.C.: SPEIGHT had an unusual origin. The source, "Speght," meant "woodpecker." This name was adopted by a medieval English shop owner who used the picture of woodpecker as the trademark of his premises. Yorkshire ancestors include Hugo Speght in 1376. No coat-of-arms is available for Speight.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give history on DUNCAN. —R. O. D., Artesia.

R. O. D.: DUNCAN, an old Scotch Gaelic clan name, means "brown warrior." Duncan the Stout, heir of the ancient Scotch Earls of Atholl, was founder of this honored lineage. He and his clansmen fought beside King Robert the Bruce, defeating the English in 1314. The Duncan estates were in Forfarshire, Scotland. The clan coat-of-arms has three blue belt buckles on a chevron, placed between two blue five-leaved rosettes and a blue hunting horn on a red shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly analyze DE LA CLAIRE.—L. B. D., Long Beach.

L. B. D.: DE LA CLAIRE is from the French surname Le Claire. History's memorandum of this patronymic name is a testimony for a peaceful ancestor. "Le Clair" meant "man with untroubled countenance." The forebear was baptized in honor of Saint Clair, 3rd Century bishop of Nantes, France. The family coat-of-arms, granted in Lorraine in 1512, has a red leopard centered below three gold coins on a red stripe across a gold shield.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you print the history on RIDENOUR—R. R., Paramount.

R. R.: RIDENOUR originated as the Anglo-Saxon English word "Readenoran," which translates as "at the red shoreline," a graphic descriptive of the prominent red cliffs where this family lived. Ridenour, a dialectical divergence from Readenoran, became a surname in the south English county of Hampshire and the adjoining coastal Isle of Wight. Some descendants shortened the name to Ridener, Ridner and Redner. The family coat-of-arms has three gold coins on a red stripe across the top of a gold shield. The Welsh county of Radnor has the same source word.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please inform us on STEVENSON.—A. S., Lakewood.

A.S.: STEPHENSON STEVENSON were interchangeable names in the Middle Ages, taken from an English ancestor baptized Stepfan meaning "crowned one." Stefan was used in honor of St. Stephen, the first Christian martyr. Old records list Gilbert, son of Stephen, of Lincolnshire in 1273. The Stephenson shield is red, engraved with three green leopard heads on a diagonal silver stripe. The Stephenson shield from Derby, York and Lincoln has the same design.

DEAR MISS RULE: Please publish data on McGINNIS. —T. M., Long Beach.

T. M.: McGINNIS is from an Irish chief, Angus, whose name meant "man of one choice." Angus was the name-founder of the Scotch Clan MacAonguis of Argyllshire. This clan was formed by some of his progeny. MacAonguis was changed to MacGinnes, MacInnes and Mannix in the 1500s. The family coat-of-arms has a silver rose on a blue shield. James McGinnes of Scotch ancestry, born in north Ireland in 1759, came to Philadelphia in 1750. His descendants lived in Perry County, Pennsylvania.

DEAR MISS RULE: Would you please explain MILLIKAN.—Mrs. E. L. T., Long Beach.

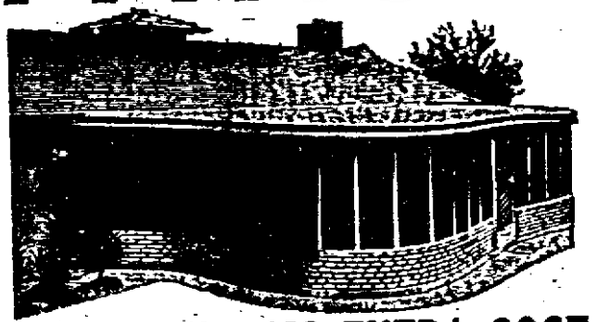

E. L. T.: MILLIKAN is from the Irish O'Maolagain descended from Maclacan, a famous chieftain whose name meant "little bald one." The Gaelic clan name was modernized to Milliken, Mulliken, Milligan, and Mulligan. The clan forebears were natives of Donegal, North Ireland. The Milliken shield is silver, decorated with a blue band between three red, gold-crowned half lions.

DEAR MISS RULE: Kindly give data on CHEATWOOD. —L.R., Long Beach.

L.R.: CHEATWOOD, also spelled Chetwood, had its inception from ancestors living in the English town of Chetwode in Buckinghamshire. The source phrase "Ceattawode" translates from Anglo-Saxon as "cottage in the forest." The Cheatwood-Chetwood family shield from Staffordshire is divided into four sections, two colored silver, two red. On these sections are four red and silver crosses. The family motto, "Corona mea Christus," means "Christ is my crown."

The Seas of the Seventies

Earth satellites will provide many new services to ocean-going commerce, both civilian and military. Photo reconnaissance satellites could eliminate the need for iceberg patrols. Circling the earth, they could report to land-based information centers the locations and courses of dangerous masses of ice. Ships at sea in dangerous areas could query the satellite and receive information that could eliminate any future Titanic disaster. Navigation satellites also would advance seafaring knowledge.

By Lou Jobst

NEVER HAS today promised so much for tomorrow. And never in human history has earth's historically mysterious and forbidding seas been more of a potential boon to mankind and his burgeoning problems.

The seas, which cover more than 70 per cent of the earth's surface, promise to provide both nutrition and vital raw materials for a rapidly growing human population.

The oceans and the ocean basins which cover 140 million square miles also will likely, with space, be major battlegrounds in any future war should such a holocaust come.

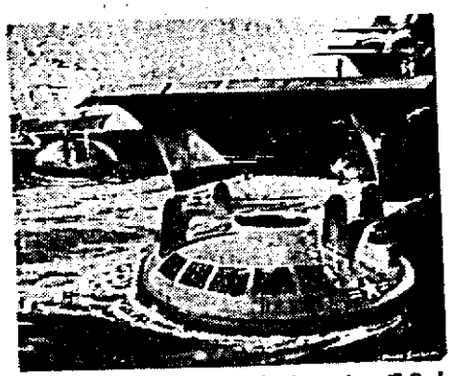

Man is just beginning to probe his offshore deeps and has started development of marine technologies which will likely revolutionize human history.

Based on existing technical know how and scientific information, ranging from the laser light to earth satellites to new ship configurations, scientists and artists of the Martin Co., makers of a past era's great flying boats, have taken a wishful look into the future.

The "Seas in the Seventies" are likely to be a startling place. . . .

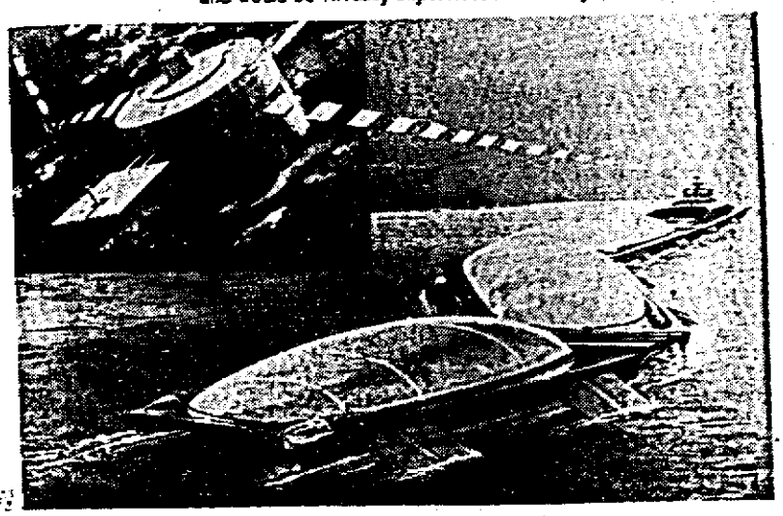

Underwater mining, already being done, will be advanced through prospecting by submarines carrying underwater magnetometers that can sense likely locations of mineral and petroleum deposits by measuring deviations in the earth's magnetic field.

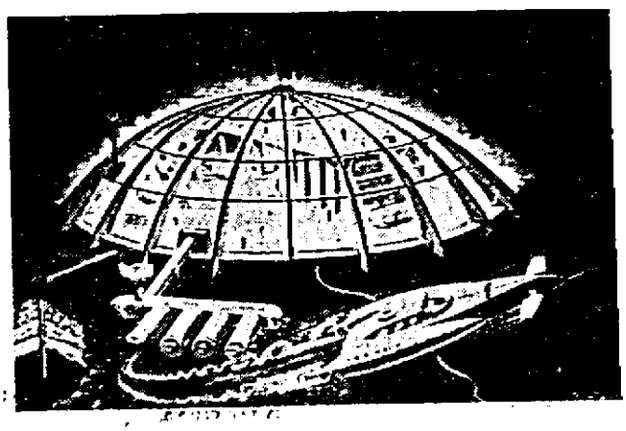

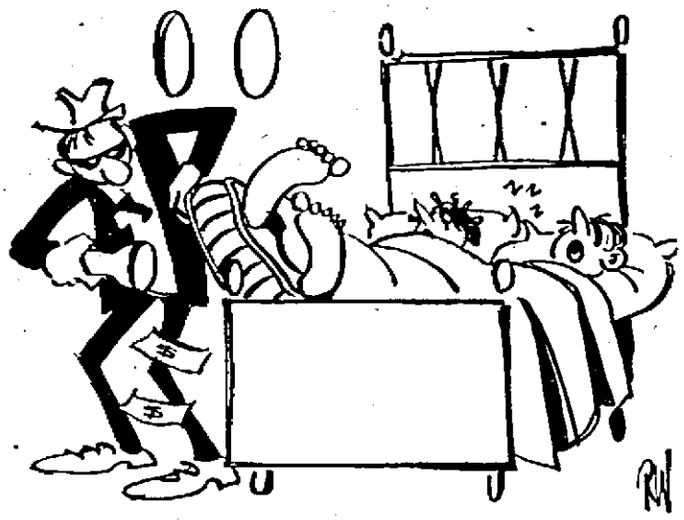

Seas in the Seventies will find new and revolutionary surface craft afloat: catamaran aircraft carriers, cargo and passenger vessels will cross seas at mile-a-minute and better speeds. Hover craft that can ride above water or land on a cushion of air will transport personnel to shore.

Robot convoys of unmanned merchantmen could roam sea lanes of the world, carrying international commerce with clockwork precision. Plastic cargo seatrains, towed by pilotless tugs, would be directed from an orbiting satellite. Human pilots could then board craft for docking them when they arrive at designated ports. Weather satellites could route such vessels around storm centers. The cargo carriers would be inexpensive to build and would be virtually impervious to ordinary hazards of the sea.

Underwater communities are a thing of the future. They will house research centers, factories, mining operations, farms, even military bases. Smaller submersibles and air locks will provide for transportation to and from surface. Strange new aids will provide for communication with shore facilities.

Hiding cash under mattresses invites theft. Burglars try there first. One man went to bed with money in sock on his foot. Thief took it, left sock!

A MATTER OF MONEY

Where (Not) to Stash Hard-Earned Cash

By Frank L. Remington

LATE ONE evening James Dunbar closed his service station in McAllenn, Tex., and counted the day's receipts of more than $1,000. He wouldn't be able to bank it the next day, Washington's Birthday, so he glanced around the station for a hiding place. His glimpse fell on a rack of tires. "That's it!" he exclaimed. Carefully he stashed the moneybag inside one of the new casings.

Arriving late at the station next morning, Dunbar almost fainted when an unsuspecting attendant proudly announced he'd sold two new tires. Sure enough, the improvised safe had been one of them. Dunbar frantically contacted the state police.

In the meantime, motorist Jose Gonzalez was blithely high-balling toward Houston on his new tires. Suddenly, one of them blew out. Jose changed it and proceeded on his way. A police car finally overtook him and found the cash still reposing within the astonished Gonzalez' mutilated tire. He received a new casing from the happy service station owner.

THERE'S NO TELLING in what singular hideaway some folks may stash their cash. An ingenious California motorist banked $820 in the gas tank of his car, tossing in a half dollar each time he filled 'er up. A Seattle man stuffed $40 in his sock, pulled it on, locked his apartment, and went to bed. Next morning the sock still graced his foot—but not the $40. It had disappeared during the night!

Money may be harder to come by these days, but people still find it easy to lose. Last year Americans lost more than $100 million. Probably unreported losses account for twice as much.

Many losses result from carelessness or unforeseen circumstances. One fellow slipped a $20 bill between the pages of his telephone book for safe keeping—then left town on business. When he returned, the volume had been replaced by a new one. Rushing to the local telephone office, he recounted his sad story. An official pointed to three freight cars jammed with old books. Sadly, the fellow muttered, "Two hundred thousand books against 20 bucks. I'd better forget it."

One evening a Knoxville, Tenn., man did a double take as he tore the wrappings from a box of crackers. The container held a lady's purse, but not a single cracker!

THE BAG was full of feminine do-dads, identification cards, and a wallet full of currency. Owner of the purse, it turned out, worked in a cracker factory. She'd hidden her purse in an empty cracker box for safe keeping. A co-worker inadvertently tossed it on the conveyor belt and it slid down a chute and was sealed.

It's risky to hide even small amounts of cash in a telephone book or a cracker box. Attempting to conceal large sums of money is foolhardy. A bank is the only safe depository. Yet thousands of people eye banks with unjustified suspicion and cleverly, they believe, secrete their currency around the home.

A person with money in the house thinks, "Now where can I hide it where nobody will find it?" Then he is struck by the thought: "The mattress! Under the mattress! How original of me!" Actually, it's just about as original as sin. Householders have been hiding valuables under mattresses for years. It's the first place a burglar looks.

The second bright idea a person usually has is, "I'll hide the money in the cookie jar." That's the second place a housebreaker looks. He knows the average person keeps everything but cookies in the cookie jar.

NEXT, THE do-it-yourself banker thinks of concealing his money in a trunk and covering it with underwear. That's usually the third place a burglar investigates. The long underwear may keep the cold cash warm—but not safe.

Those who don't trust banks may hide their money in flower vases. That's like putting cash in a shoe and setting it on a closet shelf—the fifth place a housebreaker looks.

Frequently householders are a bit more ingenious. An Ohio woman dashed to the sanitation department when she remembered the $600 stuffed in an old flashlight she'd thrown in the trash. She was too late; the refuse had been buried beneath two feet of earth in a landfill.

One man used the interior of his hollow, wooden leg for a money depository. Another tucked his greenbacks behind the upper plate of his false teeth. A hunchback's "hunch" turned out to be the hiding place for his life's savings. For 20 years another fellow kept his cash in a rat trap hidden in his piano; another hid his money in a stuffed bird in a glass cage.

A CLEVER PET lover has taught his parrot to scream "Stop thief!" whenever anyone puts his hand into its cage. Under the cage floor reposes the owner's savings. A miserly old woman pasted her banknotes to the walls of her home and covered them with wallpaper. An Irishman, who'd long been suspected of subversive activities, dropped dead one day. Investigators discovered a bomb at his side. When demolition experts opened it, they found a neat stack of gold and currency.

A few years ago a thrifty Denver woman with a large family managed to stint and save $600. Since she didn't trust banks, she hid the money in the house and eventually forgot where she'd put it.

One day, soon after lighting the broiler in her oven, she remembered. She'd concealed the money there. It had become a pile of char. Each bill was still intact, but fragile as a soap bubble.

One fellow who stuffed his paper money in fruit jars and buried them in the back yard saw the folly of his ways as he grew older and opened a bank account. "If buried money doesn't mold and mildew," he declared, "the dogs dig it up. It got so every time a worm popped out of the ground in the back yard, I ran out and frisked him for a five-dollar bill. No more burying money for me."

ACTUALLY, A FRUIT jar or a short length of pipe capped tightly at both ends—favorite methods for do-it-yourself bankers—isn't much protection against mold, whether the container is buried or not. The jar lids and the section of pipe corrode and moisture sets in. Mold does the rest.

Fortunately, however, if paper money can be retrieved before mold ruins it completely, or snatched out of a fire before it is entirely reduced to fine ashes, there may be a chance for its owner to get it back. Or part of it, anyway. The currency redemption division of the United States Treasury specializes in reconstructing and identifying mutilated currency.

Millions of dollars worth of charred and rotted bills pass through this special division. They come from those who have thoughtlessly hidden money in fireplaces and stoves and then inadvertently set the bills on fire. They come also from people whose currency has been mutilated in accidents, in plane wrecks, or even been chewed by cats and dogs.

THE CURRENCY Redemption Division always redeems full value for mutilated currency if three-fifths or more of the bill remains. If less than three-fifths but more than two-fifths remains, it is redeemable at half its face value. This rule, however, is not rigid. Even if only a fragment of the bill is identifiable, the owner is reimbursed if he or someone else familiar with the case can supply an affidavit that the rest of the money has been completely destroyed. In addition, the owner must furnish a certificate testifying to his character and trustworthiness.

Employes of the redemption division are familiar with the pathos accompanying each box of burned or mutilated bills. To them the banknotes are far more than mere scraps of paper—they represent years of work and savings.

There are some morals to these stories. In the first place, for your own sake don't stash your hard-earned money where it may rot, burn, get lost or deteriorate. The best place for it, of course, is in the bank. Then you won't ever need the help of the currency redemption division.

IN THE SECOND place, if you insist on being your own banker, be sure to leave an easily-found record of where you've hidden your money. If something should happen to you, your survivors will be able to locate the cache and settle your affairs—if the money hasn't rotted away beyond recognition.

'LEST WE FORGET . . .'

Some Pioneer Mothers of Long Beach

By Maymie R. Krythe

Mrs. Benjamin Flint posed for this photo taken in the 1870s. She held a prominent place in the life of Long Beach during city's early period.

THROUGHOUT the 50 states and in some foreign lands, mothers are honored today for their efforts in rearing children and maintaining homes, but Mother's Day is an occasion also for recognition of hundreds of women who have not only attended the duties of home and motherhood but have achieved distinction in civic, art, literature, medicine, philanthropic and other fields.

And, at each Thanksgiving, we are reminded of the hardships undergone by those Pilgrim mothers in Salem, especially during that first long hard winter. However, we should also remember the other pioneer mothers all over the United States who had their share of difficulties when they helped open up new territories; and those women found that pioneering was no easy job.

In the annals of Long Beach, we find the names and records of several mothers who pioneered, and helped start the great city we enjoy living in today. For example, there is Orlena M. Healey, the first woman who set up housekeeping in what is now Long Beach proper; for she started in a tent on the spot where the Heartwell Building now stands.

SHE AND her daughters had come down from San Francisco, with her husband, Capt. Charles T. Healey, a surveyor. He had been asked by the Bixbys to do some work for them, and to lay out the townsite of Willmore City, later to become Long Beach. For six weeks Mrs. Healey lived under very primitive conditions. Water had to be brought from Rancho Los Cerritos, five miles away; food supplies from Wilmington. In addition, she had to endure frequent sand storms, and loneliness, not to mention the many scorpions that made their way into the tent. However, in spite of such conditions, she persevered and deserves honor as a worthy pioneer mother.

Maude Healey, one of her daughters, married George C. Flint, son of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Flint. Benjamin Flint, a cousin of the Bixbys, first reached California in 1849. He is given credit for "discovering" Rancho Los Cerritos in 1866, and for interesting his associates in the Flint-Bixby Company to buy the 27,000 acre rancho from John Temple. Mrs. Flint was another important pioneer mother. From the excellent photograph preserved of her, we can gain a good idea of what the well dressed wife and mother wore in that early period.

Mrs. Margaret Hathaway Bixby, wife of Jotham Bixby, and mother of seven children, has long been remembered for her good works in community life. She and her husband, often called "The Father of Long Beach," founded the Congregational Church here, giving the site and funds toward the erection of the building. Another mother from this same family, who also had seven children, was Amelia Bixby, who married George H. Bixby. She also was a strong supporter of the Congregational Church, was interested in the founding of a hospital, and in the work of the YWCA.

THERE WERE several other pioneer women whose names should be remembered, both as mothers and community builders. To name just a few: Mrs. R.B. Robinson (mother of Mrs. J.K. Bushong); Mrs. James R. Cook (whose son, Frank Cook, aged 90, is still living); Mrs. J. T. Cullen (mother of Margaret C. Wilson, the third girl born in Long Beach); Mrs. H.C. Dillon (wife of Judge Dillon, second president of Ebell Club, and mother of a talented family); Mrs. Lula Teel (whose son, Courtney, was the first Long Beach boy, and whose daughter Ethel Van Houten is a local resident); Mrs. W.L. Cuthbert (mother of a long remembered musical family); and Mrs. Lafayette Saunders (whose daughter, Mrs. R.W.E. Lewis, still resides here.)

However, the pioneer mother to whom credit is given for naming Long Beach, was Mrs. Belle Lowe, wife of W. W. Lowe, an early storekeeper, and first Long Beach postmaster. The Lowes reached town in 1834, two years after the founding of Willmore City. Their home and store were on Pine Avenue near Ocean Boulevard. There were two daughters in the family, Ethel and LaVerne; the latter married Charles Heartwell.

When a committee met to change the name of the community, three names were suggested: Crescent City, Bay View, and Long Beach. At first, Crescent City was preferred; but the men decided to wait a day to make a final decision.

Mrs. Jotham Bixby, photo about 1874, was another Long Beach pioneer mother.

THAT EVENING, so the story goes, Mrs. Lowe talked in a most convincing manner to her husband. She pointed out the fact that there was a long natural beach from Alamitos Bay to the San Pedro breakwater, 12 miles in length; and at that time, it was "an unimpeded thoroughfare." Mrs. Lowe declared that Long Beach was the logical name; that it would publicize the town; and also popularize it as a seaside resort.

Apparently, Lowe agreed with her; for next day, he presented her arguments to the committee. Then "the gallant delegates" said they "would let the woman decide it;" and that day the name Long Beach was chosen by a unanimous vote.

Mrs. Lowe also helped start a small private school in 1885. She and other energetic mothers collected $75 for a three-month school term, taught by a 16-year-old girl,

Free Swimming Pool Planning Kit

If you are planning a pool this year here is your opportunity to get a free kit showing all phases of pool construction. Also included are tips on pool buying plus complete information on special equipment. Kit is packed with facts and ideas you will want to know before you build.

This free kit was put out by Anthony Pools, world's largest pool-builder.

Its authorative information was developed by Anthony, based on the building of over 21,000 pools.

In the pictures and text it dereribes the way modern pools are constructed. The growing use of high-speed automatic equipment for excavation and gunite cementing has kept the price of Anthony pools low while prices in general have gone up. A modern pool is just about the biggest bargain you can get these days.

It is important that you choose a builder large enough to offer you modern speed and economy.

During the first four months of this year Anthony has built more pools in the greater Los Angeles area than the next three largest pool builders combined. This is a dramatic endorsement of Anthony's value, service, and reputation.

Kit also describes such Anthony exclusive accessories as Hida-Sweep automatic pool cleaner — it is never removed from the pool — and Antho-Pure, the automatic pool purifier that holds up to six months' supply of Gardex.

Other sub-assemblies and accessories manufactured in Anthony's 15 acre plant and sold direct to the pool buyer help keep Anthony's price low.

Anthony Pools' stock is listed on the American and Pacific Coast Stock exchanges.

For your free copy of this valuable kit, drop in or call Anthony Pools South Gate office at 5871 Firestone Blvd., phone SP 3-2210, TO 1-0381, or our Torrance office, 25412 S. Crenshaw Blvd., phone 832-5391 or our Anaheim office at 2050 So. Harbor, phone JE 1-3100.

Panama Votes on 'Yanqui Baiters'

By Hoyt McAfee

Dr. Arnulfo Arias (above) is a foremost candidate in the Panama election today. He is far less than pro-American.

THERE will be much shouting and some shooting when Panamanians troop to the polls today to pick a new president. Voters from 19 political parties have seven presidential candidates to choose from. Only three of them, however, command enough popular support to make the race lively and truly competitive.

Even more disconcerting, from the U. S. point of view, no one of the Big Three can be called "pro-American." Take the candidacy of 63-year-old Dr. Armulfo Arias: As head of the extremist Panamenista party, he long has shown his true colors as a "Yanqui baiter." Elected president of Panama on two occasions in the past, he proved himself less than friendly to the U. S.

In truth, on specific occasions he seized upon his chance to belittle and undermine U. S. influence in Latin American affairs. Once, in the early autumn of 1941, he went so far as to express sympathy for the aims of Nazi Germany under Adolf Hitler! This meant that swarms of Nazi spies and potential saboteurs found the welcome mat out for them upon their arrival in Panama.

THEIR VERY presence there posed a threat, a dangerous one, to the safety of the Panama Canal—especially in the event of America's entry into World War II against Nazi Germany.

Fortunately for the U. S. and her vital interests, popular indignation against President Arias and his pro-Hitler sentiments soon reached the explosion point. Responsible democratic elements in Panama then asserted themselves and drove Arnulfo Arias into exile. On that occasion, he sought and received political asylum in Cuba.

Now, 23 years later, he finds the political climate in Panama receptive to his anti-Yanqui hate slogans. Spouting them much like a broken record, he exerts himself in his bid to succeed outgoing President Roberto Chiari as Panama's new chief executive. Should he win the election on this May 10, watch out!

UNQUESTIONABLY that might well herald the worst kind of stormy weather ahead for the U. S. in her dealings with Panama. Informed government officials in Washington, D. C., describe Arias as "the most undesirable" of the three leading candidates in Panama's presidential election. All the more so because in the effort by the two countries to reach a just settlement in the thorny Panama Canal dispute, Arias would—in the event of his success at the polls on May 10—agitate for all-out control of this waterway!

Juan de Arco Galindo, a 54-year-old candidate, will no doubt receive a fair-sized vote. Five government opposition parties are throwing their support to him. Barring a major upset, nonetheless, he stands little chance of winning the big prize.

But he will siphon off votes from the government coalition candidate, 59-year-old Marco Robles, rather than from Dr. Arnulfo Arias. In a sense, then, the Panamanian election simmers down to this: If the trio of major candidates, which one represents the lesser of three evils?

MARCO ROBLES, the recipient of support from eight political parties, certainly qualifies as the most reasonable one of the lot. His position corresponds fairly close to the one long championed by President Chiari. In other words, that a new Panama Canal treaty must be written by the U. S. and Panama—one which will yield Panamanians more jobs, better pay, and the government a larger share of the revenue realized from toll fees from the waterway.

Having listened to all three candidates harangue their followers on past visits to Panama, I suppose that Marco Robles offers the best hope of keeping U. S. and Panamanian negotiators at the conference table. Even he, the most rational of the top three, will—I suspect—prove a tough customer to deal with. Assuming, of course, that he triumphs today.

FOR INSTANCE, I once heard him tell a group of my Panamanian friends that he admired the late President Franklin D. Roosevelt. That the latter's "Good Neighbor Policy" was "working and making friends for the U. S. all across Latin America." In his recent campaign speeches, however, he has spoken critically of FDR's apt pupil, President Lyndon Johnson.

No doubt of it, a presidential election in Panama generates considerably more excitement and color than in the U. S. As election day approaches, the whole country takes on a carnival-like atmosphere. Motor caravans bearing the leading candidates swoop into towns, villages, and cities with a dramatic flourish—somewhat like the entry of a conquering army.

Almost all speeches are delivered amid colorful streamers, bobbing slogans, shouts of vivia, and with frequent emotional outbursts. Denunciations of unpopular "Yanqui" policies pour forth. Maybe the candidate makes little sense or offers little in the way of new or creative ideas. No matter, he knows how to evoke stormy emotional responses from his listeners.

DESPITE its serious shortcomings, Panama's presidential election never becomes bogged down with dull routines. Fist fights or brawls at all large political rallies can be expected. Heated arguments roar on well into the night—long after the candidates have gone home.

On April 23, Panama's National Guard (which functions as the country's defense and police force) called upon all citizens of the Republic to surrender their weapons (rifles, pistols, machetes, and the like). It was an appeal long familiar to Panamanians — one considerable numbers of them always ignore.

These rabid political partisans would no more turn in their weapons, on election eve, than they'd permit you to chop off their right or left arm! On election day, some of the zealots among them always become involved in knock-down, drag-out arguments. Then, despite the watchfulness of Panamanian National Guardsmen, they whip out their guns and blaze away at one another.

Luckily, most of the shooting proves erratic—its primary purpose being to "throw a scare into the other fellow" (supporting an opposing candidate)!

No one will take a siesta in Panama today!

A TISKET, A TASKET . . .

A Little Paper Basket

—Larry Reichner Studio Photo.

Giving of baskets of flowers anonymously on May 1 is a custom recalled by many generations. Above, a little basket that can bring pleasure if given on any day.

By Lorena Fleissig

SOFT spring days filled with blooming fragrance and color turn our fancies toward sentiment in its more pleasing interpretations. There is surely nothing more delightful than to receive a gift of freshly picked flowers from a secret someone who so honors you. And that most charming gesture of affection is the still-loved, never forgotten custom of hanging a surprise basket on a certain door.

We used to call them May Baskets, but this frivolous type of basket should bring a celebrant of whatever age, or for whatever reason, a special happiness in any month of the year.

There is little or no expense involved in making this lacy tribute. Simply plan to use some of the pretty gift wrap you may have on hand, or possibly the left-over wrap from some package. The illustration was made with a large decorative paper bag from a stationery store — saved because of its bright spring colors.

EXPERIMENT first with a page from the classified section of the newspaper by measuring a piece about 20 inches square. The square is then folded to make a triangle of three corners. The long crease is smoothed flat with the hand making sure that the edges of the paper are kept perfectly even. From the center of the crease fold over again. Keep folding, always from the same center point. It takes altogether, five folds to prepare the final triangle for cutting. (See diagram below.)

Always fold evenly and press folds as flat as possible. Notice that the last fold is lower at the top. Begin to cut below this final fold as shown in the illustration.

Cut across the fold to within one fourth inch of the opposite side. Alternate the cuts about one half inch apart down the sides of the folds until three inches from the bottom point. The three inches are left uncut to provide a firmer base for the basket contents. A little practice will give you the idea.

Never cut off any of the folded paper.

AFTER CUTTING according to the diagram, open the folds by separating them with caution as paper cuts mesh together and can easily tear. Spread the square gently. An object is needed to weight the basket and to give it shape. So place a handful of wrapped candy, nuts, a small boxed gift or substitute a medium small stone as ballast for the center of the square. Gather the two opposite points and tie with a long loop of ribbon for a hanger. Finish with a fluffy bow and fill the completed basket with flowers. Or with their counterpart if the weather has foiled your garden.

This kind of surprise is always welcomed.

plastic canopy that can be pulled back underwater to allow occupants to leave the vehicle.

"Diving is dangerous," said Degn, "but primarily because of human factors. Training and supervision under experienced and educated experts does reduce the danger element for the beginner to a negligible level. Underwater physical dangers, and limiting human factors, once understood and respected, pose little threat to the diver."

EACH YEAR some novice skin and SCUBA divers lose their lives off California's coast. Seven such fatalities are known to have occurred in 1962-63.

"Most dive shops in Los Angeles County will not rent or sell equipment to individuals who don't possess evidence they've completed a YMCA, National Association of Underwater Instructors (NAUI) or county-sanctioned skin and SCUBA course," Degn said. "These courses are reasonable in terms of cost. In any case, if you look at the safety record resulting from our certification program, completing a sanctioned course may save the beginner's life."

Neither the city of Long Beach nor the county offer free courses in skin diving. However, the county's Parks and Recreation department keeps a list of certified diving instructors. Persons interested may call Degn's office for information about the nearest instruction.

Hilltop Haven from a Busy World

Native beauty—from rock found on the premises and worked into the home and garden walls—is prominent in gateway.

From one side, the family room in the Dana Andrews hilltop home looks out on a quiet garden. The opposite side unites with the kitchen through bar and pass-through. Sunken living room is beyond the door, left background.

By Stella George

WHEN SCREEN STAR, Dana Andrews, goes home after a day, or a week, or months of work before the motion picture camera, he thinks that his new Palos Verdes Peninsula home at 30569 Oceanaire Drive provides the ultimate in warm, inviting relaxation. Mrs. Andrews, son, Stephen, and daughters, Katharine and Susan, are satisfied that it is their ideal home.

The homesite is on a 1,200-foot-high hill, and incorporates a grand-scale view. The architect is Richard O. Spencer and Mrs. Andrews received the assistance of Virginia Woodbridge, AID, NSID, with her own artistic ideas of theme and execution of the interior decorating.

Sculptured gates lead into a Japanese garden, then over a footbridge with a waterfall nearby and into the modern home. This contrast is further carried out in fact that the home has two dissimilar views—one through the glass walls looking towards the quiet garden, and the other a panoramic view of the countryside, the Pacific Ocean, past Catalina Island and northward. Actually, the home sits on one of the highest crests of the peninsula.

THE DOUBLE GLASS front door opens into a spacious slate floor entrance hall where, at a glance, there is a view through filigree panels of the sunken living room surrounded by glass, the dining room, glass enclosed, the passage down to the bedrooms, and, to the right, the family room and kitchen.

Walls are of pecky cypress, off white in finish. Four wide steps lead to the living room. To the right is a large round rock planter—all of rock used inside and out were taken from the property itself. Above the planter is a skylight where the sun can shine its rays on the live plants below.

Thick wool turf carpeting is on the floor, off white in color. In one corner of the room is a Skons metal fireplace. The black slate hearth runs to the steps, and, covered with black foam cushions, becomes a comfortable sofa.

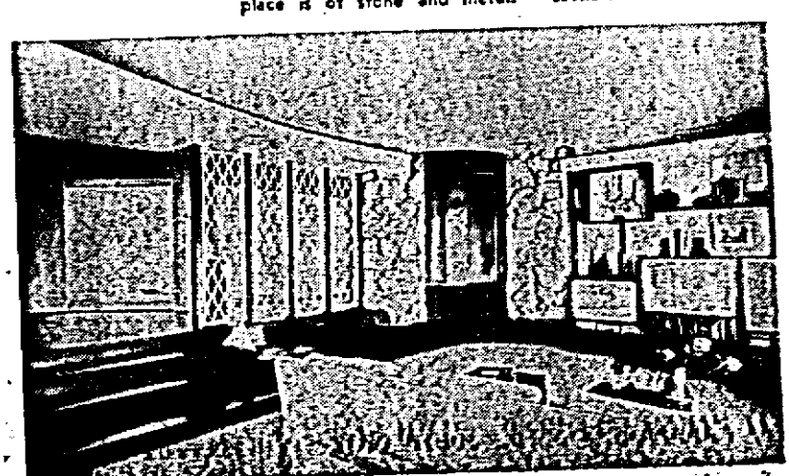

A long gold sofa faces the TV end of the room where built-in shelves and cupboards display treasures picked up from all over the world. The furniture, sofa and chairs, are on rollers so that they may be rolled around with ease if the need arises.

Behind the sofa is a conversation grouping with avocado occasional chairs and a small table. Beyond the glass wall which faces the ocean is a semi-circular balcony.

A QUEEN ANN set in the dining room is upholstered in violet. Pieces, large and small, all have a fascinating story behind them—the heavy wall brackets that support a small buffet, the Oriental tree, items too numerous to mention. Although many pieces such as the dining set were brought from the family's former home, a large Normandie style house with 7,500 square feet, where living was more formal, through the ingenuity of Mrs. Andrews and Virginia Woodbridge, they have been refinished or recovered, or added to in such a way that they seem customed for their new modern setting.

On one side, the family room views the quiet garden. The other side is joined to the kitchen (or separated as the case may be) with an open bar ready for dining or entertaining. A table and six chairs are in the center of the room, with a conversation area at one end.

The spacious kitchen has every modern convenience plus many original, brand new ones. One example of the latter was designed by Mrs. Andrews: a cupboard below the sink level opens to reveal a heavy service table which can be rolled out to the center of the room when needed. It can be used as a serving table, a chopping board, or any one of a dozen such uses when needed. A shelf below enables it to serve as a utility table to hold silver or dishes which are about to be or have been used.

STEVE'S ROOM and bath are down a small hall from the family room. He plans to become a sculptor, and the evidence of his art are decorative additions to the room. One such piece is particularly worthy of mention: a pair of painstakingly carved feet.

The master bedroom suite with dressing rooms and bath is at the far end of the hall from the entrance. One wall of glass has the view of the ocean. In the nearby bath, glass is behind the sunken tub, where it is possible to relax in the height of luxury viewing the countryside and blue Pacific without being seen.

The rooms of Katharine and Susan represent their own individual tastes, although the time spent in them is somewhat limited since both are away at school or college.

A door to the right of the main entrance opens to reveal a red carpeted stairway which leads to Andrews' private hideaway below. It is the type of study every busy man dreams of—richly carpeted in rich red, furnished with every necessity and luxury such as a comfortable lounge chair and hassock, desk-with-a-view, conversation corner, and built-in cupboards for personal books, papers and other such items. Nearby is a private bath, a storage room, and still another room which could double as a guest room or work room.

Split-Level Has Room for Attic Expansion

By Jules Loh

GROWING families and tight budgets seem, inexorably, to go together. This handsome three-bedroom home with an expansion attic —an entirely new concept in split-level design—should help ease the strain.

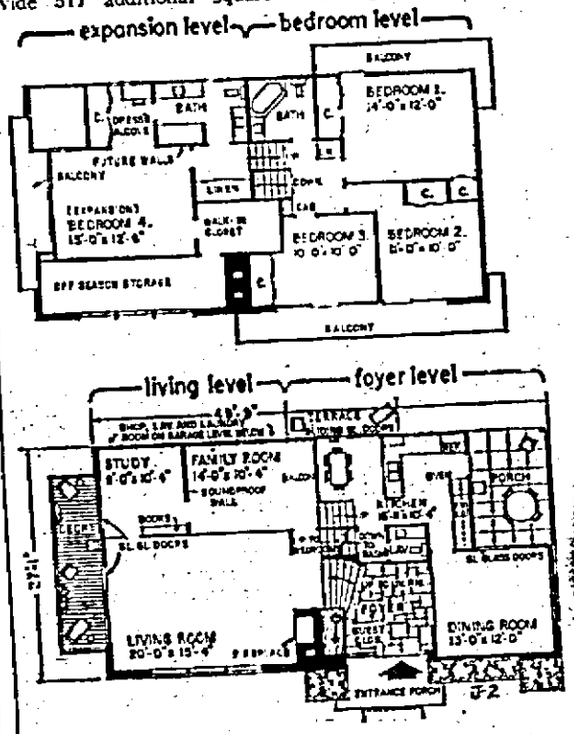

Its straight ridge roof makes the home look, from the outside, like a two story, or perhaps one of the new bi-level designs. Actually it is a side-to-side split with no less than six levels.

Designed by architect Rudolph A. Matern, the house is No. J-2 in the House of the Week series.

"By extending the roof line over the living level," said Matern, "I was able to provide 517 additional square feet of expansion room which many homeowners can finish off themselves at half the cost."

IF FINISHED in the manner Matern suggests, the house would then contain four bedrooms and 3½ baths. The new bedroom would be a huge 15 feet by 12 feet 6 inches room opening onto a side balcony, plus a dressing alcove with an oversized closet, a second large walk-in closet, and a two-lavatory bath—in addition to an off-season storage area the full width of the living level.

This split is different from the usual type in another respect, too. In this one, the lower grade level contains the Expansion portion of this home could be finished piecemeal by a handy man, adding 517 sq. ft. of living space.

Sun deck adjoining the living room is one of a number of inexpensive touches of luxury in this split level house. Each of the four bedrooms has a balcony access.

foyer, kitchen and dining room which usually are found on the living level.

A TWO-CAR garage (plus shop, lavatory and laundry room) is on the slab level, and the basement is a half flight down, beneath the foyer, dining room and kitchen.

Such efficient use of space results in the entire house occupying only 1,210 square feet of ground cover in dimensions of 21 feet 1 inch deep by 49 feet 9 inches wide—small enough for an 80-foot lot. The area of the bedroom level is 665 square feet.

Outdoor living areas are so well integrated in this home that even each bedroom has access to a balcony—a private one for the master bedroom. A sun deck also adjoins the living level, entered through sliding glass doors from both the living room and study. A rear terrace is on the grade level, separated from the breakfast room by sliding glass doors; and a covered porch is fitted nicely in the kitchen-dining room corner.

THE KITCHEN contains a number of unsual features, in addition to its 16 feet 11 inches by 10 feet 4 inch size. Note the location of the double sink, and also the uncommon amount of counter space. Cabinet space also is plentiful, in fact there are 31½ lineal feet of base and wall cabinets.

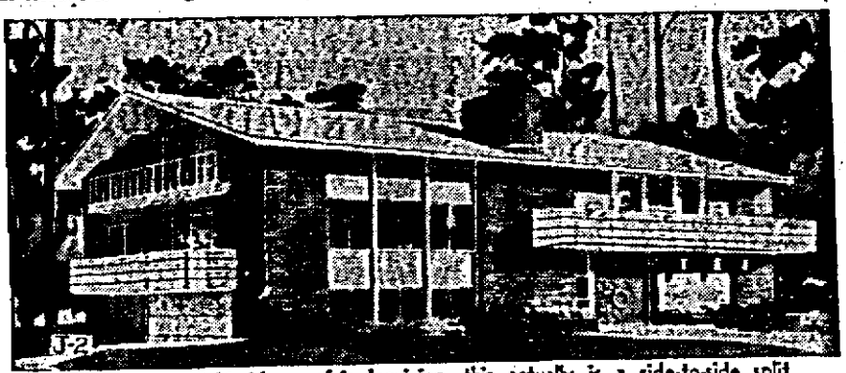

The family room is well placed a few steps above the kitchen and overlooking the back yard through an entire wall of windows, and a sound-proof wall divides it from the study.

Another well placed room is the lavatory, located in the small hallway between the foyer and kitchen. It is convenient also to the living room and, with its large vanity, serves as an excellent powder room for guests.

CLOSET SPACE is abundant throughout the house. The master bedroom has two closets, one of them especially large, and both the other bedrooms have oversized closets. The linen closet is convenient to the main bath (note the corner tub, and there is a cabinet outside bedroom No. 3 "for the linen closet overflow," as architect Matern put it.

All in all, the house is a well-ordered innovation which provides an exceptional amount of livability with numerous touches of luxury in a modest amount of space.

To order, send name and address to Building Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, Calif., enclose 50 cents and request House of the Week Study Plan Design J-2.

Although its straight ridge roof is deceiving, this actually is a side-to-side split on no less than six levels. The roof extends over to provide for expansion room.

AROUND THE WORLD WITH DELAPLANE

CUERNAVACA, MEXICO

"We would like to bike through Europe but our parents think we are crazy. They would believe what you say."

YOU'RE in the right madhouse. In the summer, Europe is loaded with kids on bicycles, scooters and motorcycles.

"Could you suggest a type of bicycle and where to buy or rent one?"

A friend of mine—a bicycle buff—is pedaling around Europe now. He said he was using a bike with a three-speed shift which made it easier to pump up hills.

I don't recall the make. But these two addresses may help you, not only with bikes but places to stay: American Youth Hostel, 14 W. 8th St., and Council on Student Travel, 179 Broadway. Both New York City.

You can do pretty well by putting yourself and the bikes on trains for long hauls. European trains are geared for this kind of transportation. Also, I saw a light folding bicycle that you can carry almost everywhere—in a catalogue by Hammacher-Schlemmer, New York City. (They also showed a folding scooter.)

"We would like to rent a house (temporarily) in Mexico with a view to making it a permanent place of retirement. We had heard of Ajijic and Jocotepec. Have you any idea of costs?"

I HAVE TALKED to people who were doing it on about $300 per month per couple. I've only driven through Ajijic and Jocotepec. Both on Lake Chapala. Both within short drive from Guadalajara where you can get modern drug stores, magazines and supermarkets. American art colony at Ajijic and probably something the same at Jocotepec.

The farther you go from American colonies, the cheaper it gets. And the more you have to adjust to: No English or American company or magazines or newspapers; lack of refrigeration and occasional breakdowns in electricity; open markets, colorful but plenty of flies. Good fruit and vegetables but poor quality meat.

Here in Cuernavaca — the oldest and most luxurious American colony — my living costs without rent are running $20 a day. Two children, three adults. Includes food, drink, laundry, household help, gasoline, tank gas for cooking, supermarket shopping, occasional trip to Mexico City, few dinners out.

"Are there some good guest houses at Ochos Rios or Montego Bay in Jamaica?"

I SAW a couple that looked good (from the outside) at Montego Bay. But Ochos Rios looked like a hotel-resort center. I didn't see guest houses. Lots of them around Kingston. But I think the North Shore at Montego Bay has better and more available beaches.

"You said it was more economical to ship a car home from London than Lisbon. We are planning to ship a car. . ."

THAT WAS THE way it worked out for me. Because I bought a BMC Austin 7 and the shipping to the U. S. was part of the package price. There seem to be two prices for shipping autos, maybe due to freighter agreements. One is much cheaper than the other. I would consult AAA on this before you buy or go to Europe.

"Do you have any information on summer schools in Switzerland?"

SUPPOSED to be excellent. You get a whole folder free by writing Swiss National Tourist office — New York City, 10 W. 49th Street.

"Is it worthwhile stopping over, a few days in Ireland?"

ONE OF THE BEST countries. But try to drive or bus around the countryside if you can, not just a visit to Dublin.

GERMAN CIRCUS ON FILM

The world of the circus is the major theme and a tour of Germany the minor theme in the latest 30-minute Lufthansa film shot in Technicolor which is available for group showings throughout the country.

The featurette, titled "Once Upon a Circus Tale," follows Ingrid, a young circus performer, whipping through Germany in her Volkswagen, visiting such places as Hamburg, Cologne, Luebeck and the Wine Festival at Bacharach. There her boy friend meets her with the news that she is wanted to appear in the Hollywood spectacular "Circus World" starring John Wayne and Rita Hayworth, being filmed in Spain.

The first half of the picture is an offbeat travelogue of Germany, the second half shows Ingrid in Barcelona going through the ups and downs of a minor performer in a gigantic motion picture production being filmed. The picture is available through Lufthansa German Airlines office in Beverly Hills (9389 Wilshire Blvd.).

The First Travel Agent

By Emil H. Himanka

THE TRAVEL business today is a multi-billion dollar business, and few people would undertake a trip abroad without first consulting a travel agent. Quite often they will travel in groups at reduced rates arranged through a travel agency.

The idea of group travel at reduced rates originated with Thomas Cook, a young Englishman working as a traveling missionary for the General Baptist Association in 1841, when he persuaded the Midland Railroad to place a special train at his disposal at reduced rates to a temperance rally at a distant town. On July 5, of that year, 500 people rode to the meeting and back again at the price of one-way fares.

Cook soon became famous as a travel impresario, and found himself organizing excursions for groups all over England. For more than 50 years Cook had the travel industry all to himself. It was not until the turn of the century that his monopoly was challenged.

THE WORLD'S first travel agents were traveling merchants who journeyed from country to country by donkey and camel peddling their wares, usually accompanied by travelers who depended upon the knowledge and experience of the wandering traders to lead them safely to their destination.

Perhaps the most famous traveler of a bygone era was Marco Polo who journeyed in the company of his trader father and uncle to the Orient where he spent 30 years in the services of the Tarter Khans. Upon his return to Europe he wrote a book about his travels throughout the Tartar Empire. Today, 700 years later, this book is classed among the most interesting travel books written.

It was the Romans who invented tourism. For 600 years, from 100 B.C. to 500 A.D., the Roman Empire with its magificent highways extending from the Atlantic ocean on the west to the Arabian desert on the east, fostered the biggest tourist movement of ancient times. With numberless legions to insure peace over a dominion of more than a million square miles, and her slave-driven galleys spanning the seas to the ends of the known civilized world, the citizens of Rome journeyed from Spain to Syria without hindrance of barrier to stay their wandering feet.

AS THE AMERICAN tourist travels across Europe and into Greece to gaze upon the splendor of the Parthenon, to marvel at the Acropolis, to pause and contemplate the rubble that is the site of ancient Troy, and then pass on to Asia Minor, it seldom occurs to him that even so did the Romans 2,000 years ago.

There were no travel agents to advise or chart his course, and a long journey often entailed hardships and rigors seldom encountered in the travels of today; and one usually carried his food and cooking utensils along with him.

It is estimated that international travel amounted to $8 billion in 1963. Americans alone spent a record $3 billion in foreign travel last year.

Mexican musicians, led by violin ensemble, are an attraction at Mexico City's famed Focolare, first of a chain of fine restaurants operated by the Balsa Hotels.

'Superlative Service' Builds Hotel Chain

By Fred Taylor Kraft
Travel Editor

WHEN YOU go to the New York World's Fair, don't miss the delightful Mexican Pavilion and its deluxe Focolare restaurant, Cafe Alameda and the Jorongo cocktail lounge and bar.

All three have a Mexican motiff and atmosphere, with mariachis livening things up at the Focolare and Jorongo.

The food and service at all three: they say it's out of this world.

But probably the most remarkable thing about these pleasant spots is that they are the newest additions to a constantly growing hotel-restaurant empire extending from New York into the Caribbean and throughout Mexico.

CESAR BALSA, the empire's architect, has an exacting but simple success formula: superlative service.

I interviewed Sr. Balsa a year ago—just 10 years after he launched what was to become his hotel and restaurant chain with the opening of the now famous Focolare restaurant in Mexico City. At that time, the chain had mushroomed from the Focolare to 11 hotels and restaurants.

They included, in Mexico, the Hotels El Presidente, Del Prado, Prado Alffer and Maria Isabel; the Focolare Restaurant, and two nightclubs, Jacaranda and Can Can; in Acapulco, the Hotels El Presidente and Tampa, and Focolare restaurant; and in New York, the Hotel St. Regis.

A FEW EVENINGS ago I chatted with him again—the "eagle" in his aerie, a graciously appointed penthouse business suite atop his first hotel, El Presidente. The view was magnificent from his desk.

"Is it?" he asked. "I really haven't had time to take a good look—yet."

He was not exaggerating.

His Balsa Hotels had undergone phenomenal growth under his personal direction.

To his hotel chain he had added the Merida, at Merida, Yucatan, Mexico; the Zazil-Ha on Isla Mujeres, Quintana Roo; begun construction of a new El Presidente, this one on Cozumel; and purchased a site for still another El Presidente, at Guadalajara.

IN ADDITION to his restaurants and cocktail lounge at the World's Fair, a chain of Koala coffee shops is springing up in Mexico City, there are new Focolare restaurants in Guadalajara, Mexico, and in Puerto Rico, and the Restaurant Las Piramides at the pyramids outside of Mexico City.

As you have gathered by now, Balsa has supreme confidence in a great future for tourism in Mexico.

"With our rapidly expanding Mexican economy, and our prosperous Good Neighbor to the north with its 190 million travel-hungry people, why not?" he asks.

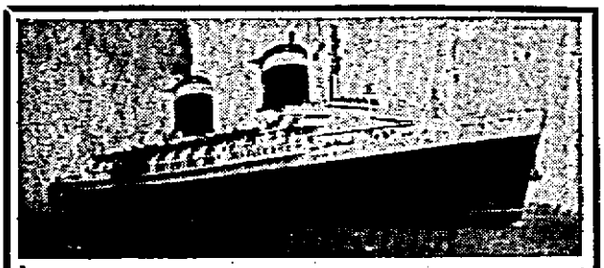

Despite responsibilities of running a hotel-restaurant empire, Cesar Balsa, at 41, retains rare boyish charm.

Pampered Pooch

Chic canine, like wise man, does not live by bone or bread alone, according to Air France, the world's largest airline. Recently, Mister "J", a well-known French poodle, made a trip by Air France 707 jetliner from Chicago to Paris, where he visited relatives at the French Poodle Society.

Putting on the dog, the French airline prepared a poodle menu which included: Bone Biscuit Vol au Vent, Medaillon de Beef Liver Truffe, Le Steak Tartare with Gravy Train Sauce Madere. Boisson: Eau d'Evian (spring water) Grand Cru 1963.

HOW YOUR CHILD LEARNS

Teaching Machines

By Howard E. Kent

QUESTION: Are teaching machines successful?

ANSWER: The United States Office of Education reports, on the basis of a two-year experiment conducted at the University of South Florida, that mentally retarded children learn reading faster by using teaching machines than by attending conventional reading classes.

In this experiment, a group of 66 children learned many more words in eight weeks than they had learned in four years in regular classrooms.

These results would suggest that at least in some areas of learning, machines are more effective than the methods of ordinary teaching.

QUESTION: Is phonics a good method of teaching reading?

ANSWER: Phonics is but one tool in the teaching of reading. But of late the regard of educators for this tool has increased markedly.

American schools experimenting with a reading system used in Britain since 1960 have reported outstanding achievements.

The system is known as the Initial Teaching Alphabet. Taught by this system, first-graders in Bethlehem, Pa., read textbooks written for advanced grades and spell words in the second-grade vocabulary.

What's the secret? A 44-letter alphabet which seeks to cover all the sounds in English. In short, a more concentrated form of phonetics.

QUESTION: Is the cost of college getting prohibitive?

ANSWER: The trend in college costs is upward. There are still some good college bargains, especially in the state colleges of California, but in general the cost of college for the generation of students now in elementary schools is expected to be very stiff. According to some estimates, their parents may have to pay $15,000 to give them four years of college education.

Remember the old gag about the father who starts making plans for the college education of his newborn child? It's no longer a gag.

low the Fleet," "Swing Time," "Shall We Dance?" and "The Story of Vernon and Irene Castle."

THOUGH A hard-working professional who demands much from herself and from others, Ginger Rogers gets along well with her fellow actors. She is completely engrossed in her work when making a picture—an attitude which earns the respect of everyone who works with her. Her driving ambition has enabled this 5-foot 4-inch, 112-pound, blue-eyed actress to make 69 films.

Today Ginger Rogers and her husband live in Beverly Hills. She has made occasional night club appearances, such as at the Riviera Hotel in Havana before the emergence of Castro and at the Riviera Hotel in Las Vegas. Because her personal appearances are relatively few nowadays, she has little need to keep physically fit for dancing. However, she enjoys tennis, golf, ping-pong, swimming, and water skiing. "I think that tennis can be played more gracefully if the player is a dancer," she says.

Muffins for a Spring Breakfast

Homemade English muffins will spark up any breakfast and improve a festive brunch.

By Mildred K. Flanary
Southland Magazine Home Economics Editor

TOASTY English muffins are always welcome at the breakfast table, and when they are homemade they are extra special. Here's a way to make them, done the day before, if you like, and kept in the refrigerator ready to split, toast, butter and serve.

These muffins are a no-knead yeast bread that features corn meal baked inside and sprinkled outside for crunch and flavor. They are baked on a griddle!

Toasty English Muffins

1 cake compressed or 1 pkg. dry yeast
¼ cup lukewarm water
1¼ cups milk, scalded
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
¼ cup butter or margarine
3 cups sifted all-purpose flour
1 cup enriched corn meal

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. (Use warm water for dry yeast.) Pour scalded milk over sugar, salt and butter. Cool to lukewarm. Stir in 1 cup flour. Add softened yeast and corn meal, mixing well. Beat 2 minutes on medium speed of electric mixer or 300 vigorous strokes with a wooden spoon. Beat in remaining flour to make a soft dough.

Cover; let rise in warm place until double in size, about 1 hour. Stir dough down. Roll out to ½-inch thickness on board or canvas heavily sprinkled with corn meal. Cut with 3-inch round cutter. Cover; let rest on board 30 minutes.

Preheat griddle to medium-hot (300 degree F.). Grease griddle lightly; then carefully place muffins, corn meal side down on it. Bake until bottom is brown, about 20 minutes; turn and bake an additional 20 minutes. Split horizontally, toast and butter. Serve with preserves. Makes 12 muffins.

Recipe of the Week

CASSEROLE cookery holds the spotlight and wins $5 for Mrs. Kathryn Pritsos, 3633 Petaluma Ave., Long Beach 90808, for best recipe of the week. The recipe:

Vegetable and Cream Sauce Casserole

2 medium eggplants
4 small zucchini
4 medium potatoes
1½ lbs. ground beef
2 onions, chopped
Grated cheese
4 tblsp. butter
1 tsp. tomato paste
Dash of cinnamon
Salt and pepper
¼ cup bread crumbs

Slice eggplant, salt and place in colander, weighing down with heavy plate, for several hours. Slice zucchini and potatoes. Broil eggplant slightly. Saute ground beef in butter along with chopped onions. Add 1 teaspoon tomato paste, cinnamon, salt and pepper. Using greased pan, sprinkle with breadcrumbs, place vegetables and meat in layers and sprinkle with cheese. Top layer should be vegetable. Dot with butter and add a little water. Bake in 350 degrees.

Cream Sauce

4 tblsp. butter, heaping
¾ cup flour
6 eggs
Grated cheese
1 qt. milk

Melt butter, add flour and brown slightly. Slowly add milk, stirring constantly. When thickened, add well beaten eggs gradually. Remove immediately. Pour a little more than half the sauce over eggplant moussaka. Reheat remaining sauce to thicken. Top casserole with cheese. Bake until golden brown.

What's your favorite recipe? For each recipe published in this space, Southland will pay $5. Men are urged to submit their recipes along with the ladies. Send yours, with name and address to Recipe Contest Editor, Southland Magazine, 604 Pine Ave., Long Beach 12, California.

You Ask We Answer

By Hanlin

Q. Why were ancient cities such as Troy built one above another? K. C.

A. Partly because the building was a gradual development. In these cities, built of brick, refuse was thrown into the streets or dumped over walls. When houses were repaired, they were brought up to street level. When destroyed by war, or abandoned, the next occupants would not clear away the ruins but would level them off as a substantial base for a new city. When a city was permanently abandoned, the weathered bricks disintegrated and eventually desert sands covered the mounds. Some of these mounds are 100 feet high and contain the remains of 20 or more cities.

Q. Please give a recipe for a potato soup that can be made quickly. E. N.

A. Add 2 cups thinly sliced raw potatoes and ¼ cup finely chopped onion to 1¾ cups boiling water. Cover and cook until potatoes are tender, usually 15 to 20 minutes. Potatoes may be mashed slightly with a fork to thicken the soup. Add 1½ cups milk, 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, ½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 1 teaspoon salt, and pepper to taste. Heat. The soup may be garnished with chopped parsley, grated cheese or finely-cut watercress or chives. This recipe makes 4 one-cup servings.

Q. Who coined the phrase "almighty dollar?" A. S.

A. Washington Irving (1783-1859). The American writer remarked in "The Creole Village" of Wolfert's Roost, that "the almighty dollar, that great object of universal devotion throughout our land, seems to have no genuine devotees in these peculiar villages."

Q. What is the largest flower in the world? D. J.

A. The largest bloom is the parasitic mottled orange-brown and white Rafflesia arnoldi which grows on Cissus vines in the jungles of Malaya. The flower may be as much as 3 feet across and weigh 15 pounds.

Q. When did "The Jazz Singer" first appear on the screen? D. L.

A. "The Jazz Singer," starring Al Jolson, was released in October 1927. It was one of the first talking motion pictures.

Home Workshop

Unit that keeps things handy for a busy housewife when ironing is demonstrated by NBC-TV actress Francine York.

By Steve Ellingson

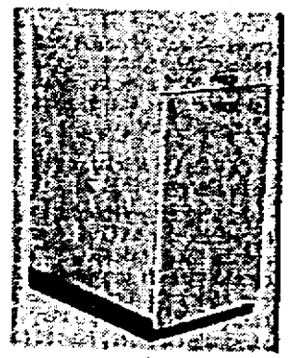

WE HAVE often thought that a special medal should be minted for that busy homemaker who, in addition to cooking, housekeeping and raising a family, takes on that thankless job of washing and ironing. Of all household chores, ironing is the most monotonous and tiresome. But since there are no medals, perhaps we can make the job more pleasant by showing how to build the good looking and handy ironing center illustrated above.

Ironing, like all household chores, goes faster if everything you need is at your finger tips. This unit has a place for everything. Both below and back of the board are areas for storing your spray starch, distilled water, a sewing kit to repair rips and replace buttons, hangers and anything else you find useful when ironing. When the task is finished, the board slides down into the unit where it's out of the way.

YOU WILL notice that there are no braces or legs under the board to interfere with your work. And what is more, you can sit at this board as well as stand. It fits in perfectly with your other appliances and built-ins. And what a joy it is to be able to conceal the clutter within the unit when your work is finished or interrupted. Here is another idea that merges the practical with the beautiful and creates a pleasant atmosphere in your laundry area.

Any amateur home carpenter can build this ironing center when he uses the full size pattern. You need only trace each part on plywood, then saw out the parts and put them together. Inexpensive too, when you build it yourself. The pattern lists the required materials and gives easy-to-understand directions and illustrations.

To obtain the ironing center pattern number 349 send $1 in currency, check or money order to Steve Ellingson, Southland Magazine Pattern Dept., Box 2380, Van Nuys, Calif.

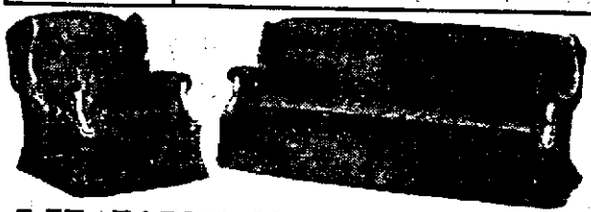

When not in use, the ironing unit folds up and stands by compactly, set for next call.

Gauguin's Search for Paradise

By Vera Williams
Southland Magazine Book Editor

PAINTING filled a desperate need for Paul Gauguin but gave him a life of misery and despair.

Renouncing a successful banking career in Paris and deserting his wife and children, Gauguin searched endlessly — in Brittany, Martinique, Tahiti and other faraway places for an impossible paradise.

The discovery of innumerable unpublished documents and Gauguin's private conversations with some of his contemporaries enabled Henri Perruchot to reconstruct the life of the great painter in its full continuity, "GAUGUIN" (World, $6.95). This biography not only explains the adventurous destiny of the man but the fascinating character of his work, considered some of the most important in the history of modern painting.

Perruchot previously wrote "Toulouse - Lautrec," "Cezanne" and "Manet."

LEOPOLD II is down in history as the grand colonizer —the founder of the Congo Free State — but his was a brand of colonialism that shocked all Europe and brought denunciation from such American leaders as President Theodore Roosevelt and Mark Twain and, more than a half century later, resulted in terrible retribution, when the Congolese threw out the Belgian masters they didn't slaughter.

An important aspect of the biography by Neal Ascherson, "THE KING INCORPORATED" (Doubleday, $4.95) was the robber king's ability to swindle, exploit the slave trade and plunder Congo rubber while ruling a basically liberal, moral, compassionate Belgium in the 19th Century and early in the 20th.

DAVID STOREY, young Briton whose first and second novels earned major literary awards, may not win any with his third but it has already received strong critical acclaim in England and could prove popular with American readers, despite a preponderance of ugly and shocking situations.

For "RADCLIFFE" (Coward-McCann, $4.95) is a compelling tragedy of a love-hate relationship between two men. Leonard Radcliffe, lonely scion of an aristocratic family, meets masculine, athletic Vic Tolson, first in school and later on a construction job.

Tolson's relationship with another married man, Blakely, and Tolson's seduction of Raadcliffe's sister lead to the inescapable destruction of all three men in Storey's bizarre, brutish drama.

THE POET is having his day in court nowadays; more and more often his essays are appearing in book form. Recently John Ciardi published a trenchant collection of his ideas and opinions; now we have Howard Nemerov's "POETRY AND FICTION" (Rutgers University Press $7.50). That poets are now enabled in growing numbers to reach the reader in prose form is a great step forward for American literature.

Nemerov's essays are those of a broadly cultivated man; they are independent, witty; their taste and judgment of a high order.

Dual-Purpose Mural

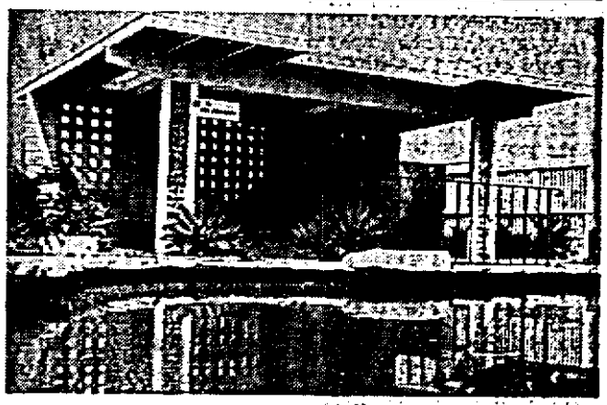

First glance reveals only a handsome mural . . .

MURAL BEHIND the bar in the rumpus room of the home of Dr. and Mrs. Cameron Paschall, 4470 Cerritos Ave., depicts a Long Beach scene and is an attractive addition to the area. However, it serves a dual purpose: It is decorative and it covers two sliding doors which, when opened, reveal storage area for glasses and other bar necessities. The picture itself is an unusual one, showing snow-capped mountains behind the city's skyline.—STELLA GEORGE.

But, presto! Doors slide back to disclose a back bar.

'Laundromat' 150 Years Ago

Spring water, collected by cobbled area (background) poured through this stone face into tiled channel where Indian women washed their clothing 150 years ago.

By Betty Hardesty

"LAUNDROMAT" of 150 years ago, a lavanderia or community laundry has been excavated and restored to something approaching its former outlines at Mission San Luis Rey, inland from Oceanside.

Structural beauty surrounded the laundry area in its original state, a 20-foot wide grand staircase descending from an ornamental arch to a broad terrace. Russet tiles were incorporated into the stairway and the six tiers of the lavanderias, which were of step-like construction centered by a channel for water. Springs supplied the water which was gathered by cobbled approaches which channeled the water through the mouths of stone faces resembling gargoyles.

Women of the mission environs gathered there, even as modern apartment dwellers converge on the modern laundromats, to clean clothing—but they pounded the articles to be laundered with stones and in bowl-like depressions along the channeled water.

AT ONE POINT along the water course, a charcoal filter provided drinking water.

San Luis Rey properties were confiscated after Mexico became independent and the mission fell into partial ruin. A century of silt covered much of the water course and the lavenderias until recent restoration. The mission was returned by the Franciscan Order by President Lincoln in 1865.

In addition to the restored facilities of the mission, a number of interesting relics are on display there.

Calling Dr. Computer

IBM Poughkeepsie Laboratory Photographic Services

Computer "brains" have entered many fields, the latest being medicine. Above, an IBM computer with an operator loading a magnetic tape for the high-speed recording of data.

By Aubrey B. Haines

ELECTRONIC computers, being fed information, have quickly revealed facts that would have required men — working for years — to discover the hard way and they have been put to work at medical research.

The Veterans Administration and the System Development Corporation of Santa Monica are using a computer-based system that quickly investigates data about patients in a simulated hospital environment.

"This new use of computers is the result of over two years' work," says John A. Vallance, director of System Research Development and Training Center in Santa Monica. "We don't have the simulated hospital in the form of staff, facilities, and plant. The work is done wholly by a computer. Using information from real patient data taken from a Veterans Administration General Medical and Surgical Hospital, the computer reveals the answers. Thus dependable operations are guaranteed by records produced by the computer. Conclusions are periodically made, the communication among all parts of the hospital environment are maintained."

ALSO IN SANTA MONICA at the RAND Corporation a mathematician, Dr. Richard Bellman, is working on a way to use computers to test the potency of anticancer drugs. "I'm also working on the use of computers to diagnose medically," he says. "We're trying to calculate the physiological effects of radiation and answer psychiatric problems besides finding answers to problems in neurology and cardiology."

Southern California universities are similarly engaged. The UCLA Medical School has installed the 7094, the newest, most powerful of IBM's scientific computers.

"This costly instrument," says Dr. Wilfrid J. Dixon, professor of biostatistics, "can be used for such varied purposes as keeping records of pathology specimens and analyzing electrocardiograms."

Medical research done altogether at the bedside, he explains, is now outmoded. A voluminous amount of statistics is required, including clinical studies on people and animal experiments with human implications. "Computers," Dixon says, "synthesize tremendous amounts of statistics, dig out important facts, and apply what is discovered."

A SMALLER computer at UCLA's Brain Research Institute analyzes brain waves to help doctors plot the course of intricate brain operations.

Similarly the USC School of Medicine is trying to store, retrieve, and process medical data on patients with chronic diseases. According to Dr. Frederick J. Moore, professor of Public Health, vast information about patients is gathered by hundreds of private and public groups. "However," he adds, "very little exchange of information occurs. Then it is obtained only with great difficulty and after loss of time. This makes impossible the intelligent use of information gathered on any one patient."

The USC team is changing to computer form the entire patient record systems of the Los Angeles office of Vocational Rehabilitation Service, the Olive View Hospital, and General Hospital. This finished, the records of other groups will be transformed until the medical reports of millions of residents can be available at a moment's notice.

ELSEWHERE throughout the nation computers are aiding scientists to treat cancer; chart obscure, fatal diseases; and do many other things. Already computer use has revealed that pyelonephritis—a disease which kills many dogs — is four separate diseases which also kill many people. Computers reveal how much radiation a human being can withstand and are planning radium dosage with sufficient accuracy to guarantee effective treatment of some types of cancer.

U. S. Navy physicians are using a computer at Pensacola, Fla., to discover a student's chances for finishing the Navy's difficult eighteen-month pilot-training program. "The computer can't 'wash out' a candidate," says James R. Berkshire, a psychologist with the U. S. Naval School of Aviation Medicine. "But it tells the staff at the training center what a student could perform potentially at any stage of training."

Besides delving into medicine and health, IBM computers are being fed information on frustration, love, anger, and fear. Eventually the National Naval Medical Center at Bethesda, Md., hopes to pattern "mathematical models" of crews who are psychologically balanced for assignments at isolated radar stations, for jet flights, or for undersea craft.

He Invents Toys

By Irma McCall

Retired builder Frank Crew demonstrates one of his toys, a scoop shovel, in his shop for Billy Mosher.

WHEN FRANK Crew of 325 E. 8th St., Long Beach chose a hobby for his "golden years" he confirmed Wadsworth's well-known line: "The child is father of the man." Does a bit of the little boy survive in the man—and even in the grandfather?

Crew's eyes light up as he constructs novel wooden toys that really work. Any child would enjoy working Crew's dump-truck with a capacity of, say, five thimblesful of dirt or the well digger that excavates a pencil-sized hole. The tanker truck, open mine digger, and the trailer are simple compared with Crew's complete sawmill, or the radar station with 196 pieces.

As a building contractor in Maryland, Crew liked to work with wood. Retiring in 1952, he moved to Long Beach.

"I'll make toys—entirely of wood," he declared. "And they will have moving parts—to entertain the kids and to teach them skills in operating machinery."

FIRST MODEL—a fork lift. The blueprint completed, he experimented with different woods and found that white pine and redwood were best. He mounted the model on wooden tracks and operated it by remote control. It worked perfectly!

The inventor has dreamed up 65 different models so far, and undoubtedly is moving into the Space Age with the astronauts of 1984.

Before presenting his brain children to the world, Crew obtained six basic patents, and today his models are on display at the Patent Exchange in New York City.

His toys may never sell like hula hoops or Beatle wigs, but Crew states, "I have had a million dollars worth of fun making them."

LIFE PARADE

He Crystal-Gazes for Animals

By Eleanor Avery Price

WHEN Jules Hilborn of Los Angeles gazes into a crystal ball he sees an animal. And the animal is not a vision that will vanish. It is forever delicately carved into the flat side of half a very tiny crystal ball — Cooks crystal it is called and made only in England—and then carefully painted from the flat side with a tiny brush.

Anyone who goes to London can probably contact dealers Longman Strongint'arm on Dover St. for modern carved crystals made with electric drills, but most of those accumulated by Hilborn were created centuries ago by hand in the workshop of an old craftsman in a remote section of England's countryside. The craftsman favored cats and dogs, although he carved a few horses, fish, birds, and other animals.

Some of the original crystal carvings found their way to the royal families of England where they were used as scarf pins, brooches, and the like. And a few somehow turned up in antique shops and markets where Hilborn obtained those in his collection. He now has only about 37 pieces in 13 years of searching, yet it is considered the largest collection of its kind in the world. Eventually it will go to a museum.

TODAY: German Shepherd match at Recreation Park, Long Beach; Orange Empire match at Upland Park; San Fernando Recreation Park. May 16-17, Beverly Riviera all-breed show and obedience trial at Santa Monica Civic Auditorium.

BASENJI Fanciers, Breeders and Exhibitors have a fun match today at Cambria Kennels, 1451 E. McFadden Ave., Santa Ana, with entries taken from 9 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Judge will be Joe Blasdel.

Zinnias Like the Sunshine

There's a zinnia for almost every need, as this array indicates. They provide cut flowers and garden color.

By Joe Littlefield

PLANT some zinnias in an enriched soil area, water them well when needed, feed them about twice when young, and you'll have lots of cut flowers and color, too, in those sunny garden areas.

A sunny corner near the back porch, an orphan sunlit area between driveway and the property boundary line, or a space between a walk and house wall, garage wall, or path and garden wall also are to the liking of zinnias.

If there's enough space left for a row of petunias in front of the zinnias, you'll have the brightest, gayest splash of color imaginable, and with minimum care involved.

Be sure to plant some amaranthus, a sun-loving annual that has its brightest foilage near the top of the plants as they mature.

Leafage near the top develops into fiery, bright color. Set the plants in a group for massed color effect, and don't baby them too much. Check with your local nurseryman or garden center dealer as to which variety offers the gayest foliage color.

Don't forget to plant some summer color in the shade garden, too. Plant fuchsias, coleus, impatiens, and bedding begonias which do well in milder sections. Some varieties of fuchsias and the bedding begonias planted in protected areas of shade garden will do quite well in hot, dry sections.

A FEW sun loving, summer blooming perennials such as vinca the periwinkle, dahlias, and tulbaghia violacea will supply attractive flowers for summer into fall color. Usually, sun loving plants can take around three hours or so of shade if need be, and bloom well.

Unless soil has been prepared in advance, at least prepare the holes where plants are to be set out. First fill the holes twice with water if the soil is dry. When water soaks in, mix some organic matter such as compost soil, leaf mold, pre-moistened peat moss or one of the prepared planting mulches, with soil dug out to make the plant holes, and set the plants out.

There's a plant of some kind blooming in Southern California every season of the year. Grow your own. The garden columns of Southland Magazine will help you.

Tips on Gardening

Garden tips for the week . . . For quick color accents, now is the time to consider bedding plants; dwarf dahlias, marigolds, zinnias, asters, petunias, stocks, snapdragons and ageratum.

Soon on the scene, if not already, are roses in bloom in cans. Now is the time to select the varieties suited to your garden. Your local nursery has a wide selection, ready for transplanting.

For your camellias mulch with two or three inches of leaf mold or peat moss. This insures that the ground will remain cool and moist during warm summer days.

When you decide to set out your new chrysanthemum plants, pinch them back and continue this method on the new growth until July. Pinching and proper fertilization insure sturdy, full plants.

You'll miss the enjoyment of fresh vegetables if you don't start tomato and pepper plants now.

Dorothy Digs

If you are having trouble greening up your lawn, even though you have fertilized and watered regularly, consider that fertilizers sometimes become "locked" into the soil and are not readily available or acceptable to the digestive systems of many kinds of grasses and plants.

A good thing for you to try in a case of this kind is an application of fertilizer or soil conditioner containing iron chelates and trace minerals.

Many times alkaline water and soils combine to create growth stagnation and cause chlorosis in foliage. It would be wise to have both water and soil tested to help determine the cause.

Potted Plant Aid

A "Lazy Susan" for potted plans has been put on the market by William K. Cochran, Fowler, Calif., and is catching fire among home owners.

Build from plywood and finished in natural wood color, the turntable is placed under the flower pot, permitting the plant to be easily turned to get proper light without marring the surface on which it sits. The price $1.20 postpaid.

Pinch Your Way to Fine Chrysanthemums

Spring is mum pinching time in the garden.

Chrysanthemums often get long and spindly by autumn. They fall over just when they should look their best.

To prevent this, take a few minutes today to pinch back the mums. All you need to do is to use thumb and forefinger to pinch out the young, growing tips. This makes the plant branch out. It doesn't get so long and leggy, and produces a sturdy, well-branched plant with house flowers.

Simply remove the top half-inch of each shoot, when the plants are eight inches tall. In a few days you'll see new side branches start to form. As soon as side branches reach about six inches long, pinch them. As long as the branches grow out, keep this pattern up until about mid-July. After that time, flower buds will be starting to form.

This system of pinching-out terminal growth is fine for chrysanthemums where you want a mass of bloom. If you grow the special varieties with large blooms, the so-called "football mums," you may want to aim for a few big, beautiful blooms.

To do this, wait until the top bud is well formed, and strong. Then remove the side buds below it, to force all the growth into one big blossom bud. That's the way to get big "football" chrysanthemums.

But for masses of bloom on sturdy chrysanthemum plants that aren't leggy and spindly, pinch the buds back until the first or second week of July.

Greener-Upper

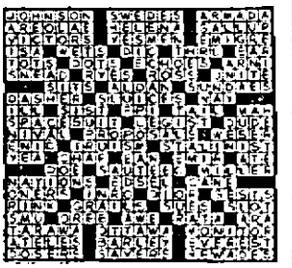

If every gardener was to specify his favorite color, 9 out of 10 would indicate "green."

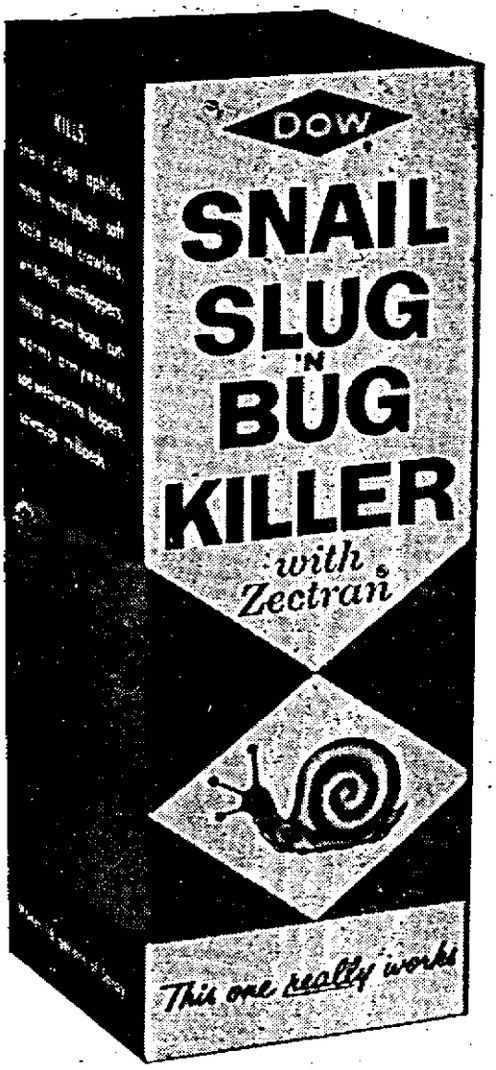

This year, a new product has been developed to further their cause. It's called "Greenol," and is a liquid iron solution to correct a "chlorotic" condition that causes yellowing of leaves in plants and grasses. According to the label, Greenol "healthies up" lawns, ornamental plants, annuals and perennials, and brings green back to the garden.

It is applied in spray dilution to the soil around the base of plants, and can also be applied directly to the foliage of roses, azaleas, camellias, and other favorites. A lawn sprayer filled with Greenol will cover 1,000 square feet of lawn.

The new product contains iron, copper, zinc and sulfur. In supplying plants these elements, it also acts to release important trace minerals that are often "locked in" the soil. It is not a fertilizer.

SOLUTION TO TODAY'S PUZZLE

We're thinking of changing its name to Aphid 'N Thrips Killer.

In a way, it seems only right. Our Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer with Zectran® Insecticide is just as great for knocking out aphids and thrips on flowers and plants. One spraying and the little monsters are gone; and once dry, there's no danger to children or pets. But on the other hand, Dow Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer gets rid of snails, slugs, and practically any gardening insect pest you can name. Kills more pests, in fact, than any other single product around.

Until we make up our minds, ask your garden supply dealer for it by its present name Dow Snail, Slug 'N Bug Killer. And while you're talking to him, check on Dowpon® Grass Killer Bar that you rub along the edge of walks, flowerbeds, buildings to eliminate unwanted grass. Two more great ones from The Dow Chemical Company.

Geranium Show

Geraniums and pelargoniums, ranging from dwarfs, both single and double flowered, up to tree forms are on display today in the final display of a two-day "Pelargoniums on Parade" show at Los Angeles State and County Arboretum, 301 N. Baldwin Ave., Arcadia. The public is invited and admission is free. Many choice specimens will be offered in a plant sale.

The show is co-sponsored by Southwest Branch, International Geranium Society, and California Arboretum Foundation, Inc. Show hours are 9:30 a. m. to 5:30 p. m.

How to Cut Rose Blooms for Long Lasting

The pride and pleasure a home gardener derives from growing roses often reaches its highest point when he cuts a lovely rose. This is one of his rewards for planting and generally taking good care of his plants.

Roses preferably should be cut either in the morning before the sun is high, or in the evening, says the American Association of Nurserymen. If cut at this time, they will last longer indoors.

Rosarians recommend that a knife be used rather than scissors or other tools, making a slanting cut on the stem. Knives usually are not as blunt and therefore will not bruise stem tissues so easily. At what part of the bush a rose stem should be cut is a question often raised by gardeners.

Roses will keep longer if picked when the bud is just starting to open. Petals will drop more quickly if the rose is mature when cut, while too tight buds may possibly not bloom after cutting, although they sometimes may be useful in flower arrangements.

The stems of the roses should immediately be put into a pail of water. This prevents quick hardening or calcification at the stems' ends, allowing better absorption of water.

If possible, before the flowers are arranged, keep them in a dark, cool room in deep water for a few hours. This conditions them for vase arrangement, and is said to keep them fresh longer.

Pioneer Mothers

Grace Bush. At first the group was allowed to use a small empty store room at Pine and Broadway — where Buffums' now stands. However, only two weeks later, after the start, the building was sold and the school moved to a tent at Pine and First Street. The children had to bring their own chairs or stools. (Later that year, a Long Beach School District was formed, and $6,000 worth of bonds were voted for a public school at Sixth Street and Pine.)

MRS. LOWE took part in various community activities, including those of the Lady Maccabees, Order of Eastern Star, and Ebell Club. She is also remembered for her close association with the development of the Summer Assemblies or Chautauquas, which brought many summer visitors. The Methodist Resort Association built the Tabernacle, the first place of religious worship here; even though the Lowes were Congregationalists, they took part in the activities of this church, until their own denomination started a church here.

Mrs. Lowe was a great lover of flowers, and was very successful in growing them. She was generous, too, in sharing them with friends and for community use. For example, in 1888, Long Beach women had a booth at the annual Flower Festival in Los Angeles and for this event Mrs. Lowe supplied 1,000 calla lilies and 400 carnations, "all raised within a few feet of the breakers."

A local magazine in 1916 paid Mrs. Lowe this tribute:

"Time has laid no impress upon her charming personality. With hardly a gray hair, physically vigorous as a girl, her mentality pulsing with the newest and best in progressive thought. She exemplifies the resourcefulness and tireless energy of our best womanhood . . ."

No doubt these same words could have been applied to other early mothers in Long Beach, who, often under trying circumstances, brought up their families and used their talents to make their community a better place in which to live.

PETER HIRSBRUNNER
Welcome, Mothers

LITTLE mothers, cute mothers, skinny mothers and plump mothers — all will be royally welcome today at the Reef restaurant, where a special Mother's Day menu will be served in their honor.

The Reef, located at the end of Harbor Scenic Drive in the Port of Long Beach, is one of the city's largest and most glamorous dining establishments. Its numerous view windows provide diners with spectacular glimpses of boat activity and the continually growing and changing skyline of Long Beach directly across the harbor.

The Mother's Day repast, which will be served from noon to 9 p.m., has been planned by Reef manager Ralph Fulton and executive chef Peter Hirsbrunner, a native of Switzerland with many years of cooking experience in the finest restaurants of Europe and the United States. The dinner will include a tray of chilled relishes, tossed green salad, potato or rice, green beans, candied yams, beverage and sherbet or ice cream.

The entrees, priced from $3.25 to $5 will include baked honey-cured ham with Cumberland spiced fruit sauce; the Porty O' Call combination of a lobster tail and broiled chunks of top sirloin with mushroom caps; roast Mt. Whitney tom turkey with dressing, giblet gravy and cranberry sauce; sea food curry of shrimp, lobster and crabmeat; giant Australian lobster tail with drawn butter, and charcoal-broiled New York cut steak with mushroom caps. Children's dinners will be $1.75.

The Reef, owned by restaurateur Dave Tallichet, serves luncheon daily from 11:30 a.m. on, and dinners daily from 4:30 p.m. on.

Q. When CBS signed Judy Garland last year to do television, many of the critics predicted that she would never last the season. Were they right?—D. Hazen, Princeton, N.J.
A. True. Judy walked out without completing her final show, much of which came from old clips.

Q. Has Robert Welch or the John Birch Society ever financed Barry Goldwater in his political campaigns?—J.C.S., Brooklyn, N.Y.
A. Robert Welch, founder of the Birch Society, says on p. 119 of his Blue Book, 1961 edition, 8th printing: "I know Barry fairly well. He is a great American . . . I took it on myself to become a one-man finance committee for him in Massachusetts. I raised around $2,000 in my state and sent it on early to him in 1958 . . . I'd love to see him President of the U.S." Sen. Goldwater has repeatedly emphasized his disagreement with Welch's political viewpoint, has suggested that the John Birch Society get rid of leader Welch or disband.

Q. Does anyone know what's happened to Rachele Mussolini, widow of the Italian dictator? Also how old is she if still alive?—Leslie Geiger, Chicago, Ill.
A. Rachele Mussolini, 73, owns and runs a restaurant in Rocca Delle Caminate, an Italian village on the Adriatic.

Q. Is there anything to the Roger Vadim-Jane Fonda thing? — Carol Martin, Miami, Fla.
A. Vadim directed Jane in a remake of La Ronde in Paris; nothing serious between them.

Q. Who is the author of the following quotation: "The best way to fight a woman is with your hat—grab it and run"?—C.O. Ames, Charleston, S.C.
A. The late John Barrymore.

Q. Do people in Hollywood who know Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor think their marriage will last?—T.E., Oakland, Calif.
A. They give it five years.

Q. I understand that Jackie Gleason has a contract with CBS-TV which calls for him to receive $100,000 annually for life. Is this true?—L. H., Newark, N. J.
A. It is not. Gleason's present contract with CBS runs until 1972, guarantees him $110,000 a year, work or not. His present show is budgeted at $150,000 a week, from which he nets a minimum of $30,000.

Q. I would like to know why at Princeton University there is no marker, stone, plate, shrine or urn marking the remains of the late and great Albert Einstein.—B. H. Knox, Falls Church, Va.
A. It was Dr. Einstein's wish that he be remembered only by his work.

Q. On the Ed Sullivan TV show and other variety programs, is the studio audience signaled to cheer, whistle and applaud?—David Mann, Miami, Fla.
A. Yes.

Q. The present Prince Philip of England was originally of the Greek Orthodox faith. At the time of his marriage to Elizabeth, was there a wedding ceremony in the Greek Orthodox Church as well as in the Church of England?—Dr. James Majarakis, Chicago, Ill.
A. No: Philip renounced his faith to marry Elizabeth.

Q. Could you possibly explain the marital status of the well-known actress Gloria Grahame? Is it true that she is married to her son?—Nick Demantis, Las Vegas, Nev.
A. Miss Grahame's first husband was actor Stanley Clements, 1945-47. Her second was director Nick Ray, 1948-52. Her third was writer Cy Howard, 1954-57. Her fourth and present husband is Bill Ray, son of her second husband, Nick Ray; so that she is married to her former stepson.

Q. Would you tell us something about the wives of Johnny Carson?—Mrs. J.G.D., Springfield, Mo.
A. Carson has been married twice. His first wife, Jody, lives on Long Island with their three boys: Chris, 13, Ricky, 11, and Cory, 10. His second and current wife, the former Jo Anne Copeland, worked as a model before her recent marriage to Carson.

Q. How old is Maureen O'Sullivan?—Diane Herrera, Loma Linda, Calif.
A. She is 53.

Q. Is it true that the Las Vegas gambling syndicate paid the late Sen. George Bender of Ohio a $100,000 bribe to prevent owners of the Desert Inn from being sent to jail?—L.M., Jean, Nev.
A. Samuel Garfield, one of the Desert Inn owners, recently testified that he had arranged to pay Sen. Bender a $100,000 fee for checking into the United Dye scandal in which Garfield and his associates were involved, but that none of the $100,000 fee was ever paid to Sen. Bender.

Q. Could you please tell me if the Greek actor Stathis Giallelis lives in Greece or America, and is he married?—Roberta Halvorson, Portland, Ore.
A. Giallelis lives in New York, is unmarried.

Q. Who is Simone Bicheron?—H. T., Jackson, Miss.
A. French model who became the fourth wife of actor Curt Jurgens.

Q. I read in this column that The Beatles were getting $7,000 per night versus 60 per cent of the gross. When I tried to buy the act at that price from their agents in this country, I was laughed at. How much are The Beatles asking?—L.P.T., Hartford, Conn.
A. They are now asking and getting a minimum of $25,000 per night against 60 per cent of the gross. As they get hotter, their asking price mounts.

Q. Why has the relationship between actor Ernest Borgnine and that DuPont girl been hushed up?—L.T., Wilmington, Del.
A. Borgnine has filed suit against Ricki DuPont for her failure to return $25,000 he claims he loaned her.

Q. What kind of car does President Johnson drive personally on his Texas ranch? — George Odlum, Grayville, Ill.
A. A white Lincoln Continental.

why you should use a special colorfast shampoo if you color or lighten your hair

"Because you want beautiful haircoloring to stay beautiful—fresh and lively! Not to be dulled or clouded by the wrong shampoo," says Gene Shacove. "To keep enjoying the flattery of haircoloring chosen just for you, you should insist on this special colorfast shampoo by Clairol, which won't change hair color." Very different from other leading shampoos, colorfast shampoo by Clairol was specifically created for women who color or lighten their hair. Two unique formulas: Clairol Blue for all light delicate blonde shades of lightened and toned hair. Clairol Green for all red, brown and black shades of tints and lasting rinses. At leading beauty salons and cosmetic counters.

Young couple proudly watch their newborn baby in maternity ward. When the baby is 3 days old he should be tested for possible PKU.

NEEDED: A LAW TO PREVENT HEARTBREAK

■ A new law is needed in Western states to save millions of families from heartbreak. Since 1961, a simple, inexpensive test to detect in newborn babies a genetic defect which causes severe mental retardation has been available to hospitals and health departments. Yet, at this writing, only Massachusetts has passed legislation requiring the test for all newborn babies.

Frequently called the PKU test (short for phenylketonuria), it requires that a drop of blood be drawn from the baby's heel on the third day of life. Through culture tests the PKU defect —an inability to assimilate certain chemicals—can be detected at this early date and overcome with a special diet before brain damage occurs. The tragic effect of PKU is that victims are born normal but become progressively more retarded as poisonous chemicals build up and destroy brain tissue.

In some Western states many hospitals give the PKU test on a voluntary basis. In other areas, an older, diaper test for PKU, which is given at six weeks of age, is still being used. This can mean that a baby may be two months old before the PKU condition is confirmed, and brain damage may already have started. In other states, public health officials and medical societies have not acted on the issue or have openly resisted it.

SUCCESSFUL TRIALS

Recently completed field trials conducted by the developer of the test, Dr. Robert Guthrie of the University of Buffalo, revealed that more than twice the number of babies carry the PKU characteristic than previously suspected—more than 1 in 10,000. The 400,000 babies tested in the recent trials were double-checked, and no cases of PKU were missed in the first screening. Based on this trial, the Children's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare strongly recommends that all newborn babies be given the PKU test.

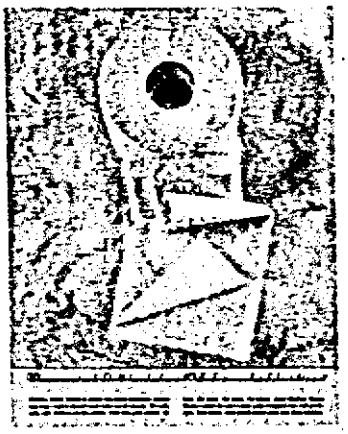

The PKU test is of proven value in detecting a savage defect, but possibly more important is its value as a model for similar screening tests to uncover other unseen chemical and metabolic defects in the newborn. One biochemist estimates that in the future from 4 to 7 such tests will be feasible on a large scale.

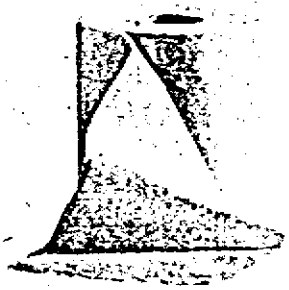

How can you help to get this law passed? One way is to put pressure on your state legislature and public health departments. Another is to support organizations like the National Association for Retarded Children, which wants legislation requiring the use of all screening tests as they are developed and are made available.

Your help is needed urgently in finding the tiny victims of this savage destroyer.

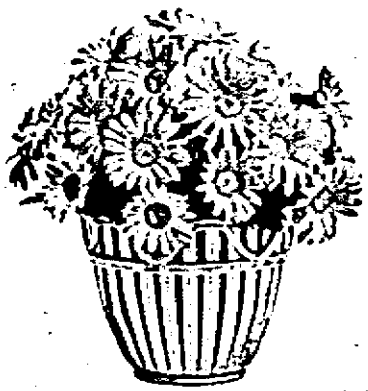

"My very first roll of your toilet tissue cost me $53.98

This is the ad I saw that started it all: 'When you can get yards of double-layered, pale jonquil Crown Chiffon for pennies, why pick plain toilet paper?' Why, indeed? So...

...I took some pennies and bought some. It looked so soft and rich and I began to feel very extravagant having double-ply toilet tissue in my plain old bathroom. So extravagant that...

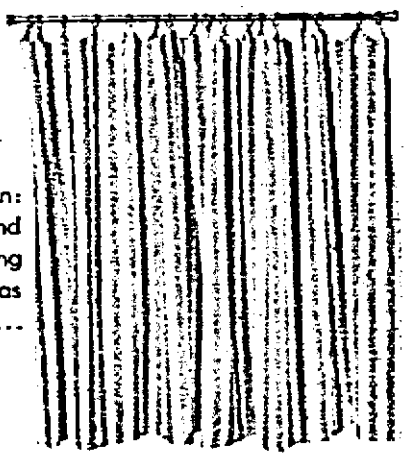

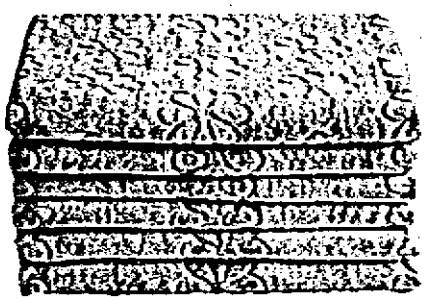

...I bought some yellow flowers (for the bathroom!) to match and a yellow vase for them and put them on the shelf. (Plastic flowers, $3; vase, $1.50.) Then...

...I saw some imported English lemon soap ($3 a dozen) which certainly deserved a better soap dish than mine. (New milk glass soap dish, $2.50.) I thought this was it until...

...the window curtain: pale jonquil stripes, soft and silky cotton, just as rich-looking as Chiffon. Only $9. It was all getting beyond me and...

...by the time I'd bought six new towels ($15) I knew Chiffon had changed my life, not to mention my bank account, because...

...I just had the old tile bathroom floor covered forever with pale yellow nylon carpeting ($19.98), wall to wall.

I love Chiffon, I assure you. But it's so glamorous, it's dangerous. You want to spruce up your bathroom to match. And right now, I'm busy scraping up the pennies to buy more Crown Chiffon Toilet Tissue this week!

Yours truly, Maryellen Flynn, Los Angeles"

How LBJ protected from

WASHINGTON, D.C.

One evening last month a tall dowager type slithered up to one of the guards who patrol the White House.

Drawing a blue cloth coat tightly around her plump figure, she announced imperiously, "I am Cleopatra."

"Oh!" intoned the guard.

"Just don't stand there," the woman commanded, her voice stamping its foot. "Fetch me my Antony."

Long accustomed to the stream of crackpots, eccentrics and psychotics who pour into Washington, the policeman said courteously, "And who might that be, ma'am?"

"My Antony," the dowager declared, "is Lyndon Johnson. Fetch him."

The guard knew what he had on his hands. "I'm sorry, ma'am," he said. "The President is not in the White House."

The woman pointed an accusing index finger at him, then drew it sharply across her throat. "You," she declared, "will be beheaded in the morning." She whirled and stalked north on East Executive Avenue.

Having witnessed this scene, I strolled a few minutes later to the White House entrance on Pennsylvania Avenue. There I asked a White House policeman what procedure he followed when an obviously disturbed person demanded to see the President and wouldn't take "no" for an answer.

The policeman studied me as if I were one of the psychotics I'd described. "What've you got in your pockets?" he asked. It was cold, and my hands were thrust deep in my coat pockets.

"My hands," I answered. "Also a comb." I took out the comb and held it up.

"Why are you asking these questions?" he continued.

I handed him my press card and explained I was trying to research an assassination story on whether there was any defense of the President against deranged persons, of whom Lee Harvey Oswald certainly was one.

"Listen," the policeman said. "I'm not about to tell you anything. You wanna know something? You're legitimate? You call the Secret Service."

"Officer," I remonstrated, "since I'm a taxpayer, would you please tell me the time?"

"No," he said flatly. "I won't even tell you that. What's more, I don't believe your story." Then he shut the auto gate.

Next morning I phoned Inspector Burrill Peterson, in charge of press relations for the Secret Service. He was only too happy to give me the time of day, but that's practically all he gave.

"You can understand," he explained, "that until the Warren Commission makes public its full report on the assassination of President Kennedy, there's nothing we can say on the subject of nuts who'd like to take a shot at the President, or people who threaten him, or how we're guarding the President, or anything even remotely connected with the subject."

Despite the understandable reluctance of the Secret Service, charged with protecting the President, to disclose its guarding techniques even in general terms, the fact is that Lyndon Johnson will probably go down in history as the best-guarded U.S. President.

Until the election later this year he certainly will not leave the country unless an international emergency makes an overseas trip imperative.

Within the country the Secret Service now insists that when the President leaves Washington, none of his routes be disclosed. If possible no names of airports at which he is to land are given out. His auto routes are surveyed in advance by Secret Service agents who study the buildings lining the roads. Crackpots who threaten the President are to be apprehended and prosecuted.

Nightmare for Secret Service: President Johnson recently opened White House gates, mingled with visitors.

The Presidential limousine has been refitted with bulletproof glass, bulletproof bubble top and 1,600 pounds of bulletproof armor plate. The limousine is to be chauffeured always by a Secret Service agent with another agent in the front seat. The seat is so constructed that the agent can make a complete turn and face the President.

Ten years ago 4 Puerto Rican extremists, 1 a woman carrying guns in her handbag for the other 3, entered the visitors' gallery in the House of Representatives and fired 25 shots, wounding 5 Congressmen. To prevent such extremists from zeroing in on the President when he addresses Congress, no visitor may enter the gallery when the President is scheduled to talk unless he is known personally either by a senator or by a member of the House.

Every possible precaution is being taken to safeguard the life of the President. But is there, or can there be, any defense against the deranged, the insane, the mentally disturbed? History proves for the most part that these are the Presidential assassins.

Over the years the Secret Service has put together a file of approximately 50,000 names of mentally deranged persons. They are unstable characters, ranging from rabble rousers to paranoiacs and psychotics who have written, phoned or denounced a President in so violent a manner as to constitute a potential threat to any occupant of the White House.

Before a President journeys to a location where one or several of these mentally disturbed individuals live, the Secret Service tries to check them out.

Lee Harvey Oswald was not listed in the Secret Service master file because Lee Harvey Oswald never wrote President John F. Kennedy. He wrote John Connally, now governor of Texas, when Connally was Secretary of the Navy, complaining about his dishonorable discharge from the Marines and threatening vengeance. He wrote Sen. John Tower of Texas with the same complaint. But the Secret Service keeps no list of disgruntled persons who threaten legislators or cabinet members. That is not its job. Had Oswald written John F. Kennedy, however, there is a good chance the Secret Service might have placed the alleged assassin under observation before the President ever got to Dallas.

MANY BELIEVE IT WAS A CONSPIRACY

The Soviet Union has turned over to President Johnson its file on Lee Harvey Oswald. The Warren Commission investigating the assassination has uncovered no evidence that the killing was anything other than the act of a deranged individual. But a large portion of the American public refuses to believe that one suspect, Lee Harvey Oswald, was responsible for the crime. They say Oswald was head of an intricate Communist conspiracy, that he was trained by the Soviet Secret Intelligence, by his wife's uncle, his wife's stepfather, that the Soviet government financed him, that his was a joint conspiracy with Jack Ruby. Revilo Oliver, a professor of classic languages at the University of Illinois and a representative of the John Birch Society, recently wrote in the Birch magazine, American Opinion, that John F. Kennedy was murdered because he was simply too slow in turning over the American government to Communist leaders.

There is still, regardless of the evidence, a tremendous reluctance to admit that one small, thin, impoverished, hate-ridden, demented, self-professed Marxist could so easily and single-handedly murder a President of the U.S.

It is the deranged individual, however, acting alone, motivated solely by his own insanity, whom the Secret Service fears the most.

In the words of former Secret Service Chief U. E. Baughman, these individuals constitute "the central is being crackpot killers

by Lloyd Shearer

danger to the President and his family." This danger revolves around the lack of a predictable behavior pattern for potential assassins. Who knows what a psychotic or a paranoiac will do next?

To find out, the Secret Service is working closely with two psychiatrists in the District of Columbia General Hospital, Drs. James L. Foy and Joseph A. Sebastiani. These two men are reviewing the case histories of some 40 mentally disturbed characters who tried unsuccessfully to crash the White House in 1960-61. Each year about 50 deranged people travel to Washington and insist upon seeing the President. The White House guards, perceptive and experienced, turn them over to the Secret Service, and presently they are transported to D.C. General Hospital for observation.

"It's all very legal," Dr. Foy explains. "You just can't put people in a hospital for observation unless you're doing it under law. So when the Secret Service believes that it has someone who is seriously ill mentally and such a person cannot be persuaded to leave the White House grounds — and all these people have certain characteristics in common: they talk incessantly, they're ridden with false beliefs, they have a distorted sense of reality and of what the President can do to help them—then the Secret Service calls the local police to come and get this character and go through the proper legal channels to place him under observation. And it's then that we get them for study.

"Proportionately we've had just about the same number of mentally disturbed persons coming to see President Johnson as those who tried to see President Eisenhower and President Kennedy. They range in age from 18 to 72, but most are between 30 and 50. The overwhelming majority have previously been confined to mental institutions in their own states but have been released as improved, harmless and possibly cured. Unfortunately, many of them have suffered relapses.

"In some instances," Dr. Foy continues, "these sick people write the President and tell him beforehand that they're coming to Washington. In other cases their relatives tip off the White House ahead of time, and the guards are waiting for them when they arrive."

The reasons given by deranged persons for wanting to see the President are varied. One 28-year-old told the White House guards he was Jesus Christ come to Washington to tell President Eisenhower "the Third Secret of Fatima." Another said he had to see President Kennedy because only Kennedy could help him solve his problem. His problem: he had $100 billion on deposit in a savings bank, and the bank refused to let him withdraw the money without the President's okay. During the Kennedy administration several women accused Jacqueline Kennedy of being an impostor and declared that only they were the true wives of John F. Kennedy.

"I," announced one California matron, "am the real First Lady of this land."

Not too long ago a young man turned up at the White House and asked for the $2,000,000 President Johnson was supposed to have left for him. He declared himself to be the son of God and explained that his Father had sent him to make the pickup.

A recent case of the mentally disturbed individual who insists upon seeing the President involves Doyle Allen Hicks, 28, of Waynesville, N.C. Last September Hicks crashed his pickup truck through the White House gate and was only 25 feet from the north portico when the White House guards, their guns drawn, captured him.

A schizophrenic with paranoid delusions, a married plumber, father of five, a former inmate of Broughton State Hospital in North Carolina, young Hicks had driven all night from his home to the White House to alert President Kennedy that the Disturbed man, Doyle Hicks of Waynesville, N.C., is led away after trying to crash White House gate with truck.

Communists had invaded the Tar Heel State and were marching on Washington.

"I tell you, boys," he shouted when taken, "you'd better get down to North Carolina. You'd better get down there and see what's going on. They're killing people like flies."

Dr. Foy, who's been specializing in psychiatry since 1954—he received his M.D. from Loyola University, Chicago, in 1949—explains: "The people the Secret Service sends us are way out, but not all of them are angry or hostile. Thus far in our review of their cases, one thing stands out — more of these people are born outside the U.S. than one would ordinarily expect.

"It may well be that in their childhoods many of these people lived in cultures of structured authority based on father figures. When they came to this country they derived some strange notion about the supreme authority of the President, that he was the man to whom they could appeal all their troubles, he was the man responsible for everything, he was the omnipotent, God-like commander in charge of their destiny. I speculate that their view of the Presidency is somehow tied up with their sociocultural background and inheritance.

"The Secret Service has a branch in the White House," Dr. Foy points out, "called the Protective Research Branch. The men assigned to it try to deal with all the abusive and threatening mail the President gets. They classify the senders as major risks, minor risks, very dangerous, not so dangerous. It's an overwhelming job, but they manage to keep track of hostile and deranged people."

It is said with only slight exaggeration of Bob Bouck, in charge of the Protective Research Branch, that he can look at an envelope and discern from the handwriting whether the writer is normal, abnormal, male or female, native or foreign-born. Inspector Bouck is typical of the sagacious, perceptive and knowledgeable men the Secret Service has long assigned to this important detail.

ALL LONE OPERATORS

Historical studies of Presidential assassinations and attempts made both by scholars and the Secret Service prove conclusively that all of the assassins except the two Puerto Ricans from the Bronx who tried to shoot Harry Truman in 1950 were lone operators.

This was true of Richard Lawrence, who tried to kill Andrew Jackson in 1835; John Wilkes Booth, who murdered Lincoln in 1865; Charles Guiteau, who gunned down Garfield in 1881; Leon Czolgosz, who shot McKinley in 1901; Joseph Schrank, who tried to murder Theodore Roosevelt in 1912; Giuseppe Zangara, who in 1933 missed Franklin D. Roosevelt but killed Mayor Anton Cermak of Chicago; and Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin in 1963 of President John F. Kennedy.

With the exception of Oswald, all these assassins were men with a cause who cried out for discovery and martyrdom. Most of them were foreign-born, but what they all had in common was mental disease. Each was a deranged individual badly in need of psychiatric treatment.

In a free society such as ours there is as yet no protection against such men. As Dr. Walter Alvarez says, "Unfortunately the average physician has no interest in psychiatry and no training in this field; he cannot be counted on even to recognize a mentally deranged man when he comes into the office."

The Secret Service can recognize the mentally disturbed all right. Its major problem is to ferret out and keep track of the potential assassin. It seems an almost impossible task. But its men keep trying. Perhaps in some other tomorrow computers will help.

GUNSMOKE'S DENNIS WEAVER

"I want to walk without a limp"

BY ARNO JOHANSEN

HOLLYWOOD.

Ten years ago, a tall (6-feet-2), dark (brown hair, brown eyes), handsome actor from Joplin, Mo., named Dennis Weaver was working here in his uncle's flower shop as a handyman.

Weaver labored at odd jobs for $5 and $7.50 a day because acting parts were scarce and he had both a wife and a 5-year-old son to support.

Today Dennis Weaver, the gimpy Chester of Gunsmoke, the limping, stiff-legged deputy side-kick of Marshal Matt Dillon, is a millionaire at 38. A proud father of 3 sons, he owns a $180,000 mansion, speeds about in a $13,000 Facel Vega, owns 4 bowling alleys, a string of race horses, a flock of oil wells, several parcels of choice real estate.

This wealth is the result of nine years of acting in Gunsmoke, on which Dennis has now turned his back for the third time.

Come this fall, Dennis Weaver will star in Kentucky Jones, a "half-hour serious comedy" to be telecast Saturday nights from 8:30 to 9:00 via NBC.

WHY SHOULD HE?

Why should Weaver give up a sure thing like Gunsmoke, which paid him $7,000 a week at the finish, to star in a new TV series, the public acceptance of which is at best doubtful and which was originally written for the late Jack Carson?

The answer is that Dennis Weaver is a dedicated ham. "After almost 10 years," he explains, "I want to walk without a limp. In Gunsmoke I've exhausted all the dimensions of Chester. There's nothing I can do with that character anymore. I knew it some time ago, and I tried to quit the program twice before.

"Two years ago I did a variety show pilot, TV Tonight. I was a combination host and master of ceremonies. It didn't sell. Last year I worked in another pilot, Giant Step. I played a high school vice-principal. That didn't sell either. In both instances I returned to Gunsmoke because financially that was the best thing to do. But this time I'm severing the umbilical cord for good. Kentucky Jones has been bought and scheduled. I own 25 per cent of the package, and I'll get a weekly guarantee of about $5,000."

According to Weaver, however, money is not his primary motivation for quitting Gunsmoke, "I want to grow as an actor, to create, to expand. I know I'll never be lucky enough to find another show like Gunsmoke, but in all fairness to myself, I can't afford to make it my whole life's work.

Dennis Weaver, as Chester (l.), has for 9 years

"In Kentucky Jones," Dennis explains, "I play a horse trainer who becomes a veterinarian, a one-time playboy who marries and settles down with a lovely bride. Subsequently, we adopt a Chinese boy named Dwight Eisenhower Wong. Then my wife dies, and I become mother and father to the boy. Essentially, the series deals with a father-son relationship.

NO LIMP, NO DRAWL

"It's what I call," Weaver says, "a serious comedy. I don't limp in it and I don't drawl, but my character has broader horizons, wider boundaries than Chester had in Gunsmoke."

To understand Weaver's profound interest in acting, one must know something of his background. He was born and raised in Missouri, the son of a Joplin electrician, and at school divided his time almost equally between drama and athletics. He was one of the Midwest's great high school athletes and later at the University of Oklahoma qualified for the Olympic decathlon.

On graduation he came to New York, studied at the Actors Studio under Lee Strasberg, married his schoolgirl sweetheart, later worked on Broadway with Shirley Booth in Come Back, Little Sheba. He also enacted the role of Stanley Kowalski, the part that zoomed Marlon Brando to stardom in Streetcar Named Desire. Many who saw him play the role opposite Shelley Winters thought he was Brando's equal, if not his superior.

On the strength of that performance he was signed by Universal Pictures. But this was back in the days of Rock Hudson, Jeff Chandler and Tony Curtis, and there just weren't enough good parts at the studio to go around.

When Universal dropped Weaver, he freelanced in Hollywood, trying to keep body and soul together. In 1954 Charles Marquis Warren, a director who had previously worked with him, tested Dennis for Gunsmoke and signed him at $400 a week.

It was Weaver who thought up Chester's phony limp. Week after week for nine years he limped so well that thousands of Gunsmoke fans wrote him offering money, advice and the names of top surgeons to help him.

Whatever acting gimmick Weaver comes up with in Kentucky Jones, rest assured it will be no limp. Insofar as Chester is concerned, he's had it. ■

ICELAND
A SURPRISING PLACE TO VACATION

by JESS GORKIN

What's in a name?

In the case of Iceland, our closest European neighbor, an increasing number of Americans are discovering that the name is misleading. These Americans include tourists as well as men in uniform stationed at the U.S. air base in Keflavik.

Iceland spells I-C-E and nothing more to most people. But this Kentucky-sized country—39,768 square miles—is warmed by the Gulf Stream and enjoys a moderate climate even in mid-winter. The mean temperature during the summer months is in the middle 50's and reaches into the 70's during the day. Moreover, Iceland has an abundance of natural beauty that includes 30 volcanoes, sparkling trout streams, rustic hamlets, steaming sulfur beds, giant glaciers and green, fertile valleys teeming with an infinite variety of flowers, grasses and mosses.

You can camp, hunt reindeer, bird-watch or do any one or all of the following interesting things.

• Fish around the clock in this land of 24-hour summer daylight. There is an abundance of fish of many kinds.

• Ride a gentle Icelandic pony, even if you have never mounted a horse before. This is true for an hour's ride or a week-long trek cross-country. The Icelandic pony, actually a small horse, is a descendant of stock brought by early Viking settlers.

• Swim in comfort in warm-water pools fed by natural hot springs. If you choose, you can go swimming with Iceland's president, Asgeir Asgeirsson, in Reykjavik, the capital city. He swims almost every day the year around in one of Reykjavik's outdoor public pools.

• Take a guided trip up the volcano, Hekla, 4,747 feet high.

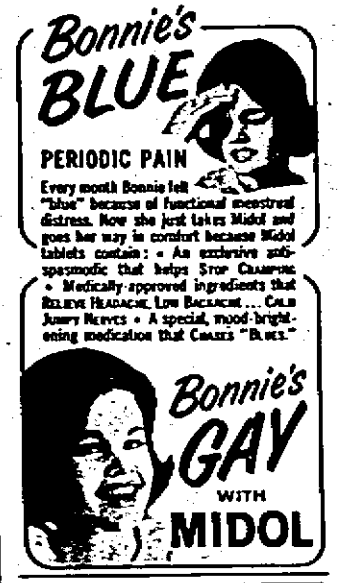

• Visit a whaling station on days when the huge mammals are brought in by the whaling fleet.

• View the Great Geyser, after which spouting springs all over the world are named. And here's an added bonus for tourists. To accommodate them, the geyser is agitated into action by feeding it liquid soap. The geyser shoots boiling water and steam to heights of 180 feet. Iceland is, in fact, a geologist's paradise. One-seventh of the island is lava-covered, one-seventh glacier-encased and its numerous waterfalls are among the world's most scenic.

Blending into the scenery are the Icelandic women, who are among the prettiest in the world. Two of them, Johanna

ICELAND'S 180,000 PEOPLE ARE PROUD AND HANDSOME

Iceland abounds in natural wonders like these eerie sulfur hills and steaming hot springs which dot countryside surrounding Myvatnssveit.

Kristjansdottir and Maria Ragnarsdottir, embellish the photos on these pages. They toured Iceland with PARADE's photographer to help dramatize what you can see and do in their mountainous country—whether it's on a 1-day stopover trip en route to the European mainland, 2-day fishing trip, 1-week cross-country pony trek or 15-day scientific expedition for touring naturalists and geologists.

ANYTHING BUT A TRAIN

Blond Johanna and brunette Maria explained that the pony used to be the only means of transportation. But today the tourist can choose among buses, private cars or planes. The island republic has no railroads.

Johanna and Maria, proud of their country's history and heritage, described how Iceland was discovered in the middle of the ninth century by the Vikings. Icelanders are predominantly of Nordic origin, with an admixture of Celtic blood from Ireland. In the year 930, the Althing, or parliament, was formed — making it the oldest parliament in the world—and in 1944 Iceland became an independent republic.

In addition to Johanna and Maria, there are 180,000 other Icelanders, 75,000 of whom live in Reykjavik.

If you decide to visit these proud and handsome people, who like to joke about the fact that their sheep population outnumbers the people 6 to 1, you can easily accomplish this by air. Icelandic Airlines flies daily from New York and Pan American World Airways maintains a regular weekly service from New York to Iceland. ■

Peering through entrance, touring girls visit one of many underground lakes near city of Akureyri.

English meat pie

BY BETH MERRIMAN
PARADE FOOD EDITOR

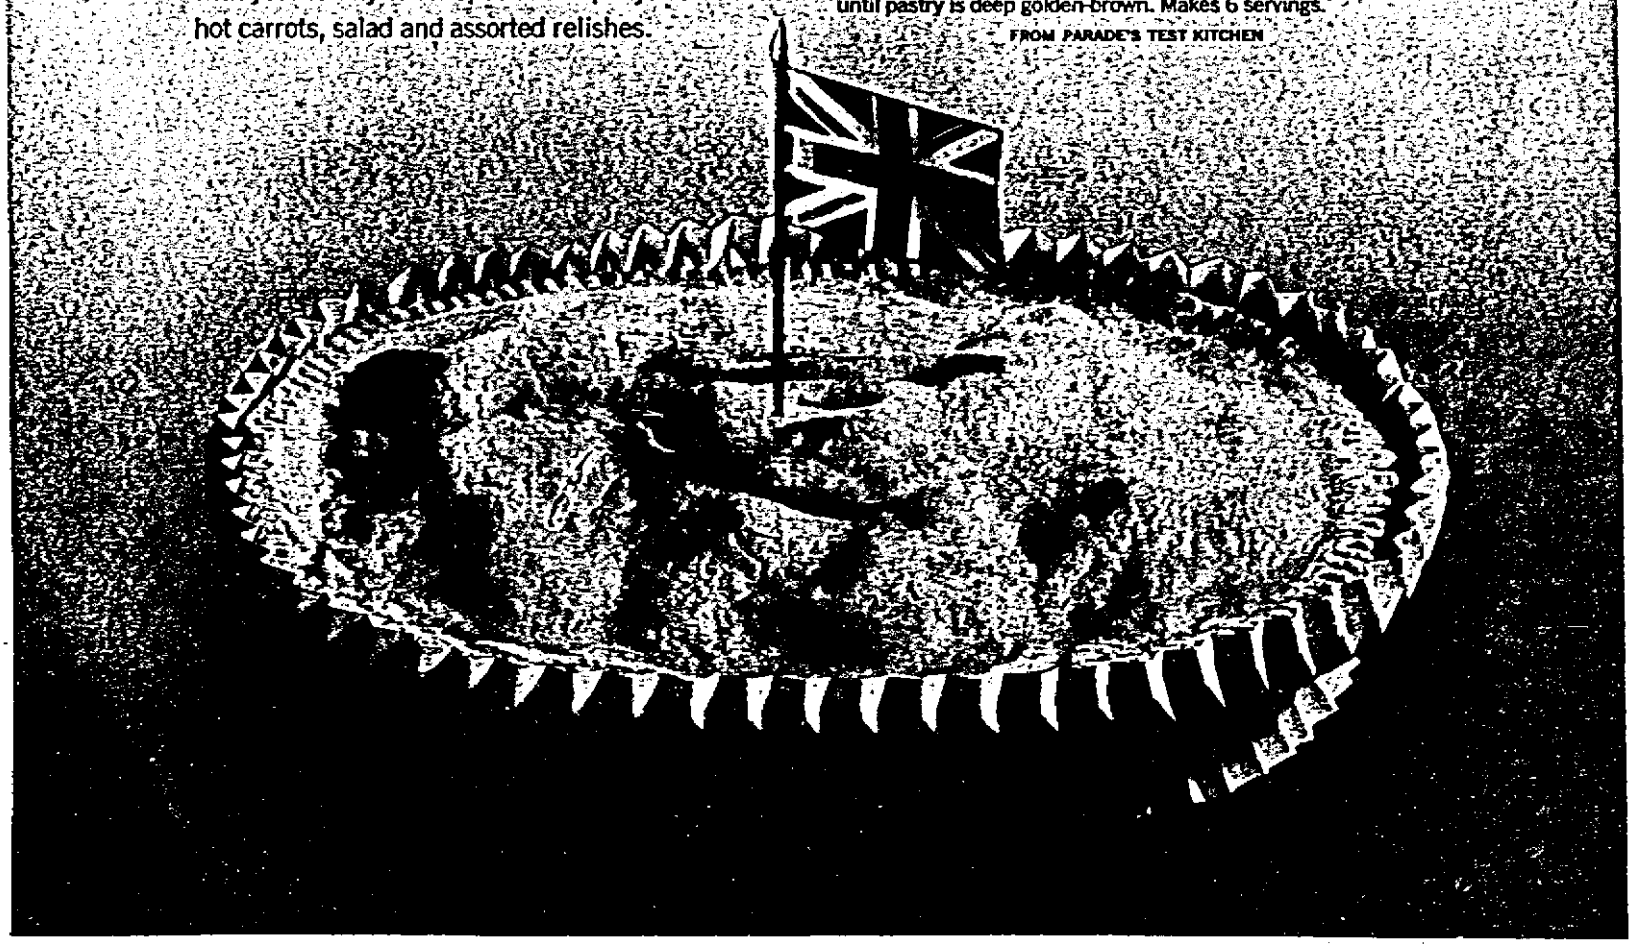

It's a great pity that English cookery has been so unjustly maligned, because in English homes, in fine English restaurants and aboard great English liners like the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, the cuisine is superb. Consider this recipe for traditional steak and kidney pie as it is prepared and served to passengers on these liners. Deliciously flavored and quite easy to prepare, it is no wonder that this hearty meat pie is one of the most popular dishes on the Queens' menu. No doubt it will be equally popular with your family or for special company. Serve with hot carrots, salad and assorted relishes.

English steak and kidney pie

½ lb. beef suet
1 lb. lamb kidneys, quartered
2 lb. top round, cut 1 inch thick
1 large onion, coarsely chopped
1 teaspoon salt
Few grains pepper and cayenne
1½ teaspoons Worcestershire sauce
Pastry for 1-crust pie
1 cup beef stock
1 egg yolk
2 tablespoons water

Cook suet until golden-brown. Remove from pan. Fry onion in drippings until soft and brown; remove from pan. Cut beef in 1-inch cubes; add with kidneys; fry in drippings until well browned. Return onions to pan; add seasonings and beef stock. Stir well; cover; simmer 2 hours; adding more broth if necessary. Thicken gravy if desired. Transfer to baking dish. Cool. Meanwhile roll out pastry ⅛ inch thick; place over meat mixture. Trim; crimp edges with floured fork. Cut slits in center of pastry. Cut "leaves" from pastry scraps; place on top. Beat egg yolk slightly; add water; brush over pastry. Bake at 425° for 10 minutes; lower heat to 350°; bake 20 minutes longer, or until pastry is deep golden-brown. Makes 6 servings.

PARADE'S SPECIAL

INTELLIGENCE REPORT

Because of the large volume of mail received, PARADE regrets that it is unable to answer queries about this column.

CEREALS & CAVITIES. Indiana University makes dental research pay. In 1955 its researchers discovered that sodium fluoride mixed into toothpaste helps prevent cavities. They sold the patent on this discovery to Procter & Gamble. As a result, the Indiana University Foundation today receives thousands from the sale of Crest toothpaste. The University's dental researchers are now under contract to the Post division of General Foods, working on a mineral additive for breakfast cereals that will help reduce tooth decay.

WOMANPOWER. There are now approximately 66,848,000 females in the U.S. 14 years of age or older. They own 65% of all savings accounts, 74% of all titles to suburban homes, stand to inherit 70% of the nation's wealth and control 85% of total consumer buying power.

QUACKS. Beware of unqualified persons who pass themselves off as psychologists, scientologists or metaphysicians. More than half our states have no laws preventing such quacks from operating under those titles. Result: each year they bilk an estimated $350,000,000 from unknowing patients.

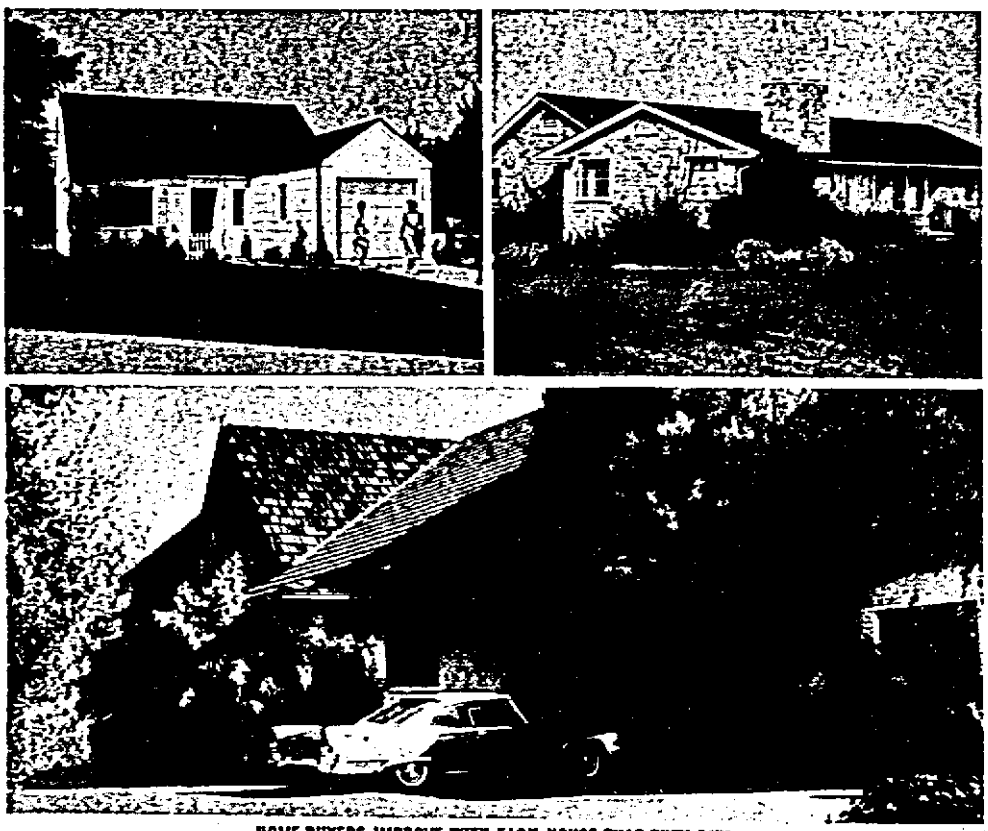

PAY HIKE. To stop the "brain drain" of British scientists and teachers to the U.S., the British are raising the minimum salary of professors from $8,120 to $9,520, the maximum from $11,200 to $13,300.

CHILD SUICIDES. Why do school children commit suicide? In the past 3 years 41 New Jersey children have taken their lives; another 738 have unsuccessfully tried the same. Of the 41 who killed themselves, not one had a confidant of any age to whom he or she could communicate his personal distress. Fifteen is the most likely age at which the lonely child, desperate to be loved and accepted, attempts suicide.

HIGH SCHOOL GIRLS. According to a poll in San Diego, the average American high school girl has stopped lionizing the captain of the football team, prefers to date the boy with brains. According to Dr. Orrin Klapp, who supervised the survey: "The young intellectual is in."

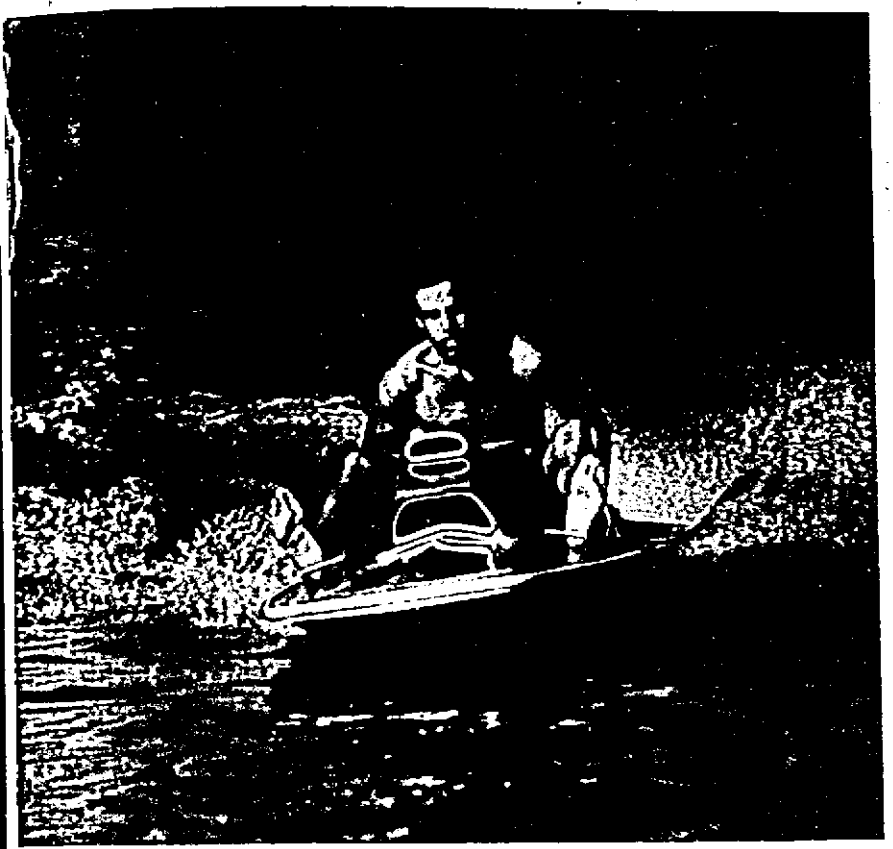

DEDUCTIBLE WHISKY. If you drink whisky for purely medicinal purposes, you can claim it as a deduction on your federal income tax. Says the Internal Revenue Service in its latest tax guide: "Your doctor has prescribed two ounces of whisky to be taken by you twice a day for relief of angina pain resulting from coronary artery disease. The expense you incur for the prescribed whisky is a deductible medical expense."

COLLEGE ENROLLMENT. California is outpacing all other 49 states in enrollment of college students, boasting 629,000 registered pupils. New York is runner-up with 415,000, followed by Illinois with 242,000, Texas with 233,000 and Pennsylvania with 230,000.

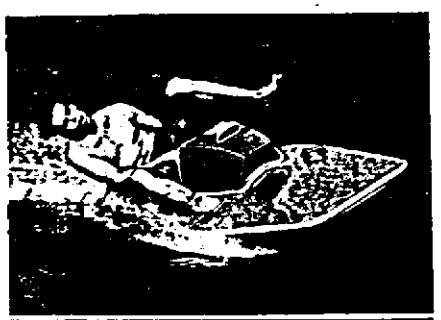

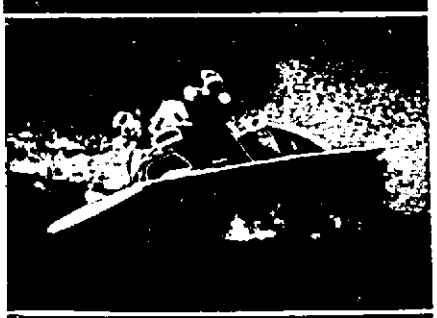

HOME-BUYERS IMPROVE WITH EACH HOUSE THAT THEY BUY.

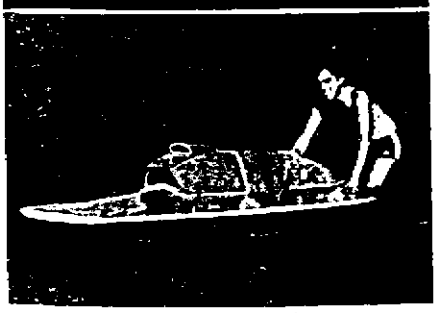

HOME-BUYERS. During the course of his lifetime, the average American buys three houses, each one successively better. He occupies house #1 for eight years, house #2 for seven years, and house #3 until his death.

Fast, new "hydro-kart" skims over the top of the water. The pilot sits on, rather than in, the craft.

here comes the hydro-kart

LOS ANGELES.

■ The speedy little go-kart is storming the American recreation scene a second time! As a miniature racing car, it has brought thrills to 3.5 million U.S. owners, plus guests permitted to take the helm. Now—as these photos, taken at Hansen Dam near here, show—the 7-to-12 hp chain-saw engines have been harnessed to Fiberglas boats not much bigger than a surfboard. The resulting "hydro-karts" are the newest rage of the water sports field. They spurt along at 25 mph ("It seems like 80!" say West Coast daredevils who've gunned them), and it's practically impossible to tip one over. Prices run from $300 to over $700. The average craft is 8 feet long, weighs 110 pounds, needs only 18 inches of water, runs for hours on a gallon of gas. Pilots sit so close to the water level the speed-impression is amplified. So is the fun!

My Favorite Jokes

by Jerry Lewis

EDITOR'S NOTE: Jerry Lewis, born Joseph Levitch in Newark, N.J., in 1926 to Danny and Mona Lewis, a pair of vaudevillians, is probably the most successful financial clown in show business. He lives in the Bel Air mansion formerly owned by the power-crazy, ostentatious chief of MGM, Louis B. Mayer. The house has 31 rooms and 17 bathrooms, and Lewis has stocked it with a radio station control room, small mountains of his awards and trophies, endless volumes of leather-bound photo collections. Possibly the greatest natural comedian since Chaplin, Lewis is kind, restless, insecure and, for the most part, self-educated. He attended Irvington High School in Irvington, N.J., where, to compensate for his insecurity, he clowned outrageously and was nicknamed "Jd" — for idiot — by his classmates. For many years he teamed with Dean Martin, a straight man of small vocal talent, from whom he broke away in 1956. Since then Jerry has been fabulously successful in all avenues of show business except for his TV program on ABC last year, which laid a bomb. Lewis possesses tremendous energy, a fertile creative imagination, but is handicapped by a short concentration span. He claims in his whole life to have read completely only one book, Courtroom, by Quentin Reynolds. Herewith some of his favorite funnies.

An ardent teenager pulled up to a drive-in restaurant with his girl friend and was shocked at the high prices on the menu. He solved his financial problem with typical adolescent nonchalance, however, by turning to the girl and asking: "And what will you have, my plump little pigeon?"

I have been wary of women doctors ever since one of them told me my sore throat needed painting—but she couldn't decide on a color!

At a Catskill resort, a vacationer encountered a frail, rabbinical old man who identified himself as the head dietician, making sure that meat and milk were not served at the same meal. Came February, the vacationer went to Miami, where he met the same old man. "What brings you south?" he asked. "The sun?"

"No, same thing as in the Catskills," replied the old man. "I'm in charge of the dietary laws here now."

In June, the vacationer took a trip to Israel, and in Tel Aviv he ran into the old man for the third time. "I suppose you're still taking charge of the dietary laws?" he asked.

"Oh, no," the old man answered. "Here I'm the golf pro."

A man finally succeeded in buying a parrot at an auction, but only after some very spirited bidding.

"I suppose the bird talks," he said to the auctioneer as he went up to claim his purchase.

"Talks?" was the reply. "Who do you think was bidding against you for the past half-hour!"

An old joke had it that the way the kiddies in Las Vegas learned to count was: "One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten, Jack, Queen, King."

The story has now been up-dated and the scene shifted to Cape Kennedy and the rocket launching pads. There the bright young things recite as follows: "Ten, nine, eight, seven, six, five, four, three, two, one, zero—oh, damn!"

There's an old spinster back in my home town who has finally found herself a husband. She saw this fellow on a "Wanted" poster and offered $100 more for him than the government did.

It was once gold and silver that lured prospectors and fortune hunters to the wide open spaces out West. Recently, of course, it's been uranium.

One old-timer was mighty mystified by the new invaders. "Dunno what this excitement is all about," he confided to a reporter. "Fust thing I knew was when some feller come on the place with a contraption called a Goober counter and seemed hellbent on huntin' for geraniums."

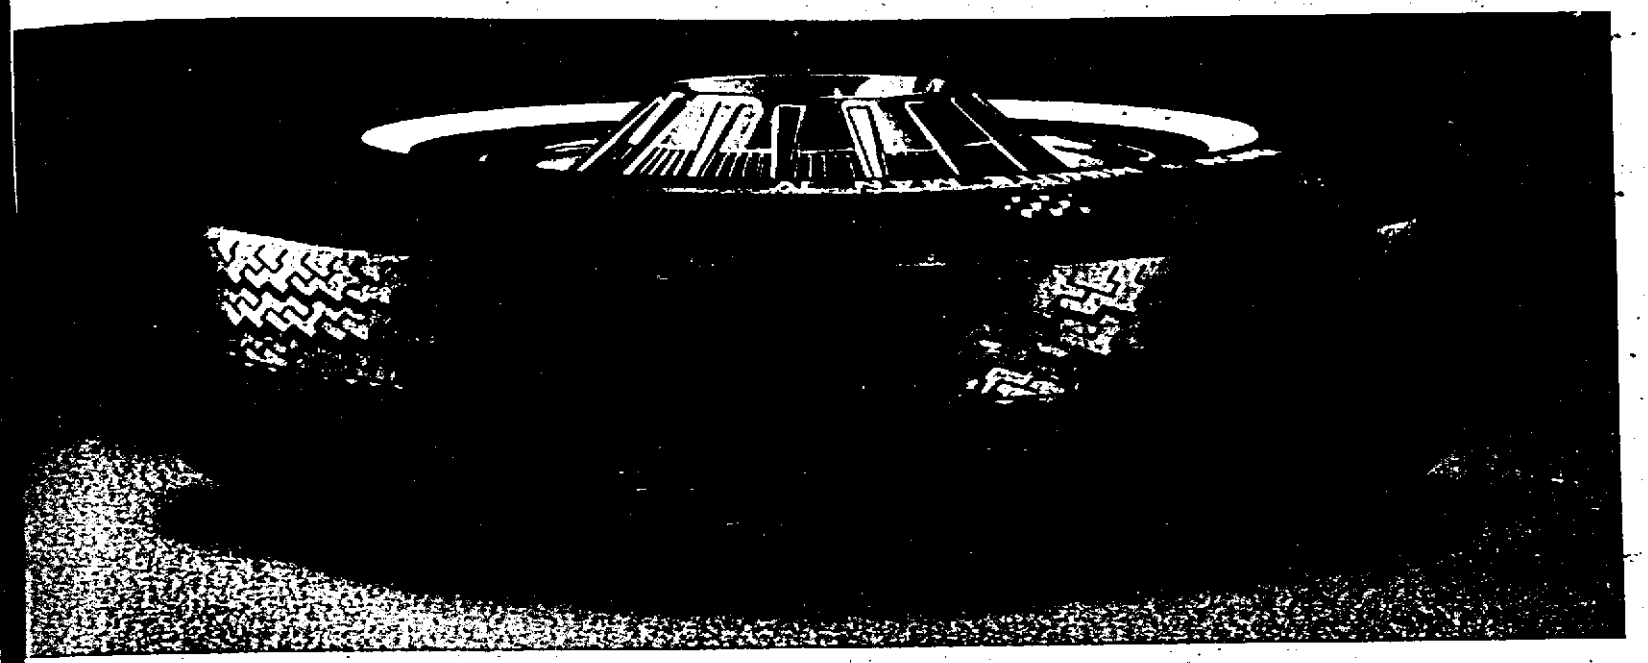

A friend of mine just got a brilliant idea for a new kind of key club. You don't need a key to get in—just to get out!

I wouldn't want you to think I was a little monster, but I remember when I was a boy asking my father, "Daddy, will you take me to the zoo?"

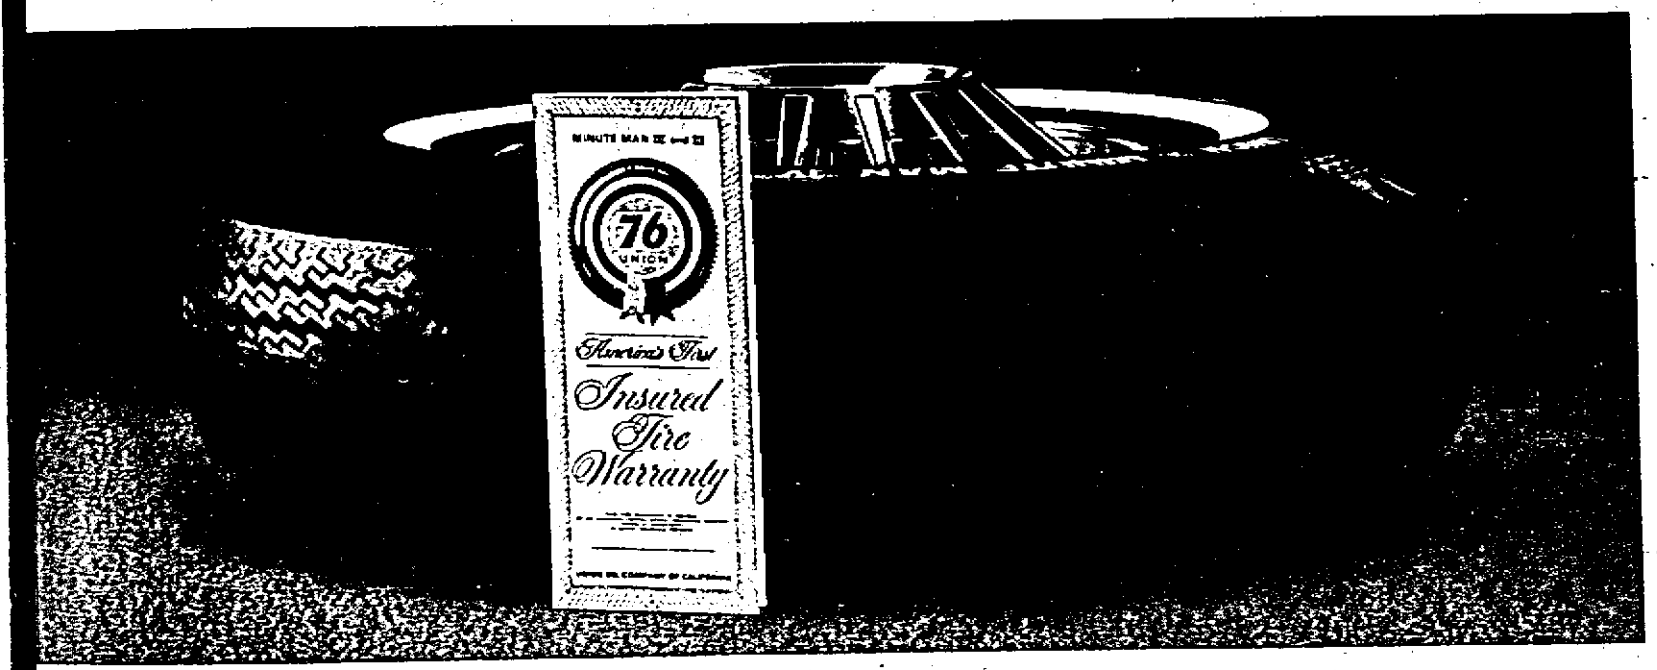

"If the zoo wants you," he replied, without a moment's hesitation, "let them come and get you!"

What's so different about Union Oil tires?

They carry America's First Insured Tire Warranty

NEW FROM UNION OIL: Buy any Minute Man IV or Minute Man III tire. If it fails due to normal road hazards any time during the first year or the first 10,000 miles you drive (whichever occurs first), we will replace the tire free. The Minute Man IV is probably America's safest tire. It actually seals punctures as you drive. The Minute Man III is the Union Oil tire with more rubber in the shoulder, where there's more wear.

Now you can buy either one with a warranty that is insured by an American Capital Stock Insurance Company. Never before have you had this kind of reassurance—that you will get a free tire if the tire you buy should fail due to normal road hazards during the first year or 10,000 miles.

What's more, your Union Oil dealer is open seven days a week, ready with free follow-up service every mile you drive. His prices are competitive. You can pick your own terms. Up to 15 months to pay—no money down on approved credit.

If you're driving on thin rubber, drive in at the Sign of the 76 and drive out on warranty-insured Minute Man tires. It's a great feeling.

HOW TO PREVENT A HEART ATTACK

BY STAN MUSIAL
THE PRESIDENT'S COUNCIL ON PHYSICAL FITNESS

WASHINGTON, D.C.

Relaxing in an easy chair isn't as safe and snug as you may think. Though it may seem less risky to watch Indians on TV than to fight them as our forefathers did, the perils of our chair-bound, push-button society are almost as great as those faced by the pioneers.

Most doctors agree that too much ease can lead to cardiovascular trouble (disease of the heart and blood vessels), which now causes 55 per cent of all deaths in the U.S. The American Heart Association reported a slight decline in cardiovascular disease in 1963, but most doctors regard this merely as a pause in the general upward climb (an increase of 7 per cent since 1940).

Our TV-sitting, tranquilizer-taking generation is surrounded by gadgets—from power mowers to electric back-scratchers—designed to save exertion. Thanks to the miracle of electronics, we can even change TV channels without stirring from our chairs. Our most overworked muscles are the jaw muscles we use to chew food.

The symptoms of softness showed up even in the officers and men of the 2070 Army Reserve Service Unit. They were summoned to Ft. Myer recently for a surprise physical fitness test. From the moment they stripped to singlets and shorts, it was painfully evident that few would be able to perform the simple exercises. One officer moaned after a few knee bends: "I'm so pooped I can't take my sneakers off."

Under President Johnson, The Council on Physical Fitness will encourage Americans to strengthen their hearts through regular exercise and thereby reduce the toll of heart attacks. The President has given me this personal message for PARADE readers:

"Every adult should find time in his daily schedule for some form of physical activity. Medical evidence tells us that our hearts, lungs and even our minds need the effects of regular vigorous exercise. Overweight and flagging stamina, the badges of the unfit, now are recognized as invitations to old age and illness."

EXERCISE YOUR HEART

Here is advice that may save your life: give your heart a regular workout by exercising daily. For heart muscles, like biceps, become soft from disuse. "The best insurance against coronary disease," say Dr. Howard B. Sprague, famous Boston heart specialist, "is exercise—lots of it."

Specialists also refute the old wives' tale that physical activity can produce "athlete's heart." "Loafer's heart" is infinitely more dangerous. The heart degenerates as its muscles and blood vessels become atrophied from lack of exercise. Few heart attacks result from physical strain; indeed, most occur while the victim is asleep.

Not only is the idler more vulnerable to heart attack; he is also less likely to recover from one. A heart made strong by exercise can better survive an occlusion. Doctors believe exercise develops supplementary blood vessels which can nourish the heart in case a coronary artery is blocked.

Baseball hero Stan Musial recommends less sitting and more exercise as good insurance against heart attacks.

Two heart researchers, Drs. Cedric Bainton and Donald Peterson, conducted a year-long study of heart attack victims under 50 in a city of 1 million. They reported that 66 per cent of all male victims presented "a picture of indolence." They occupied their leisure time "with television, reading and visiting." Another 27 per cent, slightly more ambitious, kept "generally busy with such activities as house repair, light carpentry and gardening." Only 8 per cent performed heavy carpentry and other arduous labor.

A study of 120,000 railroad employees reveals that the heart attack rate among office workers was twice that of the men doing heavy labor. In Britain, foot-slogging mail carriers were found to live longer and have far fewer heart attacks than their desk-bound bosses.

The sedentary person usually begins to weaken his heart by putting on the pounds. No people on earth are more weight-conscious than Americans—and with good reason. Some 25 per cent of our people are overweight, many dangerously so. It is a problem that begins early in life and is as much a matter of underactivity as of overeating.

In most people, fat piles up at the rate of merely a few calories a day. An excess of only 100 calories a day (about 2 slices of bread) can produce a 10-pound gain in a year. But those extra calories could be burned up daily by a 15-minute walk. A half-hour of proper exercise a day can keep off, or take off, as much as 26 pounds a year. Caution: don't take off more than two pounds a week without your physician's knowledge and consent.

WALK, DON'T RIDE

We can't all be star athletes, nor is it wise for sedentary people suddenly to indulge in violent exertions. But there are simple ways to keep the body active as you go about your daily routine.

Walk every chance you get. It is the simplest exercise and one of the best. The massaging action of the leg muscles on your veins speeds the flow of blood back to the heart. When you walk, you are improving not only the leg muscles but the heart pumping action. Develop a brisk stride, toes pointing straight, with knees and ankles limber. Also choose the stairs instead of the elevator or escalator, and bound up them two at a time.

If you are tied to a desk, get up occasionally and stretch; move around for a minute or two. Sit tall with hips touching the back of the chair and feet flat on the floor. Good posture prevents cramping of internal organs and improves blood circulation. Instead of coffee breaks, take exercise breaks: a brisk stroll around the block or a few push-ups. If you prefer something less conspicuous, you can work out your muscles by pushing or pulling against an immovable object such as a wall or door frame, or by pitting one muscle against the opposition of another muscle. Also try pull-ins: suck in your stomach occasionally and hold it taut for a few seconds.

Nearly 4,000 doctors participating in a survey conducted by Parke, Davis & Company said at least one-quarter of their patients, though apparently in good health, were not physically fit. One of every three doctors questioned said at least half of their patients were not physically fit.

Questioned further, the doctors said a regular program of exercise would produce improved cardiovascular efficiency, respiratory function and mental health and longer life.

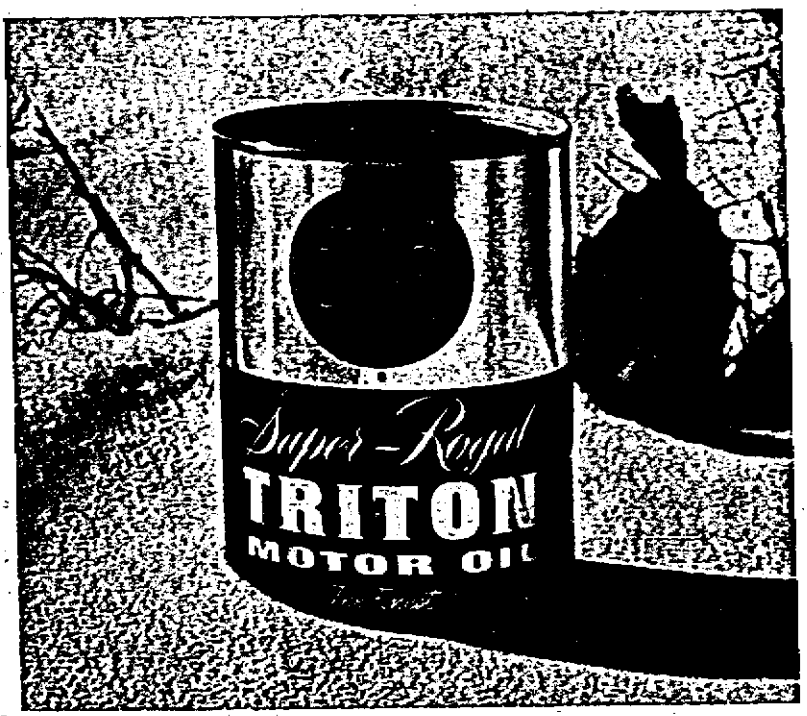

A few simple exercises each day will help you develop a stronger heart, good health and, very probably, insurance against early aging and death.

TO KEEP IN CONDITION

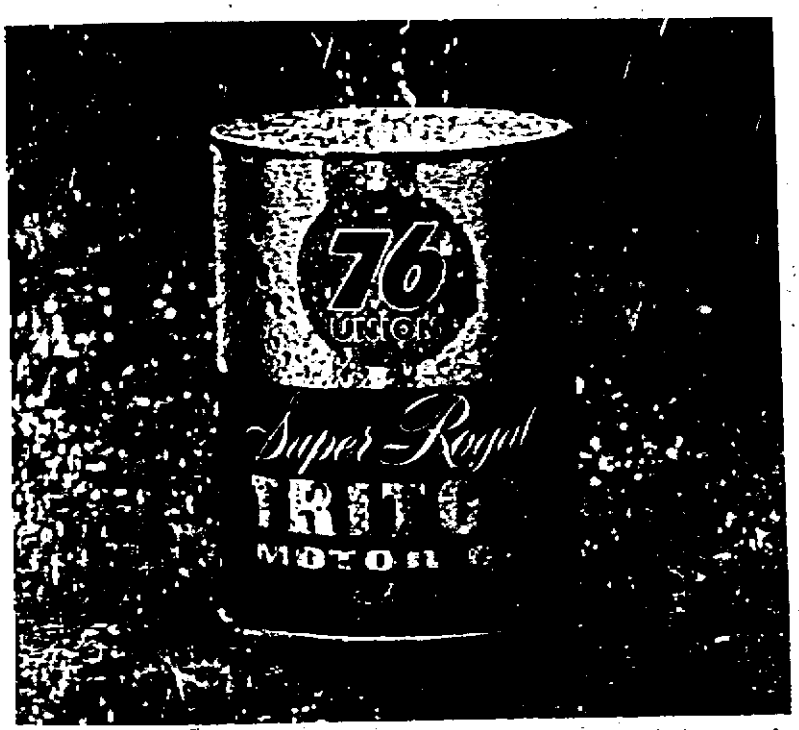

The "sudden" heart attack is seldom sudden at all, but rather the end result of a long process of deterioration. To help keep your heart in condition, you should start a program of home exercises. Anecdote of the Week

■ In Boston recently Judge John V. Mahoney was holding a modification of custody hearing. The father had custody of an 8-year-old son, and the mother wanted custody. The judge asked the boy whether he preferred to stay with his father or live with his mother. The 8-year-old thought for a moment, then turned to Mahoney and said wisely: "I refuse to tell you on the grounds it might incriminate me." ■

People seem to think a nurse knows everything. Women, particularly, come to me with special problems they might hesitate to discuss with others—periodic pain, for example.

What amazes me is that, in this day of modern medicine, many women still resort to aspirin for relief of periodic pain. Sometimes they're lucky. It works for the "periodic" headache. But for those who suffer from discomforts that aspirin cannot help, I recommend a new relief formula you may not have heard about yet. It's called Femicin. Femicin tablets were designed specifically to relieve all the most common symptoms of periodic pain—whether they last 2, 5, or even 7 days.

The Cause of Distress—And What You Can Do About It

The questions women ask me show that too few of them know what causes their periodic pain—or how to get relief. First, you should know that although you may react to the onset of your period with many kinds of discomfort, all these symptoms are related to one another. All stem from the basic change that is taking place in your body. That's why many women need a relief formula compounded to act on several common symptoms at the same time. Femicin is just such a formula.

Why Femicin Works Where Simple Pain Killers Fail

A simple pain killer—aspirin, for example—contains no special ingredient to control the abdominal spasms and painful cramps. Femicin has not only a mild anti-spasmodic, but two potent pain relievers, as well. Then, too, aspirin has no effect whatsoever on the excess water that accumulates in your body at this time. Some women put on as much as ten or twelve pounds of this bloating "water-weight," frequently causing puffiness and tenderness in the abdominal or bosom area. This excess water will disappear during the course of your period—but certain substances will hasten the process. The Femicin formula supplies a gentle water-eliminating action you won't find in aspirin.

"Period Nerves"

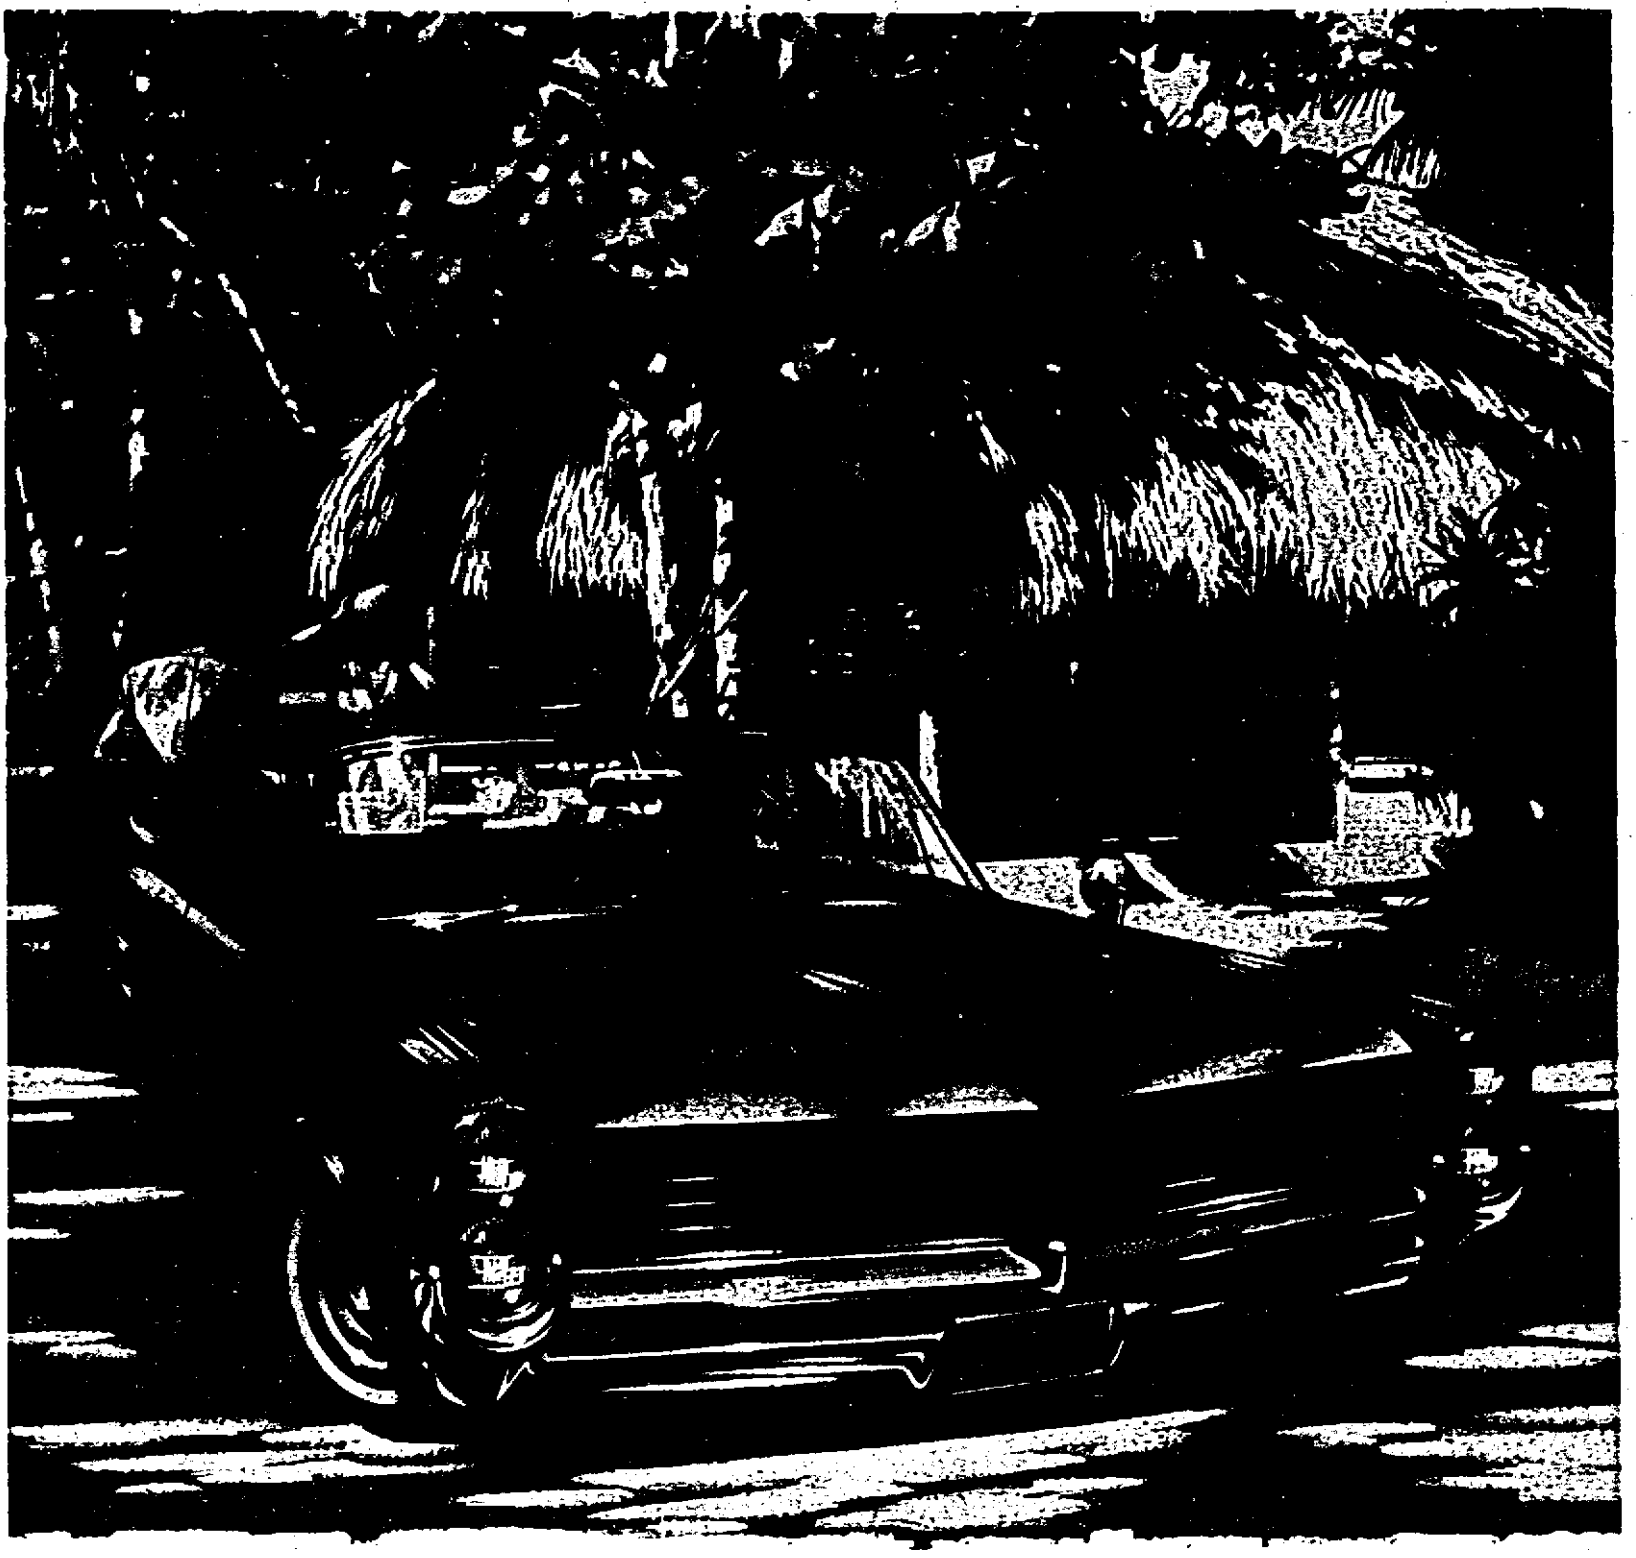

I've been asked so many times about the feelings of tension, edginess and irritability that so frequently accompany the monthly period. Women dread the "period nerves" that turn them into tense, moody strangers—even to their own families. But Femicin's gentle sedative action works to relax the edginess and irritability. You feel better—look better—function better—all week long.

A Common Problem That Wears Many Faces

Not everyone suffers from all the common, medically-recognized symptoms of periodic pain and distress. Your own symptoms may be different from those of your friends. For you it may be the blinding headaches. Others suffer from painful cramps and backaches. That is why the Femicin formula combines many proven relief-bringing ingredients. And why Femicin tablets may well be the safe, non-prescription tablet for you.

Why do I recommend Femicin tablets so highly? Simply because, as a nurse, I have seen the clinical test reports that show Femicin's modern formula usually makes suffering periodic pain unnecessary. And as a woman...well, I've experienced Femicin's better-than-aspirin relief for myself.

Right now, Femicin is available at local drug counters, so there's no longer any need to think of periodic pain as inevitable. Follow the simple directions. Discover this new way to relief—Femicin relief—for yourself. I recommend it.

You're not the only one who'll like the way your Pontiac is built. So will the next owner.

Who'd ever think about selling his 1964 Pontiac now? Still, it's nice to know that the way we build a Pontiac for you is what makes it worth more to the one who buys it next. Look at styling. (Beautiful.) Pontiacs no more go out of fashion than money. Consider engineering. (Superb.) Pontiac's the car with Wide-Track ride, which flattens bumps as neatly as it unwinds curves. Then there's Trophy V-8 power. (Strong. Very strong.) It's better to think about all this coolly, beforehand. Once you see and drive the Pontiacs, things get somewhat emotional. (Fun.)
